RUSSIA PROPOSES BRIEF UN TRUCE

160 More Hostages Saved As Rebel Towns Taken; Stanleyville Battle Rages

Rebels Have Regained Control Of Most of Former Capital

From AP-Reuters

LEOPOLDVILLE (CP) — White mercenaries have rescued from 155 to 160 rebel hostages in a cotton-growing region about 260 miles north of Stanleyville, a Belgian embassy spokesman said today. Most of those rescued were Belgians.

The report came as the rebels fought back in Stanleyville, the fallen insurgent capital seized a week ago. The airport was closed by rebel fire and most of the city was reported in rebel hands.

The hostages were freed at the cotton - growing centres of Dincila and Bambili in the northeastern Congo.

First reports said fleeing rebels had taken two hostages northward when they abandoned the others. Some of the hostages have already been flown-to Leopoldville.

Bambili and Dingila are in the heart of a cotton-growing region about 110 miles northeast of Buta, the mercenaries' operational base. Almost all those rescued belonged to the Belgian Cotonco Company, the embassy spokesmen said.

TO ADOPT 250

He added that the rescue reduced the number of Belgians still trapped by the rebels to about 250, although previous reports had said 500-1,000 white remained after the Belgian paratroop rescue mission ended last week. Most of these were said to be Belgians.

The rescued were believed to have been taken to Watsa, a town close to the Sudanese border. About 30 Belgians are scattered in isolated settlements, the official said.

The Canadian seaplane in Leopoldville has listed eight Canadian airlift unaccounted for in the Congo.

Other messages reaching Leopoldville said the re-occupation of the situation at Kindu, a former rebel centre which was recaptured by the mercenaries at the beginning of their drive on Stanleyville, 250 miles north. The mercenaries in Leopoldville expressed concern about the possibility of a rebel reoccupation of Kindu where large stocks of arms and ammunition were collected by the central government.

Only a handful of Belgian mercenaries are believed to be still in Kindu to stiffen the town's Congolese garrison.

Reports from Kindu and Mambasa were retaken Monday during an operation involving 30 mercenaries and 200 Congolese soldiers.

CANADIAN EVACUEES REACH BRUSSELS FROM CONGO — David Grant and his wife, Sonia, both of St. John, New Brunswick, Canada, reach Brussels airport after-being evacuated from Stanleyville, The Congo. They were among hundreds of whites caught in rebel territory during Congo civil war.

Soviet Probe Joins U. S. Mariner In Race to Learn Mars' Secrets

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Russians were back in the race to Mars with a new deep-space probe today but it appeared to be a partial failure. Its power supply was working at only half-strength.

The new probe, Zond II, was launched Monday. But Tass news agency said data received back on earth showed it had only half its expected power supply.

There was no information immediately available on whether Zond II had sufficient reserves to carry on with its program.

Tass also said Zond II was close to its planned course but it did not appear to be directed at the planet Mars itself.

At noon EST Monday Zond II, launched two days behind the U.S. Mars probe, Mariner IV, was 25,000 miles from earth above a point 155 degrees, nine minutes east and 12 degrees, 50 minutes north, Tass said.

Zond II appeared to have started its journey aboard a multi-stage rocket which placed a heavy satellite in an intermediate orbit around the earth. Tass said a "cosmic rocket" was then detached from the satellite, accelerating the automatic spacecraft to the speed necessary to put it in a Mars trajectory.

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)— U.S. spacecraft Mariner IV sped at 7,226 miles an hour today toward distant Mars—two days ahead of's Russian rival in history's first interplanetary race.

Mariner is due in the vicinity of Mars July 14.

Somewhere behind it — perhaps even in the same trajectory—is the Zond II cosmic rocket the Russians fired Monday.

Mariner is cruising now, its speed pre-set, moving in a perfect position for the next crurial manoeuvre in its 350,000,000-mile flight: A midcourse manoeuvre to refine its trajectory. It probably will come later this week.

The midcourse manoeuvre may increase Mariner's speed slightly, enough to cut a few hours on a 228-day journey.

Russian scientists, aware of Mariner's schedule, could rig Zond II to pass it, if simple speed is their goal, laboratory experts said.

Scientists were inclined to doubt that Russian scientists fired Zond II to pass Mariner IV as a cold war gambit.

Knife-Wielding Women Caught by Police Here, Roadblocks Are Set Up

A dramatic bid for freedom by knife-wielding women inmates of Kingston penitentiary ended early this morning when a lone policeman spotted them at Belleville's four corners.

Jean Rose, 25, of Port Credit, and Muriel Randle, 20, of Saskatoon, were arrested in downtown Trenton after police surreptitiously followed them from Belleville.

Earlier, the pair had fled the penitentiary women's prison after forcing matrons at knifepoint to release them. They took a set of car keys from one of the matrons.

The dramatic breakout attempt was staged shortly after midnight. Officials said both prisoners were in the prison hospital when Randle asked a matron for a drink of water. As the matron entered she was grabbed by Randle and threatened with a knife.

A second matron, who came to assist the threatened woman officer was grabbed by Rose. Both prisoners, holding knives, then ordered the matrons to open three barriers.

About 3.10 a.m., the description of a stolen automobile was issued by Kingston city police. No trace of the escapees was found, although police throughout the area were on the alert.

At 5.20 a.m. Constable Leo Kent, walking his beat on Front Street, spotted the wanted car heading west over the Lower Bridge. He phoned his discovery from a nearby police call box.

Plainclothes constable Lyle Davis hurriedly drove to the scene, picked up Constable Kent and set off in pursuit of the car.

The detective first spotted the automobile on Highway No. 2 outside the city limits.

However, the officers did not close in. By the time the wanted car was spotted, the search had reached open country, providing the fugitives with an opportunity to escape on foot in the darkness.

Constable Lyle kept the cruiser behind the wanted car, following it along the highway toward Trenton. He radioed his partner who alerted the Trenton police.

Near the outskirts of the town, a Trenton cruiser joined in and the escapee's automobile was followed into downtown Trenton where a third policeman appeared on the scene.

The two women were informed down on the wanted car, boxing it in.

The two women were taken from the automobile and police got a knife was found in Randle's coat pocket. They were taken back to Belleville and handed over to penitentiary authorities later this morning.

Rose was serving a sentence for false pretences, and Randle was jailed for breaking, entering and theft.

Both women also had escaped custody previously and were serving additional time on those counts.

Gromyko Wants Recess After Opening Routine

U. S. Reaction to Plan To Avoid Clash Awaited

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

UNITED NATIONS (CP)— The United Nations awaited U.S. reaction today to a Soviet proposal to postpone briefly the showdown in the General Assembly over Russia's refusal to pay for UN peace-keeping operations.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko proposed that the opening meeting of the assembly's 1964 session this afternoon (3 p.m. EST) confine itself to routine actions by acclamation. The assembly would election of Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana as president and perhaps of the 13 vice-presidents, admission of Malawi, Malta and Zambia to UN membership. Then the assembly would recess for a day or two to allow more time for negotiations on the financial issue.

This would forestall a formal vote on which the United States could invoke Article 19 of the UN charter. It provides that a UN member more than two years in arrears on its dues shall lose its vote in the assembly. Russia's refusal to pay peacekeeping assessments has put her in that category.

Informed sources doubted the United States would agree to the brief postponement. They said the United States wants a speedy deferral of the matter and also Soviet commitment to negotiate on future peacekeeping arrangements.

PROPOSED SOLUTION

Secretary - General U Thant had proposed such a temporary solution providing for the assembly to take up only noncontroversial items on which there was unanimous agreement until its Christmas recess. This would permit negotiations until February, when the Christmas recess ends.

Gromyko rejected Thant's proposal Monday, saying the Soviet Union "categorically opposes" postponing substantive matters on the assembly agenda "for a long period or indefinitely." He said the government "believes the General Assembly should start and continue its work in accordance with normal procedures."

U.S. Ambassador Goldberg has threatened to quit the United Nations if they lose their vote in the assembly.

7 Children Die In Fire, Hold Father

BALTIMORE (AP) — Seven brothers and sisters died Monday in a fire which destroyed their east Baltimore home. Their father was held on a charge of arson in connection with the fire.

Police Sgt. William Rawlings said Kennard A. Smith, 36-year-old truck driver, was held for investigation of arson after he was arrested at a bar.

Police said they found a gasline can in the house and were told by a 13-year-old survivor that he had been awakened by into the burning house as he fled to escape. The boy managed to get out another exit.

The mother and four other children survived. Deputy fire Chief Roland Wett identified the dead as: Janet, 1; Gary, 2; Steven, 4; Jeannette, 5; Kathy, 7; Darlene, 8, and Vivian, 12.

Police said they were told by a neighbor of being awakened by the sound of breaking glass. The neighbor said he saw the fire and a man standing in front of the house, watching. Officers quoted the neighbor as saying the man had stood there as the children screamed "our house is on fire."

Familiar Lines In Debate

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP)—Monday was the 200th sitting of the longest session in the Canadian Commons' history and it seemed that the members were debating the flag issue for the 200th time.

Technically, it was the first day of discussion on the single red maple leaf flag recommended Oct. 29 by a special committee, but it sounded like a replay of a year-old rock'n'roll hit record.

The same arguments that dominated last summer's interminent debate were restated, but with much less passion and fire this time.

English - speaking Conservatives again argued that the minority Liberal government will split the country if it scraps the Red Ensign and replaces it with a new flag, without first consulting the public through a national plebiscite.

Government supporters replied that MPs are elected to decide public issues. They repeated their contention that a

Despite Ordeal, Canadian Mission Workers Willing to Return to Congo

NEW YORK (CP)—Three Canadian mission workers talked calmly Monday night about the possibility of returning to The Congo, where less than a week ago they were hostages of rebels waging a bitter civil war against the central government.

"I think we should all be willing to go back when peace returns if we can be useful," David Grant, 39, of Saint John, N.B., told reporters as the refugees arrived here en route to their homes.

But they all described the Belgian airlift as brief return to The Congo as a high point in their lives.

"Our rescue was a miraculous deliverance by the Lord," Grant said.

His wife, Sonia, 38, said: "I hardly dared believe the talk that was going around about the Belgian Army coming in to get us out. It was the sort of dream-like episode that you think of as wildly improbable until it happened.

"But it happened to us." There was a pause, then she said: "To some of us."

Viola May Walker, 39, of Vinemount, Ont., said: "We are so thankful the soldiers came when they did. It was too late for some poor souls but the rest of us have something to be grateful for."

Miss Walker was in the group of hostages, held in a mission house five miles outside Stanleyville, from which Rev. Hector McMillan of Avonmore, Ont., was taken and shot by the rebels.

"There were 25 of us, men, women and children in the house," she said. "On the last morning we were held, a group of Simbas [rebel soldiers] came to the house, told the women and children to stay inside, and took the two men, Mr. McMillan and an Irish minister, Rev. Robert McAllister, outside.

"After they had been taken out, then some of the simbas shot through the room to terrify us. Two of Mr. McMillan's children were hit.

"Mr. McMillan heard the shooting when he was being walked away from the house and apparently he turned around and came back to see what was happening to his family. At that point he was shot and killed.

"I believe he died instantly, wondering what was to become of his family."

Grant said the arrival of the Belgian paratroops in Stanleyville was "one of the most joyful moments of my life."

The three Canadians and a fourth mission worker who returned with them are members of the Unevangelized Fields Mission. They went immediately to mission headquarters in Philadelphia where they will spend a few days before visiting their homes.

Mrs. Grant said rumors that Belgian soldiers were coming to rescue them began circulating in their hotel prison several days before they were saved, "but I never believed them until I saw the Belgian uniforms after they had arrived."

The Grants, in The Congo since 1955 except for two vacation periods at home, were working at a mission station in the jungle, 60 miles from Stanleyville, when the rebels seized them a month ago and took them with them to Buta.

He is a carpenter and mechanic, she is a nurse.

All three Canadians said they hope to be reassigned to mission work shortly. Miss Walker, a Sunday School teacher who has been in The Congo since 1936, said there is a chance they will return there "when things settle down."

None of the Canadians reported ill treatment, apart from the wild shooting that Miss Walker witnessed, but all were threatened with death at various times.

Sir Winston Crowns 90th Birthday Party With Champagne and Brandy

It was the climax to a day in which the world expressed its affection and gratitude for unprecedented tributes of birthday messages.

Among the huge pile of cards, telegram letters and flowers cramming the Churchills' Hyde Park home were a message and a bouquet from the Queen, and messages from countless other well-wishers, famous and unknown.

Canadian High Commissioner Lionel Chevrier sent his good wishes to add to those of the Governor-General and Governor-General Georges Vanier. Former prime minister Diefenbaker also sent a message.

First visitor to knock on Sir Winston's front door early Monday was an Australian woman on holiday in Britain, who handed in a bouquet of red and white carnations.

Two men from Floris, the royal chocolate makers, delivered a 120-pound fruit cake slathered with white and gold icing.

The cake, enough to feed 500 persons, was cut and sampled at the end of Monday night's party, attended by 14 relatives and close friends.

A few minutes before sitting down to his birthday dinner, Sir Winston made a brief, unexpected appearance at a window to acknowledge the cheers of a crowd of about 200, some of whom had waited hours in the cold and rain hoping to see him.

Dressed in his dinner suit, he smiled and waved at the crowd sang Happy Birthday and gave him three cheers.

Churchill issued a special message to those who had sent him greetings Monday.

"I am most grateful to all those who have remembered me on my 90th birthday. The number of messages I have received from all over the world is, it seems, greater than ever before and I hope that those who have had the kindness to write to me will understand if it is not possible for me to reply to so many. Their thoughts have given me the greatest pleasure."

World Waits to See How New Leaders Meet Problems

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The United Nations General Assembly opens its 19th session today against a world backdrop strikingly different from the opening of the 18th session in September, 1963.

Then, the atmosphere was one of confidence and anticipation.

Kennedy, Khrushchev and Macmillan had just put their signatures on the partial nuclear test-ban treaty. There was talk of "cold war thaw," in the air.

Now, all three men have disappeared from the roster of world leaders, along with India's Jawaharlal Nehru. The mood is one of uncertainty and unease as the world waits to see how the new leaders will handle old problems.

A year ago, the end was in sight for the Congo force, the most ambitious peace-keeping operation ever sponsored by the UN. There was hope that the windup in mid-1964 would clear the way for settlement of the grave financial - constitutional questions surrounding UN peacekeeping.

Now these questions are still unanswered and the Assembly appears headed for a damaging East-West showdown over them.

And The Congo itself, without the restraining influence of the UN, has tumbled back into anarchy while the UN looks on helplessly.

A year ago, the Communist bloc seemed to be falling apart. Experts were wondering, with varying degrees of optimism, whether Khrushchev might not bring the Soviet Union closer to the West.

Now, the new Soviet leaders are carefully trying to stick back together their alliance with China, while the Western powers are dogged by increasingly acute differences.

There are a few bright notes. In Cyprus, the UN has shown that, despite seemingly impossible conditions, it can still mount a peace force capable of bringing a dispute from the field of terrorism back to the conference table.

Despite financial snarls, it has continued to carry out the multitude of technical assistance and other aid programs.

And, despite basic differences, the big powers all have given evidence that they at least want to keep the international organization in being.

Driver Given Seven Days

Trouble was he had two Belleville addresses and a third in Oakville.

They got the license—and today Marshall got seven days for driving while suspended.

"The magistrate must have known he was suspended," commented Magistrate T. Y. Wills. "He was trying to be smart, that's the size of it."

Mayor Favors Election Every Two Years

Belleville will hold municipal elections only every other year if the wishes of Mayor Jack Ellis are approved by city council.

The plan being put forward by Mayor Ellis is for the city to discontinue the present system of staggered elections for aldermen and school trustees under which seven aldermen are elected each year for two year terms.

The mayor proposes that all aldermen and school board trustees and public utilities commissioner be elected for two years, with elections every other year to co-incide with the mayoralty contest.

Mayor Ellis does not feel the possible loss of continuity in council or school board would be anything to worry about.

The every other year election, if approved, would result in a $6,000 saving in election costs in the "off" years.

The school is divided into two nights. Close to half of the 134 clerks spent over an hour at city hall last night, while the remainder will be called in this evening.

At the school of instruction election day duties of the poll clerks are covered by the city clerk. Instruction covers proper voting procedure, counting of ballots, marking of election sheets and making election returns to city hall.

Candidates for Public Office Report to Large Gathering Of Ratepayers in Auditorium

TRENTON — Counting town officials, members of the Trenton Citizens' Band, candidates for public office and their wives, service club members and reporters, there must have been close to 200 people at last night's citizens' meeting in the high school auditorium. The three-and-a-half-hour program was taped by CJBQ's Frank Murray and Ted Soldier and will be broadcast at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday night. Mr. Snider doubled up and led his Citizens' Band through a number of hummable numbers.

Clerk-comptroller O. W. Larry conducted the meeting and told the audience that it hoped more interest being shown in this year's municipal election than in the last 15 years. "This is surprising," said Mr. Larry, "as this is an 'off' year with no mayoralty election." He said he hoped the enthusiasm would keep up until after election, Monday, December 7.

Mr. Larry explained that voters elegible to vote on money by-laws, which, if approved, would be asked if the town should make an annual grant to municipal bands as the town were in favor of the town spending up to $500 towards the construction costs of a swimming pool in the present high school auditorium. He answered the question, "Are you in favor of the town asking the provincial government to make a greater contribution to capital costs of education?"

Mr. Larry then asked to keep their addresses close to the five minute allotment and those in the audience were invited to ask "orderly" questions.

In all, there were 30 speakers, and, as Mr. Larry forecast in his opening remarks, it was "a long evening."

MAYOR REPORTS

Mayor James MacDonald, making his annual report to the ratepayers, said arrangements for the construction of a second bridge across the Trent River were nearing completion with the Ontario Department of Highways co-operating one hundred per cent. The provincial government pay 75 per cent of construction costs) and the town still "dickering" with the federal Department of Transport over the terms of a $300,000 grant towards the project. (The department said it will make the grant if the town will take on the repair and maintenance of the swing portion of the present bridge ....ad infinitum).

"Meanwhile," said the mayor, the provincial department had asked the town to install a system of synchronized traffic signal lights and by-providing adequate lighting on Front Street, on the town's eastern limits to the RCAF station.

The town had agreed to give Murray Township 10,000 gallons of water a day for use in a proposed centralized township school, said the mayor, in return for permission for the utilities commission to build a retaining pond adjacent to the new township development road. The pond will raise the water storage capacity from ten million gallons to 30 million gallons.

The town's Centennial Project .... the partial development of the waterfront park, south of the community gardens ... was "off the ground," under the leadership of ex-mayor Kenneth Couch, Mayor MacDonald said. The new federal building on Front St. will be completed by spring, said the mayor, and moved to sit down with Ontario Water Resources personnel and representatives from the Department of Municipal Affairs to discuss ways and means of the town stepping up its sewer installation program and the enlargement of the sewage treatment plant.

GIVES REASONS FOR VOTES

On the three questions to be asked the voters, the mayor gave reasons for voting for all three.

Municipalities need more assistance with school costs; Trenton children are a place to learn to swim and municipal bands are "an asset to the town."

Councillor Ross Hartt, chairman this year of public welfare, reported his department was "in the black", and the welfare department is operating efficiently under the leadership of welfare administrator Gordon Davis.

Mr. Burtt, with 27 years of municipal government experience behind him, asked for the support of the voters in the upcoming elections, promising to give "the same time to business-like service as always."

Councillor Joseph G. Ash, chairman of public works and sanitation, gave a comprehensive report on the activities of his department. He said the town was already reaping the benefits of last year's street reconstruction program. Many of the town's streets have been resurfaced and resurfaced; sidewalks have been installed or repaired; storm sewers have been installed, several intersections and a park area made out of the Stanley Street Hospital site on Friday, November 27, 1964. A vote of thanks was tendered to Dr. W. S. Beattie.

It took no one his last farewell,
He left without a word,
He left behind a silent pain,
A loving voice said "come",
And so I obey and think of Him.
The things you used to say,
I wonder why you had to die,
Without a chance to say goodbye,
Those days of sight; you're never still missed, loved, still mine,
Till with you with me in memory,
Until the end of time.

WILLIAMS, Jack R. — In loving memory of a dear father and brother, Gary Stephen, who passed away December 1, 1962.

What we would give if we could say,
Hello, Jack, in the same old way,
To hear your voice, see your smile,
To sit with you and chat awhile,
So you'd know how much we care,
For you'd never know the heartache,
Till you see his vacant chair.

—Always remembered by Don, Audrey and grandchildren.

WILLIAMS — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Gary Williams, who passed away December 1, 1962.

In a quiet island where we live,
Where the breezes gently blow,
Where the trees are green and dear,
That we lost just one year ago.
His left behind many aching hearts,
That loved him most sincere,
But God, we never forget you,
Forget you, Gary dear.

Just one year ago I could say,
Hello Gary, in the same old way,

So you'd know how much we care,
We never forget,
To love and cherish and never forget.

River, Harbor and Old Buildings Are Three of City's Advantages Says Speaker

The river, the older buildings, and the port are three of Belleville's greatest advantages, and now is the critical moment for making best use of them.

Professor James Acland was addressing the fall meeting of the Community Planning Association here at the Quinte Hotel on Monday. Prof. Acland lectures at the school of architecture in the University of Toronto.

Planning is not zoning maps or costly developments in steel and glass. Rather it involves making attractive living space for men, women and children. Good planning can even bring in money, for a pleasant spot will attract visitors. Marina facilities on the harbor, a well landscaped river, old buildings treated with sensitive understanding: Belleville could have all three.

With colored slides Prof. Acland pointed out the qualities that make some older European or Mexican or French Canadian towns attractive. The inhabitants of the Greek islands are dirt poor, yet their sunny white-washed towns built of plastered rubble in their dignity and simplicity make our cities look sick. A market place in Mexico, a Mediterranean courtyard, an outdoor cafe in Toronto, showed the human aspect, even the hardy-gurdy nonsense, that makes city living attractive.

We do not need to put up ultra-modern glass boxes of office blocks to be up to date. We might better follow the lead of the war-bombed Germans and Poles who rebuilt whole streets of buildings in a somewhat medieval style, preserving that essential link with the past. Even in America it makes sense to keep what is good in the older local architecture, clean it up, and adapt it to our present purposes. The older buildings had a quality of neighborliness which is the essence of good planning. Our new buildings tend to be each a wretched little monument by itself, fighting with whatever stands next to it.

ONE ADVANTAGE

European cities of an earlier age had one advantage we lack: their defensive wells kept the city from sprawling as our cities tend to do. It is appalling thinks Prof. Acland, to see a city like Belleville stretching out pathetic fingers of development in the direction of the 401 highway and neglecting its old town core, and to see Toronto repeating the mistakes of Los Angeles in its complicated and destructive system of freeways.

Grain storage elevators, flaking boats, warehouses, simple clapboard shacks or sheds, smiling walls and earthworks tiled roofs, garden patios: every place has its own requirements and traditions. Use the elements that make sense, says Prof. Acland. Every sort of building makes its own particular statement. Belleville still has a splendid, shopping street, self-contained and unified, as long as no more buildings are knocked down for parking space. Front Street's old facades are architecturally acceptable and anyway it is uneconomic to tear them down just because our grandfathers built them. Owners are missing a bet, though, in not operating up towards the river, with nicely landscaped restaurants to attract tourists.

A site with a good building costs all the more attractive to a developer, pointed out Prof. Acland, and so the best of the old buildings are destroyed for a doubtful progress.

Citizens get the town they fight for. Politicians are generally glad to respond to pressure. Action on the whole has been fortunate in its neighborhood groups that, traditionally, have fought for worthwhile aims, as the Community Planning Association does.

The speaker was introduced by Stanley G. Durrant, and thanked by Enos David. Mrs. D. Cain, president of the Belleville Branch of CPAC, was chairman. The meeting began with dessert and coffee. On display was the model of CPAC's proposed historical and marine redevelopment of South Front St. made last spring by architectural drafting students at Moira Secondary School.

The Hastings County Historical Society held one of its most successful meetings recently, when society members journeyed to the Melrose - Blessington area of Tyendinaga township.

The program began at Mr. Jack Farrell's Blacksmith Shop at Blessington. A blacksmith for 50 years in this area and one of the few blacksmiths in Eastern Ontario, Mr. Farrell demonstrated various techniques.

The flying sparks and the musical sound of the hammer on the anvil delighted the spectators as he forged both summer and winter shoes.

Mr. Farrell takes a great deal of pride in his craftsmanship and delights in his work, reminding one of the friendly village smithy of poetical fame.

He told how he first started in this business at Blessington before the First War and how for half a century he has served the needs of an ever increasing area.

ANSWERED QUESTIONS

Later in the evening at the Historical Society's meeting in the Tyendinaga township hall, attended by more than 80 persons, Mr. Farrell answered questions about the blacksmith trade. He explained that the blacksmith shop was a friendly place and that his greatest happiness comes from the pleasant dealings with his customers. It was recalled that the shop has often served as a news centre for the area.

Mr. Farrell was introduced by Mr. Charles Long, reeve of Tyendinaga township, who recalled the time when, as a schoolboy, had operated the bellows for the blacksmith.

The meeting's appreciation was voiced to Mr. Farrell by Mr. T. S. Ransom, vice-president of the Historical Society, who presented him with a reproduction of an early advertisement for Putnam's Horseshoe Nails, guaranteed not to break, split, or crack.

Before Mr. Farrell's talk, the meeting heard Mrs. J. English of Melrose, outline the history of Melrose and Tyendinaga township. Her talk was both interesting and enlightening and her sense of humor caught the fancy of the meeting. Mrs. English suggested that things had changed from the early days of Tyendinaga township when there were as many as 12 tavern inspectors and people wishing to start a school had to do so without the benefit of public tax money.

DESCRIBES DOCUMENTS

Mrs. English also introduced the township clerk and two former school teachers at the local school, and described a display of local documents and pictures (including a very early township minute book.)

The group's appreciation to Mrs. English was voiced by Gerald Boyes, president of the Historical Society, who also thanked the local women for preparing and serving refreshments.

Two motions were approved: one congratulating Mr. C. Bell of the Tweed News, on that paper's Centennial project (the publication of as much local history as possible) and the second congratulating The Ontario Intelligencer and Harry Mulhall for the appearance of recent articles on early local elections, the abortive royal visit of 1860, and the visit of Oscar Wilde. It was suggested that Mr. Mulhall be invited to address a future meeting of the society.

Following the meeting light refreshments were served; two draws were held, the Museum Christmas cards and other sales material were offered for sale, the displays were viewed, and there was a chance to chat with Mrs. English and Mr. Farrell about early life in this district.

A blacksmith for 50 years, Mr. Farrell continues to ply his craft, and both his close friends and new friends met for the first time wished him well for many years to come.

VG VICTORIA and GREY TRUST

Aspiring Candidates Will Be Heard at 3 Meetings

Aspiring aldermen and separate school trustees will hit the campaign trail tonight, as the first of three public meetings scheduled for this week is held at the Corby Public Library.

Wednesday night campaigners will speak at two meetings, first at the Wharf Street Debating Club, where both aspirant office holders and members of the audience traditionally "let their hair down", and later at the Park Dale Community Centre in the northwest part of the city.

There is no mayoralty race in the city this year with Mayor Jack Ellis last year being elected for a two-year term.

But ratepayers are being asked to vote on three referendums. These are the reduction of council to ten members; fluoridation of city water supplies; and the return of the parks board to city hall administration.

City Building Much Higher Than Last Year

Building in the city of Belleville so far this year is running close to a million dollars higher than at the same date last year.

City building inspector Grant Stickle reported today that to the end of November this year's building total was $5,655,671, as compared to $4,498,607 for the same period in 1963.

During November there were 41 permits issued for a total of $583,579. There were 34 permits for new residential construction for a total of $36,500. New commercial construction totalled $41,500 and new institutional building (the new city works barn) $169,579.

Mercury Only 5 Degrees Above The Zero Mark

With the thermometer dropping to a low of five degrees in the city and to zero or below in the outlying areas, Belleville and district had its first real touch of winter last night.

In the city the mercury dropped five degrees below that which the weatherman had predicted.

A liberal ice coating stretching far out into the bay and a mantle of ice on the lower reaches of the Moira River was mute evidence this morning of the sudden temperature drop.

Twenty Years After

It is difficult to realize that many who heard him eulogized had no personal knowledge of the events which elevated him to a place amongst the historic figures in the story of mankind.

One may wonder how Churchill himself views the bounty of the years — whether he is quite content to be living to an age which sees his great deeds fading into the tapestry of history, or whether it would have suited him better had his death matched the heroic nature of his deeds.

With his great appreciation of the dramatic, he would surely not have been insensible to the effect which would have been produced had he died on one of those long and hazardous wartime flights — to Cairo or to Yalta — or had he fallen victim to a stray bullet on one of his trips to the front.

But second thoughts assure us that, though he showed no fear of death, he would have detested such an end and for two very different reasons. He would have been saddened to think of the effect which it might have had upon the prosecution of the war, for though without conceit he was realist enough to recognize the importance of the role he played. And then, too, he would have hated to miss the greatly-desired, stubborn moment of victory over the enemies of his country and the principles for which his country stood.

Today, divided by the lengthening years from the events which proved his inimitable qualities of heart and mind, he is a memory to many, a legend to others and an example to all.

Let it Snow, Let it Blow

Well, that's that. The Grey Cup game has been played and football is over for another year.

Next on the schedule is Christmas. With Santa paying his official visit here this coming Saturday, Belleville residents have no time to lose getting in the mood.

What we need worst of all is a bit of snow, to make the old gent feel at home.

And after he leaves, it would be best if the snow were to stay, and to be followed by additional layers.

Once the ground gets parched, rains do not seem to do much good. The run-off is too fast. But a real old-fashioned winter, like those about which old-timers talk, would provide an effective remedy if spring came in proper style. A gradual thaw would let the water from the melting snows sink deep into the ground.

And this second year we have enjoyed an exceptionally mild fall, with little rain. This is excellent weather as far as the city-dweller goes, but the farmer, though he may find such weather advantageous for fall plowing and similar chores, knows that lack of rain can be costly.

Thus, much though we bemoan the fact, it behooves us to be prepared to welcome Old Man Winter and hope that he does his best, or worst.

Man with a Message

The death of Rev. Norman Rawson, minister of St. James United Church in Montreal and formerly of Hamilton, will stir many pleasant memories amongst "loiners" of almost every description.

Dr. Rawson's vocation was the ministry, his avocation the spreading of laughter around the banquet circuit of service clubs, church groups and similar community organizations.

Dr. Rawson was best when heard the first time. His style was such a refreshing change from that of the average "ladies' night" orator that it left an indelible impression.

One looked forward to hearing him again.

The second time around one was disappointed until one started to ponder the reason.

Then one realized that he had made such an impression that one unconsciously expected him to top himself, as he had topped all previous after-dinner speakers one had heard.

And that, of course, was impossible.

Like the sun, once glimpsed, he paled the into significance.

He gave multitudes a new insight into the ries of speech, brought them enjoyment, ed himself doing it.

Regular Eating Habits Will Help Correct Constipation

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been constipated for about 40 years. Doctors tell me I have a spastic bowel. My father built the foundation for my trouble years ago. He was a doctor 75 years a go and was a firm believer in regularity. So he gave me calomel. Today doctors are a different breed. If you can help me, I shall be thankful. — John H.

Maybe I can. First stop blaming your father. He did what he thought was right. Today we know better. He made an honest mistake — but you've had 40 years to undo it.

Since doctors have diagnosed your trouble as a spastic (or nervous) bowel or colon, they must surely have given you a program to follow.

Your letter somehow pictures you as a man with a tense personality. Spastic bowel usually implies the same thing.

Some "un-tensing" of yourself, both nervously and physically, is indicated. Doctors (and medication) can help you, but with this sort of condition, you must do for yourself some of the things that nobody else can do for you.

Antispasmodic medications can relieve the colon from some of its tendency to tenseness. Bulk producers can insure that nature will have a chance to perform regularly.

For your part, you must eat regularly. When there is an urge for bowel action you must heed it. That is an important step in establishing regularity of the bowel. Getting adequate rest is of value to people with your sort of problem.

Details of diet and medication will have to be decided by your doctor, on an individual basis to fit your needs, but you must recognize the importance of doing your part. This will take time, but not too much if you stick to the solution.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: What is meant by "urethral colic"? I understand it is associated with kidney stone attacks. Are such attacks caused by an overacid condition? Is there a medication to prevent formation of kidney stones? — Mrs. E.

You mean ureteral rather than urethral.

There is a ureter from each kidney, running into the bladder. The urethra in turn leads from the bladder.

If a stone (or gravel, or sometimes a blood clot) tries to force a passage through a ureter, the result is ureteral colic, often a particularly savage type of pain.

It can happen in the urethra, too, but not as often.

There are various kinds of kidney stones, differing in chemical constitution. Some form in an acid environment, others need alkaline conditions.

The best ways to prevent stone formation are: (1) clear up any infection which may exist in the urinary tract; (2) drink ample water to keep the urine dilute.

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter has had three moles on the lower part of her neck ever since she was 5 years old. I took her to the doctor and he said not to worry about them. She is 42 years old now and the moles are a little larger. — Mrs. C. W.

At age 5, the answer was correct. But now it is 37 years later. And — this is the important thing — the moles are changing size. These should be examined by a doctor without delay.

* * *

What are ulcers? How should they be treated. What can you do to help rid yourself of ulcers and stay rid of them? For answers, read Dr. Molner's helpful booklet "How to Heal Peptic Ulcers and Keep them Healed." For your copy write to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., enclosing a long, self-addressed stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dec. 1, 1964 . . .

President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Russia's Joseph Stalin concluded their meeting at Tehran, Iran, 21 years ago today—in 1943. At the meeting the three war leaders reached agreement on the scope and timing of future operations in the Second World War against the German armies. The Allied leaders also planned for a postwar organization which would exist to allow all nations to join "a world family of democratic nations."

1865—The vast Hudson's Bay Company territories were officially transferred to the Canadian government.

1938—A school fire in Chicago chimed the lives of 80 children and three nuns.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1914—a German battleship and cruiser were sunk by Allies in the Baltic. Allied armies on the Western Front south of Lille and in the Argonne gained territory in fighting.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1939—a new Finnish government was formed and the Finns reported successful defence against Russian invaders; Soviet planes bombed the Finnish capital, Helsinki; a Canadian fighting squadron was formed from Canadians already in the RAF in Britain.

Ecumenicity In Maritimes

Halifax Herald-Chronicle

Ecumenicity can take on physical proportions.

At Beech Hill, in Halifax County there is a Baptist church —the front porch of which came from St. John's Anglican Church, Fairview. More, the people sit in pews which were originally a part of the furnishings of St. Agnes Roman Catholic Church, Halifax.

There is the story, too, told in one of the provinces of the priest who was very friendly with the local Protestant minister. The latter's congregation was about to tear down the old building to prepare for the construction of a new edifice.

Said the priest to his friend: "I cannot contribute to the building of a new protestant church, but I will give you $50 to help tear down the old one."

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Dec. 1st, 1944

Twenty beautiful red roses, one for each year of unbroken attendance with Rotary, and a handsome pencil with case, were presented in Part Dundas by Governor J. O. Herity by members of the Rotary Club in honor of his attainment of 20 years continuous service with the service organization.

Past President on behalf of the past-presidents of the club made the official presentation with a simple and fitting subsequent address. Following Past District Governor Herity's response of appreciation, the gathermen showed their esteem and respect of the fine record of attendance in thunderous applause.

With his attendance at the weekly club luncheon on Monday, it is believed Governor Herity established a Dominion record in service club attendance.

30 YEARS AGO

Dec. 1st, 1934

Mr. J. D. O'Flynn, sheriff and a clerk of the court for Hastings County, was elected a member of the executive of the Division Court Clerks' Association in Toronto recently.

Four hundred guests were present last evening at the informal euchre and dance given by the American Hardware Corporation of Canada for employees and friends at its plant on Coleman Street. The new unit, which was held on the second floor of the building, was the first of its kind in Canada and the guests much enjoyed the hospitality given them. During the early part of the evening there were 55 tables of euchre in play. At midnight an excellent supper was served and dancing followed.

40 YEARS AGO

Miss Jean Gunn, a native of this city, and now superintendent of nurses in Toronto General Hospital, has been asked to go to England and the continent as the guest of the Rockefeller Foundation to study the operation of public health and training schools for nurses. Miss Gunn expects to leave for England some time in March.

The municipal elections are being held today. There is little excitement and the vote cast so far is small.

Mr. Leo B. Riggs well known organist of this city, and son of ex-Mayor W. B. Riggs, has returned to the city to reside and will assume the management of the Riggs' Motors.

Mrs. E. Montgomery, of South Dakota, is visiting her brother, Mr. McClatchie, on Queen St. and her neice, Mrs. S. E. Lane on Dunbar St.

Dec. 1st, 1914

Mr. Thomas Ashton of this city, will give an exhibition of Scotch dancing at the entertainment which is being held by the Andrew's Society in Kingston tomorrow evening.

Mr. Chas. Pratt, of Edmonton formerly of this city, is renewing acquaintances in town after an absence of four years.

Mr. John Cruickshanks, of Scotland, will be the preacher if it had not been for the Reference Committee which kept saying "Hey, wait a minute," he sliced away at what he felt was some of the fat on the Navy-Army-Air establishment.

The cabinet, Hellyer found, and it may have stayed his hand sometimes as he went to his departmental surgery, was that a couple of former Defence Ministers, Douglas Harkness and Marcel Lambert, Conservatives — among others, not excluding some Liberals — did not consider it fat at all, but in some cases more like muscle.

Since turning the Commons Committee loose on National Defence, the Prime Minister has set another all-party group to streamlining their own rules.

There has been still another aspect of the new and different kind of politics the Prime Minister says he prefers. It has become the so-called "revolt" of the Liberal Backbenchers, with the rank and file of the Commons reading the political riot act to certain Cabinet Members in the privacy of the Parliamentary Caucus.

There are some Liberals who say it wasn't a "revolt" at all, but simply the Backbenchers accepting the Prime Minister's invitation — even urging — to speak up and take a more active, critical part in the making of policy.

This, too, seems to be working out, and the old hands are giving their "new boy" Prime Minister grudging marks for perhaps knowing the business of politics at least as well as they.

Prime Minister's New Kind Of Politics Is Working

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — It was just about a year ago, and Prime Minister Pearson was talking of blazing a bold new trail . . .

" . . . It is time for a different kind of politics . . . "

And all of Parliament Hill, including many of his own Cabinet Ministers and most of the newsmen of the Liberal Backbench, wondered what he was talking about.

But there were a few of the starry-eyed Liberal freshmen who thought they knew, for Lester Pearson, diplomat, Nobel Peacepleaman, senior Civil Servant, United Nations Internationalist and amateur-recently-turned-pro politician was their kind of man.

Turns out what they suspected was correct, this new-style prime minister was thinking of a "different kind of politics" with idealism and streamlined reform as its chief ingredients.

What sort of reform?

Well, as some of the prime minister's confidants have explained it, one of the basic ideas was to build up the power and prestige of Parliament as a check on the executive authority of the Cabinet — even of his own as the Queen's First Minister — to better bring the public's political aims and aspirations into sharper focus.

In trying for this new and different kind of politics, the prime minister experimented at first with the Commons Defence Committee.

It was his idea that the Commons, through this special committee, make an intensive study of the factors and forces, at home and abroad, that shape Government policy on national defence, the costliest single operation in the whole Federal field.

He first had this rather revolutionary idea while still the Leader of the Opposition, and Liberal backbenchers considered this plain political heresy, believing he would get very little before winning the position and power with which he might carry it out.

Policy - making traditionally has been the sacrosanct preserve of the prime minister and the Cabinet. And the suggestion that a Committee of the Commons should trespass on this first with amusement, and then hidden ground was regarded with horror.

With horror, because he didn't get over it, and when he won the position and power with which to do it, went straight ahead and did it.

The Commons Defence Committee was formed, and to the alarm of the Liberal traditionalists, included, as any such Parliamentary enquiry should, representatives of the four opposition parties.

The Conservatives, of course, thought this was great, and with tremendous relish, plunged headlong into fields of operation of vital interest from which Parliament usually has been all but completely excluded.

Well, how has it been doing, this Committee, breaking new political trail for the Prime Minister?

As an experiment it has been working.

Those who have been watching it through two Sessions now give it marks for keeping something of a rein on Defence Minister Hellyer in his continuing drive to cut back the Armed Forces in the name of integration efficiency, absence of fuss and economy.

Fear Basic Attitude Toward Car

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

My column a few weeks ago, about the "stress factor" in modern society with the greatest increase in pulse-rate found among motorists on the highway, reminded me of a traffic safety report made in Chicago earlier this year.

I was much surprised to learn that the death rate in single car collisions is 20 times the rate in two-car collisions. Most of us tend to think of fatal auto crashes as involving two cars striking head-on.

Yet, one out of every 74 single car accidents resulted in death last year, compared with an average of one death in 1,140 two-car collisions. Traffic accidents in which a car hits a fixed object or runs off the road kill and injure more people than any other type of accident.

Although liquor is no doubt an important factor in many of these "running off the road" accidents, I wonder how many are attributable to heart attacks behind the wheel, which are almost impossible to recognize as such after a fatal crash.

Otherwise, why should the death rate in single car collisions be 20 times the rate in two-car collisions? After all, running head-on into another car gives a much greater velocity than running into a fixed and stationary object.

Psychologically, there can be little doubt that the automobile has become a weapon in American society; a discharge of aggression, frustration, and competition. For many men, at least, the automobile has replaced the gun as a symbol of superiority, power and vengeance for real or fancied ills.

As my previous column mentioned, it was found in a test in California that the car-cycle speeded up more on the highway than it did from one hour to than during any other period of the day, including emergencies that may have happened at home. This increase in pulse rate also signifies that the driver is undergoing changing changes at the same time.

I would make an educated guess that many, perhaps a majority — of these "hospitable" single car fatalities are due to heart attacks suffered behind the wheel. And that, therefore, the heart attack rate among middle males is not considerably higher than the statistics show. As Dr. Hans Selye has so often pointed out, excessive "stress" is a killer, if there is already some organic weakness, some special vulnerability.

America's traffic problem is more than a matter of time and money. Our frustrations on the road contribute to thousands of fatalities — not merely because there are too many cars, but because our basic attitude toward the vehicle is compounded of fear, rage, pride, anxiety, and the infantile need to "prove" what can never be proved behind the wheel.

Is It Worth It?

Fredericton Gleaner

The metric system is in the same category of the improved typewriter keyboard and the reformed calendar. Everyone agrees all three would be improvements — but how to go about initiating the changeovers? It would be simple to teach them to the rising generation. But how about the oldliners who are firmly habituated to "asdfghjkl"; and "thirty days hath September?"

Would the final benefits of the reformed systems be worth the combustion of the era of transition?

Silk Screening Subject of Talk At Rotary Club

Over 800 years ago the ancient Chinese wove women's hair into mats to create the first silk screens, guest speaker Nicholas Mika, owner of Mika Silk Screening, told Rotary members at their Monday luncheon.

Now in the twentieth century only $10.00, a handmade wooden frame, paint, silk, initiative and imagination are needed to start business on a part - time basis.

Although silk screening is a flourishing business in Canada Mr. Mika found it difficult to obtain technical information once he had decided to enter the field.

BORROWED PLANE FARE

When he approached silk screen concerns in Toronto, they quickly and rudely sent him on his way. Finally he borrowed plane fare and returned to Germany for a two-month stay where he gleaned the information needed.

After his return, Mr. Mika and his wife set up business. Today they have seven workers besides themselves.

The main problem encountered is locating workers who can do an adequate job.

High school graduates in technical courses are usually capable of creating modern art - taught, Mr. Mika believes, because it is easy to learn, but they have not been insructed in the basics of technical arts such as silk screening.

It was announced that next week's luncheon would be held at Northern Electric, and a tour of the plant conducted.

Armouries Will Close Dec. 31

PICTON (Staff) — A New Year's Eve dance sponsored by "C" Company of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will be the last social event to take place in the Picton Armouries before it is closed. Groups that have used the armouries for their functions are seeking accomodation elsewhere. The Officers' Mess has been closed and personal items disposed of. The Ordinance Corp. will remove the remainder of the furnishings January 6. The Sargeants' Mess is also preparing to close. The Badminton Club will be able to play at Camp Picton for the time being and the Sea Cadets will also carry on their training at the camp. Sir Thomas Pictons Chapter I.O.D.E. which used the Officers' Mess is now meeting in the house at Benson Memorial Park.

Not only does the town lose a meeting place of great importance with the closing down of the armouries but it will lose around $14,000 in government grants in lieu of taxes.

The Rural Scene

PICTON (Staff) — The annual meeting of the Prince Edward County Holstein Club will be held at Baxter's Hall, Bloomfield on Tuesday, December 8th, at 1.15 p.m. Special speaker will be Mr. Douglas Dunton, Brampton, who will speak on his "Experiences as a Holstein Breeder." Mr. Dunton has been a successful Holstein breeder for many years and we know that he will have a message of interest to local breeders. Holstein breeders are reminded that entries for the 1967 Futurity Class are due at the date of the meeting.

HOLSTEN FUTURITY

Holstein breeders are reminded that entries for the 1967 Futurity Class are due at the date of the annual meeting on December 8th. The Futurity is a challenge to the breeder's ability to select and nominate heifer calves that will develop into the best three year old cows. Heifers that are of an age to have shown as calves in the 1964 show season are eligible to be nominated. This includes all registered Holstein heifers born on or after July 1st, 1963 and before July 1st, 1964. The nomination and first fee amounting to $1 per entry must be sent to the Prince Edward County Holstein Breeders Club, Box 470, Picton and postmarked not later than the date of the annual meeting, December 8th, 1964. The second payment of $2 will be due on the date of the County Black and White Show in 1965; the third payment of $3 will be due on the date of the Black and White Show in 1966; and the fourth payment of $5 will be due on or before Sept. 1st, 1967.

The purses in this event shall consist of all monies received by the Prince Edward Holstein Breeders' Association as nomination fees and subsequent payments and any contributions for the 1967 Futurity, less the actual expenses incurred in the administration of it.

Purebred Holstein breeders are encouraged to select their best individuals for this event and make their entries before the deadline of December 8th.

SAFETY COUNCIL

Directors of the Prince Edward Farm Safety Council will meet in the Department of Agriculture Board Room, Picton on Thursday, December 3rd at 8 p.m. This meeting is being held to finalize the year's business and to make plans for the annual meeting which will be held early in the new year.

Dear Susanna: Even if you don't do a great deal of sewing, it's surprising how quickly the empty spools mount up. Be sure to save them all. They can be put on a string for a baby toy, or saved in a plastic bag as building blocks. — Mrs. A. Yardy.

SCALLOPED POTATOES

Dear Susanna Thank you so much for all the interesting hint and ideas given in your column. It's the first page I look at when the paper arrives. My contribution, Susanna, is a short way of making scalloped potatoes.

I slice them thin in the usual way, add a little chopped onion, and place them in a pot of water. Bring them quickly to a boil — remove at once. Do not allow them to cook on the stove after they have come to a boil.

Strain them well, and arrange the hi potatoes in a buttered dish in layers with added white sauce, salt and pepper and butter on top (if you are not counting calories) — or just however you always prepare your scalloped potatoes for the oven. Bake in the usual way. It takes about half the time, and there is never any curdled look afterwards. — Mrs. W. H. Fulbrook.

For homemakers in a hurry, this is welcome advice. Why not scallop a dollop this very day! — SUSANNA

Engravers Should Correct Customers' Mistakes

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Recently we bought a lovely home through a real estate broker. He was a pleasant chap and we grew very fond of him.

Yesterday he brought a gift — a handsome brass door plaque, complete with screws — obviously for the front door. On the plaque was beautifully engraved THE HENDERSON'S.

I was horrified to see the apostrophe. As you know, this is gramatically incorrect. We can't figure out what to do. My husband suggested I call the man and chide him about his poor grammar. I'm afraid it might hurt his feelings. At the same time I don't want to display a plaque with an error.

Can you provide a solution? — HENDERSONS WITHOUT APOSTROPHE

DEAR WITHOUT — Don't call the man. Call the engraver and ask him to convert the apostrophe into a decorative curlicue. Perhaps he can add a matching curlicue between the H and the E for balance. (P.S. When customers don't know better, the engraver should.)

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband and I are foster parents to an unfortunate girl. Rachel is 14 going on 20, if you know what I mean. She came from a terrible home situation — tramps mother, alcoholic father, two sisters (both unwed mothers.)

The girl doesn't do what is required of her in school. I've tried to get her to study but she's not interested. Her room is a mess and although I've promised myself a dozen times I'd let the clothes hang on the doorknobs till they went out of style, I find myself picking up after her.

I am deeply concerned about her attitude toward my husband. Rachel insists on walking around the house in her bra and panties. She pretends to be surprised when she encounters him. I've seen her sit on his lap and kiss him in a way that is not daughterly. When he tells her to behave in a more "lady-like fashion" she sulks in her room for hours.

We want to make a home for the girl but I'm afraid she might make trouble in this house. May I hear from you? — QUANDRY.

DEAR QUANDRY — It's easy for an unloved girl to become strongly attached to the first male who ever treated her decently.

Such a situation requires tremendous understanding, patience and inner security. If you cannot cope with it, Rachel should be placed in another home — where the family set-up would not pose problems.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Pecan Squares For Variety

By MARY MOORE

When my daughter Marianne says she is going to make some "squares" she has 3 or 4 dependable recipes that are easy to assemble and bake and which are surefire favorites with Herbie and the four children.

But the squares recipe I am giving you today is a different dish of tea. It calls for 1 cup of chopped pecans and some of these, chopped very finely, are included in the base. If you make these, and I hope you will, they should be cut into small squares or bars and used to give variety to your Christmas cookie baking. Highly recommended.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

(Oven Dinner)

Stuffed Baked Beef Heart, with Cream of Celery Sauce; Bread and Butter Pickles; Baked Buttered Shredded Beets; Cole Slaw; Apple Dumplings with Lemon-Nutmeg Sauce; Tea.

PECAN SQUARES

Base:

1¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour,
1 teaspoon single-acting baking powder,
⅓ cup butter (do not substitute),
½ cup light brown sugar, packed,
¼ cup finely chopped pecans.

Topping:

2 eggs,
¾ cup corn syrup,
½ cup light brown sugar, packed,
3 tablespoons flour,
½ teaspoon salt,
1 teaspoon vanilla,
¾ cup coarsely chopped pecans.

To make base cream the butter and brown sugar well then add the flour which has been sifted with the baking powder and mix. Add the finely chopped pecans and mix well. Pat firmly and evenly into a buttered 13 x 9" pan (or you may use two buttered 8 x 8" pans but squares will be a little thinner). Bake base at 350 deg. Fahr. for 7 minutes only. Remove from oven.

While base is baking, make Topping: Beat eggs until foamy, then add corn syrup, light brown sugar, salt, flour and vanilla. Mix thoroughly, then pour over partially baked crust (after it has been baked 7 minutes). Sprinkle the coarsely chopped pecans evenly over top.

Bake completed pan at 350 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes, or until barely tinged with gold. Do not overbake or base will be too crisp at outside edge. While warm cut into 1½ squares or 2 x 1" or 3 x 1" bars. Let cool in pan.

Remove with spatula and store in single layers between sheets of wax paper in tightly covered containers in cool place. They become waxy and delicious.

C.A. SERVICES

FRANKFORD — Across Canada each year, "The Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada," have a Sunday set apart for their Young People to participate in. Their groups are called "Christ Ambassadors". November 22nd was C.A. Day in Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle. Guest speaker for the occasion was pastor Alex Nyponen of South Bolton, Quebec.

During the Sunday School session in the Junior Department pastor Nyponen gave a chalkboard illustration of "I Am the Way, the Truth and the Life".

President, Keith Helm was in charge of the morning service, and welcomed everyone. Mr. Murray Stacey of E.P.B.C. Peterborough led the song service. A vocal duet was sung by Mrs. Charlie Wright and Miss Beverly Wannamaker.

The guest speaker brought a challenging message from God's word.

The evangelistic service in the evening was in charge of C.A. president Keith Helm. Song leader was Mr. Murray Stacey of E.P.B.C. Peterborough. The Full Gospel choir sang a number. A vocal solo was sung by Miss Mary Ella Grant of E.P.B.C. Peterborough. The trio Miss Sandra Purvis, Mr. Glen Post and Miss Beverly Wannamaker sang a selection. The choir sang a second number.

At this session guest speaker, pastor Alex Nyponen brought a challenging message to all.

Successful Living

Mean Child Often Shows Symptoms of Insecurity

We have always told our daughter she is adopted, but now that she is eight years old the meaning of adoption is bothering her some.

When the children were having a quarrel one day, our girl came running in to me to ask if I wasn't her "real Mummy." So I told her that I was now and explained adoption to her some more.

There is a little girl who lives just a few doors from us. She seems to be the mean type and has always tried to hurt our daughter on the least occasion. So one day she said to her that she was adopted, that her mother didn't want her and put her in a place where they give children away. So of course our daughter came in crying, and I told her not to play with her any more and don't want her in our home.

DORIS CLARK

But I feel this isn't the answer, as she lives so near they are bound to be together again and the same thing can happen. It upsets us all very much. — ADOPTED MUMMY.

DEAR MUMMY — You can't tell me there wasn't a big person who put the dastardly idea into the neighbor child's head about a place where "they give unwanted children away"!

Meet this with serenity and your girl will. The person who really owns a daughter is the one who ministers to her needs and makes of her the kind of a friend who returns her love.

I'd say the neighbor child's urge to hit below the belt comes from some serious insecurity of her own. Perhaps if you were to show her that you love children in general, including her, she would react with gratitude. Might even begin thinking that this business of adoption had something to be said for it!

Evening of Fun and Entertainment By Christ Church Organizations

U. C. W. Meeting

TABERNACLE U.C.W.

The November meeting of the U.C.W. of Tabernacle United Church was held in the school room with President Mrs. J. Aitchison presiding.

Mrs. F. Davidson introduced Rev. Dr. Harold and Mrs. Swan who served as missionaries in Trinidad for 28 years. They showed pictures which described the wonderful work accomplished while there. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Swan by Mrs. W. J. Slavin.

The devotional was in charge of Unit 1 and given by Mrs. R. Lockyer and her assistants. The topic was "Faith."

Unit 5 served refreshments.

A dessert party will precede the Christmas meeting on Dec 22 which will be held at the church.

Family Party Marks 45th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Allan F. Hitchon, West Moira Street, were the guests of honor at a surprise party arranged by members of their family on the occasion of their 45th wedding anniversary.

All the family were present to enjoy a turkey dinner, with the table centred with a three-tiered wedding cake. The evening was spent playing games and showing slides taken many years ago which provided a great deal of amusement.

Mr. and Mrs. Hitchon were presented with a beautiful piece of Chalet glass.

Those who attended were: Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Dills (Marjorie) and family of Plainfield; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hitchon and family of Belleville; Mrs. Alan Hitchon and baby of Centenary; Mr. and Mrs. Ross Green (Shirley) and family of Thorndale, and Mr. and Mrs. Cameron Hitchon and family of Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Hitchon have eighteen grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Last Wednesday evening the Christ Church Parish Hall was filled to capacity to witness "Variety Nite '64." In this undertaking the various organizations of the church supplied or sponsored talent to make this truly a parish project, with about 250 people reaping the benefit of an evening of fine entertainment.

The rector, Canon R. B. D. Wright, welcomed the crowd and also added a few jokes.

The A.Y.P.A. led off the evening's entertainment with a hootenanny. They presented several folk tunes and even got the audience involved in one of the songs.

Miss Lynda Noakes was warmly received as she charmed the audience with several selections on the piano. Miss Noakes was sponsored by the Junior Auxiliary.

ENJOY EFFORTS

The din and the glare of the Malamute Saloon came to light as the Contact Club re-enacted the "Shooting of Dan McGrew." As the classic poem was narrated by Mrs. J. Fisher, the cast pantomimed the tragic story of greed and gore, and as in all good amateur shows, seemed to enjoy their efforts as much as the audience.

After the bodies had been cleared away, Mr. Stephen Flindall set toes to tapping as he "tinkled the ivories" with several jazz selections. This act was sponsored by the Servers' Guild.

CAMPFIRE SONGS

The 2nd Belleville Girl Guides presented some of their favorite camp fire songs. The young voices in close harmony brought a relaxed and serene mood upon the audience at this time.

After a short intermission, the second half of the program got underway with, a skit, presented by the Evening Branch of the Women's Auxiliary. This entailed the reminiscences of two ladies over the contents of an old photo album. The pictures magically came to life in a large frame in the centre of the stage. Humorous dialogue and songs of the days gone by made this presentation highly entertaining.

MALE CHOIR

The men and boys of Christ Church Choir presented several songs in the beauty of style which the people of the parish have come to take for granted.

The Parish Guild's offering to the show came in the form of a recitation, composed and presented by Mrs. E. Hickey. She poked a little good-natured fun at the various persons and organizations in the parish. Her efforts brought down the house.

A fine performance delivered by the "Quinte Cavaliers," a barbershop quartet sponsored by the Men's Club was enjoyed.

TOY SYMPHONY

The last presentation of the evening was the "Toy Symphony," presented by members of the choir, under the direction of Mr. John Withers. The performers, in varying ridiculous costumes, got extremely melodic results from milk pails, gongs, toy horns, frying pans, etc. The highlight of the number was a solo by Mr. Bill Deck on the typewriter. His complete control of his instrument and beauty of tone was of such high quality as to set classical music back at least a century.

The audience, contributing organizations and performers were thanked for the success of the evening by Mrs. Joanne Carveller, president of Christ Church Chi Rho Fellowship. This organization promoted, sponsored and staged "Variety Nite '64." In her remarks Mrs. Carveller especially thanked Al Gardiner, chairman of the show, and Norm Wilson, who did a fine job as master of ceremonies.

Over $140 was realized from this venture, which will be donated to the parish Centennial Restoration Fund.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

The Resolutions Committee of the Foxboro Women's Institute held a euchre party on Friday evening with six tables in play. Guests were present from the Johnstown and Aikens district and from Belleville. The prize winners for the evening were: Mrs. C. Bamber, ladies' first; Mrs. C. Cassidy, ladies' second; Mrs. J. Gould and Barbara Gould tied for the ladies' low with Mrs. Gould winning the draw. Mr. Nelson Vader won men's high; Mr. C. Smith, men's second, and Mr. Norman Pennington, men's low.

Town Assured of Election For All Municipal Offices

CAMPBELLFORD — The municipality of Campbellford held the nomination meeting last night with one of the largest crowds in attendance that has been seen in many years. J. F. McGregor, former clerk for over 50 years said he had never seen a larger crowd.

All offices are being contested. The incumbent Mayor, Stanley Tanner will be opposed by A. C. Newman. Mr. Newman makes his first bid for municipal office with an experience of 14 years on the P.U.C. He has challenged the financial policy of Mayor Tanner on excessive spending and high mill rates.

The incumbent Reeve of Campbellford Geo. Free who has held office for about six years will be opposed by Arthur Brown, a retired Hydro employee. Mr. Brown has had previous municipal experience.

The office of Deputy Reeve was previously held by Ralph Locke, and he will be opposed by Arthur Moody.

ELEVEN NOMINATED

For Councillors, eleven were nominated to fill six seats and all stated they would have their names on the ballot. The former Councillors, J. Torrance, P. McGregor, D. Sharp, R. Hughes, R. Bennett, B. Grills all have decided to run for re-election and new names who will be running for Council are H. Dunk, F. Maybee, J. Brethour, F. S. Linton and R. Kennedy.

For Public Utilities, the commissioners retiring this year on the two-year term of office are H. MacArthur, and W. G. Vanderwater, both of these gentlemen are seeking re-election. A new challenger is E. Steele who has had Public School Board experience, also F. M. Rutherford was nominated and may qualify later. Mr. Rutherford was a commission member previously for four years by virtue of holding the Mayor's office. During his term on the commission all plans were made and finalized and tenders accepted for the building of the new filtration plant opened last summer.

Nominees for Public School Trustees were W. Gunter, W. Murray, C. Irwin, C. Johnston and H. MacMillan. Mr. Johnston and H. MacMillan were the two who definitely stated their intention to run for office at the nomination meeting.

The More They Have, The More They Need

B. C. and U. S. Neighbors Face Dilemma Over Power

By STEPHEN SCOTT

VICTORIA (CP)—British Columbia and the western United States are two hungry giants on a merry-go-round.

They need electric power to grow. The more they grow the more they need; the more they get the more they will grow.

Hungry and growing, they enter 1965 with the Americans coveting the power of the province.

The western U.S. has expanded until it has used up most of its available sources of cheap hydro-electric power. It now is looking farther afield while studying the more expensive nuclear power.

B.C. is a giant because it has an abundance of rivers with which to produce cheap power to spur industrial growth. It is spending more than $1,000,000,000 to develop hydro projects on the Columbia and Peace Rivers in the south and north respectively.

In 1964 it made it clear that it is willing to sell power surplus to needs, if only on a temporary basis. The Americans, in turn, took initial steps toward building massive power lines to carry electricity from the Pacific Northwest states to California. B.C. power will move on those lines.

BACKS NATIONAL PLAN

The B.C. Hydro and Power Authority has two chairmen who speak in terms of millions.

Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, one of the co-chairmen, is in charge of the $448,000,000 Columbia River project, subject of a treaty between Canada and the United States that was settled in 1964 after 20 years of negotiations. A $15,899,857 contract for the Duncan Lake dam, first of three treaty dams, was let during the autumn.

Dr. Gordon Shrum is co-chairman in charge of the $900,000,000 northern Peace River project which has been under construction for two years. Work on the $73,000,000 main dam is well under way.

The federal and provincial governments have some broad agreement over a proposed $400,000,000 scheme to construct eight dams on the upper Fraser River and to redirect the river. The project would provide flood control and power.

Under present planning Canadian power potential on the Columbia is about 4,500,000 kilowatts; on the Peace 4,000,000, and under the Fraser scheme about 1,000,000.

This compares with the present hydro authority generating capacity of 1,300,000 kilowatts and the total hydro generating potential of the province of 100,000,000 kilowatts.

WILL CARRY POWER

This year and next the province is concentrating on creating a provincial grid into which eventually power from the Peace and Columbia will join with other sources.

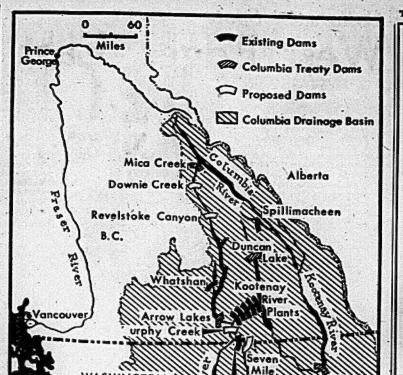
In 1968, 350,000 kilowatts will flow from the Peace. A potential of 2,200,000 could be reached by 1973-75 and another dam could be built later.

The Mica dam, only one of the Columbia treaty dams to have generating facilities, is due for completion in 1973. The smaller Duncan dam is due in 1968 and High Arrow, for which contracts have been called, in 1969.

Mica will produce almost 2,000,000 kilowatts and other dams can be built later on the Columbia system to realize the full potential.

Nobody will speculate when Fraser power will be added to the provincial grid. Mr. Bennett has called for federal action and both governments appear to agree that they should share the cost of flood control with the rest being paid for by hydro development.

Dr. Keenleyside said recently that the American desire for power may result in the damming of a "third river." He did not say whether he was referring to the Fraser or a tributary of the Columbia.



Resources Minister Ray Williston has said P. was believed the Fraser River scheme would have to wait for five or six years because there would be no market for the power produced. But the Americans have taken first steps on what will eventually be a $700,000,000 grid covering 11 states, including a high-voltage inter-tie between the Pacific Northwest and California.

This will carry power that B.C. has already sold to American interests under the Columbia treaty and Mr. Williston said it could carry other B.C. power, premier Henry M. Jackson, of Washington State has said the construction of the inter-tie will probably provide B.C. with a regular market for surplus power.

Expected to move over the inter-tie are the millions of kilowatts that B.C. has sold during a 30-year period to an American consortium. The province in September received $273,000,000 for this power which will be created downstream in the U.S. as a result of water storage behind the three Canadian dams.

In making his bid for a national power grid at the October federal - provincial conference, Mr. Bennett also asked Prime Minister Pearson to start studies on a Canadian-American integration of transmission lines.

'Increased integration of all energy supplies for continent-wide marketing is an inevitable and logical economic step," he said.

VAST POWER PROJECT — The vast Columbia River power project, subject of a treaty between Canada and the United States, when completed will supply British Columbia and parts of western United States with cheap hydro-electric power. Under present planning, Canadian potential on the Columbia is about 4,500,000 kilowatts and the total hydro generating potential of the province is 100,000,000 kilowatts. (CP Newsmap) minority in Parliament should not prevent a vote indefinitely.

ISN'T MUCH HEAT

The only heat of the day was generated in two procedural arguments.

Under House rules, committee reports normally come up for debate before the daily question period and policy announcements by cabinet ministers.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said this order of business should be reversed during the flag debate to give the Opposition the opportunity to question ministers on urgent and important matters.

When Prime Minister Pearson and H. A. Olson (SC—Medicine Hat) opposed this idea, the Conservative chieftain accused the government of trying to "throttle" free discussion in Parliament and "handcuff" the Opposition.

Mr. Pearson recalled that Conservative MPs made 117 speeches last summer in 22 days of debate on the government's original motion for a three-leaf flag. (There were 32 Liberal speeches and 25 by the three small parties.)

"These are the people who are now identified and mislaid," he said in a sarcastic reference to the Conservatives.

ARGUMENT RAGES

The procedural argument raged on for more than 30 minutes and then Herman Batten (L—Humber-St. George's), chairman of the 15-member flag committee, moved that the Commons approve the committee's 30-page majority recommendation.

The question period was wiped out and the process could be repeated every day until the flag debate is concluded or adjourned.

The second procedural fight arose over a draft amendment proposed by former health minister J. Waldo Monteith, who was the senior Conservative on the flag committee.

He moved that the report be sent back to the committee with instructions that the committee turn in a new report urging a flag plebiscite that would coincide with the next federal election.

Mr. Pearson, other cabinet members and Social Credit MPs challenged the legality of this amendment. They argued that the flag committee is dead since the House placed a six-week time limit on the committee's deliberations in a motion passed Sept. 10.

CAN BE REVIVED

The Conservatives replied that the House can revive the committee and said their amendment provides for this. The argument continued for nearly an hour and Speaker Alan Macnaughton said he would rule on the question later, probably today.

Mr. Monteith accused the Liberal members of the committee of breaching their vow of silence by "leaking" several accounts to reporters. He denied published reports that Mr. Diefenbaker "piped" instructions to the five Conservative committee members.

Reid Scott, MP for Toronto Danforth and NDP representative on the committee, seconded Mr. Batten's motion. He said the single-leaf flag is a parliamentary choice, features the most popular Canadian emblem, is simple and conforms with heraldic laws.

He said most committee members in the end ruled out designs incorporating a small Union Jack and fleur-de-lis because these would be "perpetual reminders of the things that divide us."

Marcel Lessard, MP for Lac St. Jean and Social Credit representative on the committee, said his 11-man group will give quite substantial voting support to the new flag proposal.

He appealed to Conservatives to let the issue come to an early vote. Once democracy had been served by full discussion, the majority should be allowed to decide.

Henri Latulippe (Creditiste-Compien - Frontenac) reiterated the support of his 13-man group for the new design. Canada had most other attributes of a sovereign nation and the time had come to select a distinctive flag.

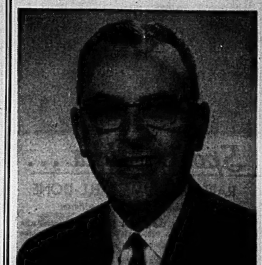
Ladies & Gentlemen

During the next week I will be setting out my reasons for qualifying myself as a candidate for Alderman in the city of Belleville.

It is this city where I have lived, worked and progressed during the past 25 years.

It is this city where my wife Bonnie and I have brought up our five children — Larry and Casey, now university graduates, and Kerry, now in university, and Rosemary and Diana, both still at school here.



It is this city where I have established myself in business, with my own accounting offices, for the past 15 years.

It is also the city in which I have worked for community endeavors, most notably, I suppose in the field of sports.

In the next few days I shall be making known to my fellow Bellevillians, both individually and publicly, why I now seek office as one of its city aldermen.

I EARNESTLY SOLICIT YOUR SUPPORT.

Many thanks,

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Norm Ullman, the Detroit Red Wings' centre, who recently joined the "200-goals" club, will never make his fortune as an after-dinner speaker.

You won't see him extolling the virtues of detergents, foods, soap, suds, soothing syrup, hair tonic, or men's girdles on television.

Mr. Ullman does not like to talk. And it comes naturally. His coach Sid Abel says it would be surprising if you would get more than a few sentences out of him during a season."

Abel also contends that Ullman is one of the best and one of the most under-rated players in the National League. The coach will get few arguments from the other coaches around the circuit.

Abel rates Ullman as being too valuable to be on the same regular line with Gordie Howe. "Both he and Howe are good puck carriers and stickhandlers and if Ullman is out with Howe, one of them would be standing around with little to do."

But the 29-year-old native of Provost, Alberta, used to play on a line with Howe. In fact with Gordie and Ted Lindsay, he helped establish the NHL record for most points in a season (226) in 1956-57. Howe had 89, Lindsay 85 and Ullman 52.

Right now Ullman is getting as "hot as Hull"—in second place in the scoring list with ten goals and eleven assists.

At the start of last spring's Stanley Cup semi-final between Detroit and Chicago Black Hawks, coach Billy Reay said the player he most feared on the Wings was Ullman. A look at the statistics shows Reay had reason to be concerned.

The Wings' centre spent most of the time facing Stan Mikita, the NHL scoring champion and later named to the first all-star team. Ullman who led the series with six goals and seven assists, had four goals and two assists during the time he and Mikita were on the ice together. Mikita, who finished the series with three goals and six assists, scored twice and had three helpers while facing Ullman.

He is rated by Wings' officials as one of their best players defensively and one of the league's hardest workers. Often Ullman finds himself on a line with rookies, but the 185-pounder usually improves their play.

In the Wings' first 18 games this season, Ullman scored eight goals, twice as many as he had in the first half of last season when he missed nine games through injury.

He has generally been a slow starter, not hitting his full stride until January. Last season he scored 17 goals in Wings' last 35 games. Of his 105 goals to the end of the 1963-64 season, 80 were scored in the first half of the nine seasons and 115 in the second half.

Abel admits that the fact that Ullman is a centre is partially responsible for his not being named to an all-star berth. The competition at that position is extremely strong with such opponents as Jean Beliveau, Mikita, Henri Richard and others.

Ullman is only the fourth player to score 200 goals or more since the all-star selections came into being in 1948-51, who has not been named to at least the second team.

In his 200-goals career Ullman scored 111 at home and 89 on "foreign" ice. He has poked home 34 winning goals; 12 game-tieing goals, 42 power-play goals, four shorthanded goals and has had 19 two-goals games. His highlights are four hat tricks and one four-goal effort.

The Boston Bruins was his goal-getting cup of tea. He poked 51 goals past Bruin netminders. The Broadway Blues saw 48 Ullman pucks whistle into their nets while Chicago yielded 42. The Maple Leafs gave up 36 to the Ullman marksmanship while the Montreal Canadiens were the stingiest, allowing but 23 pucks to elude their keepers of the cords.

By WALTER KREVENCHUK

WINNIPEG (CP)—Hal Patterson and Don Sutherin, two highly - skilled veterans who have produced five Canadian Football League records, head a Hamilton Tiger-Cats contingent named Monday to one-third of the positions on the all-Canada all-star football team.

But selection of eight Ticats failed to give the Eastern Conference a majority of the team —expanded to 26 members as a result of ties at two positions.

The Western Conference, paced by six members from the Grey Cup champion British Columbia Lions, collared 14 spots in voting by the football reporters of Canada.

TOM BROWN

B.C. defeated Hamilton 34-24 for its first cup victory Saturday.

Calgary Stampeders, losers to Lions in the WFC final, had four players chosen, Saskatchewan Roughriders three, Toronto Argonauts two and Ottawa Rough Riders and Edmonton Eskimos one each. Montreal Alouettes and Winnipeg Blue Bombers failed to place any players on the team.

Voting by 42 FRC members in the nine CFL cities was close in many positions and there were no unanimous choices. Votes went to 26 defensive halfbacks, 16 defensive tackles and 15 linebackers.

The ties involved Ron Brewer of Toronto and Bobby Kuntz of Hamilton at linebacker and Tony Pajaczkowski of Calgary and Ticat Ellison Kelly at offensive guard, where 13 players received votes.

Pajaczkowski, a 10-year veteran who was named Canada's outstanding Canadian player in 1961, was the only player to make the all-Canada team who did not earn 1963 all-star rank in his respective conferences.

Williams May Fight In 6 Months

Says Injury Will Cost Fighter Million

HOUSTON (AP) — Doctors said Monday heavyweight boxer Cleveland Williams, critically wounded in the stomach by a blast from a policeman's pistol, may be fighting again in six months.

Williams, 31, second ranking heavyweight, underwent nearly six hours of surgery after being shot by a highway patrolman in a scuffle Sunday.

The patrolman said Williams struck him and tried to flee after the boxer was arrested on suspicion of driving while intoxicated.

Charges of driving while intoxicated and aggravated assault on a peace officer were filed.

Hugh Benbow, Williams' manager, said attending physicians told him Williams is a fine physical specimen and that unless there are complications the 215-pounder should be out of the hospital in 30 days and back in the ring in six months.

WAS TO TRAIN

Williams was to have started training Monday for a fight with Ernie Terrell for the World Boxing Association's heavyweight title. The fight was scheduled for sometime early next year.

Benbow, who said he was going to the .357 magnum bullet "dodged and darted in the lower abdomen, nipping intestines and arteries here and there, but not doing any real serious damage."

Benbow said he was satisfied that the only reason Williams tried to get out of the police car is "the big guy was afraid of what I might say to him when I found out he was in jail."

Benbow, who sai dhe was going to demand a complete investigation of the incident indicated the injury will cost at least $1,000,000 in lost earnings.

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Merv McKenzie of Toronto, World Boxing Association president, said Monday night the WBA has not decided what the next step will be in selecting the next world heavyweight boxing champion.

The title was left open earlier this month when the WBA stripped Cassius Clay of his crown.

McKenzie said in an interview here the association's championship committee chairman will poll members for a decision.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The manager of heavyweight Eddie Machen, Walter Minskoff, proposed Monday that his boxer replace wounded Cleveland Williams in the upcoming heavyweight championship tournament.

Minskoff wired the executive board of the World Boxing Association: "Eddie Machen is in training and ready to take Cleveland Williams' place in the heavyweight tournament as next in line on your ratings."

Hawks Skidding Despite Flying Hull

Scoring Drought

BOBBY HULL

MONTREAL (CP) — Bobby Hull, leading the National Hockey League with 25 points including 17 goals in 18 games, has scored more than one-third of Chicago Black Hawks' 50 goals. But despite his prolific shooting, the Hawks have dropped to fifth place.

NHL statistics, released today, show that Hull's teammates have only supplied 33 goals in 18 games, compared to Hull's 14 goals and 52 by the rest in as many games last season.

Kenny Wharram, an All-Star left winger with 37 goals last year, has fallen from 12 goals to four. Stan Mikita has slipped from 11 to six, Bill Hay from eight to one. The slump is general throughout the lineup, except for Eric Nesterenko's climb from one to four.

But a scoring drought is not Chicago's only ailment. The defence has allowed 58 goals, 11 more than they did in the first 18 contests last season. Goalie Glenn Hall's goals-against average has slipped from 1.88 to 2.50.

Hull, setting a pace that would give him 65 goals in 70 games, picked up three more last week to open up a two-point lead in the individual scoring race.

Detroit's Norm Ullman follows with 10 goals and 11 assists for 21 points and Mikita holds third place with 20 points on six goals and 14 assists.

Two defenceman and a forward, however, made the most progress.

New York centre Phil Goyette scored three times and added four assists to move into a fifth-place tie at 15 points with Claude Provost of Montreal, Bobby Pulford of Toronto, Godfr Hows of Detroit and Boston defencemen Ted Green, who had one goal and five assists last week.

Rod Selling of New York was the other rearguard who made a big climb, to 13th place. The Rangers rookie scored his first NHL goal and picked up four assists for a 13-point total.

Detroit's Roger Crozier extended his Vezina Trophy lead, allowing two goals in two games to cut his average to 1.95. He also leads in shutouts with three.

Toronto Maple Leafs maintained their 7-a-1 in lawlessness, running their lead in penalty minutes to 385 in 21 games while allowing a total of 24 power play goals against them. Leaf defenceman Bob Baun is the individual penalty leader with 34 minutes.

It was Pastrano's second defence of the 175-pound division crown and his second straight technical knockout.

Gordie Howe's Hockey

By GORDIE HOWE

Quite a few goals scored on power plays are scored on tip-ins. In fact, that's how I scored my 526th goal to equal Rocket Richard's record for goals scored in National Hockey League and Stanley Cup playoffs.

I think that everybody should practise tip-ins. When you're practising tipping the puck being shot from the point, whether the puck is coming along the ice or through the air, both players are getting a good workout. Because the shooter is also building up his arms and accuracy.

If you shoot 15 or 20 pucks from the point, with a fellow in front of the net trying to deflect them, you'll find out you've had a pretty good workout. Your arms will get tired.

We had the power play on against Toronto. Alex Delvecchio fired the puck from 30 feet out on left wing. The puck was coming about 18 inches off the ice.

When I saw the shot coming, I was set to Johnny Bower's left. I got my legs close together so if I missed the puck with the stick, it would have a chance to bounce in off my shin pads.

That's exactly what happened. I put my stick out. The puck hit the inside of the stick. The puck was really moving. It caromed off the stick against my shin pads and into the net to Bower's left.

Somebody asked me afterward if I retrieved the puck to add to my collection of "milestone" goals. I didn't even realize the significance of it being my 526th career goal.

As a matter of fact, there was a little note on the bench when we came out at the start of the game.

'Do it tonight, Gordie, break the record', it said. I thought it was an old note, a holdover from last year. Of course it didn't break the record anyway.

Twelve of the 26 goals I made last season came on power plays. I'd say they were split up pretty well, between the defections, shots from the point and from 10 to 15 feet from the net.

BIG PAY-OFF RECORDED

BALTIMORE (AP)—A $47,032 twin double, biggest pay-off in Maryland horse racing history, was recorded Monday at Pimlico. Track officials said one ticket was sold on the combination of winners in the fifth, sixth, eighth and ninth races.

Sazio Planning For 1965

HAMILTON (CP) — Coach Ralph Sazio isn't wasting any time brooding over the 34-24 loss suffered by his Hamilton Tiger-Cats to British Columbia Lions in last Saturday's Grey Cup game at Toronto.

Sazio was in his offices as usual Monday cleaning up business that had piled up while the Ticats prepared for the national final, and said in an interview that he didn't intend to let the Gray Cup results detract from the business ahead.

"That was their (Lions) best offensive effort all year," he said. "They've been in and out offensively, but Saturday they were in."

He said the Ticats were not "depleted" after the season but he admitted he would have to look at the retirement picture. "I guess Pete (N'tumam) is retiring, he certainly heard it from him," Sazio said.

The Trots

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Garden City raceway may be southern Ontario's newest harness track, but the weather here Monday night was strictly north country.

And Sudbury, from George Kilgour's North Bay farm, lived up to his name, making the best of the 22-degree cold by gribbing an early lead in the sixth race feature, a mile trot for $1,000, and winning in 2:10.

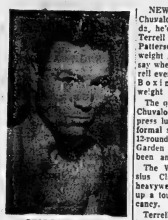
Sudbury returned $6.50, $3.10 and $3.90 across the board and combined with second-finishing King Tony for a $101.40 quinella.

It was a fortune when compared to the $8.30 daily double which resulted from favorites Comet Raider and Flying Baker coming through in the first and second races.

Richmond Franchise To Toledo

HOUSTON (AP)—The International League franchise at Richmond, Va., was moved to Toledo Monday.



The franchise was sold by supermarket owner Romero Chapone of Manchester, N.H., to the Lucas County Recreational Commission for an estimated $100,000.

New York Yankees will continue their working agreement with the club.

Toledo has not had a professional baseball franchise since 1949.

Patterson Not So Fussy

Chuvalo Wants Terrell Bout -- If

GEORGE CHUVALO

NEW YORK (AP)—George Chuvalo of Toronto said Monday, he'd be happy to fight Ernie Terrell next if he beats Floyd Patterson but the former heavyweight champion declined to say whether he would meet Terrell even if it was for the World Boxing Association's heavyweight championship.

The question was put to both Chuvalo and Patterson at a press luncheon to announce the formal signing of the two for a 12-rounder at Madison Square Garden Jan. 29. The match had been announced previously.

The WBA has stripped Cassius Clay of recognition as heavyweight champion and set up a tournament to fill the vacancy.

Terrell, the WBA's No. 1 heavyweight, was to meet Cleveland Williams, the No. 2 from Houston, for the title. Then the winner was to meet the Chuvalo-Patterson victor within 90 days. Patterson is ranked third and Chuvalo fourth.

With both fights tentatively set for January, the WBA hoped to have the situation all unscrambled in April. But Williams was critically wounded in the stomach by a policeman's pistol shot after a scuffle Saturday night and may not be able to fight for six months.

WILL FIGHT TERRELL

The Crimson Tide, which was supposed to be in a building year, gained 34½ first - place votes and 515½ points on the basis of 10 points for a first-place vote, nine for second, eight for third and so on.

Arkansas received 11½ first-place votes and 486½ points on the last weekly Associated Press poll.

Notre Dame, the leader for th. last few weeks and deprived of a storybook finish by last week's 20-17 upset by Southern California, was third with 442 points and six first-place votes. Michigan got the other three first-place votes and finished fourth with 400 points.

"I'll be happy to fight Terrell next if I win," said Chuvalo. "As for Patterson I think I can knock him out.

"Asked whether he would fight Terrell if it meant getting WBA recognition as champion, Patterson said: It's up to my manager."

Dan Florio, Patterson's manager, said: "No comment."

Patterson said he hoped to beat Chuvalo then get a crack at Cassius Clay, who still is recognized as champion in New York, Massachusetts and many other areas of the world.

The Chuvalo fight will be Patterson's first in Madison Square Garden in eight years. Patterson has been guaranteed a minimum of $10,000.

Chuvalo has been guaranteed a minimum of $20,000—his biggest purse. He said his previous high was $22,500 for a Canadian title bout with Bob Cleroux of Montreal.

Harry Markson, director of boxing for the garden, said there will be either home or closed circuit television.

Alabama National Champions

NEW YORK (AP)—Alabama was named the National Collegiate football champion today, edging out unbeaten Arkansas by a paper-thin margin in the balloting by a panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Wellington Minors Edge Albury 4-3

Showing marked improvement the team encouraged by a group of community minded citizens from the Rednerzville Road dropped a 4-3 squeaker to the Wellington Squirts after losing two earlier encounters with them by lopsided 9-1 and 7-0 scores.

On Saturday Albury's point getters were: David Jones, Wayne Duxtator and Skip Dawson while Tommy Jackson, Doug White, Mike Lavender and Bobby Boyce accounted for Wellington's total.

WINTER EXPRESS has been our standby for the better part of a decade; in offering it at about half the price of our other snow tires, nothing has been taken from the tire you have known it for all these years. It's as big — it's as heavy and massive — and as strong as ever.

The rugged "keep rolling" traction tread of WINTER EXPRESS made it the trail-blazer wherever the going was really tough . . . and it purred the bare highway with the quiet ride sought by its contemporaries. Now, it must be cleared out to make way for our New HIWAY-BYWAY . . . The tire that makes fun of winter driving. Before you invest in any tire — investigate the great new Hiway-Byway.

Three Delightful Programs For Viewers Monday Night

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—One sometimes becomes bored with television and starts thinking of it as an endless stream of silly situation comedies and melodramatic soap operas occasionally interrupted by a routine variety show.

The next time such dour reflections occupy this viewer's mind, I shall recall Monday night's programs.

For one hour early in the evening we were treated to an enchanting concert by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, enlivened by the comments of Conductor Leonard Bernstein.

A short time later, Andy Williams turned up on his own program with delightful Julie Andrews in tow and there followed a happy 60 minutes of tuneful music and gentle good humor.

Finally there was an hour's appreciation of Sir Winston Churchill, as a statesman but primarily as a Sunday painter. It included absolutely stunning color photography of the British countryside, interior of Churchill's great house, Chartwell, and the Riviera seacoast.

BAD PROBLEMS

For all that glorious photography, The Other World of Winston Churchill had its problems. Churchill at 90 is a large subject and the program never seemed able to go in any one direction for long.

Thus at times there would be fine quotations by the old warrior on the joys of painting, followed by reverent but not really important or interesting anecdotes about him.

Heart of the program was films of his paintings that explained his interest better than rather pointless stories by Merle Oberon and Viscount Montgomery.

"To be really happy and really safe," Churchill wrote in the slim volume from which much of the material was taken, "one ought to have at least two or three hobbies, and they must all be real. It is no use starting late in life to say, 'I will take an interest in this or that.'"

For almost 30 years he found that "just to paint is great fun." And in the closeups of his re-actions to sun and shade, sea and army, Venetian brides, Greek temples, English daffodils, that pleasure showed.

Jerome To Race In Havana

HAVANA (CP-AP) — Cuba's Amateur Athletic Union said Monday it has invited Canadian sprinter Harry Jerome of Vancouver to compete in a sports festival here next month, and that Jerome has accepted.

The Cuban sports unit hopes to stage a rerun of the Tokyo Olympics 100-metre final, won by Bob Hayes of Florida A and M, with Enrique Figuerola of Cuba second and Jerome third.

However, in Tallahassee, Fla., Hayes' coach Jake Gaither said "academic requirements" will make it impossible for Hayes to attend.

The festival Dec. 16-17 is to honor the 46th anniversary of the movement that brought Premier Fidel Castro to power.

Abel Likes Former Team-Mate

Says Lindsay Help To Wings

By BILL HALLS

DETROIT (AP)—Ted Lindsay, once the most penalized player in the National Hockey League, has mellowed somewhat.

In a recent game in New York, Lindsay, back in the NHL after a four-year retirement, needled the Rangers' Vic Hadfield into a pair of minor penalties in the third period. The result: Detroit 6, New York 2.

But the fiery Lindsay's return to Detroit Red Wings means more than just team leadership in penalties, 44 minutes. Manager-coach Sid Abel, a team mate with Lindsay and Gordie Howe in the old "production line" says he thinks it's one of the reasons his club has roared into first place.

"He's a big help to the kids," said Abel. "When they are sitting on the bench, he's always talking to Pit Martin and Bruce MacGregor, pointing out things and suggesting moves.

But Lindsay scowls at the word "comeback."

DISLIKES WORD

"That's the wrong word," said the 39-year-old left winger. "I don't consider I'm making a comeback. This is it. I'm back for this year only. There'll be no next year."

"At Abel's suggestion I worked out at training camp, but I didn't make up my mind until the last day. I'm glad I started, started, Lindsay says. I told Sid, 'Sid, I'll give it a try.' We agreed that I go along on a game - to - game basis. And that's the way it is."

Lindsay has missed only one Detroit game. Business kept him in Detroit during a road trip to Chicago. He has scored twice and has three assists.

When he retired, after 13 years with Detroit and three with Chicago Black Hawks, he had 365 goals, fourth in the NHL behind Howe (570), retired Maurice (Rocket) Richard (544) of Montreal and the Canadiens' Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion (371).

Lindsay was the most penalized player in NHL history when he retired. He had 1,655 penalty minutes in 990 games.

Abel has been using him with MacGregor and Martin on the third line.

Whip Belgians 3-0

Liverpool Strategy Pays Off

By DOUGLAS NICHOLSON

LONDON (Reuters) — Liverpool, the English soccer league champions, may have started a new fashion when they used barry Tom Smith as an extra wing-half in their bid to upset the pattern - wearing Belgian club Anderlecht in the European Cup last week.

That plan paid off so well that they won the first leg 3-0 and virtually assured themselves of a place in the second round.

Anderlecht, which has a big reputation in European soccer, last year they put famed Real Madrid out of the European Cup — provided the key players for the Belgian team that drew with England 2-2 last month. The stadium, chock-a-block with 60,000 of the Belgians made the fast, strong English side look clumsy.

Arsenal, which also introduced a new factor into the game when it brought in the 'stopper' centre-half 30 years ago, was quick to copy Liverpool. It sent Frank McLintock in to do to Manchester United on Saturday what Smith did to Anderlecht.

In this case the move was not a success. In an electrifying struggle, the league - leading United won 3-2, thanks to the brilliant Denis Law.

On Saturday's form it would have been beyond the task of all three Arsenal wing-halves to have subdued the fair-haired, hard-shooting Law, whose uncurial spark of genius stamps him far above his contemporaries in British soccer.

Liverpool dropped a home point to Tottenham Saturday when nothing like as effective as he had been against Anderlecht.

Playing what is, in effect, a 3-3-4 lineup throws a great deal of extra work on the roving man in the forward line. He has to be both a forager and a goal scorer if the other three men are to restrict his effectiveness.

Producers From Tokyo To Prague Into Westerns

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"Achtung! Head 'em off at der crossroads."

"Thees town eesn't beeg enough for both of us, Pierre."

"Ven you call me dot, Ludwig—smile."

This is the kind of dialogue that may be emerging from European films as continental movie makers continue exploiting their discovery of the western. Or is it merely another Hollywood's exclusive property. It has been taken over by producers from Tokyo to Prague.

Australian-born Ron Randell has returned from Europe with a report on the horse operas. He should know. He was in one—a Viennese production filmed in Yugoslavia and Berlin.

"It's true," he told a reporter. "The film was called Hot Like the Wind and I was the only one from Hollywood in the cast. The rest were German and Swiss.

"It was made for an Austrian company called Stadtkalle, and one of the exteriors in two places in Yugoslavia. One was a ranch and the other was a western street. The company built it with an Italian firm which was going to make a couple of westerns after we finished.

SHOT IN BERLIN

"Later a German company came in on the production, so we shot the interiors in Berlin, mostly of the ranch house. Our director was Rolf Olsen, a Viennese who had also done western in the Canary Islands.

"Westerns are now being made in Italy, Spain, Yugoslavia, Sweden, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, and, I understand, in Russia. The Europeans are actually paying more attention to the western than Hollywood, where they seldom make the big westerns any more."

What's more, he believes the Europeans are doing a good job of it.

They seem to be going back to the original sources for their authenticity," Ron remarked. "Here in Hollywood, the same old directors seem to do the westerns, and they use the same old props. Sure, maybe the Colt .45s over there say 'Made in Italy' on them. But they're patterned after the real article, not a modern version, as in Hollywood.

"And the faces seem more authentic. Here they use the fresh - faced 'California boys who don't fit in the Old West. In Europe they use established actors who have character in their faces. As for the language, they forget if they were plenty of accents in the Old West. A large percentage of the pioneers were immigrants."

Boucher Has Change Of Heart

MONTREAL (CP) — Frank Boucher, who recently levelled a volley of criticism at the National Hockey League, now believes the NHL should be congratulated for a "wonderful" improvement in the over - all handling of games.

The popular Hall of Famer, coming back from a stretch in Saskatchewan Junior League, made his change of heart known in a letter to NHL president Clarence Campbell dated Oct. 27. The letter was published in The Gazette and the sports columnist Vern DeGeer, who said it had been made available by Campbell's office.

"In view of the fact that I have been critical in the past," Boucher wrote, "I feel that it is only right and proper that I immediately write my approval when it is so rightly deserved."

He said he now wishes to sincerely congratulate the NHL for the "wonderful improvement which it has made in the over-all handling of games so far this season."

But he still had a suggestion—"a tightening up of holding infractions at the boards would be a most welcome change for the fans."

Wants Juniors "Free" Until Age Of 20

QUEBEC (CP — Lionel Fleury, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said Monday a proposal that hockey players remain free agents until the age of 20 was "well received" by National Hockey League officials.

The proposal, which would mean NHL clubs sign players under 20 would all be in a general pool and not belong to any NHL club, was made at a weekend meeting of directors of the NHL and the CAHA in Toronto.

The meeting was attended by NHL president Clarence Campbell and representatives from five of the six NL clubs.

Professional clubs now may obtain rights to a hockey player as soon as he turns 18.

Mr. Fleury said the proposal will be brought up at the annual meeting of the CAHA in Victoria next May.

happily studying the questions, (which were variously referred to throughout the evening as "those loaded questions," and "six terrible problems"), until Mr. Smithrim asked that they be given to the candidates.

The question sheet was by way of being a bombshell itself. The one which drew the most comment from the speakers concerned the idea advanced by Councillor Weaver that Trenton's "memorial to Senator W. A. Fraser," Fraser Park, be paved in and used for parking. Another question proposed that the candidates shared Mr. Smithrim's view that "inefficient slaughtering of trees on town streets" had taken place this summer. Another, which no one knew much about was whether the town should "assume in perpetuity" the upkeep of the swing portion of the town bridge, in return for a $200,000 grant for the new bridge. Another asked if the candidates thought the town should accept undesirable land as park allowance from subdivision developers; one asked if highly nail-consuming enemies should be hired by council and municipal authority delegated to them and yet another asked if the candidates were in favor of the town hiring a special inspector to oversee construction jobs.

None of the questions received adequate answers and many of the candidates ignored them entirely. Only one spoke in favor of moving Fraser Park.

AGAINST DEMOLITION

At least, council candidates Donald Sinnik and Howard Tripp were "not in favor of it at the moment".

Council candidate Herbert Simrod said he had "a plan for the area adjacent to the park, and it didn't involve overlooking a parking lot," and Howard Tuckaberry, also a candidate for council, said the park had been given to the town by the Fraser family and he was against its demolition.

Vernon Wannamaker, a candidate for town council said the park had been named for Fraser "and did a tremendous amount of work for Trenton" and he thought it should be retained.

"I hate to think where Trenton would be today if it hadn't been for Senator Fraser," said Mr. Wannamaker. "He was instrumental in bringing the RCAF here and steered Trenton East."

"One thing which needs to be restored in Trenton is pride," said Mr. Wannamaker.

Starting with Mrs. Eileen Forchuk, the council candidates stated their platforms. Mrs. Forchuk, making her first bid for public office, said she was "a rather frightened candidate" but hoped to put "lots of thought, energy and hard work" into the job, if elected. Mrs. Forchuk said she was home from the audience when he remembered, also, for "more harmony" if elected, she said the town couldn't hope for progress unless it were blessed with the police and-fire departments.

"And we should step so many people going to Belleville to shop," said Mr. Greer.

Mr. Greer came out in support of a swimming pool in the high school. "There's nothing in the whole city for community gardens for a pool there. If we've ever going to get a pool, now is the time. We should see that our children learn how to swim."

WENT FURTHER

Donald McPherson went even further. "It's now or never." he said. "If we can get a pool for $29,000 (cost to the town) again."

Mr. McPherson warned the voters against procrastination on the matter of the pool.

He quoted James Gunn, (a one-time Courier-Advocate reporter), as suggesting the community gardens be "built on a barge and towed across the river from east Trenton to west Trenton," at periodical intervals. Mr. McPherson used Mr. Gunn's remarks to illustrate the point that the building of the community gardens had been delayed by several years because no one could agree where to locate it.

Daniel Senik said that a councillor should have foresight and ability to plan ahead, and said that he would bring these attributes to a council post.

Herbert Simrod said a council should see to it that all of Trenton had good roads and sewers; show co-operation with other public bodies; have a distinctive and symbolic Centennial Project; keep its hands off the police commission and not hold secret meetings.

Mr. Simrod said he was "for the development of an industrial park; complete re-drafting of planning by-laws; a permanent headquarters for the Chamber of Commerce and the modernizing of downtown Trenton through the Norwich Plan.

Howard Tuckaberry, well-known in labor circles in his area, promised to "work for all the people" if elected.

Mr. Tuckaberry also said he was connected with no particular party and thought council should embark on a new station to attract industry.

Alfred Vaughan said he was for "lower assessments and progress", reducing the town's debt and "equal rights for all and preference for none."

ALL FOR HARMONY

Vernon Wannamaker was for more harmony between council and other elected or appointed bodies.

Mr. Wannamaker said the town needed more industry to balance out the town's tax structure.

"Some people are trying to keep industry out of town," he warned.

The last council candidate, R. J. (Dick) Whitley, said he said an annual bill to the town of "more than $10,000," and had "no say in how it was spent."

"That's why I'm offering myself for town council," he said.

Charles Hilton, chairman of the utilities commission this year, and a member of the commission for four years, recounted his experience on the commission, on town council and as a Boy Scout council chairman.

"I've probably got into less trouble on the Boy Scout committee," he said.

Mr. Hilton said that four years ago when he was elected to the commission, he had promised to keep hydro and water rates static, and "they haven't gone up." Faced with rising costs itself, the commission had kept the cost to the users down, through the streamlining of its operations, Mr. Hilton is again offering himself for office.

Also candidates for the one council seat on the commission, Robert Galloway, promised to work for the interests of the taxpayer and Sherman Graham pointed out he had had nine years' previous experience as a commissioner.

CHAIRMAN HEARD

T. S. Ketcheson, chairman of the Trenton Board of Education this year, and still with a year to go on the board, reported the board would have a surplus on operations this year. He said the board meant to ask for cooperation with the RCAF when it came to building a proposed new high school in east Trenton. With the first in RCAF personnel, the board could find itself in a bind if it built a large school and then found a severe decrease in students from the base station. Mr. Ketcheson also commented on the expansion of public school facilities in North Trenton and outlined plans for a new public school in east Trenton for 1965 to alleviate overcrowding in other east Trenton schools.

Board candidates Louis Axis, James Coad, Jack Hadley, Louis Knack, E. M. Parker Jr., Donld Sutherland and Ralph Weaver, most with previous board experience, all asked to be elected, while having no fault to find with the 1964 board. Mr. Axis and Mr. Coad, with no previous experience, promised to "learn" and "do their best" if elected.

Mr. Parker said the voters should elect people who could "sell" Trenton.

"We spend so much time cutting each others' throats, we haven't time to sell Trenton", he contended, "industry looks at Trenton . . . and goes away. We need to provide good roads and sewers, but more than this we need to provide cultural, educational and recreational facilities."

L. G. Phinney, a council candidate was unable to attend the meeting owing to illness.

Oddfellows Win, Tie OMHA Games

The bantam Oddfellows remained undefeated with a come from behind 3-2 tie against the strong Picton squad.

In the bantam tilt, the clubs were tied 1-1 after the first period. Dennis McCormack potted the Belleville goal and Carswell the Picton marker.

Picton scored once in the second for a 2-1 lead. Haverstock was the marksman. In the third Calver, who had assisted on the first two efforts, made it 3-1. McConnell and Ryan had picked up earlier Picton assists.

Belleville roared down the comeback trail when McCormack potted his second goal, assisted by Don Blanchet. Bill Royea triggered the equalizer on a play which left 15 of the period — and that's the way it ended.

Five of the game's eight minor penalties went to Belleville.

Belleville led the midget game 1-0 after one period on a goal by L. Carter. They made it 2-1 after two heats, with D. Duvall scoring for Oddfellows and Keogh for Picton. Ron Pierce assisted on the Belleville goal.

In the third, Belleville's four goals were scored by C. Wilson, C. Scott, D. Duvall and Hannah. B. Wickens and R. Summers each got one assist.

Penalties marred the contest, most of them coming in the final period. Picton's penalized fighting majors to Summers and Pierce were a case in point. All of the above penalties were assessed late in the game.

All five Belleville teams are scheduled for OMHA play tomorrow (Wednesday) night, four of them at home.

Picton visits Bellies peewees at 7:00 while Napanee visits the Riteway novices at 6:00, the Oddfellows bantams at 7:00 and the Oddfellows midgets at 9:00 p.m. Belleville's ACT juveniles play in Wellington at 8:30 p.m.

Fire Damages Trenton Motel

TRENTON — Fire broke out in the restaurant of the Redwood Motel in North Trenton about 10 a.m. this morning.

Although not a total loss, water damage resulted. Trenton firemen managed to keep the blaze contained in the one building.

Authorities believe the fire started in the kitchen area.

Accord Reached At Last Moment Avoids UN Clash

Agree to Debate Month Without Formal Votes

By CARMAN CUMMING

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The UN General Assembly marked the opening of its fall session Tuesday with a dramatic last-minute postponement of an East-West collision over peace-keeping assessments.

The postponement, in one of the gravest constitutional crises the organization has faced in years, provided at least another month to work on the long-standing dispute over control of peace forces.

It put off until after Christmas the American-led campaign to take away the Soviet Union's assembly vote for non-payment of peace-keeping dues.

Fresh attempts to reach agreement were to start today as Russia's Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko scheduled talks with U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk.

Gromyko was also to meet with Canada's External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, who said before Tuesday's postponement that Canada would go "down to the wire" in demanding removal of the Soviet vote if a showdown came.

AVOIDS VOTES

The postponement - formula, worked out by Secretary-General U Thant along with representatives of the Big Four and a handful of others, provided that no formal votes will be taken during the assembly general debate, expected to last at least until Christmas.

Only those issues which can be agreed on unanimously will be brought up during that time —so the question of whether or not the Russians can vote will not arise.

The assembly immediately went ahead on that basis, naming Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana as its new president and formally admitting three new members—Malta, Zambia and Malawi.

Thant's announcement of the postponement, which had been worked out in his office only minutes before, broke an atmosphere of tension that had been building up for weeks as the

Will Try To Rescue 700 Whites

By ARNOLD AMBEA

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)—Plans to rescue 700 whites from behind rebel lines in the northern Congo got under way today as the government strove to save the country from economic chaos.

Diplomatic sources in Leopoldville reported Tuesday that a two - pronged attack was planned to free many of those held behind the rebel lines and said the operation would take about two weeks.

They said a strike force of white mercenaries and Congolese troops who Tuesday rescued more than 150 Belgians and Greeks from Dingila, 250 miles north of Stanleyville, would attempt to reach other refugees in Poko, about 120 miles to the southeast.

The force would then move to Paulis, about 80 miles away, the sources said.

The second prong, consisting of about 30 mercenaries and 200 Congolese troops, was reported moving to reach Paulis from the eastern Congolese border by way of Bunia, near the Ugandan border.

MAY HOLD MANY

From Bunia the column was to make its way to Watsa, where rebels were reported to have captured many whites in the area.

Later the force would move from Watsa to Paulis to unite with the other column for a drive to Wamba, 60 miles to the south.

Missionaries evacuated from the Paulis region last week said they had heard reports that the entire white population of Wamba—estimated at 50 persons—had been killed by the rebels.

Continue Argument On Flag

OTTAWA (CP) — An Ontario Conservative MP said Tuesday night the Red Ensign, as well as the government's original three-maple leaf flag proposal, should be excluded from any national plebiscite on the issue.

William R. A. Thomas (Middlesex West) backed his party's demands for a plebiscite but told the Commons the flag the government proposed several months ago and the Red Ensign his party wants retained should be left out because they have become involved in controversy.

He was speaking on a Conservative amendment calling for a plebiscite, that was admitted by Speaker Alan Macnaughton at the opening of the day's sitting—the 201st of this record-breaking session.

The Speaker's ruling dimmed government hopes for early adoption of the red-leaf flag recommended by a 10-to-4 vote of a special Commons flag committee. The flag bears one red maple leaf on a white ground with red panels at each side.

The Conservative amendment would refer the report back to committee with a recommendation that a plebiscite be held.

Seven member may speak for 40 minutes on the amendment, and for another 40 on the committee report motion. There is also a possibility that the debate could be lengthened further through other amendments.

The government has rejected a plebiscite and argued that Parliament must decide.

Mr. Macnaughton ruled on the Conservative amendment, proposed Monday, after considering it overnight. He said it is unlike the government's original resolution and a Conservative amendment to it calling for a plebiscite would again come before the House.

"In that case it would be reasonable to assume that the practical effect of refusing amendments to refer back either of these reports to the committee . . . would be tantamount to overruling any decision of the House on the particulars mentioned. . . ."

The problem went beyond the "rigid technical and procedural sphere" and he had to decide what was "fair and reasonable."

The committee had objected to a plebiscite by a 9-to-5 vote, but the House may permit a committee to reconsider and even reverse any decision.

Prime Minister Pearson said the government would support the ruling, then challenged Opposition Leader Diefenbaker to permit an immediate vote. He didn't.

Because the committee reports is the first item of business each day, the entire period can be conducted except by unanimous agreement of the House.

Mr. Pearson offered a 30-minute question period each day, providing the sitting started 30 minutes early. Marcel Lambert (PC — Edmonton West) rejected this, saying it made no provision for written questions and statements by ministers.

Mr. Pearson agreed to suggestions that party House leaders should meet in an attempt to work on a possible agreement.

However, Creditiste Leader Real Caouette said his party would withhold unanimous consent for a question period until the flag question is resolved. Conservatives were irked at the Conservative "talkathon" on the flag.

MONTREAL (CP)—Four Canadian nuns rescued from Congolese rebels last week arrived here Tuesday and told of the brutal treatment they received from their captors.

"We were all beaten with sticks," said Sister Suzanne de Notre Dame (Suzanne Beaudry) of Chelmsford, Ont.

"They took the priests out first and beat them, then they took us out and did the same thing," said the nun.

"One brother died in jail of a fractured skull. We could do nothing for him."

Sister Suzanne told reporters at the airport 16 members of her order were imprisoned for five days with 27 other nuns, priests and religious brothers.

She said rebels accused them of having a radio transmitter in the convent after a plane flew over their village of Basoko, in Oriental province, some 300 miles from Stanleyville.

All members of the Daughters of Wisdom Order (les filles de la sagesse), they are, besides Sister Suzanne, Sister Monfret de la Croix (Ida Michaud), Edmundston, N.B.; Sister Anne Elie Marie (Bertha Verschelet), Ottawa, and Sister Stanislas du Sacre Coeur (Huguette Veillette), Gatineau, Que.

Sister Suzanne said some rebels carried weapons of Chinese make but Sister Stanislas said she was uncertain of this.

"We heard of it but we don't know if it was right or wrong," Sister Stanislas said. "We have no proof."

The nuns said three members of their order who worked in the remote mission of Isangi, 200 miles from Stanleyville, are still missing.

Dief Will Ask Some Questions

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Tuesday he will ask the government in the Commons about statements by the Ontario Police Commission that Justice Minister Favreau made no reply to commission letters about the presence in Canada of persons with criminal backgrounds.

Mr. Diefenbaker quoted the following from the Ont. 1964 report of the Ontario Police Commission investigation into organized crime:

"We were concerned to find several immigrants living in Ontario with undesirable reputations and backgrounds of a criminal nature and we wrote twice to the federal minister of citizenship and immigration to obtain some information regarding this.

"When our letters were not acknowledged, we asked the attorney-general to write on our behalf but he too received no answer."

Mr. Favreau was appointed Justice minister Feb. 3, 1964, and was citizenship minister at the time referred to by the po-

LBJ Orders Intensified War On Reds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor, armed with fresh orders from President Johnson, will fly back to South Viet Nam shortly to work out new plans for intensifying the war against Communist guerrillas.

Presumably, prospective new military actions could include air strikes against the Communist supply lines that run from North and South Viet Nam through the mountainous jungles of Laos.

But a White House statement reporting a policy conference Johnson held Tuesday with Taylor and other advisers withheld details on prospective actions.

Significantly, however, the statement emphasized Communist use of the supply lines through Laos and said there is evidence of increasing support to the Viet Cong rebels from Communist North Viet Nam.

Brazil Stops Juan Peron On His Way to Argentina

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Former dictator Juan D. Peron arrived in Rio de Janeiro today on the first stage of his return to Argentina, but the Brazilian government refused to let him continue his journey.

"He will not go on" to Montevideo, said Joao Lampreia Graeie, chief of protocol for the Brazilian foreign ministry who was at the airport to meet the Iberia airliner that brought the former dictator from Madrid, ending a period of nearly four years of self-imposed exile.

Lampreia said Peron would be returned to Madrid.

Peron had planned to fly to Montevideo, the Uruguayan capital, and transfer there to a plane for Asuncion, Paraguay. He was to take up residence in Paraguay until he felt the time ripe for him to return to Argentina.

Lampreia said Peron is persona non grata in Brazil and as such will be returned to his point of origin.

Spanish officials had indicated earlier, however, that Peron might not be allowed to return to Spain if his trip failed. They said this would be decided by the Spanish government in agreement with the Argentine government.

"But this (Peron's return to Spain) would be very difficult," one official said, "because he has openly broke the conditions under which he came to Spain."

A major condition of Peron's asylum in Spain was that he should not engage publicly in politics.

In Buenos Aires, Argentina's defence minister, Leopoldo Suarez, said the Argentine armed forces would bar any attempt to restore Peron as president from his homeland in 1955—to power.

Argentina's President Arturo Illia was awakened during the night for an urgent meeting with Suarez. Interior Minister Juan Palmero and top army and navy officers.

"The armed forces," said Suarez, "without doubt are going to act if necessary to support the government in defence of the peace of our country."

Maritimes Gale Heads West Leaving 2 Dead

Two Fishermen Adrift; Mother, Sons Missing

By the CANADIAN PRESS

Storms battered the Maritimes today as other parts of Canada had widespread snow and southern Ontario appeared to be in for a heavy fall.

The weather office said a new storm developing in Texas should move into the Great Lakes region Thursday, with snow developing by afternoon.

Snow was falling today over most of southern Ontario in an earlier storm development, but was expected to end tonight except for flurries in the Niagara Peninsula.

The snow had mainly ended in Northern Ontario where colder weather was forecast. It was still snowing in the Prairie provinces.

The Maritime storm was reported heading for Quebec by much of its strength had eased after it lashed Nova Scotia gales and dumped 30 inches of snow in New Brunswick.

At least 17 of the 18-man crew of the Liberian freighter Fury were reported rescued today off Barachois Point, N.S., where the vessel went aground Tuesday.

Two men died of heart attacks in New Brunswick after struggling in a 30-inch snowfall.

Three other persons, a mother and her two sons, were missing on a rabbit hunting expedition. Mrs. Roland MacKeage and her sons, aged 12 and eight, failed to return to their northern Nova Scotia home at Stmerton Station when the storm struck shortly after they left on the trip.

At least six New Brunswick communities are insulated Tuesday by drift - piled highways. Winds up to 100 miles an hour caused a power blackout at Sydney, N.S., for more than two hours.

The storm was moving into the Gaspe section of Quebec, although its force was abated. Winds there were expected at 30 miles an hour, gusting to 50. The storm which has spread eastward from Colorado struck Ontario's snow belt along Lake Huron. About 30 inches of snow was dumped on the town of Forest, 25 miles northeast of Sarnia.

Many rural roads were blocked early Tuesday but clearing crews had them opened by the afternoon. Mail delivery and service, cancelled Monday night, resumed Tuesday.

Communities around Forest, however, escaped with lighter snowfalls. Goderich had three inches, Strathroy six and Amherley eight.

Windsor, London, Toronto, Ottawa and Sudbury all experienced their coldest Dec. 1 since weather records have been kept —ranging from five degrees in Sudbury to 25 in Windsor.

HALIFAX-(CP) — RCAF Search and Rescue said today that at least 17 of the 18-man crew of the 3,800-ton Liberian ship Fury have apparently been rescued.

The coast guard cutter Narwhal said in a radio message that medical assistance was required for some of the crew.

The ship went aground Tuesday on Barachois Point at the mouth of the St. Mary's River 95 miles east of here, in a wild storm with winds gusting to 100 miles an hour.

The ocean - going tug Valiant reported earlier it was unable to help the Fury because of seas that were "fantastic."

The Narwhal had apparently succeeded in its efforts to communicate with the stranded ship by flag signals.

Details of how the 17 men reached shore or the fate of the other man were not immediately known although it was believed they walked ashore at low tide. A search spokesman said the hospital at Scarborough, about 10 miles from Barachois Point, had been notified to provide medical assistance for the shipwrecked mariners.

The rescue could have been set off by the entire male population of Sonora, a tiny community about two miles from the wreck scene, and Sherbrooke RCMP who early today started to walk overland to the point.

Meanwhile, the 2,285-ton West German ship Elisabeth Schulte, one mile off Cape Blomidon in the Minas Basin, called for immediate assistance when her cargo started shifting in heavy seas.

A search spokesman said the coast guard vessel Walter E. Foster was en route from Saint John, N.B., to render aid.

IN NO DANGER

The 5,300-ton Greek motorship Agios Nicholas III which was driven ashore on a rocky ledge at Sea Cow Head near Summerside, P.E.I., was reported taking water in one of her cargo holds. She had 30 men aboard and was reported in no immediate danger.

A search spokesman said a tug was coming to her assistance from Quebec, "but it will be a long, long time before she gets there."

The Jean and Jody, a 38-foot lobster boat with four men aboard, was still believed to be drifting powerless somewhere off the southwest coast of Nova Scotia.

The craft left Stony Island Monday with Philman Quinland and James Smith aboard to set lobster traps but its engine failed about the time the storm swept in early Tuesday.

Oshawa GM Workers Strike Day Early

They charged that management had ordered production speedups. They upset their international union's decision on the Thursday deadline but a UAW spokesman said the strike is legal because it came along past the seven-day waiting period after conciliation meetings Nov. 20.

Negotiations were continuing in Toronto between the United Auto Workers (CLC) and GM officials.

Tuesday night about 5,000 workers left their posts. Some picketed plant entrances, building around pointless made with tires to ward off the bitter cold.

The workers want wage parity with GM workers in the United States. The union says U.S. employees are paid nearly $1 an hour more than Canadian workers.

Unconfirmed reports from the Toronto meeting say GM has offered a 2.8 per cent wage increase but that union spokesmen claim this would still leave Canadian wages far below ones south of the border.

Police stood by this morning as supervisory personnel drove into the plant past picket lines. There were no incidents.

The Toronto negotiations involve about 23,000 workers at GM plants here, and in Toronto, London, Windsor and St. Catharines.

Pope Arrives at Bombay On Historic Visit to India

BOMBAY (AP) — Pope Paul VI landed in Bombay today to begin a historic four-day visit to India.

Nearly 100,000 Indians, many barefoot and wearing the white dhoti garb of their impoverished land, thronged to the airport but were barred from entering to watch the Pope's plane land at the end of his unprecedented 4,000-mile journey to the Orient.

About 8,000, many of them Indian Catholics led by the Indian bish prists, were permitted to enter. A great cheer went up as the Pope's plane touched down in brilliant sunshine.

Minutes before the plane landed, about 2,000 Indians broke police lines and surged across the runway to gain a better vantage point from which to see the leader of the world's 500,000,000 Roman Catholics.

Policemen carrying long bamboo poles pushed the crowds back without using violence. There was no sign at the airport of hostile Hindu groups that pledged to stage black flag demonstrations against the Pope.

About 250 persons were arrested—some in raids Tuesday night—and warned by leaders of groups that protested the Pope's visit was a "Catholic invasion" of India.

The airport crowd cheered and clapped as the Pope stepped from his Air India Boeing jetliner into 87-degree December heat at 5:30 p.m., 21 minutes behind schedule.

Today's Puzzle

Some guys play golf religiously - - every Sunday.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Snow falling over most of Southern Ontario is forecast to end this afternoon and a mixing of snow flurries should persist over the Niagara Peninsula in a flow off Lake Ontario. Another storm developing in Texas should move to-ward the Great Lakes Thursday. Snow ahead of this storm should reach Southern Ontario Thursday afternoon. A southeasterly circulation should also bring moderating temperatures.

Jamaica's Growing Economy Outlined to Kiwanis Club

Jamaica's growing economy beneath its colorful way of life and tropical beauty was the theme of a talk given by Kenneth Daley, teacher at Quinte Secondary School, at the Kiwanis luncheon Tuesday.

Canada and other countries should aid Jamaica and other underdeveloped countries but by technical aid rather than dollars, Mr. Daley, a Jamaican himself, feels.

Jamaica existed under British rule for over 500 years until in 1958 it joined with nine other West Indies islands, peacefully parted with Britain, and created the Federation of the British West Indies.

The Federation functioned as a nation and consisted of three million people. As a federation the islands felt they could increase their political and bargaining power and improve the economy of their people.

The federation was shortlived. Jamaica found it was carrying the greatest share of the expense, and in 1962 they withdrew from the federation, causing it to disband.

Coffee, sugar and rum are still major exports, but bauxite, the basic ingredient for aluminum, is being mined on a large scale by Alcan.

Tropical diseases have been brought under control and are no longer a main cause of death. Illiteracy has been reduced to 25 percent of the population.

Agriculture, Mr. Daley pointed out, is one of the main economic problems. Production has increased only one percent in the past 50 years; 95.5 percent of the farms are only one to 25 acres in size, while the remaining farms own 65 percent of the available farm land.

In Mr. Daley's opinion a redistribution of the land should be considered.

Kingston, the capital of Jamaica, is a modern cosmopolitan city bordered by a harbor on one side and mountains on the other.

Although donkey carts and corner fruit vendors can still be seen, it has a modern university and well laid out suburbs.

The country as a whole numbers 1.7 million people, covers 4,440 square miles, and is only 1,000 air miles from Toronto.

John W. Garrow Retires After 50-Year Career

With time out only for service in the Navy during World War I, CN conductor John W. Garrow, 81 Cannifton Road, will end a 50 year career as a railroader tomorrow.

Following his final run ending in Toronto he will deadhead back to Belleville at noon Thursday to complete his railroading career.

Born in Cote de Paul, Quebec, Mr. Garrow started as a baggageman at Kingston back in 1914, later enlisting with the Horse Transport and transferring to the Navy.

After the war he returned to the CN as a fireman, then in 1923 had a change of heart and became a brakeman. He was classed as freight conductor in 1925 and has lived in Belleville for the past 42 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Garrow will continue to reside in Belleville where their son George and daughter Helen reside.

Debating Club Members Ready For Candidates

The winds of criticism and curiosity will waft more or less gently through the inner sanctum of the Wharf Street Debating Club tonight.

It is the night of the hunters. The verbal artillery of the Taxpayers' Brigade will loose tonsilar missiles at the targets for the night — the occupants of and the aspirants to the seats for the municipal mighty.

Seated in rows like a television whodunit jury, the hunted will defend their right to "live" or explain why they are equipped to occupy a seat of government.

And here is where the shooting starts.

There will be individual swipping developing at times into a Beatle chorus — possibly a barrage depending on the nature of the statement.

There will be cheers and goodnatured jeers. There will be questions, sly and to the point.

There will be raillery, ribbing and repartee.

There will be shafts — some slightly barbed — which will query "What have you done? or "What are you going to do?"

There will be sidelins clashes between the seated taxpayer faithful depending on what or is being gored.

There will be no passing the buck — only at the front door box office. This includes the famous Wharf Street mystery, in-tights the hot dog served with unspiked mustard.

Aside to office holders — and seekers. Better come prepared. They will be sniping at you from all angles. If previous years are a criterion. Don't wait until you see the whites of their eyes before you fire back — if you are still standing.

Low Water Hampering Coal Transport

Water level in the Bay of Quinte now about 30 inches below what it was last year at this time is hampering late season transport of coal into the Belleville harbor.

Not only are coal carriers being forced to reduce tonnage to about one-third of capacity, but lake boats are still having difficulty in manoeuvring in the local harbor.

Yesterday the coal carrier "Coalfax" unloaded about 1150 tons of soft coal for a local dealer and then became grounded in the mud as she backed away from the dock to turn around.

The carrier was stuck for about two hours before she was able to head back down the bay for another trip.

No Casualties In Rifle Fire

TEL AVIV (Reuters)—A 30-minute exchange of fire between Syrian and Israeli troops was reported today by Israel Army headquarters. There were no casualties on the Israeli side.

It was the second incident of its kind within two days. Like Tuesday's clash, it took place near Tel Dan where a new frontier road built by Israel has been disputed by the Syrians.

Boy Quickly Rescued From Trent River

TRENTON—James Hoad, 10, of Nelles Ave., Trenton, had an unexpected "dip" in the icy waters of the Trent River yesterday shortly after 1:00 p.m. when he slipped into the water while trying to retrieve a glove which had fallen as he walked across the wooden railway bridge adjacent to the intersection of Division and Front Sts.

A school girl, Barbara Ann Dennis, 14, who saw James slip from the bridge, ran to the public works sheds on the east bank of the river and three public works' men, William Gildeon, Earl Chard and Claude Martineau hurried to the scene and pulled the boy to safety.

Police and firemen were called out and the lad was sent to the hospital where he soon recovered from his shock and chills.

24 Building Permits for Nov. Total $246,500

TRENTON — Trenton's building values have passed the two million dollar mark for the year, according to a report released by building inspector William Anderson. From Jan. 1 to Nov. 30, 217 permits were issued to the total value of $2,016,145. With a month to go, values should come within reach of the all-time record for the town of $2,32,564 (1962).

During November, 24 permits were issued and the values set at $246,500.

Largest single item on the list was for six permits issued for semi-detached houses, value $132,000. For single family dwellings, seven permits were issued, value $79,000.

One institutional permit was valued at $28,000 and other items on the November list were: Dwelling repair, two permits, with values set at $2,500; one permit for a garage, $500; three commercial repairs, $5,900.

$2,900 DAMAGE

Damage to the Redwood Motel restaurant in a flash fire yesterday has been set by Fire Chief Cecil Ellis at $2,000.

The fire started in the filters leading off from the cooking area. The attic of the frame structure at the roof were damaged by fire and the coffee shop suffered smoke and water damage.

Owner James Walmsley expressed pleased surprise when the firemen showed up after the fire was out and the smoke cleared from the building with large mops and proceeded to mop up the water in the restaurant and kitchen area.

Disputes Police Estimate of Damage to Pole

TRENTON — Does a police officer have the special knowledge required to estimate the cost of repairing or replacing a damaged hydro pole?

Barrister R. E. Nourse of Picton doesn't think so . . . and he said so, forcibly, in magistrate's court at Trenton yesterday.

In fact, he told Constable Carman Schwager of the Trenton police force he couldn't estimate the damage done to a hydro pole, wires, a transformer and a mailbox within "hundreds of dollars."

Constable Schwager had set the damage at $700 on October 3, after a car had damaged three items at the corner of Wilkins and Lorne Ave. and taken off. Later, Mr. Nourse called Trenton police and reported a client of his had struck the pole, and would be in on Monday, October 5 to give the police details. Claude Alfred Westlake of Frankford was charged with failing to report an accident involving property damage of more than $100. He pleaded not guilty to the charge in court yesterday.

Constable Schwager told the court of following a stream of water and Precious from the scene of the accident, through town and as far as the Stockdale road.

"That tank has a good capacity," remarked Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

Mr. Nourse pleaded for his client by attempting to prove the constable was high on his damage estimates and claimed that Mr. Westlake had reported the accident.

"The Act says, report forthwith to the nearest police station." The magistrate said, "Ignorance of the law is no excuse as they say."

Constable Mason, Brighton OPP, who had been with Constable Schwager at the scene immediately following the accident, was asked by town solicitor Roderick Campbell "if it would have been possible to repair the hydro pole."

"It would have been considerably shorter." (The pole was almost cut four feet above the ground.)

Mr. Westlake told the court he had had trouble with his steering mechanism and that he had struck the pole while trying to pass another vehicle.

He was fined $20 and ordered to pay $12 costs.

TO HOLD COURSE

A Hunter Safety Class will be held in Trenton next week, Tuesday and Thursday nights.

Both classes start at 7 p.m. and those wishing to qualify for their licences, must attend both nights. Examinations will be given at the end of the course.

At a recent parade at RCAF Station Clinton Warrant Officer 2 Alexander Velleman was presented with the Canadian Forces Decoration denoting over 12 years meritorious service. Warrant Officer Velleman joined the service in December 1939 and at present is the School Monitor at the Radar and Communications School at Clinton. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. Velleman, live at Plainfield, Ont.

Two Youths Remanded on Theft Counts

TRENTON — In magistrate's court at Trenton Tuesday, two Trenton youths, Peter Thomas Harold Brunton, 18, and Michael Raymond Cannon, 17, pleaded guilty to taking a car without its owner's permission and were remanded until next week pending a pre-sentence report. Crown Attorney John A. Pringle said he understood both had records.

The car, reported stolen by an Oshawa man, was recovered by Trenton police on Nov. 28, the day it was taken, near the Murray Canal. Brunton later admitted "taking the car for a drive". It had been parked by its owner on the government dock in Trenton, with the key in the ignition.

Literacy Rate Climbs

Literacy, being able to read and write, does not automatically make good citizens, but in today's complex world it is becoming increasingly difficult for the illiterates to fulfill properly the functions of citizenship. As the indispensable key to the acquisition of knowledge, literacy is greatly to be desired.

Those who despair of the world ever becoming a better place can find some hope for the future in a survey of education progress in 26 countries, published by UNESCO.

This shows an impressive increase in literacy, in countries on both sides of the Iron Curtain.

For instance, in Malaysia, the newly-established nation composed of what were once British colonies, free and compulsory primary education was introduced in 1961 and 94 per cent of the school-age children are now attending school. Malaysia devotes a quarter of its national budget to education, an impressive indication that the government is putting first things first.

Malaysia's bitter enemy is Indonesia, the hundreds of East Indian islands once ruled by the Dutch. But here, too, the story is the same. Illiteracy has virtually been wiped out in all parts of the nation except West Irian, that part of New Guinea only recently turned over to Indonesia by the Dutch.

Ninety-five per cent of Korea's school-age children are at present attending primary school. We are not told whether these figures are for South Korea, North Korea or both sections of the divided country, but it is quite possible that the ratio is true in communist and democratic areas alike. Other communist lands have been wiping out illiteracy. For instance, in Bulgaria the number of students has increased ten times since 1939 and Bulgaria ranks fourth in the world for the ratio of students to the total population.

In Castro Cuba, it is the same story. In 1958 the illiteracy rate was 23 per cent; today it is only 3.9 per cent.

Even a country which obtained its independence as recently as did Algeria can show impressive results. In two years the enrollment in primary schools has risen from 750,000 to 1,400,000. Algeria, though, has a tremendous task ahead of it. Only one adult in five can read or write.

Amongst countries which we have always regarded as "civilized" and which have long been independent, those in South America have some of the worst illiteracy records. Here, too, progress is being made. Venezuela's illiteracy rate has dropped from 47 per cent in 1958 to 13 per cent. Uruguay, with an illiteracy rate of 9.69 per cent, already has one of the best records in South America and expects to cut the rate to 5 per cent within 20 years. By way of comparison, Spain's illiteracy rate is 9.2 per cent.

Get It Over With

The original design had three maple leaves on it and there were blue borders on a white background.

New design, proposed by the majority of an all-party committee, calls for one red maple leaf on a white background, with the flag having red borders.

No blue in it.

That color, we suggest, is being reserved for the majority of Canadians who are certain to be blue with boredom if the Commons wastes as much time debating this new design as it spent on the earlier one.

The time has passed when there is any possibility of us acquiring a flag which will earn an enthusiastic reception from the majority of Canadians.

What we need now is acceptance of the committee's recommendation, and to recall that it is the people of a nation which give significance to its flag and not the flag which lifts the people to prominence.

It is a fallacy to suppose that the world is neatly divided into "believers" and "unbelievers," that "we," church people, belong to the first group; "they," the outsiders, to the second. The truth is that some of us can insulate ourselves from the atmosphere of contemporary thought. And unless we are all prepared to share the perplexities with real sympathy we are depriving ourselves of one of the most valuable bridges of communication with those who at present do not share our faith.—Rt. Rev. F. A. Cockin, former Bishop of Bristol

To Your Good Health
Quinine and Benadryl Prescribed for Leg Cramps

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have suffered from nocturnal cramps in the calves of my legs and long muscles of the shins.

My doctors advise me to "take quinine" but I have never had any directions for it. At times I take benadryl. I am a poorly-controlled diabetic, have a heart condition, atherosclerosis and prostate trouble. Now the leg cramps are becoming a great problem. — John B.

You do indeed have a collection of troubles, but it is quite possible and quite understandable that the leg cramps give you more misery than the others combined. They are not as serious, of course, but more annoying.

Quinine and benadryl both are prescribed for leg cramps, but they aren't the only measures. I'm surprised that you didn't ask your doctors about the dosage, but I guess that's something that people sometimes forget.

The customary amounts for this purpose are three to five grains of quinine on retiring, or the smaller amount after meals and again at bedtime; and, for benadryl, usually one capsule on retiring. Several other drugs are sometimes prescribed for leg cramps, depending on the cause.

It is true that cramps due to atherosclerosis (hardening of the arteries) frequently are difficult to control. A combination of various treatments may be effective, even though some are quite simple.

Excessive smoking can contribute to spasm of the blood vessels, hence further limited circulation and more cramps. If you smoke — stop.

Buerger's exercises, which are very simple, may help the circulation, too. I've known of cases in which this alone has put an end to leg cramps that were not too severe basically.

I have a booklet (How to stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains) and you may well want a copy of it for an explanation of Buerger's exercises and other helpful treatments. (Any reader may get a copy by sending a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 20 cents in coin to Dr. Molner, in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.)

Dear Dr. Molner: What foods contain the "trace element" of boron, iron and iodine? — Mrs. J. W.

Most trace elements are contained in a wide variety of foods. For these you name:

IRON: This may deserve to be called more than a "trace element," because the body needs more than just a trace of it. Many sources: Beans, peas, whole wheat and other cereals, beef, eggs, leafy vegetables, such as kale, spinach, etc., dried fruits such as prunes and apricots.

IODINE: Needed for the thyroid. Sea foods are the chief source, but in fruits and vegetables the amount varies depending on where they are grown, more in coastal areas, little or even none when inland. (For practical purposes, iodized salt provides an ample amount).

BORON: Little is known of the need for this. Eggs and milk are among the commonly used foods which contain it.

* * *

Note to G. D.: A "B.S.P." test is injection of a dye, bromsulphalein, into a vein. This dye is excreted almost entirely by the liver. The amount retained (5 percent or less in 45 minutes) is normal. Greater retention indicates a liver disorder.

For facts about the total health of you and each member of your family, Dr. Joseph G. Molner's new book, "Stay Well Every-Day of Your Life" ($5.95) is now available at book stores.

Finds Yanks Courteous

BBC London Letter

Like many other Britons who visit the United States for the first time, English housewife Patricia Banks found that she had many misconceptions about the Americans.

Interviewed recently, by Celia Irving in the BBC program "Women and the World', she admitted that before she went to the States the impression she had formed from television and films was "of a big, violent country, peopled by either gangsters or over-sentimental folksy-folk with precocious children. The impression left me wide open for my first surprise, which was to find that the Americans have a general standard of manners which we in Britain would call almost "Edwardian. In their homes, offices and shops they call each other 'Sir' and 'Ma'am' and this includes even the waiters when they are speaking to grown-ups. Their general standard of manners not only makes for pleasant living, but it makes shopping a real pleasure for you get the same smiling attention whether you are buying an expensive suit or just a hamburger. But it is on the roads where their natural courtesy is most obvious. I have driven in many countries, including behind the Iron Curtain, but I have never met such courteous drivers as I did in the States."

Jobs Offered To Men of 68

St. Thomas Times-Journal

We found it hard to believe, but it was there all right — an advertisement in the "help wanted" column of the Rodney Mercury. It had been placed there by the Erie Flooring firm of West Lorne, and offered jobs for 10 men.

What made it different from other advertisements? Just this: The jobs offered were open to men up to 68 years of age!

It was a pleasing thing to see, and Erie Flooring is to be congratulated for recognizing the fact that men over 50 can still do a worthwhile job of work. So many firms today take the opposite view, and place too much emphasis on the importance of youth when it comes to engaging personnel.

Why Pupils Quit School

Hamilton Spectator

Having once left school in a huff, we chuckled knowledgeably when we read a list of reasons students have given for becoming dropouts.

Most of the children quit because he hated the principal, two because they were too old for the class, one for failure to get along with teacher, others because they were discouraged, some for reasons of over-weight, and several because they had teachers who thought too much of themselves.

Very interesting reasons, all of them, and we are sure the students "concerned" could cite many very important reasons, too.

Years from now, though, they may consider their reasons for quitting school rather silly and wish they'd stayed on and finished their education.

That's what we did. We were seven when we left school in a rage because the teacher moved a girl with pigtails two seats away from us so we could no longer untie her yellow ribbon. We intended never to return.

We did return, of course. As for the girl who wore a yellow ribbon, she graduated the same time as we did. She later became a teacher, and, for all we know, she may still be providing students with excuses for dropping out of school.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Dec. 2nd, 1944

"The Army and Navy are running." This is the cry of local fishermen, who are taking advantage of the annual spawning forays of lake herring in nearby waters.

The fish taken thus far, states one, fisherman who derives his living with a commercial fishing route, have been of exceptionally good size and quality. His took over 500 pounds in his first haul this week.

Other fishermen, he said, have taken in hauls of well over 1,000 pounds. The run will last approximately from five to six days.

The white fish have left the spawning grounds for their winter quarters deep in Lake Ontario. Small catches of from ten to 25 pounds were taken this week at the end of the week. Prices for whitefish were 20 25 cents and herring 17 cents the pound.

In the municipal elections yesterday, W. C. Mikel, K.C., was re-elected mayor for the year 1925 by a plurality of 1,040 votes over his nearest opponent ex-mayor Dr. A. Bennett, and a majority of 958 votes over the combined votes of his three opponents, namely, Ald. W. R. McCreary, Ald. Harry W. Greenleaf, and ex-mayor Geo. A. Bennett. The electors were evidently not in favor of the proposition to adopt daylight saving, during the summer months of 1925; it was defeated by a majority of 1,679 votes. All aldermen were elected by acclamation. The only election held for school trustees was in Colegiate Ward and George Sarchet defeated W. J. Looker by 138 votes. Sidney Ward also have two new trustees to take the places of Phil Harrison, elected as an alderman, and Arthur Woodley, namely E. A. Geen and Allan R. Schryver, acclamation. Today in History

Dec. 2, 1964 . . .

Napoleon Bonaparte was crowned Emperor of France 160 years ago today — in 1804. He was only 35 years old when France, by a unanimous vote of the Senate and a plebiscite, decided to return to a hereditary monarchy. At his coronation in Paris he took the crown from the hands of Pope Pius VII and placed it on his own head. Napoleon's reign was of 10 years duration, until he was forced to abdicate in 1814, when he retired to the island of Elba where he surrendered his sovereignty — was still recognized.

1963—The central building of the University of Ottawa was destroyed by fire.

1919 — Toronto millionaire Ambrose Small disappeared, and the case became a celebrated mystery when all attempts at tracing him failed.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1914 — Austrian troops entered Belgrade after a four-month siege of the Serbian capital; French troops captured two Alsatian towns near the Rhine; Russians crossed Rock on the Vistula River.

Second World War

Twenty - five years ago today — in 1939 — Finns claimed they had shot down 10 Russian planes and sunk a Russian warship as they retreated from five villages near the Russo-Finnish border; the German liner Volstad gantlied itself to avoid capture by the British off Cape Town.

Strictly Personal
Flowers Grow By a Miracle Of Grace

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

In the development of the individual, from babyhood onward there is an order of appearance in motives, a kind of "maturing process" of the personality.

The first, and lowest, motive in the baby is physiological, like hunger. A baby, first of all, must be fed. Next comes the safety motive, which creates fear. When a baby is no longer hungry or fearful, it moves to such motives as love, esteem, and self-realization.

This is the thesis of Dr. A. H. Maslow, in his book "Motivation and Personality," which appeared about a decade ago. I think he is largely right, and what is important in this theory is that a higher motive usually does not appear until the ones below it are satisfied.

If a love-drive is inhibited by fear, the fearful person will love himself go. If the hunger drive is great enough, it will overcome fear of punishment. Only when the lower, primary instinctive motives are satisfied can the higher motives come into play.

To understand this hierarchy of needs in the human personality is to understand why we cannot expect too much of people living in slums, where life is a continual daily struggle to survive hunger and to ward off fears.

When hunger and fear are removed, the motives can appear. When love motives are permitted to flourish, then the motives of esteem and self-realization can develop. But it is nearly impossible to have the higher motives until the lower ones have been gratified.

It is foolish and Utopian to expect underprivileged people living in the degradation of the slums to pull themselves up by their psychic bootstraps. A few extraordinary persons may be able to do this, but the vast bulk are crushed under the weight of their condition.

Wanting the esteem of society, and possessing self-respect, are later and higher motives in the development of personality. To ask the underprivileged to care about art and science, civic responsibility and financial integrity is like asking a hungry and frightened baby to "pull itself together."

Man has evolved not only as a species, but each man (and woman) evolves as a person, stage by stage. When a whole stratum of society is confined to satisfying its primitive drives — for food, for jobs, for safety — in an affluent culture, only the most insensitive and unperceptious would blame such people for "not making more of themselves." Out of such soil, what flowers can grow, except by a miracle of grace?

K's Friend Spurns Him

Winnipeg Free Press

The Polish Communist leader, Wladyslaw Gomulka, was a close friend of Nikita Khrushchev. The two men had quarrelled fiercely when, in 1958, Poland embarked upon a more independent domestic brand of communism, but, as often happens in human relations, the quarrel cleared the air and Mr. Gomulka became a friend and a confidant of the Soviet leader. They visited each other frequently, and Mr. Gomulka often acted as Mr. Khrushchev's adviser whenever the latter found himself faced with a particularly thorny problem. What's more, they seemed to find genuine pleasure in each other's company, and often enjoyed hunting trips together either in Poland or in the forests that stretch along th. Soviet - Polish border.

And now that Mr. Khrushchev has been disgraced, Mr. Gomulka, his friend and his hunting companion, became the first to cast a stone at the fallen idol. As the senior Communist leader in the satellite countries, he has readily accepted the new Soviet dogma, and approved of the way in which Mr. Khrushchev was dismissed without thanks, to languish in the limbo reserved for Soviet political outcasts.

This dour disregard of all personal feelings — after all, some flicker of humanity must animate even such a cold Marxist as Mr. Gomulka — this unhesitant turning of one's back upon a man with whom only a short time ago he shared a camp-fire and, perhaps, one's innermost thoughts (as much as Communists dare to share their innermost thoughts with anybody) jars harshly upon our ethical concepts. And it contrasts sharply with yet another human tragedy just enacted, at about the same time, in our own world.

It will be recalled how Walter Jenkins, President Johnson's long - time friend and associate, was recently arrested on a morals charge in Washington. The President had every reason to feel betrayed, and he might have felt that it would help his public image in the midst of his election campaign if he were to disavow such an untrustworthy friend. He did nothing of this sort. Instead, Mr. Johnson sent flowers to the hospital where Mr. Jenkins was detained, and assured Mr. Jenkin's wife and six children that they need not wor ry about their future.

If Mr. Gomulka had only made one such human gesture, if he had sent flowers to Mr. Khrushchev's new address (which he now shares with his fellow outcasts, Malenkov and Marshal Zhukhov), if he had done so call on the phone, might have felt easier about that much heralded "liberalization" of the Communist way of life. But this is not the way of the True Believer. The Church was aptly described by Cardinal Malperin in Triumphant Heretic:

"In the Communist world party discipline is the supreme moral principle which leads to curious reversal of ethical values. He who is subject to party discipline revokes the opinion he expressed five minutes before is considered to have strong principles; he who in defence of party discipline sticks to his own opinion under heavy pressure is considered unreliable. He who loses his best friend is considered loyal, he who tries to defend him, a traitor or conspiring weakling."

We are still worlds apart.

Should Smoke Lighted End

Portland Oregonian

Giving up smoking for your health? A team of Boston doctors suggests maybe you should just turn your cigarette around and smoke from the other end.

The group, headed by Dr. Lawrence Quigley Jr., has just returned from a tour of islands in the South Caribbean with the report that natives there, some of whom have been smoking up to 93 years, have no trace of lung cancer. They habitually light up and suck the smoke through the lighted end, which they hold expertly in the mouth.

Dr. Quigley says it is easy. He has even experimented with reverse smoking of a pipe — small bowl conformity. But the practice is not likely to catch on. The man who can't stand the heat of the percolator handle against his hand is not likely to take quickly to reshot tobacco coals against his tongue or palate.

Original School Board Members Dinner Guests of Present Body

With the North Thurlow Township School Area Board to pass out of existence as a separate body at the end of this year, members of the present board last night were dinner hosts to members of the original board formed back in 1946.

The dinner party was held at Johnny's Restaurant at the Plaza with all members of both the original and present boards, with their wives, being present.

Minutes of some of the first board meetings nearly 20 years ago were read and events leading up to the board's formation were recalled.

Leo Ketcheson was the first secretary-treasurer of the area school board and still fills that position.

Next Monday Thurlow voters will elect five township school board trustees, who after Jan. 1st will look after all public school matters in the township.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"This is ridiculous! Three hundred and fifty dollars —and it doesn't even SHOW!"

Susanna's Family Fare

ALL ABOUT BUDGIES

If someone gives you the bird this Christmas, I hope you will be able to teach it to talk in elegant pear-shaped toned — or croon a tune like Blue Lagoon — here are the simple direct ions:

Dear Susanna: Budgies are the most delightful pets. We have had a number of these birds over a period of years, and perhaps our experience in teaching them to talk may be help to others.

A young bird should not be allowed out of its cage for one month from the time of bringing it home but you can start teaching it to talk as soon as it becomes used to you and its surroundings. Speak to it in your natural voice, repeating words or phrases over and over, but do not confuse the bird by trying to say too many things at one session.

Help it become accustomed to you by gently putting your hand in the cage and coaxing it to get on your finger. Whistle and imitate the sounds it makes, interspersing these with the words or phrases you wish to teach it.

We have found that most young birds start to talk when they get accustomed to being out of the cage but not before. They seem to learn the most when they can sit on your finger with their beaks close to your lips while they listen to you.

They will seldom talk while you do, but will generally do so when sitting on your shoulder or when they go back to their cages. Running water will often inspire them to talk, and holding them in front of a large mirror also acts as a stimulant.

Patience is required but you will be well repaid for your time and effort in fun with your budgie. Even older birds can be trained to talk with the same methods. — Mrs. W. S. Rogers

Well don't just sit there, ... SAY something. — SUSANNA

Dear Gals: A little egg white applied to the face in the form of a mask, while one is soaking in a tub of softened scented water, is the best pick-me-up in the world, and the quickest easiest way to get rid of those little "tired-lines" that seem to always want to do an encore at the end of the day.—SUSANNA.

"Wait a minute!...bless WHAT frog?"

Speaking Personally

by Gladys Ward - - - Women's Editor

INVESTED CAPITAL

If you are over forty you can probably remember when one cent meant an investment not to be spent indiscriminately or lightly, but only after prolonged consideration.

Would it be licorice whips (pronounced lickerish), those hollow tubes about a foot long? Or would it be button candies glued to a strip of paper? Or perhaps if you were bashful, a cent's worth of those hard, heart-shaped candies stamped with messages like "Do you love me?" or "Be my sweetheart."

In my youth there was a confectionery store operated by a widow and her maiden sister. They sold all these things, and also long narrow paper bags of popcorn dipped in pink sugar with a prize of a tin ring awaiting in the bottom of the bag. Or it should have been at the bottom if you weren't the impatient kind who opened up the wrong end to get the prize first.

The store smelled of fresh bread which was baked in double loaves, and was sold unwrapped. If you wanted the size loaf we buy nowadays you asked for a half loaf of bread, and they broke it apart by splitting it down the middle.

Ranged along one wall were tin boxes with isinglass windows where the fancy biscuits could be seen with their pink marshmallow topping and shredded cocoanut. The lid lifted up and the biscuits were weighed out by the pound.

At the back of the store was the ice cream parlor with a few tables and chairs with twisted wire backs. But this was for the older kids, and we never entered except as a treat with a visiting aunt or grandmother.

But this wasn't the store that got my patronage. On a side street was a dark, musty little grocery store where the owner sold grab bags. You flattened your nose against the dusty glass of the show case and decided which grab bag you would buy.

They were all the same and each held four or five stale candies, but there was a rumor that persisted in spite of its vagueness, that once a girl had found a nickel in one!

This was something like winning the Irish Sweepstakes today and as probable. You know people do win sometimes, but you don't actually ever meet any of them. I'm not sure whether it was avarice or Scottish thriftiness that kept me a steady customer at that store. Nowhere else could you get so much for 1c, and that 5c bonanza was a carrot dangling under my nose.

That grocery keeper lived in a big brick house and seemed fairly prosperous, but I'm sure his wealth could not have come from the school children who stopped in on their way to school to invest 1c at a time.

GREETINGS

Mailed your Christmas cards yet? Letters and parcels to Great Britain should already be on their way. Part of Christmas is sending cards to friends or receiving them from old friends who have moved away, or have become separated from us over the miles and years.

Sometimes it is only at Christmas that our lives touch again some who were once a part of our daily living. It is probably a good thing that at Christmas we think of each other again, and renew old friendships.

If it is a once-a-year occasion, do write a little note, and tell that friend what has happened in the past year. It always pleases me to find a little message attached to Christmas greetings from friends of the past, and I'm sure that applies to others.

Belleville will be represented by reproductions of two paintings by local artist Philippa Faulkner which were chosen by Hallmark for their Christmas selection.

Just a reminder too, that there are new postal rates this year — unsealed envelopes must carry three cents postage. Sealed letters for local delivery take four cent stamps, and for out-of-town delivery, five cent postage is necessary.

And finally, think of the postman and get those cards in the mail early, so the work of delivering them can be spread over a greater length of time.

Family Honors Couple on 40th Anniversary

Anniversary celebrations to honor Mr. and Mrs. W. Eardley were held recently at the home of their daughter (Helen) and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. P. Valentine, on the occasion of their 40th wedding anniversary.

Guests were present from Montreal, St. Rose, and St. Lambert, Quebec and Belleville.

The table, focal point of the festivity was centred with an attractive decorated three-tier wedding cake. It was encircled with white tulle and tiny red rosebuds, red candles in silver candelabra and a centre-piece of red and white 'mums completed the setting.

Mrs. C. Martin, sister of the 'bride' from Montreal, assisted by the 'bride's' daughter and 7-year-old granddaughter poured. Little four-year-old Robin looked after the guest book.

They were the recipients of many lovely gifts including china, cut crystal and luggage along with numerous cards of congratulations.

The evening concluded with wishes for many more happy years of married life.

LITTLE H&S TOWN

QUEEN VICTORIA ASSOCIATION

The December meeting of the Queen Victoria Home and School Association opened with a brief business meeting followed by a short talk on the meaning of today's report cards by Principal, Mr. Frink. Mr. Frink explained the gauges used in making report cards and what information they should convey to the parents.

Next came the program in charge of Mr. Millett, which dealt with what playmates teach a child. A child's feelings about himself are greatly affected by his playmates. From his pals he learns to be fair or to cheat and their opinions are very important to him. Much positive information can be gained from other children. A skit pertaining to the topic was presented by Mr. Roptone, Mr. Millett and Mr. Corveney.

STUDY GROUPS

The meeting was divided into round table discussion groups during which refreshments were served and the following questions studied:

1. What do you classify as stealing by your children?
2. What do you do when Johnny comes home with stolen apples?
3. Do you forewarn your children about "following the leader?"
4. How far do you go in forming a code of conduct for your child to follow when he is with his friends?
5. How far do you go in choosing your child's friends?
6. Is a white lie justified?
7. How much should you expect of your child in resisting his playmates' bad influences?
8. How much can early training help in guiding your child to resist the gang influence?

Lively discussion ensued which came down to the facts that training a child must start early and that one can only expect of a child in proportion to what that child has been taught.

When the first item on the agenda was passed with no member demanding a formal vote, a distinct murmur of relief swept through the packed assembly chamber.

Only one day earlier the Soviet Union had been publicly insisting that the assembly "should start and continue with its work in accordance with normal procedures."

That had appeared to rule out any arrangement such as the one that eventually was agreed on. The U.S. meanwhile was backing a plan similar to the one that emerged, but providing for an adjournment from Christmas until February.

Western sources said both sides had made significant concessions. But they said there did not appear to be much hope that any move to take away the Soviet vote would have received the two-thirds assembly vote that probably would have been needed.

At issue in the crisis is the question of whether or not the assembly has the power to inaugurate and finance peace forces. The Soviet Union, backed by France and some other countries, insists that only the 11-member Security Council has such power.

Most other countries contend that the assembly can act if the Security Council is unable to do so because of a veto.

The Soviet Union owes some $52,000,000 towards The Congo and Middle East forces; an amount equal to two years' assessments for that country and thus enough to bring it under Article 19 of the charter. The article provides that a country that far in debt "shall have no vote."

France will come under the same article if no settlement is reached before January. There was a widespread feeling at the UN that the U.S. will be anxious to nail down an agreement by then to avoid an open clash with France.

The immigration department issued a statement late Tuesday night saying that a letter was sent to Fred Cass, then Ontario attorney general, Feb. 15, 1964, apologizing for the delay. The letter was sent by Mr. Favreau saying that his successor as immigration minister, Rene Tremblay, had the details, the department said.

On March 12, the department added in the statement, Mr. Tremblay wrote Mr. Cass about a matter of deportation asked for by the Ontario authorities.

Mr. Diefenbaker said in an interview that during a recorded interview for the CBC last weekend he quoted the police commission and remarked that the matter was worthy of consideration.

The portions of the interview dealing with these remarks were cut out when the interview was broadcast Sunday night on the television program This Hour has Seven Days.

Mr. Diefenbaker and Transport Minister Pickersgill were interviewed in connection with charges in the Commons of alleged attempts at bribery and coercion on the part of ministerial assistants.

"In the course of the interview, talking about Mafia and the like, I said it was of interest and worthy of consideration that in the report of the Ontario Police Commission on organized crime this quotation appears," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

THE ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER, Wednesday, Dec. 2, 1964

(The Commons now is debating the flag and procedural rules preclude the usual daily question period during discussion of the flag committee's report.)

Mr. Diefenbaker said he does not know whether the terms of reference are wide enough for a federal judicial inquiry set up last week to go into the statements of the Ontario Police Commission.

Successful Living

Children Must Learn By Doing, Not Watching

DEAR DORIS — I've got the same problem that has been the misery of every average teen-ager in history. My mother! She just won't let me grow up!

My home economics teacher says we should have lots of practical experience in the kitchen. Every time I start to make a cake my mother comes in and says that's not right and proceeds to make it for me. So what if it burns or tastes like glue! At least I could say, "Well, I burned the cake." Or, "I made the cake but it tastes like glue." I can't say there's one thing I can say "I did it" too.

DORIS CLARK

My older sister is the same way. Neither of us even knows what half the things are in the kitchen! She is away working now and is having an awful time with cooking. She hasn't had a decent meal yet!

I want to learn, Doris, and I'm willing to learn from Mom but not when she grabs it and says "Let me do it, I can't be bothered with you!"

She just won't let me grow up. She even talks baby talk jo me. — FED UP WITH MOM.

DEAR FED UP — Oh, baby! Mom thinks she's smart. She forgets that she herself learned her art through someone else's kindness. Yet she fails to give her own girl a big hand toward a happy marriage by helping her to be at home on the range.

Is the kitchen her exclusive property? Could you ask her for a time, three weeks from Tuesday, when she would leave you to it? (Pick her bridge afternoon or shopping day.)

* * *

(Doris knows Canadian resources and can guide you to the help you need. Write to her.)

U.C.W Meeting

MELROSE — Mrs. Arthur English and Mrs. William English were hostesses for the November meeting of Melrose U.C.W. Mrs. Newton Demille, president, presided over the business part of the meeting. Members were reminded that the roll call for the December meeting was to be answered by giving an article for a layette.

Members decided to hold a potluck supper on December 10 for the families of the church. At this time the Sunday school will present Christmas gifts to the children and all will have an opportunity to enjoy Christian fellowship together.

Mrs. Sidney Bates, wife of the student minister, gave a full report of the recent Bible Study Conference at Lakeland Lodge, Picton.

The theme of the conference was "God and His Purpose." Mrs. William English, who was a delegate, dealt with this; also reported on a speech given by Mrs. Coleman, who introduced the theme.

She explained this theme by saying "God created the world for the purpose of loving it and having it respond. Man's answer to God's love was an emphatic no. Fortunately God refused to let this no be final. He made successive attempts to rescue His creation. The Bible is a record of these rescue attempts."

Mrs. Bates brought to the group some of her impressions gleaned from the conference. She said in part: "Man who eats forbidden fruit in order to be master of the world cannot be master of himself. We must relate Bible passages to our own experiences. We need never feel trapped or alone."

Continuing her report, Mrs Bates said that the main conclusion drawn in the final session was that members should do their best without looking for fruits of their labors. If there is success, pride may follow.

In conclusion she referred to the new curriculum. Children must be taught to understand the Bible in relation to modern life. The Bible should be the cradle that holds the word of God.

Mrs. Jack McLaren voiced th appreciation of the membe for this inspirational report

Lakeside Chapter OES Holds Installation Ceremony

WELLINGTON — The Masonic hall was filled to capacity on Wednesday evening, Nov. 18, when the officers of Lakeside Chapter, No. 81, O.E.S., were installed for the coming year. The hall was brightened by two large baskets of yellow 'mums, on the piano, the other in the East. The East was further decorated by a lovely painted Biblical picture and the worthy matron's motto, "Faith and Constancy."

The retiring worthy matron, Mrs. Frank Brimley, and the retiring worthy patron, Mr. Gordon Parks, heartily welcomed to the East, Mrs. Edna Dobbs, Minerva, chairman of the Grand Chapter Benevolent committee; also given the same welcome were: PDDGM matrons, Mrs. Ruby Fleming, Colborne; Mrs. Adeline Anderson, Quinte; Mrs. Helen Cross, Quinte; Mrs. Luella Brickman, Belleville; Mrs. Gladys McFaul, Lakeside.

MANY VISITORS

They were happy to welcome the presiding matrons of Quinte, Trenton and Colborne; the presiding patrons from Minerva, Quinte and Colborne. The past matrons and past patrons, visitors and members from Minerva, Belleville, Quinte, Trenton, Cobourg, St. Catharines, Picton, Toronto, Port Hope, Napanee and Lakeside were warmly welcomed.

REPORTS GIVEN

The centennial dinner report was capably given by the convener, Mrs. Doris McFaul, P.M. It was a successful event. Mrs. Alice Wait, P.M., gave the trustees' report. Miss Helen Green, P.M., gave the auditors' report. All told of a busy and profitable year for the Chapter. The first euchre and bridge party will be held in the Masonic Hall Tuesday evening, Dec. 8. The annual Christmas holiday dance is planned for Tuesday evening, Dec. 29. Hugo Diggins' orchestra will provide the music.

INSTALLING OFFICERS

The installing officers were: Mrs. Gladys McFaul, PDDGM; Mr. Frank Brimley, PP Marshal; Mrs. Ruby Fleming, PDDGM; honorary secretary, Mrs. Florence Dick, PM; honorary chaplain, Mrs. Jean Way, PM; honorary organist, Mrs. Olga Evans; honorary warder, Mrs. Violet Marvin, PM; honorary sentinel, Mr. Clare Campbell, P.P.; floral marshal, Mrs. Doris McFaul, PM; assisted by Mrs. Isobel Davern, PM; Mr. Gerald Gibson, PP; Miss Helen Green, PM; Mrs. Alice Wait, PM; Mrs. Lottie Gibson, PM; Mrs. Susie Down, PM; Mrs. Olive Channell, PM; Mrs. Velma Matthews, PM; Mrs. Norma Norton, PM; Mr. Allan Anderson, PP.

Two lovely duets, which added to the harmony of the evening were sung by Mrs. Doris McFaul, P.M., and Mrs. Edith Fox. Those taking part in the ceremony and the new officers were wearing yellow and green corsages ,the colors of the new worthy matron.

NEW OFFICERS

The officers installed were: worthy matron, Mrs. Ruth Boyle; worthy patron, Mr. Marc Pope; associate matron, Mrs. Reta Parks; associate patron, Mr. Ross Benway; secretary, Mrs. Ida McFaul, P.M.; treasurer, Mrs. Henrietta Archard, P.M.; conductress, Mrs. Irene Trumpour; associate conductress, Mrs. Lorena Best; chaplain, Mrs. Jean Hyatt; marshal, Mrs. Agnes Adams; organist, Mrs. Anna Foster; Adah, Mrs. Julia Benvie; Ruth, Mrs. Alice Pope; Esther, Mrs. Vera Gibson; Martha, Mrs. Mary Taylor; Electa, Mrs. Mona Morris; warder, Mrs. Naomi Weese; sentinel, Mr. John Wait.

The newly installed worthy matron, wearing a wrist corsage of yellow roses from her daughter, Constance was thrilled to hear, read by the secretary, a cablegram of congratulations from her friend, also a member, Mrs. Edna Salisbury, from Pakistan. She graciously thanked her installing officers and everyone who had helped to make her installation such a perfect one. She asked for continued support of the members of Lakeside.

The newly installed worthy patron also thanked the chapter for the trust and high honor conferred on him. Several of the installing board voiced their congratulations to the newly installed officers.

PRESENT JEWELS

It seemed most appropriate that Mr. Frank Brimley, P.P., present his wife, Mrs. Dorothy Brimley, with her past matron's jewel; also that Mrs. Reta Parks, associate matron, present her husband, Gordon Parks, with his past patron's jewel.

They both excelled in the East. They each graciously thanked the chapter for their jewels.

Mrs. Ruby Fleming, PDDGM, drew the ticket for the beautiful afghan, made and donated by Miss Helen Green, PM. The lucky winner was Mr. C. Hambly of Picton.

A delicious lunch, served by the November lunch committee, assisted by several members, brought to a close another memorable evening in Lakeside Chapter.

Roast Pork Is Marinated

By MARY MOORE

Mr. McIntosh is my butcher. On Saturday morning he caught sight of me shopping and came over smiling and handed me a choice lean boneless loin of pork. "Mrs. Moore, how's this for 59c per lb ?" I took it from his hands and put it into my cart and on the spot changed my menu plans for Sunday dinner.

I had been longing to do something different and really nifty with a roast of fresh pork, mainly because I like it. It is delicious cold and the government market report told us it would be in good supply and prices lower.

Girls who have spits in their ovens for rotisserie roasting can impale this roast on their spits and roast it 3 to 3½ hours or until internal temperature is 185 deg. Fahr. As you know, pork must never be rare. It always must be well done.

MARINATED PORK ROAST (to serve 8 to 10)

4 or 5-lb. lean loin of pork, boned, or fresh picnic (shoulder) boned and tied, ½ cup fresh lemon juice, 1 tablespoon grated lemon rind, 2 tablespoons salad oil, 2 tablespoons light brown sugar, 1 teaspoon powdered thyme, 1 clove garlic, chopped.

Place pork roast in deep pan. Mix all remaining ingredients and pour them over the meat, rubbing some into surfaces. Refrigerate several hours or overnight. Turn roast in this marinade several times. (One reader said she set the alarm at 3.00 a.m. and turned on the light, turned over the roast and went back to bed. Of course, you don't have to do this if you marinate it overnight.)

Put pork roast on rack in roaster, brush liberally with marinade and roast uncovered for 10 minutes at 500 deg Fahr., then reduce heat to 300 deg. Fahr. and roast 3½ hours, basting frequently with marinade.)

Roast on spit, in rotisserie oven—see above—basting frequently with Marinade. Transfer to preheated serving platter. If desired, skim excess fat from juices in the pan, then heat up pan juices and pour over roast on platter, or into saucebost to serve at the table. You could garnish this roast with heated canned spiced crabapple or serve with Fried Apple Rings (see below). Good vegetable accompaniments are baked potatoes and broccoli or Brussels sprouts or green beans.

WEDNESDAY

(Gazette)

Smothered Chicken (see Monday); Mashed Potatoes; Fresh Frozen Green Peas; Tossed Greens with French Dressing; Lemon Sherbet; Pecan Squares (see Tuesday); Coffee.

ROSY FRIED APPLE RINGS

Core 3 or 4 firm tart-appies. Do not peel them. Cut into ¾" rings. Simmer in small amount of water for 2 or 3 minutes to barely start softening them. Don't overcook. In a shallow pan make a rosy syrup of 1 cup water and 1 cup sugar and ½ teaspoon red food coloring. When it is boiling, carefully transfer parboiled apple rings to it with slotted lifter. Cook gently until barely tender. If you overcook them they will break. Spoon syrup over them constantly until they are barely tender and pink tinged. Lovely with many pork dishes.

Plans Laid By B.M.H.A. Auxiliary

A meeting of the executive committee of the newly formed Women's Auxiliary to the Belleville Minor Hockey Association held in the Memorial Arena last evening saw additional members of the executive appointed. Besides the president, Mrs. Grant Silcks, who conducted the meeting, the others appointed were Mrs. Ed Adamson, vice-president, and Mrs. Tom Jury as secretary treasurer.

During a discussion it was decided that rather than send out forms as had previously been suggested that every member of a boy playing in the Belleville Minor Hockey Association should be contacted by telephone in regard to joining the organization. In this respect various names were selected from each of the divisions to act as directors with each having a group of names to call.

It was also suggested that a 50-cent membership fee would be sufficient in covering minimum expenses in getting the organization off the ground and to help in preparation for the novice tournament which is scheduled for Boxing Day.

U.C.W. Meeting

U.C.W. AFTERNOON GROUP

THOMASBURG — The November meeting of the Thomasburg U.C.W. Afternoon Group was held at the home of Mrs. Evelyn Morton last Thursday afternoon with 14 present. Mrs. Mabel Prindle, president, was in charge and Mrs. Marion Morton conducted the devotional period using the theme "Christmas." A chapter from the study book was also reviewed. Mrs. B. Carter gave the Christmas story.

Mrs. Edna Grills was program convener during which time readings were given by Mrs. Jessie Morton, Mrs. Carrie Adams and Mrs. Edna Grills.

A number of items were discussed during the business session and it was decided that the next meeting will be held on December 9 at the home of Mrs. B. Carter of Tweed and will take the form of a Christmas party.

A dainty lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants and a social half hour was enjoyed.

DRINK WAS DYE

Tea was originally used in ancient China for its medicinal qualities and for dyeing cloth.

Ann Landers

Consistent Lateness Is Rude and Very Selfish

DEAR ANN LANDERS — It appears to be the style, in at least some circles, to be consistently late to parties, church, sports events — everything. In most instances it does not seem to matter an iota. Theatre curtains are held, sermons delayed, the soup is kept warm until the slowpokes arrive on the scene thus penalizing the considerate and the punctual.

ANN LANDERS

Am I wrong to feel it is rude and egotistical to be late unless there is an extremely good reason? Kindly comment on this. Also, if you have a "cure" for the snails I'd like to hear it. — J.C.F.

DEAR J.C.F. — It is egotistical and rude to arrive late unless an emergency caused the delay. The thoroughly disorganized and thoughtless (and neurotic) are beyond hope. But most folks will get there on time if courageous people refuse to cater to the tardy at the expense of the punctual.

* * *

Do you lean on cigarettes as a social crutch? You may regret it later. Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-Age Smoking," enclosing with your request 15c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Wife Preservers

Rub beefy, salted spots on slipcovers with thick suds, let stand 10 minutes and wash one large or two small pieces per machine load.

Legion News

The nominations for the 1965 officers took place and the nominating committee will contact the nominees before the next meeting.

The December meeting will be a Christmas party. The annual children's Christmas party will be held on December 9th with Auxiliary members assisting the Branch.

Following the meeting, cards, a sing-song and social evening were enjoyed.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

Even the friendliest baby may suddenly turn shy at the sight of a relative or friend whom he's cheerfully accepted before. One reason for this shyness may be the fact that baby has come to realize that other people are different from mother. Baby knows he can count on you . . . he's not sure about the others. Suggested helps:

- Let baby study visitors from the "protective custody" of your arms. A favourite hold-toy will provide added security.

- If you tell cuddle-loving friends to hold off 'til baby makes his own advances, chances are he'll socialize sooner.

Shy babies or sociable ones . . . lap-sitters or high chair heroes . . . all like flavour surprises from time to time. Newest Gerber offerings:

Cereal 'n' fruit in jars! Yes, now, in addition to baby's regular Gerber Cereals he can enjoy moist cereals and fruit in convenient, re-usable glass jars. Gerber Rice Cereal, Oatmeal, Mixed Cereal and Protein Cereal — all with Applesauce and Bananas — are just the things for a happy change of taste. Each cereal is cooked with the fruit for delightful flavours and smooth-as-smooth-can-be texture. Serve just "as is" or add a bit of milk for increased nutritive benefits.

* * *

"Play with your baby," say the child specialists. Aside from the fun of participation, 2-way games help teach baby the 3 big C's: concentration, co-ordination, co-operation. If baby learns to play with you, he's less apt to be shy when others want to play with him.

* * *

Have you treated baby to a Gerber Strained Dinner lately? Like Chicken Noodle Dinner, Vegetables with Turkey or Beef and Egg Noodles with Vegetables? Just 3 out of 15 tasteful combination foods prepared to please your baby and perk up his menus. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Lipson's STORES LIMITED (1958)

NEVER UNDERSOLD!

Mrs. Miriam Pringle,
30 Southwood Crescent, Belleville – says:

"I MADE A REAL DISCOVERY. LOCAL FOOD PRICES DIFFER GREATLY. I SAVED $3.38 ON AN AVERAGE TWO WEEK SHOPPING ORDER AT RITE-WAY FOOD CITY OVER THE STORE I USUALLY SHOP."

Mrs. Pringle's savings based on a 52 week shopping pattern in Rite-Way Food City would be equivalent to almost three weeks of FREE SHOPPING.

Mrs. Pringle shopped Rite-Way Food City and another large local food store the same day. She was selected at random and received no reward beyond being given the foods bought at the store where she shopped regularly.

MRS. PRINGLE continues

"Like most housewives I guess I read the weekly food ads and get a little confused by them. Everybody seems to claim 'lowest prices'. I really had my eyes opened when I paid $58.18 for an average two week order at my regular supermarket and only $54.80 for the identical order at Rite-Way Food City. I matched brand for brand, quality for quality. I'm a Rite-Way Food City booster from now on".

Exceptional food savings are available every day of the week at Rite-Way Food City over 6000 quality items discounted! Monday thru Saturday

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 2, 1964

Little Interest Shown As Candidates Give Views

The crowd was poor but honest last night as city council candidates took their public bows - - at Corby public library auditorium.

While it gave the office bidders an honest hearing, so tiny a crowd turned out it was barely recognizable as a public meeting.

The atmosphere was polite beyond question - - in fact not a single question was put any of the candidates from the floor. For those seeking controversy silence was probably the safest attitude, anyway. The candidates and their acquaintances outnumbered outsiders in the auditorium by 2-to-1!

Ironically, also, it was a man not seeking office who dealt strictly in controversies.

Mayor Jack Ellis rolled the broadcast meeting over the starting line by discussing the forthcoming plebiscites on proposed abolition of the parks board and reduction of council to 10 aldermen and mayor.

If the referendum approved the smaller council, Mayor Ellis promised immediate action next year.

He said he would ask council to pass a bylaw rescinding the terms of incumbents and sending candidates before the electorate for a two-year term starting in 1966.

The proposal to reduce council was part of "an overall scheme to streamline city administration," said the mayor.

The next step would be to reduce the amount of committee work, so that no alderman would have to serve on more than two committees.

HIGHER EFFICIENCY AIM

Municipal councils in Ontario "with budgets 10 times as large operate very effectively with six-man councils," said the mayor.

Abolition of the parks board with its administrative capacity being absorbed into city hall, also was aimed at higher efficiency.

"Only if management of our parks is returned to city hall can we expect this increase of efficiency," Mayor Ellis added.

The first council candidate, Alderman Jack Allin, agreed with one of the proposals, but denied the truth of the other.

"I am opposed to the reduction in representation," he said. "I think you can get too small a representation and you could run into this sort of situation where . . . five or six aldermen meet over coffee and do the city business in the coffee shops."

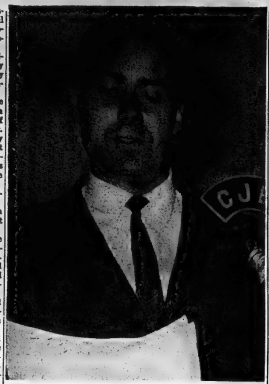
He preferred a return to the ward system with each ward electing two aldermen.

Ald. Allin thought the mayor correct in seeking abolition of the parks board, and returning it to city hall. Council already "has delegated too much authority to other boards and commissions."

ALD. BROWN

Ald. George Brown advised caution before the public made up its mind on an 11-man council.

"I think you should have had more time to review this situation," he said. "More time should have been taken to discuss it with the public.



However, he felt 14 aldermen was a proper number necessary to formulate city policies. Even with that number of councillors at present, absenteeism through illness and other causes reduced attendances.

He queried the city approach to industrial promotion and wondered if it was not wasting effort on "pinch-penny" policies in its efforts.

He called for more foresight in overall city planning.

T. A. CARRUTHERS

Businessman T. A. Carruthers also talked industry—but intimated he personally had just scored a triumph for the city.

"As a private individual I've been working on locating in Belleville of a new industry which will employ about fifty people."

Mr. Carruthers would not elaborate. However, he claimed he had been assured the enterprise would start early next week.

G. F. CUNNINGHAM

"I would like to go on record as being in favor. I thoroughly believe that a smaller city council would make for a more efficient operation and would possibly restore what we first intended in this city—under the city manager system.

He noted his record as a local labor figure and president of United Appeal, pointing out council representation should be as broad as possible.

ALDERMAN DAVID

Ald. Ernie David also upheld the council plebiscite.

"I believe in the council-manager form of administration. I believe a smaller council would be more effective if you vote for it."

The councillor also laid stress on the importance of instituting low-rental housing for senior citizens and lower income families and for a county health unit with increased government grants to the city.

Also "there is a need in this area for a post-secondary trade school to serve Belleville and Hastings county," the alderman reminded his listeners.

Perhaps the briefest speech of the evening was made by Alderman John Deacon. It lasted little more than a minute and, just as he appeared finishing his introductory remarks he concluded and sat down.

However, in the seconds he was on his feet, the councillor recollected his business and municipal background and opined that a candidate mandatorily must be a man of "experience" used to handling money and with the time to devote thoroughly to city affairs.

ALD. HARRISON

Alderman Eugene Harrison touched on a third plebiscite question which has drawn no publicity so far in the campaign—fluoridation. He supported the proposal as a "definite health aid to the dental health of our children with no proven ill effects."

He supported abolition of the parks board but opposed a smaller city council.

"I believe in the ward system. In the present council we only have three aldermen representing the area west of the Moira River."

He also called for a new bridge over the river at College Street to "replace the antiquated structure now there."

THOOMAS LALLY

Barrister Tom Lally said the city faced many problems.

"However, I believe the most important problem is how the city of Belleville is going to meet the cost of new services."

He realized "that the time is now" for many expenditures.

But, within the framework of reasonable expenditures every project should be thoughtfully reviewed.

"I have no criticism of the mayor or present council. It is all too easy to criticize when you have no responsibility for what has been done."

However, in one instance he was sharply critical. City crosswalks, he charged, were "dangerous" and should be replaced by the pedestrian crossing system adopted by Toronto.

ALD. MURRAY

Ald. Frank Murray, a member of the industrial commission, said the past year had seen the first big step toward tackling the city's industrial problems.

"I can assure you that our industrial commission is on the march. The first stage of development has been of necessity slow and difficult, but the foundation is now secure, the program is aggressive and we know where we're going."

"This past year too, has seen the development of a long-range plan for the development of our parks. We have a capable new parks superintendent, we have had an aggressive parks board that has worked hard long hours. Again there is much to be done — but again our parks program is on the march."

Ald. Murray also hoped for a continued extension of library services across the city.

J. E. McKINNEY

"We must avoid having to take stop-gap methods in future," he said, noting that Belleville's population is estimated at 50,000 by 1980.

"If we plan now and take the appropriate measures now, we will know that our tax structure in the future will be fixed."

City business needed "positive and sincere" action, said Mr. McKinney.

"We need experience, but we also need young men of courage and conviction . . . young men of action."

KEN SODEN

He said it was an accepted fact that a community with out attractive community and family recreation facilities can not attract modern industry.

And while discussing the topic he commented on "the sad deet revelation" this year between "our community-owned arena and our minor hockey."

Minor hockey leagues now are being charged $10 an hour to rent the ice, and participation costs for each child has now

Living in Luxury's Lap 5 Floors Up

Belleville Towers brings big-city apartment convenience to Belleville with a half-dozen or more features long accepted as standard in luxury buildings in major centres, but new to this area.

Most obvious is the automatic elevator, serving all five floors and the basement. No other apartment building in town has one, although in fairness to the other apartments it must be added that the other buildings don't need one so much. Belleville Towers is one of the highest buildings in the city.

Approach to the building is on a semi-circular drive off George street, lighted at each end by old-fashioned gas lamps for pedestrians. Inside the front door, the foyer has a mailbox for each apartment, and an intercommunications system from each living unit to the foyer. The door from the foyer to the lobby is always locked, for the protection of tenants. It can be opened from the outside by a key, or by push buttons in each apartment. The normal procedure for a visitor would be to use the intercom to speak to the people he wishes to see, then wait for them to push the button opening the door.

The lobby, complete with easy chairs and velvet-finish wallpaper, gives access to the elevator and, through doors at each side, to ground floor apartments. There are eight apartments on each of the five above-ground floors, for a total of ten two-bedroom, 28 one-bedroom and two batchelor apartments.

Each apartment is fitted with more than enough closets for the average family, intercom system to the foyer and a button to unlock the lobby door, linen curtains for the full-width windows and (except at ground level) a door leading to a private balcony. View from the top floor apartments is one of the best in town, including parts of the bay at this time of year. The building has a master TV antenna system and outlets for the antenna in all apartments.

Bathrooms in all apartments include colored fixtures, circular washbasins set into vanities, and showers in each bathtub. Kitchens are fitted with modern stoves and refrigerators, and all have outside windows. All apartments have parquet floors.

General features of the building include broadloom in all above-ground hallways, automatic lighting in the halls (one set of lights is on all the time, the others are turned on at night by time switches), fire-fighting equipment and fire alarm boxes at each end (even though the building is of fire resistant concrete and steel construction). Chutes drop garbage to an incinerator in the basement. Forced - air ventilation keeps air fresh in the hallways.

The finished basement includes a furnace room, equipped with four gas-burning hot water furnaces, controlled by three outside thermometers, which turn the first furnace on when outside temperatures drop below 70 degrees and others as the weather gets colder. There are two large gas-fired hot water heaters and the garbage incinerator. Down the hall is a sealed off hydro transformer room and a power control room for the building. For the tenants' use, the basement includes a small laundromat, complete with drying facilities and washroom), and a locker room with one locker for each apartment.

Outside, a paved parking lot provides car space for tenants and, a feature uncommon even in Toronto, electrical outlets at each parking stall. The outlets are for tenants who use engine heaters in the winter, but they would also be of use to anyone using an electric polisher on his car, or using a vacuum cleaner inside a car.

With all the advantages of the building itself, Belleville Towers offers something more in its location, at Victoria Ave. and George St. In a pleasant residential district away from heavy traffic, the building is just four blocks from downtown shopping, and within a few blocks of the major highway routes.

Belleville's newest and smartest hi-rise apartment house "Belleville Towers" — corner of Victoria Ave. and George Street — displays model suite.

SPORTS

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By CEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Is Canada's famous annual sports extravaganza, the Grey Cup, headed for the skids?

Is the big spectacular with its whoop-de-do, color, parades, pretty girls, bands, music, dinners and other circus-like celebrative embellishments, on the way out?

Has the Big Binge and its post-game bicarbooate burps had the course?

Is the famous football classic that decides the nation's professional gridiron championship heading back towards its original when some 3,500 yawned through a Kozodale-Uuniversity of Toronto game?

Post-game newspaper reports and private opinions of the 1964 Hamilton Tiger Cats-B. C. Lions feud indicate that it is.

Toronto taxicab drivers, whose fingers are always on the pulse of "what's going on," state the Grey Cup is "not dying—it is dead."

In other yeilrs, the Jehus of the midnight-to-dawn shift dashed across the city, loading and unloading unsteady fares at various outlets of entertainment.

Early last Sunday morning when an unheard-of pall of near-silence had settled over Toronto, they sat in the cab queues waiting for fares that never showed up.

The week-long celebrants who had whooped it up in in hotel, motel, the bars and the bistros; who saw the best parade in years; the most spectacular half-time show in cup history, then with tears or cheers witnessed the Lions' slaughter the Cats, had folded their figurative tents and slipped silently away into the night.

Somewhat reminiscent of former Grey Cup hoop-la was the Friday night celebrations in down-town Toronto, but even with its mob-scene appearance, there was something lacking from the days of 1950—and especially 1948, the birth of Grey Cup hysteria when Calgary cowpokes and cowgals square-danced on downtown streets until the milk trucks barged through.

But the victory celebration was not even a reasonable facsimile of the post-game roistering of other years.

This perhaps was partly due to the fact the western fans did not show up in accustomed numbers. It was estimated no more than 1,500 were there from Vancouver, while buffs from other western centres apparently preferred the comfy cozy of the living room and the television private eye.

Or perhaps the fortunes of football war had something to do with the sudden exodus of the cuppers. A Toronto columnist reported that the greater majority of Hamilton fans "slipped home quickly with their tails between their legs." The Jungle City itself was a disappointed cemetery with lights.

The impact of the defeat of their beloved Tiger Cats was terrific. Pre-game press media ballyhoo and the opinions of the experts had brought the Bengal supporters to the mental point where victory and the cup was more or less a foregone conclusion.

But the defeat of the eastern champions did not compare to the beating taken by the cash registers of the Queen City cup caterers. The comparative sprinkling of western fans and the proximity of Hamilton were factors in what is said to be a sharp financial nosedive.

Apparently the "in-and-out" supermarkets did a thirst-quenching business as did other outlets of the cheers meisture. But apart from the usual whoop-de-do there was little difference "drunk-wise" from an ordinary Saturday night in Toronto, the police state.

And with the somewhat sudden exodus of celebrants immediately after the game, there was no estimate as to who won the bircarbonate, seltzer twins, aspirin and bufferin stakes.

Clubs Meet 'Cut' Deadline * * * * * Moore Sits Ou

Chicago Sends Dennis Hull To CPL

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Henri Richard has passed three scoring milestones in his nine-year National Hockey League career, but he only has two souvenir pucks to prove it.

The rugged Montreal Canadiens centre first dived into the net for a rubber trophy in 1955 when he scored his first NHL goal. Last Saturday night, he took possession of the puck that signified his 200th.

But he hasn't got a souvenir of his 100th goal because, unlike his initial tally, it's a trifle tainted.

"The first one was in the Forum against Gump Worsley of the Rangers in my fifth NHL game and it was the winning goal," Richard recalls, almost embarrassed to be talking of his own exploits.

"I've got the puck for that one but didn't even ask for it after my 100th goal. It was into an empty net in the last minute at Detroit.

EXAMPLE OF PRIDE

Richard's reluctance to retrieve the puck is an example of his pride and determination to make the grade on his own. It would have been easy to cash in on the fame of his brother Maurice, but he doesn't want anything he hasn't earned.

Just a few seasons ago, Pocket Rocket had an undistinguished first - half, but was named to the NHL All-Star team. He didn't hide his surprise.

"You fellows must be crazy," he told a couple of sports writers who apparently voted for him. "I haven't been playing well and I know it."

He hasn't had a happy start this season either although through no fault of his own. A serious groin injury has limited his playing time to less than four games, but he still has two goals and two assists.

Back in full stride last weekend, Richard was the spearhead as the Canadiens won games against Boston and New York to snap a four-game winless streak.

"It's still sore but I feel strong," he explained. "May be I'm ready again."

Only one game is scheduled in the NHL tonight. Chicago Black Hawks meet the Rangers in New York. A victory would put the Hawks back in contention while a win for the Rangers would give them third place.

REDUCE LINEUPS

The teams began reducing their lineups Tuesday to conform with the Dec. 1 limit of 18 players and two goalies. A few teams have decided to carry an extra player or two, while only dressing the maximum number allowed.

DENNIS HULL

Toronto, two over the limit, will sit out Dickie Moore. The other extra man is Frank Mahovlich, who skated with the team Tuesday, announced he felt great, but returned to hospital for further treatment.

"Moore is giving it a great try but he's not ready yet," explained coach Punch Imlach. "He's coming along fine but it will take a few more weeks before he will be available for full-time duty."

Montreal has already shipped out Ron Ellis to the Central Pro League and must cut another. The guessing is that either Bill Hicke or Jim Roberts will go, and most likely Hicke.

The arm injury to Bobby Leiter, which could keep him out for two months, automatically cut Boston Bruins roster down to the limit. The Hawks shipped Dennis Hull to the Central Pro League, but he'll probably be back in Chicago shortly unless the Hawks are prepared to lose him on waivers.

The Rangers announced they will carry a 17th player, but dress only 16. Detroit Red Wings already are down to the limit.

Vancouver Shades Seattle

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver Canucks scored two second period goals and then held off a determined Seattle Totem attack to take a close 2-1 victory in Western Hockey League action before 2,744 fans Tuesday night.

The win moved the Canucks into a second-place tie with Portland Buckaroos in league standings, both with 26 points—five points off Seattle's league-leading pace.

"Wharf Street" To Honor John Lewis

The "Fearless Fosdicks" of the waterfront will honor a "native son" tonight.

They will present John Lewis, Canada's middle-heavy weightlifting champion and Olympics representative with an engraved plaque.

The plaque is presented in recognition of Lewis' outstanding achievement in the field of weightlifting in Canada, South America and Tokyo.

Lewis will be accompanied by his coach, Ken Carr-Brainf.

The national champion, it is understood, was born in the shadow of the Wharf St. Club and lived there many years before moving to his present home.

The presentation over, the clubmen—and guests — will resume their tonsillar shooting with incumbents and aspirants to the seats of the municipal mighty the targets.

Major Baseball

Trade Winds Blow Many Rumors

HOUSTON (CP) — Baseball's ranking intellects have received the unanimous opinion of what constitutes a legal catcher's mitt. While nothing is likely to overshadow the celebration that will surely follow, there is still some curiosity about where Frank Howard and Bo Belinsky, among others, will be playing baseball meetings.

Howard, Los Angeles Dodgers' six - foot - seven out'elder, will be traded to Houston Colts for third baseman Bob Aspromonte and pitcher Ken Johnson, or to Milwaukee Braves for third baseman Ed Mathews, or to Kansas City Athletics for outfielder Rocky Colavito.

Belinsky, Los Angeles Angels' calamity-prone leithander, will be traded for one or more Philadelphia Phillies.

There was also a rumor Tuesday that San Francisco Giants would trade pitchers Bob Shaw and Billy O'Dell to New York Yankees for catcher-outfielder John Blanchard. But that one was vigorously denied by both clubs.

About the catcher's mitt:

The playing rules committee outlaws the Big Berthas used to catch some knuckleball pitchers. The committee decided the mitt may be no more than 38 inches in circumference.

A conventional mitt is 33 to 34 inches. The Big Berthas, described by committee chairman Charles Segar as "burlesque gloves," are up to 45 inches.

Kingston Defeats Bees 14-8

The loss left Belleville with a record of three wins and two losses, with both defeats coming in away games.

Belleville's next start will be at home here Friday against the Cananoque Islanders, at 9.00 p.m. The game is a special "children's night" affair, with a live pony going to some ticket-holder.

No score sheet was available from last night's game in Kingston.

Whip Woodstock, Oakville
Guelph, Galt Still Tied

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Guelph Regals and Galt Hornets remained tied for first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior League, taking wins over Woodstock Athletics 9-3 and Oakville Oaks 6-4 Tuesday night.

Guelph and Galt have 22 points, Woodstock 16 and Oakville 12. Welland Blacks remain in the cellar with six points.

Joe Male was high scorer for the Regals, with three goals; two of them 40 seconds apart late in the third period. George Usitalo, Gerry Harrigan, Butch Keeling, Pete Battisti, Bob Pole and Dave Lockuk shared the other Guelph goals.

Ron Ryan, Bernie Lawrence and Toby Black tallied for Woodstock.

In the other game, Joe Hogan, Carl Hall, Pete Kowalchuk and Earl Balfour scored for Galt in a wide-open first period while Bob Hall and Ron Smith fired in the other goals in the second and third periods.

DIAMONDS FIRST FOUND

Diamonds were first found in South Africa in the Orange River in 1867 and this soon led to the discovery at Kimberley, later a world diamond centre.

DUNFERMLINE WINS

STUTTGART, West Germa (Reuters) — Dunfermline Athlesle of the Scottish League survived a penalty Tuesday night to hold Stuttgart to a scoreless tie which put it into the third round of the inter-cities Fairs' Soccer Cup. Dunfermline won the first leg 1-0 in Scotland last month, to finish one goal ahead on aggregate.

Skrien Has Woes

No Recruits

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dave Skrien, coach of the Grey Cup champion B.C. Lions, has got troubles—recruiting troubles.

"I don't know what to do or where to go," he said in an interview Tuesday. "We were late in starting with our plans. (for 1965)....Never been this late before.

He was referring to the fact that lateness in getting started on plans for the 1965 version of the Lions was due to their 34-24 victory over Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the Grey Cup final at Toronto last Saturday, the first national title in the team's 11-year history.

There will be no public reception here for the Lions. Eleven of the team aren't even here. Tom Brown, Steve Cotter,

DAVE SKRIEN

Ken Ungarman went home to Spokane. Norm Fieldgate is in Regina. Ron Morris is in Tulsa and Emery Barns is in New York. With so many of the team absent, plans for a civic reception were dropped.

Sometime before Skrien and his assistants Jim Champion and Frank Johnston go recruiting, they should know the future plans of By Bailey, an 11-year veteran with the team. Bailey, who indicated he may give up football to concentrate more on his job, may make up his mind by the we-kend.

Assistant coach Champion may go too. He has made it plain he is open for offers from

O'Brien, Berger

Seek Rough Riders Franchise

OTTAWA (CP)—Two of the seven men who own the Ottawa Rough Riders football club were reported Tuesday to be seeking control of the Eastern Football Conference entry.

J. Barry O'Brien, club president for the last six years, confirmed that he and Sam Berger are bidding to take over the Riders, whose league franchise is estimated to be worth between $400,000 and $500,000.

Seven directors now hold equal shares in the football club. The other five are Bill McEwan, E. D. (Eddie) Emerson, J. P. McCaffrey, R. G. Thomson and Dr. C. E. Valin.

O'Brien said he and Berger will buy out all the other shareholders if they are agreeable. Otherwise they would offer to buy out two of them to secure controlling interest.

He said the club "has become too big to operate as a hobby, with a rotating slate of officers and other unbusinesslike methods."

Palmer, Nicklaus Paired In Canada Cup

KAANAPALI, Maui, Hawaii (AP)—Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus are partners in the Canada Cup International golf matches, starting here Thursday, but they'll be watching each other like a pair of jealous jungle cats.

They are teamed against 33 other handpicked t w o s o m e s from throughout the world, but each is on his own in the fight for the individual international trophy.

It's another plum—the last of the long and hard-fought years—to be plucked in a two-man battle for world golf honors.

"Jack and I are teammates and the main thing we are interested in is winning the Canada Cup for the United States," said the muscled, 34-year-old Palmer, who checked in Tuesday.

This is his fourth try at it. Although he for years has been rated golf's No. 1 player, he has never won it.

Among early arrivals, most impressive have been the Australians, Canadians and Chi Chi Rodriguez, the 125-pound Puerto Rican. The slender Chi Chi had 65 in practice Monday.

Bruce Crampton of Australia, teaming with Bruce Devlin, said he believes the Australians have a good chance of beating the Americans. Similar confidence was voiced by Al Balding of Toronto.

George Knudson (Balding's partner) is playing better than I've ever seen him," the Canadian said. "And I am on my stick too."

Minor Hockey

In scheduled Belleville Minor Hockey Association action here last night, games were played in the novice, midget and juvenile divisions.

NOVICE

Teepees won a 5-2 decision over the Hawks. Wallace Dalnard scored two of the winners' goals with singletons going to John Venuttl. Timothy Marta and Paul Williams, John Lecker and Allan Pearce were the Hawk marksmen.

Maroons defeated the Generals by a 6-4 count. Warren Day sparked the winners with a three-goal effort. Singletons went to Bruce Sheppard, Stephen Kirby and Larry Kirby. Kevin Jourdea starred in defeat with three goals. Danny Hoxford fired the other marker.

Bruins edged the Barons in a tight 4-3 tilt. Dave Flesch trigered two Bruin goals with John Schwager and Allan Wood getting the others. Mike Watt notched a pair for the Barons and Joseph Muldoon had the other one.

MIDGET

Leafs nipped the Elks Black Hawks 6-5. R. Ellis paced the Leafs by scoring two goals. The others were scored by W. Storms, G. Payne, B. LaRue and R. Geen. Storms also earned two assists, R. Rosebush, LaRue and Payne one apiece. T. Wellesley fired three Hawk markers and T. Herrington got the other pair. J. Cole had two assists, M. Hanley and J. Beatty one each.

Wings and Canadiens tied 3-3. T. Dorno, R. MacDonald and H. Bawden were the Canadiens' marksmen. P. Goyer, S. Lee and A. Lupinetti had assists. W. Muir, J. Hill and K. Allen scored for the Wings. K. Lang had two helpers, E. Hanoski and R. Fuller one apiece.

JUVENILE

Tigers blanked the O.S.D Wolves 3-0. B. Smith, R. Bartley and B. Purvey potted one goal each. T. Willis and D. Olsen had the only assists.

Gordie Howe's Hockey

By GORDIE HOWE

Horse racing fans will recall Jamie K as the unsuccessful Kentucky Derby candidate several years ago belonging to Jim Norris, Chicago Black Hawks' owner. Actually the horse is named after his nephew, Jamie Kneibler, who now is playing hockey for the Lake Forest (Ill.) Academy team.

Jamie is 6-feet-3. He attended the Red Wings' hockey school last summer. Like many young players, he had a weak shot.

He frequently made the error of hitting the puck too far out on the blade, causing the stick to turn in his hand, opening the blade.

I taught him to hit the puck closer to the shaft of the stick. And I had him follow through with the stick on his shots until the toe of the blade pointed at the target.

I told him to start turning his wrists at impact. This helps offset and slippage. And the follow through gives direction, develops accuracy.

To demonstrate the importance of both hands in the shot, I'd grasp the stick halfway down the shaft with my right hand. I'd shoot the puck with one hand, even lifting it as high as the glass. The right hand, I pointed out governs direction.

Then I held onto the stick firmly with the right hand low, and the blade against the puck. I took the left hand away from the top of the stick. Then I'd grasp the stick hard with the left hand with a thrusting motion and the puck would sail down the ice.

The left hand, I pointed out, furnishes most of the thrust in the shot. Get both hands working together, closing the face and pointing at your target on the follow through, either high or low.

When you shoot, if you follow through low, that's where the puck is going. Bring it up waist high and that's where the puck is going. Jamie improved his shot so that he scored a couple of goals from the blue line before camp was out.

Pastrano Fighter Of Year

NEW YORK (A) - Light heavyweight champion Willie Pastrano, the boxing master from Miami, was named Tuesday by the Boxing Writers Association since he 1964 winner of the Edward J. Neil Award as fighter of the year.

It was Pastrano's second defence since he dethroned Sonny Liston in a 15-rounder at Las Vegas, Nev., 18 months ago.

The trophy is named in honor of the former Associated Press sports writer who was killed while reporting the Spanish Civil War. It is awarded not only for boxing ability but for character and sportsmanship.

Defeat Generals 8-6
Marlies Unbeaten In 10

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Marlboro fans who mourned the loss of Rod Selling and Ron Ellis to the National Hockey League last spring must be getting some of their faith restored in last year's Memorial Cup champions.

After a mediocre start this season, Marlboros stretched their unbeaten streak to 10 games Tuesday night as they fought back to defeat Oshawa Generals 8-6 in an Ontario Hockey Association game in Oshawa.

Peterborough Petes downed Kitchener Rangers 7-4 in the only other game Tuesday. Toronto's win gave them 21 points to move six ahead of idle Niagara Falls Flyers. Peterborough climbed into a third-place tie with Oshawa at 22 points apiece.

Paul Laurent paced Marlboros with three goals while Brit Selby and defenceman Jack Chipchase netted two apiece. Mike Corriveau fired the other Toronto marker. Three third period goals were unanswered by Oshawa.

Aces Nip Bisons 3 - 2

Mortson's winner at 9:30 of the 10-minute extra period bailed out the Aces after they blew a two-goal lead in the third period when Buffalo scored twice, the tying goal coming with 33 seconds left in regulation time.

Mortson opened the scoring and Leon Rochefort added another as the Aces pumped 22 shots at Bisons goalie Denis Dejordy in the second period. He was forced to stop 18 in the first frame.

Buffalo rallied on Billy Dea's goal at 7:34 of the third and Barry Cullen's equalizer at 19:17, while Wayne Hicks of Quebec was in the penalty box.

The victory, before 9,009 Quebec fans, extended the Aces lead in the AHL's eastern division to six points over idle Hershey Bears.

DeJordy, although beaten three times, kept the Bisons in the game with 41 saves. Quebec goalie Gump Worsley had 22 shots.

Griffith Stops Charnley

LONDON (AP) — Welterweight champion Emile Griffith heads for New York today with another easy victory over a Briton, another fat purse and a minor gripe over officiating.

The 26-year-old New Yorker floored Dave Charnley three times in stopping the British lightweight champion in 1:58 of the ninth round of a non-title 10-rounder at Wembley's indoor stadium.

For his efforts—which were booed at times by the crowd of about 8,000 — Griffith collected £7,500, (About $20,000) On Sept. 23 he earned £20,000 ($56,000) in the same arena for soundly drubbing Welshman Brian Curvis in a 15-round title defence.

Central Junior A Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cornwall Royals had a taste of revenge Tuesday night, and moved to within six points of the first-place Hull Hawks with a 7-4 triumph over Brockville Braves in a Central Junior A Hockey League game at Brockville.

The second-place Royals lost ground at home last Sunday when they dropped a 2-1 decision to Brockville while Hull downed Hawkesbury to take an eight-point lead.

Ottawa Primroses moved ahead of Brockville into fifth place Tuesday with a 4-3 win over eighth-place Arnprior. Kenwoods in the league's only other game.

At Arnprior, the Primroses overcame a 3-1 deficit on third-period goals by Wayne Stanley, at Driscoll and Rich Charron to win their fourth game of the season.

Ed Hebert had given Ottawa a 1-0 lead early in the first period, but two goals by Campbell McKie and one by Archie Mulligan gave Arnprior a 3-1 advantage before the period ended.

Big M

Cancer Rumor Spiked

TORONTO (CP)—Frank Mahovlich practised with his Toronto Maple Leaf teammates Tuesday for the first time since he was admitted to hospital Nov. 12 suffering from an undisclosed ailment.

However, the mystery surrounding Mahovlich's illness became no clearer as the left-wing star for the National Hockey League team refused to talk about why he was in the hospital.

"I feel fine", he told reporters in a brief parking-lot press conference. "I'll be back tomorrow and I'll work out a little more each day until I'm ready to play."

His wife Marie and the team's assistant general-manager, King Clancy escorted Mahovlich back to Toronto General Hospital immediately after the workout.

Asked if the Big M was being treated for cancer, Dr. Tate McPhedran said: "That's simply not true."

It was learned, however, that Tuesday was not Mahovlich's first escape from the hospital since Nov. 12.

He skated at a suburban Toronto rink with his club last week while Leafs were on an extended road trip.

Observers at the session Tuesday said Mahovlich was skating and shooting as well as ever. He started with the team during the entire 45-minute drill.

Russians Open In Montreal

MELVILLE, Sask. (CP)—The Russian national hockey team, winners in the 1964 Olympics, will play an eight-game exhibition series in Canada, opening at Montreal Dec. 11.

The Russians will meet Canada's national team in Toronto Dec. 13.

Other games scheduled are: Dec. 18, Fort William, Lakehead Senior All-Stars; Dec. 19 and 20, Winnipeg, Canada Nationals; Dec. 18 Saskatoon, Saskatoon Quakers; Dec. 21, Edmonton, Edmonton Junior Oil Kings; and Dec. 23, Trail, Western International League All-Stars.

Following their Canadian tour, Russia's No. 1 hockey club will leave for Colorado Springs where it will compete with Canadian and Czechoslovak national teams in a series of six games in which the teams will meet each other twice.

LOAN CENTRE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—San Francisco Seals of the Western Hockey League loaned centre Larry Lund to Minneapolis Bruins Tuesday in a deal calling for his immediate recall if needed. Forward Mike Draper was returned to the Boston Bruin organization for further assignment.

Movies 'Going to Pieces,' Wheeler - Dealers Blamed

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Arts going to pieces!" says an article in the Atlantic Monthly by Pauline Kael, who proceeds to answer "Yes."

Miss Kael, billed as an author, lecturer and authority on films, criticizes the growing lack of logic in movies, even the most expensive ones. She cites the swift and unexplained ending of Bridge on The River Kwai; the garbled plot of What's Ever Happened to Baby Jane; the utter confusion of 55 Days at Peking; the sudden clairvoyance of Cleopatra in the film of that name; the puzzling story turns of The Cardinal.

"Audiences used to have an almost rational passion for getting the story straight," writes the critic. . . . although the movies might be banal or vulgar, they were rarely incoherent. A movie had to tell some story that held together; a plot had to parse."

She concludes: "Movies are going to pieces; they are disintegrating, and the consulting called cinema is not movies raised to an art but rather movies diminished, movies that look 'artistic.' Movies are being stripped of all the 'nonessentials'—that is to say faces, action details, stories, places, everything that makes them entertaining and joyful."

PRODUCTS ARE SLOPPY

The one thing that impresses a reviewer who sees the major output in the studios is the sloppiness of the product. Today's films are filled with incongruities, pointless jokes, technical errors and anachronisms that any bright 9th-grade English student could correct in the script.

Why is this so?

The answer seems to lie in the abdication of authority by the major studios. Bosses like Louis B. Mayer and Harry Cohen were despotic and crude, but they did control things. They and their deputies insisted that a script be finished before shooting started, that the story should be understandable and the casting apt, and that the schedule proceed in a businesslike manner.

"Today, people in Hollywood are more interested in making deals than in making movies," said a top executive recently.

The wheeler - dealers have moved into the industry, setting up packages to find a buyer, then moving on to the next deal. The film makers are left to their own devices, with no steady hand to guide them.

SPEAKS TO TRA

NEW YORK (AP)—Robert P. Strub of the Santa Anita track in California, president of the Thoroughbred Racing Association, did delegates to the annual convention of the TRA Tuesday that if off-track betting is legalized in the United States, they should receive the same commission they now receive on wagering at pari-mutuel windows. There has been agitation for off-track betting in New York state as a means of raising revenue.

Huntley's Show on Viet Nam Well Done and Shocking

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Broadcasting Company, in a sudden decision Tuesday, dropped most of its regular afternoon television programming for five coverage of the hearings by a Senate subcommittee investigating the Bobby Baker case.

The witness was insurance man Don Reynolds. His testimony concerning storage business deals in high places, plus the peppery wrangling between Democratic and Republican senators, was both fascinating and disillusioning.

The full treatment served up by NBC as a public service was infinitely more illuminating than the "highlights" of the day's testimony chosen for a special report by CBS in the late afternoon.

NBC plans to continue its coverage as long as the hearings continue.

Also highly illuminating was NBC's news special Tuesday night on Viet Nam and what narrator Chet Huntley called "a mixed war." Color film dramatically illustrated the difference between the plush, easy life in Saigon and the Viet Cong terror nearby in rice paddies and villages where each day men are ambushed and die as the guerrillas strike—and disappear.

It was a discouraging portrait of a war in which our men are involved. We saw pictures of dead men and bleeding men, of frightened and hungry peasants—and brutality, both to people and to animals.

The hour was well done and shocking.

"It is regrettable when it comes to the consideration of the health of our city it must be accomplished on a break-even basis—even with a community-owned building."

Civic finances may be spent with more vision to meet the realities of the present and the probabilities of the future. This means . . . our finances must be scrutinized more closely by a council which includes not only men with a knowledge of intricate financing but also a background of human community values.

Three Youths Held for Series Of Break-ins

PICTON (Staff) — Some speedy action has been taken and some quick arrests have been made by Ontario Provincial Police of the Picton detachment.

Three youths are charged with a series of at least six break-ins in the past two weeks. Arrested are 19-year-old Larry Johnson, 16-year-old Ronald Langford, and Roger Ferguson, age 17, all of Picton. Properties that were broken into include DeGroff's cheese, Bloomfield; a cottage at Merland Parks, the Elks' Lodge; St. Gregory's Hall, and Carter's boat house. Two trucks were also stolen. The first belonging to Murney Hess and eventually was taken the night of the December 1 break and found later by police on Ridge Road. The other truck was taken two nights later and belonged to Abramsky's farms. It also was found on Ridge Road, almost completely demolished after it had crashed into a tree.

The three youths will appear in Magistrate's court in Picton this Wednesday morning.

Coroner's Jury Finds Excessive Speed Is Factor

PICTON (Staff) — A coroner's inquest was held in the Picton Town Hall on Tuesday night into the death of 20-year old Roger Noble. Noble was killed when his car went out of control on a curve on Hig way 41, just north of Picton, last Oct. 25th.

His passengers, Monte Hennessy, escape with only injuries after the car left the road went down a ditch, ripped off a tree by the roots and ended up in a field.

The five man jury found that Noble died of multiple head injuries sustained in an automobile accident. The jury also found that road conditions were satisfactory for normal driving conditions, that excessive speed was a factor—also the position of alcohol. They recommended that tighter restrictions be imposed on the purchase of alcoholic beverages.

The meeting, annually spon sored by the Chamber of Commerce, was probably the shortest on record—a stirking contrast to the campaigns not so long ago that sent citizens streaming in Belleville College by the hundreds to flood the candidates with questions.

Scouting activities

The president, Mrs. S. Smith opened the meeting and the usual opening procedures followed. She welcomed everyone present with a special warm welcome to new members.

The meeting was turned over to Mrs. P. Gelsthorpe, past president, who installed the new officers as follows: president, Mrs. S. Smith; vice-president, Mr. Theobald; secretary, Mrs. A. Jordan; treasurer, Mr. Mike Dowbyhuz; telephone sewing convener, Mrs. M. Dowbyhuz; social convener, Mrs. Theobald.

Mrs. Gelsthorpe dealt with Scouting and stated that a course is to be held at College Hill United Church on December 3rd.

Following the closing of the meeting all members retired to the room downstairs to join with the Cubs to view slides shown by Akela Marion Gelthorpe on her trip to the New York World's Fair.

Fruit bread and coffee were served by Mrs. Theobald.

Getting Ready for Santa

Snow arrived in Belleville close on the heels of December. This is a picture of the Four Corners Wednesday looking north on Front Street.

Two Ships Are Waiting to Be Freed, Third Grounded Vessel Is Total Loss

HALIFAX (CP)—Heavy seas continued to pound Canada's eastern seaboard today as planes and ships searched for a fishing vessel with two men aboard.

Meanwhile, two grounded ships, one Norwegian and the other Greek, were waiting to be refloated off Prince Edward Island and a Liberian freighter which went aground northeast of Halifax was declared a total loss by its captain.

Wind gusts were reported at more than 100 miles an hour in the wake of a storm that dumped nearly two feet of snow on New Brunswick Tuesday, isolated several communities and wrecked lobster traps around Nova Scotia.

New efforts to refloat the grounded 12,744-ton Norwegian tanker Belfast were to be renewed in Charlottetown harbor today after attempts at high tide Wednesday night failed. Part of her fuel cargo may be dumped into a smaller tanker.

Farther west on the Prince Edward Island coast, the 5,500-ton Greek freighter Agios Nicolaos III, with 28 men on board, awaited the tug Foundation Valiant which was steaming to the area. The Nicolaos was reported in no immediate danger.

The powerful tug had been dispatched from the area where the 2,828-ton Liberian freighter Fury grounded at Herschios Point, 95 miles east of Halifax. Capt. George Pateras, skipper of the Fury—the former Canadian vessel Newsport—said his ship would likely be a total loss. He and his 17-man Greek crew walked ashore Wednesday after a cold night on the ship, driven aground Tuesday by 90-mile-an-hour winds at the mouth of the St. Mary's River.

In Nova Scotia's Minas Basin, a large inlet off the Bay of Fundy, the 2,285-ton West German ship Elisabeth Schulte was riding out stiff winds off Cape Blomidon.

She developed a 30-degree list when her load concentrate cargo leaded at Walton, N.S., shifted. A pilot was to attempt to get aboard today to guide the vessel to another port.

Fishing vessels reaching Yarmouth, N.S., reported unofficial wind readings of 120 miles an hour off the south coast. High-est official winds were gusts of nearly 100 miles an hour at Sydney.

Lobster fishermen watched helplessly Wednesday as bits of gear appeared in tangled pieces along beaches, left there by high tides. Their grim task now is to assess damage and begin again to build new traps to replace those they had put out Monday as the lobster fishing season opened in a number of Nova Scotia areas.

Boat Overturned

HALIFAX (CP) — RCAF rescue headquarters said today the missing lobster boat, Jean and Judy, has been found overturned in choppy seas off the southwestern tip of Nova Scotia. There was no sign of two fishermen who were aboard.

The 33-foot boat, missing since Tuesday, was found by the ocean-going escort Cap de la Madeleine on Rose-way Bank.

Aboard were Philman Quinlan and James Smith, both of Stoney Island, N.S.

Peron Flies Back to Spain Gov't May Not Let Him Stay

From AP-Reuters

SEVILLE (CP)—Former Argentine dictator Juan D. Peron was flown back to Spain today after a short-lived attempt to establish himself in South America in preparation for a return to his homeland.

Peron's airliner was diverted from Madrid to Seville, informed sources said the switch was made on orders of the Spanish government—and probably at Peron's request—so he would not be exposed to more than 100 Spanish and foreign reporters waiting for him at Madrid's Barajas Airport.

Officials in Madrid said they understood that Peron would be allowed to return to Spain "temporarily" until a definite decision is reached on his case."

Spanish officials said Peron's departure constituted "a clear violation" of the condition under which the government granted him asylum in 1960—that he would not engage publicly in politics.

The Brazilian government ordered the 69 - year - old exile flown back to Madrid Wednesday night on the same Iberia airliner that had carried him to Brazil from Spain. He had planned to go on to Paraguay, to wait there until the time was ripe for him to return to Argentina.

The Brazilian government said in a communique:

"Complying with the request of Argentina . . . the Brazilian government agreed to halt in Rio de Janeiro the trip which Mr. Juan Domingo Peron was making. . . ."

Day and Night Ocean Watch For Subs Now Navy's Role

OTTAWA (CP) — The key word in Canadian naval policy has become "surveillance."

Surveillance means day-and-night, all-weather ocean watch for Soviet—and Chinese—submarines capable of launching missiles into North America.

Intelligence sources said Wednesday that Russia now has about 400 submarines, approximately one-third of them capable of sustained operations in North American waters. Communist China has built about 30 Russian-designed subs.

It is believed that about 50 of the Soviet boats are capable of hurling missiles at North American cities, Japan. Some of these 50 are nuclear-powered.

The key to keeping better watch on these submarines over the Atlantic and Pacific, informants said, is maintaining ships and planes for longer periods far offshore.

This was the reason for construction of the Provider, a tanker supply ship now in RCN service. It can replenish anti-submarine ships at sea without the necessity of them returning to port for fuel and stores.

The plan now is to build two more of the same type of ship, one for the Atlantic coast and one for the Pacific, as well as four additional helicopter-carrying destroyers.

Informants estimated that the addition of these six ships will triple the surveillance capability of the fleet. The cost will be about $178,000,000.

The navy hopes that its $10,000,000 hydrofoil boat—a prototype now under construction for sea trials in 1966—will further augment the surveillance capability.

The navy is also looking at the possibility of using hovercraft for submarine surveillance.

First Leak in RCMP History Gave Critics Ammunition

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCMP is working on the assumption that the first major leak in the 91-year history of the force produced the ammunition for Opposition charges of bribery and coercion which exploded in the Commons last week.

"You've got to work on the assumption there's a leak," said Commissioner M. H. W. (Mike) Clelian in an interview Wednesday.

"I can assure you there were no documents missing. The one document which seems to contain the gist of the information mentioned in the House—there were very few copies of that document, all of which can be accounted for."

Ever since Erik Nielsen (PC —Yukon) sprang his surprises to most MPs—in the Commons last week, there has been one recurring question both inside and outside the Commons:

Where did Mr. Nielsen get possession of information to enable him to say with such confidence that the RCMP's investigation showed one thing or another about the charges?

Commissioner McClellan, 56-year-old native of Moose Jaw, Sask., and a Mountie since 1932, has given a definite proof of a leak but, in the case of reports marked "top secret" whose contents are spilled in the Commons, a leak must be assumed.

Only a limited number of persons had access to the RCMP files on allegations by Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne that he was offered a $20,000 bribe to go away in opposing a bail application for Lucien Rivard, wanted in the United States on narcotics charges.

"It was restricted, top secret as was said in the House," Commissioner McClellan said. "But within the force there would be a number of people who would have had part of it to carry out their duties.

"It was restricted, not to just one, two or three people but a number of people would have to know it in the lower parts of the force.

"But there is a leak in the force, naturally our first line of inquiry is these people who have knowledge. The same is true of anyone outside the force.

"Of course, there are other places—people who would have had to know at least part of the information.

"I can only say we are conducting an inquiry, the line it has taken and the results so far; we are not in a position to say more."

Five More Dead Europeans Found By Rescue Force

LEOPOLDVILLE (CP) — A mercenary-led government column penetrated further into the northeast Congo today in pursuit of rebels believed holding 500 whites as hostages. They found five more dead Europeans.

The rebels fled Watsa, near the Sudanese border, as a government force of 30 mercenaries and 200 Congolese soldiers neared Bunia, 350 miles east of Stanleyville.

Bunia had a white population of 250, most of them Greeks, but the Congolese Army found only two Roman Catholic priests there. The rebels were believed to have taken the other whites with them to join hostages already at Watsa.

Reports of the Congolese advance through rebel territory were fragmentary. Latest word said the government column was headed toward Paulis, southwest of Watsa, after passing through Poko and Zobia.

It was not known here whether the mercenaries have rescued British Protestant missionary Aubrey Brown, his Canadian wife and their four children, who were last reported at the Poko Mission station.

However, a small planeload of refugees from Poko was reported by western news agency to have reached Stanleyville and British embassy officials here said they believe Brown, his wife and their four children are among the whites freed in Poko.

At Manbasa, south of Paulis, the mercenaries said that two Belgians, a Frenchman, a German and an unidentified missionary were found slaughtered.

The rebels are known to have killed 85 other whites including two Canadian missionaries. Belgian paratroops rescued about 2,000 others in airdrops at Paulis and Stanleyville.

Reliable sources said government forces combed the African quarter of Stanleyville and rounded up 10,000 Congolese who were being held in a soccer stadium for interrogation.

Find Richest Iron Ore In World

REGINA (CP) — A tremendous deposit of the richest iron ore in the world has been found on Baffin Island in the Candian Arctic, Arthur Laing, federal northern affairs minister, said today.

Is is unquestionably the best ore in the world, Mr. Laing said in a telephone interview from Swift Current, Sask.

"It is so pure and of such quality it can be fed directly into furnaces."

Mr. Laing said prospects of developing the deposit are "exceedingly hopeful." One of the largest firms in the world, which he declined to name, was interested in the Baffin discovery.

'Good, Useful' Talks Held at UN In Bid to Solve Dues Deadlock

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The UN General Assembly, after creating the wave of a crisis on its opening day Tuesday, settled into quiet relatively calm waters of its annual general debate today.

The atmosphere at UN headquarters was one of "business as usual," despite urgent negotiations still going on privately on peace-keeping finances and despite the fact the assembly was committed not to raise any controversial issue until the general debate is over—probably not before January.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson said the talks had been "good" and "useful," and that Secretary-General U Thant might make a move on the issue soon.

That's move was expected to be a recommendation to broaden the negotiating group to include a few other countries besides the big two, the main opponents in a dispute that has split the UN.

Canada, which has been aligned closely with the U.S. in the campaign to make the Soviets pay their peace-keeping dues or lose their assembly vote, is expected to be included in any broader grouping.

Talks on the question are centring on the possibility of a "peace fund" of some sort into which the Russians, French and others could contribute to make up for the peace-keeping assessments they have refused to pay because they claim they were imposed illegally by the assembly.

The fact that the Russians were at least considering this kind of plan was seen as a considerable advance. But there was still doubt that they would bend on their basic contention that only the Security Council can set up and finance peace forces.

Without such a concession, Western sources said, the whole issue of taking away the Soviet and French vote will probably tumble back into the lap of the assembly early next year.

The big Afro-Asian bloc was reported to have advanced a three - point compromise that would set up a peace fund and circumvent a fight over the charter's Article 19, providing that a country loses its assembly vote if the arrears equal two years' assessments.

Under the plan, the assembly would declare Article 19 inapplicable in the present case; a study group on future peace forces would be set up and a peace fund would be established.

U. S. Engineer, Russian Chauffeur Convicted on Espionage Charges

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A Russian chauffeur and an American electronics engineer were convicted Wednesday night of conspiracy to commit espionage for the Soviet Union.

The verdict could mean death. Their penalty will be decided by U.S. District Court Judge Anthony T. Augelli, who presided over the 36-day trial. No date has been set for sentencing.

A federal jury of eight women and four men deliberated 9½ hours before returning the verdict against the American, John W. Butenko, 49, and his co-defendant, Igor A. Ivanov, 34.

Butenko and Ivanov were convicted of conspiring to relay secret air force installations in Russia and of conspiring to violate the law requiring foreign agents to register with the state department. Butenko also was convicted of acting as an unregistered agent for the foreign power—Russia.

Butenko, a bachelor of Russian descent, has denied the charges. Ivanov worked as a driver for a Russian trade agency in New York.

A Soviet embassy representative and two Russian-speaking translators were present for the entire trial.

Augelli granted a request by Ivanov's lawyer to continue Ivanov's bail at $100,000. The bail was put up Dec. 20 by the Soviet embassy, permitting Ivanov to go home to his wife and daughter in New York City to await trial.

Pope Meets Leaders Of All Faiths

From AP-Reuters

BOMBAY (CP)—Pope Paul met today with leaders of ancient oriental religions and told them all men must begin their work together to build the common future of the human race.

Marking a new dimension in the outlook of the Roman Catholic Church, the Pope asked the sages of Hinduism, Islam, Buddhism, Zoroastrianism and other non-Christian faiths:

"Are we not all one in this struggle for a better world, in this effort to make available to all people those goods which are needed to fulfil their human destiny and to live lives worthy of the children of God?"

He paused, then added: "We must come together again . . . we must come together with our hearts, in mutual understanding, esteem and love."

On this, the second day of his four-day visit to India, where the Pope is being received with a welcome of phenomenal enthusiasm and zest, he also called on Indian President Sarvepalli Radhkrishnan, a world renowned Hindu philosopher.

CROWDS CROWD

Earlier in the lounge of a convent being used as a press centre the Pope met Hindus, Moslems, Parsees, Sikhs, Jews and Jains who clamored with outstretched arms to touch the "holy man from Rome."

23,500 GM Workers Out on Strike

TORONTO (CP) — The UAW today struck at four General Motors plants in Ontario, making idle about 23,500 workers.

The United Automobile Auto Workers (CLC)" today struck four General Motors plants, joining automobile assembly workers who struck premiurely at GM's Oshawa plant Tuesday night and Wednesday.

Company and union negotiators in Toronto continued talks as a total of about 23,500 workers became idle in Toronto, St. Catharines, Logdon, Windsor and Oshawa.

The union, seeking an improved contract to replace one that expired Oct. 31, today pulled out 6,275 workers at McKinnon Industries, St. Catharines, a subsidiary of GM's United States corporation; 1,150 at the GM transmission division in Windsor; 550 at General Motors Diesel Limited in London and 1,000 at Frigidaire in Toronto.

About 14,500 at Oshawa had jumped the U.a.w. strike call at Oshawa on the claim that the company attempted a work speedup. Later, the union leadership accepted their walkout.

All today's walkouts were within local jurisdiction. Union company arrangements permitted continuance of work by maintenance supervisory and office employees.

In Toronto-where company-union negotiations had centred this week as the strike deadline approached — the walkout time found GM negotiators in discussions with UAW sub-committees on local issues being negotiated in conjunction with a master contract for the plants. These continued.

Que. PC Endorses New Flag

OTTAWA (CP) — A second Quebec Conservative has endorsed a Commons committee recommendation for a national flag with a single red maple leaf and opposed his party's demand for a national plebiscite on the issue.

Louis-Joseph Pigeon (Joliette-L'Assomption - Montcalm) told the Commons Wednesday he would have preferred a green maple leaf to represent the Canadian sugar maple but hopes the proposed design is approved as soon as possible.

Mr. Pigeon spoke on the third day of the resumed flag debate in the Commons, which is considering a Conservative amendment to refer the report back to committee with a recommendation for a plebiscite.

The debate ran for 22 days last summer. The present session—longest in history—moved through its 203rd day.

Mr. Pigeon said Prime Minister Pearson should have submitted the flag question to a committee in the first place instead of bringing a resolution calling for adoption of a flag with three red maple leaves on a white ground with a vertical blue bar at each end.

The flag recommended by the committee has the single red leaf on a white ground with red panels at each end.

OPPOSES UNION JACK

Mr. Pigeon said he would vote against the committee recommendation that the Union Jack be flown to show allegiance to the Crown and membership in the Commonwealth. Canada needs only one flag, he said.

The special flag committee report take precedence over Bill C-60 as the Conservative and party house leaders were still trying to work out an agreement to provide some time each

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Clear very cold weather is expected to continue across Northern Ontario today and Friday. Mainly cloudy conditions are forecast for the lower lakes region however as the snow gradually ends this morning some clearing is likely. Another in the series of storms moving up from the southern states will spread cloud and wet snow into Southwestern Ontario Friday.

Today's Chuckle

Top-level negotiators dealing with the master contracts had not met since talks were interrupted when UAW Canadian director George Burt and others went into Oshawa to look into the premature work stoppage Wednesday.

However, a union spokesman said the UAW was hoping to resume the main talks, and a meeting of its master negotiating committee with this in view was scheduled for 1 p.m. today.

New Educational Authority For Retarded Formed Here

Mr. A. R. Blackbourn, manager of the Imperial Bank of Commerce, is the Authority chairman. Other members are Thomas Stovell, Mrs. Margaret Maddocks, E. Buckley, Bruce Kerr and Rod Cameron.

Later in the board room at the school for retarded children at 321 John Street, L. A. Kells, chief inspector for Belleville public schools, spoke informally drawing attention to the contents of Bill 131 which amends the schools' administration act.

Under the act, the province pays 80 per cent of the operational costs of the school with remaining such costs to be paid by the municipality.

RETAIN OWNERSHIP

The local association retains ownership of the school. The province will pay 30 per cent toward the cost of any new construction, but the municipality assumes no responsibility in this connection.

Children from adjacent municipalities must be admitted to the school but the Authority may charge back 20 per cent of the pupil costs.

The local association for retarded children was formed in Belleville six years ago.

Here and in other municipalities the activities of such associations soon gained the sympathetic support of the Ontario Department of Education and each year has seen legislation to provide financial and other support.

This year, however, Bill 131 ruled that retarded children reported to be trainable and who can be admitted to schools for the retarded are no longer to be considered objects of charity.

GET SAME RIGHTS

These children are to be provided schooling like other children in the family and the province together, with the local communities in which they reside, will pay the total cost of their education.

Next meeting of the new school board will be on December 16. In the meantime, two committees will be set up to report at that time.

Mrs. Maddocks and Mr. Stovell will report on the present activities of the school and the commitments which may be taken over by the Authority. Mr. Cameron and Mr. Kerr will report on proposed rules and procedures for the Authority. Mr. Kells was asked to act as secretary pro-tem.

WAS MILLIONAIRE

NEW YORK (AP)—The late Roy W. Howard, who helped build the Scripps-Howard newspaper into one of the leading groups in the U.S., left an estate "in excess of $1,000,000," a probate released Wednesday said.

N. E. Field Is Moved Back to Belleville

N. E. Field, formerly assistant engineer - technical, London area, CNR, has been appointed assistant engineer maintenance, Ridout area, with headquarters at Belleville, it was announced today by L. L. Hilborn, Ridout Area Engineer. Mr. Field succeeds W. D. Hutchison, who has been transferred to Toronto.

Born in London, England, Mr. Field came to Toronto and joined the CNR here in 1955 as a junior assistant engineer. He was promoted to assistant engineer in 1959 and transferred to Belleville. The following year he was named division engineer at Stratford and later that year, promoted to assistant engineer-technical at London, remaining there until his recent promotion. Mr. Field is married to the former Maureen E. Chappell of London, England, and they have three children.

Post Office Preparing for Christmas Rush

With the Christmas mailing rush expected to get underway this weekend, local post office officials are preparing for the big deluge expected to reach a peak about December 15th.

Annually there is a mailing build-up in late September, then the Christmas rush starts in first week in December and builds up to a peak about ten days before Christmas.

In preparation for the deluge Postmaster J. A. McManus has arranged for extra help on 133 persons as additional help. The first of these will start tomorrow and others will come in on the 7th, while the remainder of the extra help will be on the job from December 10th on.

The normal post office complement is 58, including street letter carriers.

The big percentage of the additional help will work in the post office helping to sort letters and parcels with only nine part time workers helping carriers on the street walks.

Regular carriers will do the morning walks with the part time help to assist with the afternoon deliveries.

PLAN CONFERENCE

REGINA (CP)—About 150 university students from across Canada are expected to attend a conference here Dec. 28-Jan 1 under the auspices of the Combined Universities Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament.

Canada Needs Treatment Centre For Potentially Dangerous Offender, Speaker Tells Meeting of CMHA

"Canada has no treatment centre equipped to handle the potentially dangerous offender," said Dr. Kenneth Mc. Knight, the Assistant Superintendent of Ontario Hospital, Penetanguishene, at an open meeting sponsored by the Canadian Mental Health Association.

An audience of about 100 persons, many of them city and district law enforcement officers, gathered at Education Hall last evening to hear Dr. McKnight discuss the "Mentally Ill Offender".

PERIOD OF TRANSITION

Dr. McKnight noted that our society is going through a period of transition with many changes in our ideas and practices regarding the offender. He particularly mentioned the idea of pretrial or pre-sentence psychiatric examination. In many cases this leads to the offender being committed to a mental hospital without guilt or innocence having been established. If this man does regain his sanity, he is then required to stand trial. There, of course, the psychiatrist may find himself in a different position because of the time lapse between the crime and the trial.

LACK OF STAFF

The average mental hospital is not set up to treat potentially dangerous people because of lack of security facilities, and lack of staff, adequately trained to deal with personality and character disorders so commonly found in this group.

There is a increasing pressure from criminologists and psychiatrists in Canada for the type of detention centres established in Denmark since 1933. Offenders are committed and released by court order on their medical decision. Sentences are indefinite in order to encourage patients to seek real help rather than waiting out a period of definite sentence.

RELEASED WHEN READY

Patients are released by a court decision only when considered by the treatment team to be ready for rehabilitation in the community. This centre has a remarkable rate of successful extended rehabilitation compared to the high rate of recidivism in Canada. In England a similar 250 bed hospital has been recently opened under the auspices of the penitentiary system.

TWO TYPES

Dr. McKnight discussed at some length the two groups of persons who are both patients and offenders (1) those who come to Penetanguishene because they become mentally ill during their stay in penitentiary or reformatory and (2) those who are sent to hospital from the courts because they are considered unfit to stand trial or not responsible for their actions because of mental illness.

Those transferred from penitentiaries have an average age of 35 years, and are often broken homes. 67 per cent were single. 75 per cent had less than grade 8 education. Most had poor work records and had used alcohol excessively. 79 per cent had received sentences for crimes against property. Their symptoms were most often of a depressive nature.

INTERPRETATIONS VARY

Those patients from the courts had been charged with serious offences often of a violent nature. The problem with this group is that there is no real appeal case. However, interpretation can vary greatly from one psychiatrist to another very literal to a very strict interpretation. This has led to a great deal of confusion.

ATTACK OWN FAMILY

Dr. McKnight showed slides of statistical data on 100 men and 100 women from both hospitals had committed offences against members of their own families, usually against a female relative. Contrary to popular belief when a mentally ill person becomes violent he does not indiscriminately attack anyone, but almost invariably chooses a person with whom he has had some prior association.

FORENSIC CLINIC

During an interesting question period Dr. McKnight commented on the effectiveness of the forensic clinic in Toronto and again stressed the need for a detention and treatment centre for the potentially dangerous offender.

Dr. McKnight was introduced by Mr. John Pringle, Crown Attorney, and thanked by Chief John McLaughlin, both members of the local CMHA board of directors. The meeting was chaired by Dr. John Stock, president.

The Ballad of Wharf Street Debating Club

By HARRY MULHALL

Turn now, oh gentle readership,
To tales of Belleville's wharfs,
Where, amongst the shipping,
Akin to Ludendorff's,
Is claimed by local gentry,
As endorsement by renown,
While canvassing for entry
To the councils of the town.

The wharfs have seen no cruisers,
Any battleships of line;
Yet, when the call's for bruisers
Of imparial party line,
They man the guns - - according
Every candidate a drub - -
And history's still recording
The wharf's Debating Club.

III

For, annually, each candidate
A pilgrimage must make,
To seek the club's clear mandidate
By placing at the stake
Ambitions, pure, perverse, or mean,
Whichever they define.
But oh! the God who saves our Queen,
Please aid those opt of line!

IV

All those whose blandishments betray
Some self-promoting scheme,
Created from the foul decay
Of misdirected dreams. -
For, then, like hounds with bloody bait,
The club descends en masse;
To persecute the candidat
Who's proved himself an ass.

V

The howl projects him to that realm
Where cracked minds lose their grip,
And raging madness prowls the helm
Aboard Ambition's ship.
Where sanity deserts one's bed
Since sleep will not endure.
(Ah! Words to match those scenes of dread Aren't easy to procure!)

Th eabove, from the still-to-be-completed Ballad of the Wharf Street Debating Club, signifies another assembly of that body, so sinister to municipal ambitions, has met for another year.

And, once again, another line-up of Belleville aldermanic candidates has been formally peppered and found wanting—to some degree or another.

IN TRADITIONAL FETTLE

The club, a traditional debate gauntlet run by all municipal candidates since 1910—or thereabouts—was in traditional fettle last night.

Directed by executive officers Harry Rollins, Jim Matthews, Dave Blackburn and Maurice Rollins, it turned out like a body to demand of the candidates exactly what they meant by imposing upon the electorate as close to Christmas.

Each candidate replied to the best of his recollection—and ability.

For once, however, a serious note was struck when the club presented a plaque to championship wrestler John Lewis. Recently returned from the Tokyo Olympic games, the young athlete, also a member of the Wharf Street Club's neighborhood, was given a standing ovation.

Organ Music To Be Played During Advent

Each Friday in advent commencing December 4th there will be an organ recital at Christ Church on Coleman Street from 12.10 to 12.50. Featured at the console of the giant organ will be John C. Withers, organist and master of the choristers at Christ Church.

This is being repeated again this year because of the interest shown in the past for such music. Coffee will be served in the ante-room of the church for those who wish to bring their lunch.

Candidates Busy Soliciting Votes From Ratepayers

Belleville's municipal election is in full swing, personally and publicly.

Despite an obvious lack of public response earlier last week when nominations were called, the 11 men seeking seven vacant council seats are pressing electoral suits across the city.

Each candidate now is in full swing personally foraging for the votes that may seek him election.

Publicity they also are busy.

Last night they all attended two public meetings — the Wharf Street Debating Club and a meeting of Park Dale Ratepayers' Association.

At both meetings they reiterated the stands expressed at Tuesday night's Chamber of Commerce meeting.

The ratepayers also were addressed by Mayor Jack Ellis calling for support on plebiscite questions opposing the power of council to ten aldermen and abolition of the Parks Board.

Aldermanic plebiscite voting was also debated at the same meeting—before the candidates spoke.

One speaker from the floor pondered aloud the value of returning to the ward system—which would see two councillors elected to represent each ward. He claimed it was often difficult to reach a councillor when local problems arose.

Similarly, it also was difficult to pinpoint departmental responsibility at city hall, the speaker claimed.

Need for a new library and a YMCA building in the west hill area also was mentioned at the meeting.

Attempted Theft Brings Term Of Two Months

A young Belleville man who claimed he was a victim of mistaken circumstances, today was sentenced to two months for attempted theft.

Edward James Nolan, 37, was charged after the owner of an automobile found him in the vehicle with the motor running behind a city hotel.

Nolan, defended on legal aid by Tom Lally, earlier told Magistrate T. V. Hunt he had mistaken the vehicle for one he had loaned a friend earlier in the night.

The magistrate however, ruled the evidence "thoroughly consistent with the charge."

City Visited By 3 Inches Of White Mantle

First the cold and then the snow.

A week or more ago as much as two feet of snow was received in some areas over Belleville escaped with just a trace.

And yesterday as much as 18 inches of snow was dumped in the southwestern part of the province.

The winter look also came to Belleville but in much lesser quantity.

Streets became slippery, many residents got out snow shovels for the first time this year and even the city works department sent out the odd snowplow.

But it was hardly necessary as only three inches of snow fell.

Latest Study Shows Extensive Poverty in Rural Canada

By ALEX MORIN

OTTAWA (CP)—A picture of extensive poverty in rural Canada emerges from the latest studies made public by the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Administration (ARDA).

The studies result from three years of research by federal officials during the pilot stage of the federal-provincial campaign to combat low income in areas away from cities and towns.

Forestry Minister Sauve, who is in charge of the ARDA program, says rural low income "or, as the problem is commonly and bluntly called, rural poverty in Canada . . . should cause concern not just in some quarters, but to all Canadians."

Although the root causes are extremely complex, Mr. Sauve says ARDA is "becoming more and more convinced that education is the most important single factor among the causes of poverty, and the one which may eventually enable us to shatter the vicious circle once and for all."

Here are some of the national figures for rural areas of fewer than 1,000 residents:

—22 per cent of the families farming for a living earn less than $2,500 a year.

—43 per cent of the rural families earning their living other than by farming receive less than $1,000 a year.

—32 per cent of the wage earners in rural areas who neither work nor live on farms earn less than $2,000.

—29 per cent of rural Canadians of school age and over have not been educated past Grade 8.

ARDA's definition of a low-income farm is one whose capital value is less than $25,000, with gross annual sales of agricultural products under $2,500 and where operator spends no more than 25 days/a year at other jobs.

Careless Driving Charges Will Be Adjourned

It is believed that court hearings of all outstanding careless driving charges laid by city and district police forces will be adjourned indefinitely.

Final disposition of all such counts will now await a possible appeal by the Attorney General against Mr. Justice Edson Haines' ruling in the Ontario Supreme Court last week.

The judge, in effect, ruled the Highway Traffic Act charge of careless driving inoperative. Precedence was taken by the Criminal Code charge of dangerous driving.

In Belleville, there were no careless driving counts on the docket when Magistrate J. Y. Wills opened his court this morning.

However, both city and provincial police had a number of such cases pending.

Second Charge Drunk Driving Brings Month

A Deseronto man today was sent to jail for one month on a second charge of drunk driving.

Laurel Grant, R.R. 1 Deseronto, was also charged by police chief K. M. Gloster with driving while prohibited - his license still being suspended from the first drunk charge.

H. W. Herridge (NDP—Kootenay West) said he favored a plebiscite. It could be held at little cost during the next general election.

He also repeated his stand for retaining the Red Ensign as Canada's national flag. This was his personal opinion, not shared by others in his party.

But in a spirit of compromise he was willing to vote for a maple leaf flag—provided it contained a Union Jack and the fleur-de-lis.

Jack McIntosh (PC — Swift Current-Maple Creek) said the flag issue is so charged with emotion that it can only be decided by the people in a plebiscite.

It was born an Anglo-Saxon and the Red Ensign means something to me," he said. "I know that I am biased and prejudiced about it."

This disqualifies him as an MP to decide for other people what the Canadian flag should be.

Tempers grew short during a plea by Deane Gundy (Ck'F'g—Lethbridge) for a flag plebiscite. He complained that the debate is washing out the main question period and asked the government to open the way for questioning of ministers.

"Sit down, shut up and let the matter come to a vote," Health Minister Judy LaMarsh interjected.

Michael Starr (PC—Ontario) said the tone and attitude was typical of "Grit arrogance."

Mr. Starr said there is an organization in the Liberal MP's from Quebec to interrupt Conservative speeches with points of order and objections.

This was "disgraceful, shameful conduct" that was antagonizing the rest of Canada against the Quebec Liberals.

He said unless one national flag is chosen by a plebiscite Canadians would continue to fly several flags—by the Red Ensign in Ontario, the Union Jack in Newfoundland, the fleur-de-lis in Quebec and the committee flag choice in some parts.

New Leaders Face Old Problems

We notice this more and more as we grow older. This is not because of any increase in our abilities to adjust—the reverse is probably true—but rather because we increase the scope of what we consider "quick."

Still, there must be some acceptable yardstick by which to measure the rate of change in international affairs, and by any such yardstick surely a year qualifies as a short time.

Yet in little more than a year the leadership of four of the five leading members of the United Nations has changed.

When the 18th session of the United Nations opened in September of 1963, the leaders of the Big Three in the West were John F. Kennedy of the United States, Harold Macmillan of Britain and General de Gaulle of France. Only de Gaulle remains—the very man whose removal might have eased some of the UN's problems since he, like the Russians, is balking at paying the UN peacekeeping costs. President Johnson carries on the Kennedy tradition in the U.S. but Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Britain will differ from his predecessors, Prime Ministers Macmillan and Douglas-Home, in his views on some issues.

Khrushchev, a year ago undisputed leader of the communist bloc in the UN because of the circumstances, has been replaced by a coalition about whose policies we can only guess.

And Nehru, whose personal prestige made him the leader of the "neutralists" from Asia and Africa, is dead, replaced in India by Shastri but certainly without any evident successor in the UN at this time.

Thus the UN faces what may well prove one of its most critical sessions with largely untried leadership. Alone amongst the leaders, the U.S. and France emerge as nations whose outlooks are known and are unchanged. The future of this second great attempt to establish the rule of law amongst nations is clouded. Much may well depend upon the attitudes of three different camps, Britain in the West, Russia in the communist world and India amongst the neutralists, who include most of the new nations of Asia and Africa.

As Others See Us

Och and begorra, and a sad sight it is to hear Rabbie Burns betrayed on St. Andrew's Day.

If you think that sentence is mixed up, it has company.

Like us, for instance.

This Burns chappie once said, "Oh, wad some power the giftie gie us to see ourselves as others see us."

Or something like that.

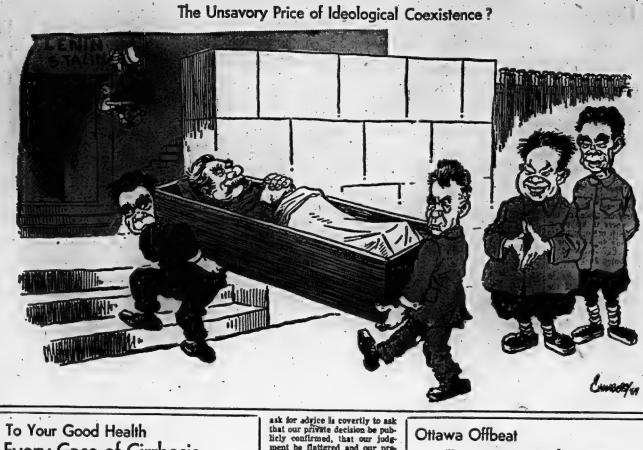
We always thought this fell into the general classification of dire warnings that we are none of us as perfect as we think we are.

Then, on St. Andrew's Day, along comes Prof. James Acland and tells the Community Planning Association that Belleville has three great advantages, the Moira River, the harbor and the city's old buildings.

If you asked the average citizen of Belleville what the harbor, the Moira and the city's old buildings had in common, he would likely reply that all three stink, figuratively and in some cases literally.

The last time we saw the inner harbor, (which was not this year, praise be), it looked exactly the same as the previous time we looked at it—slimy.

The Moira, in its lower reaches, is today mercifully covered with a sheet of ice, which conceals the fact that it has recently been transformed, by a city bulldozer, from a garbage dump into a gravel pit, itself a considerable improvement.



As for our old buildings, there is a widespread conviction that they look best just before demolition which results in fine new buildings replacing them. Often—but alas not always. Look at that hideous gap on Bridge Street, near the government-operated emporium which has what it takes to make you stop gaping at the gap.

Still we thank Prof. Acland for giving us a new slant on the Burns boy. We think the Professor really has something, that what we have been considering our handicaps could, indeed, be turned into assets.

It will take a lot of work, though.

Money is a new form of slavery, and distinguishable from the old simply by the fact that it is impersonal—that there is no human relation between master and slave.—Tolstoy in What Shall We Do?

Every Case of Cirrhosis Is Not a Hopeless One

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

DEAR Dr. Molner: Bruises recently began to appear on my body and my doctor said they were the result of sensitivity to a drug he prescribed for hypertension. After extensive tests he found that I have cirrhosis of the liver, but not in the sense that most laymen think of it — incurable.

Is it possible to arrest the disease by good diet, vitamins, etc? Some of my friends claim there is no cure for cirrhosis. Is this true? — D. G.

No, it's not true, however, in some advanced cases of cirrhosis, it is too late to do more than slow down the damage, and the progress of the disease cannot be anything but down hill.

At the first warning of cirrhosis victims should have treatment, and correct their eating and drinking habits. Every case of cirrhosis is not hopeless. Furthermore there are different types.

The liver, unless damaged too severely, has great powers of recovery.

In your case, I would need more data to come to a conclusion as to the full nature of the damage. Sensitivity to the drug could very well have been a factor. There may or may not have been some other elements involved. Clotting capabilities of the blood can be affected in some cases of liver disease, and "bruises" can result because when there is some bone or injury, small blood vessels break and the blood does not clot quickly enough. Some of it escapes into the tissues to make a visible "bruise."

Since your doctor has stated categorically that severe cirrhosis has not yet developed, may be so gloomy? Why not accept this good news at face value? Rely on the fact that the liver, given a chance, does regenerate remarkably.

The very best solution is for you to discontinue th. medication at once (I am sure this already has been done) and then follow the two rules of caring for your liver: strict adherence completely (because it speeds up accumulation of fat in the liver, leading to cirrhosis; and eat a reasonable, balanced diet.

Dear Dr. Molner: What foods, if any, contribute to the production of hormones in the body. — L. J.

Proteins and cholesterol both are very important in hormone production.

Dear Dr. Molner: My baby sister is going to the hospital to have her tear duct opened in her right eye. What do they do when they operate? — Jane S.

At the inner corner of each eye is a small opening or duct which leads into the nose. These ducts drain away the tears which are nature's means of keeping the eyes moist and clean. (This drainage explains why a person when crying hard will develop a runny nose, too.)

Sometimes these tiny tubes become clogged and have to be opened. This is usually done rather easily by passing through the tube a fine, smooth, blunt wire.

Emphysema can be controlled. To learn to live with this serious lung disease, write to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicag Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Strictly Personal

Movies Are Getting Too Dirty

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: Most people who think they disagree about "government" really disagree about "policy" — their differences lie in which segment of society they feel should be punished.

It is a seductive half-truth of Emerson's that "the value of a principle is the number of things it will explain"; for a principle that explains too many things is valueless, and probably paradoxical.

In nine cases out of ten, to ask for advice is covertly to ask that our private decision be publicly confirmed, that our judgment be flattered and our preconceptions bolstered.

It is weak men, not strong men, who are cruel — for cruelty is almost always an admission of failure of character in the past, and a desperate effort to rectify by pain what should have been prevented by firmness.

Modern historical research is nearly useless if it does not use the tools of depth-psychology to help explain events: for instance, a knowledge of the conflicting drives within Woodrow Wilson tells us more about the failure of the League of Nations than reams of research about the political machinations of the isolationists of that period.

While inarticulateness is the defect of the slow-witted, glibness is the defect of the quick-witted; and the latter should always keep in mind Arton's admonition: "No man has a right to speak more clearly than he thinks."

The rest of us smile at the way the very rich indulge in petty economies while at the same time they commit profound extravagances; but this seeming contradiction is merely the way in which they try to maintain a precarious hold on their financial self-respect and reassure themselves that they are not profligate; it has much the same emotional dynamics as the case of the prostitute or gangster sending a daughter to a convent school.

I was amused to read John O'Hara's statement that movies are getting too "dirty" to the anyone who has read O'Hara's "Ten-ny-sin, this is the Musicievitz confessing about "dirty" political in Florence; and it is only further confirmation of the melancholy fact that no man's image of himself conforms to reality.

When a mother says "I can't handle" a small refractory child what she really means is that she can't handle her own contradictory impulses, part of which secretly sympathize with and encourage the child's revolt.

Tailored Punishment

Victoria Colonist

A number of British magistrates seem recently to have embarked on a course of awarding punishment to fit the crime.

One young man, for instance, who had left a broken bar bottle on a town street was sentenced to sweep the street for one hour every Sunday morning for the next five weeks.

In another English town, a 15. year-old girl was thought by her mother to be uncontrollable because she was "pop crazy" was advised by the court to get pop "out of her system" — or else.

Noting this apparent trend, a suggests that it be expanded to take in motorists who commit making the culprits do a spell as policemen on point duty sorting out traffic jams. Carrying the idea even further he writes:

could be made to jaoin hospital wards during the road accident cases. And people found maltreating their pets could be made to clean out the elephants' cages in the zoo."

Obviously the columnist feels much like Voltaire must have felt when he wrote: "The punishment of criminals should be of use: when a man is hanged he is good for nothing."

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Dec. 3rd, 1934

Although lack of adequate storage facilities for cheese manufactured during the early summer months prevented the British Empire Cheese Exhibition from being held in Belleville this autumn, according to local dairy grader, it is expected this difficulty will be overcome by another year.

Refrigeration plants are being built in Madoc, Campbellford and Napanee and by another year will be available for storage of exhibition cheese. Inability to secure proper storage facilities in the past has affected the quality of exhibition cheese manufactured in the Belleville district.

While no cheese exhibition will be completed for staging the annual cheese makers' convention, a two day program has been arranged with prominent dairy and marketing officials scheduled to address attending makers.

The municipal elections are being held here today. As usual the Ontario Intelligencer will give the results as soon as they are available. Additional telephones have been installed in order to take care of the large number of calls.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Carmichael have returned home after spending a few days with the Rev. J. J. Black and Mrs. Black in Lindsay.

Miss Hilda Coulter, nurse-in-training at the Hamilton General Hospital, was home to spend the week-end with her mother at her home on Ann St.

The new high school in Madoc was formally opened on Friday afternoon and close to 300 people were present in the auditorium. R. C. Tanner, chairman of the high school board presided. and the invocation was given by the Rev. Hope Swayze, rector of the combined parishes of Madoc and Tweed. The special speaker for the occasion was Mr. Matheson, Dean of the Faculty of Arts and head of the Department of Mathematics at Queen's University. Brief speeches of congratulation and good wishes were made by a few of the visitors and local residents.

Ottawa Offbeat

To Beat Paul Martin Is No Easy Task

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — . . . notes off the reportorial cuff . . .

THE BIG STUFF:

Down Essex County way the other weekend, they opened the new Emeryville Post Office.

It was a pocket-edition size, rural type Post Office, worth maybe at most $20,000.

But down to open it, to cut the ribbon and make the speech came the long-time Liberal MP for Essex East, the Honorable the Secretary of State for External Affairs, Paul Martin.

Kind of small political potatoes for such a big wheeler-dealer in international circles.

Down Essex East way, there is nothing, but absolutely nothing — or at least nobody so far has discovered anything — that is too small for the personal attention of the Honorable Member.

The new Emeryville Post Office first came to some-one-ises public attention along about last Fall when Windsor Star Parliamentary correspondent Maurice Jefferies was making his regular, routine daily check on the state of the nation with the hometown MP, the Hon. Paul.

"Gees you're pretty busy," started out Mr. Jefferies ruminatously, "what with Cyprus, the Columbia River Treaty, the Foreign Aid increase, sessions in the House, VIP's coming in, and all other things."

WHAT'S IMPORTANT

"Never mind that," interrupted Oom Paul, "what I want to tell you is really important — we're getting a nice brick veneer finish on that Post Office at Emeryville — forget about that!"

How about that indeed!

Emeryville a little more than a four-corners kind of city place where the Federal Public Works Department was hammering up a new wooden Post Office.

But the folks around Emeryville didn't think wood was good enough, when most other places got new Post Offices in brick, and neither did their Honorable Member.

So like the excellent MP he is — just about 30 years in the Commons worrying about the good people of Essex East — he put Cyprus, the Columbia River Treaty, VIP visits, Foreign Aid matters and other such essential things aside, and addressed himself to the more serious business of doing something about that Post Office.

Putting a little Cabinet Ministerial heat on the Public Works Department in places where it would do the most good got the quickest action, he was able to arrange a switch in Post Office plans and specifications from wood to brick.

And so just the other weekend he slipped down to Emeryville to open the edifice and incidentally check personally to make sure the Public Works Department planners and builders had done right by his constituents.

Like Conservatives in that part of Western Ontario say, how are you going to beat a guy like Paul Martin?

From experience in the nine elections of the past 29 years, they're convinced it is not going to be easy.

INTEGRATION

The National Capital has a large quota of Cadets at Royal Military College, and when they come home on leave, they take quite a kidding — as must their fellow Cadets at the other Canadian Services Colleges of Royal Roads and College Militaire Royal — from their civilian university contemporaries.

What they get from their undergrad friends on "Ivvy Street" is what is known as the "Paul Hellyer Integration Salute." This is recorded by slapping the open palm against the forehead and rolling the eyes upward in a frustrated what's-the-use expression. Mr. Hellyer himself has even been so saluted, acknowledging with a good-natured wave and a grin.

THE BIG LEAK

Since putting his Parliamentary good faith in question with his so-called "inside story" on the goings-on in the Commons Flag Committee, Vancouver Liberal MP Grant Deachman (pronounced Jeechman) is being referred to by still-irritated Conservatives, Ned Dems, Socreds and Creditistes as Grant Leachman (pronounced Leekman.)

THE HARD SELL

After the customary "Aw Shut Up," or "Sit Down, Stupid," rejoinders the Commons has got used to hearing these days, it was a pleasant change to hear something approaching the recognitions.

To East Kootenay Liberal MP James Byrnes who makes a habit of interrupting when Conservatives have the Commons floor, Alberta Tory MP Clifford Smallwood has cracked:

"If I could only buy you for what you're worth and sell you for what you think you're worth, I'd be on Easy Street."

Mr. Byrnes has no immediate comeback.

MOH Believes Fluoridation Only Practical Way to Cut Ravages of Dental Diseases

By Dr. McCall Metcalfe,
Belleville M.O.H.

Practically every Canadian during the last few lifetime experiences tooth decay or gum disease. Taking any community, over 95 percent of the school children will have tooth decay, many with complications.

Among adults a large percentage are due to early loss or mutilation of teeth by decay. During the years 1950-51 Canadian sickness showed that dental care made up 8.8 percent of the total health expenditure and during this period dental care amounted to $32.2 million of a total health care bill of $373.8 million. The average cost to a Canadian family for dental care was $7.20 — this was the actual cost of dental care given, not the cost of the care that was needed. No doubt the cost since then has increased.

Many surveys have been made on the prevalence of dental caries among school children. These surveys showed that when a child enters school he has 3 cavities open. At the age of six 20 percent have decay of permanent teeth and 80 percent have decay in the temporary teeth. By 12 or 13 the average child has five of his permanent teeth affected and 65 percent have had decay in the permanent dentition. Sixteen year olds have seven teeth affected and in the late teens and in the 20s it changes from nine to 16.

CONCLUSION

If a child receives early adequate and continuous dental care he or she will avoid many of the ravages of dental disease, but there are many obstacles to this. It would take a tremendous number of educational programs to convince the average parent of the benefit of continuous dental care from the age of three years onward. Then again the financial burden should be considered.

Providing the parent is willing is the dental profession in a position to give this service? The ratio throughout the country is estimated at 1 to 3000 compared with 1 to 650 during world war II. It should be realized that the population across the country is increasing but the number of dental students graduated each year does not meet the demand. Up to the present the work of the dental profession has been mainly the repairing of the ravages of dental disease. The only prospect for a change, is fluoridation, one of the most realistic approaches to the solution of our present difficulties.

BRANTFORD TEST

Brantford Ontario began water fluoridation in 1945 and supervised studies were carried out by the Dental Division of the Ontario Department of Health and by the Research Division and the Dental Health Division of the Department of National Health and Welfare. Sarnia and Stratford were used as controls. Sarnia had little or no fluoride in its water supply while Stratford had naturally occurring fluoride 1.3 to 1.6 PPM. Comparable children from each city have been examined in different subsequent surveys. The results of a survey showed a steady decrease in caries in Brantford. The proportion of Brantford children in the 8-6 years group with permanent teeth free from caries was about twice as great as for Sarnia and no doubt this proportion will increase over the years. As the 9-12 and the 12-14 age group in Brantford had not been drinking fluoridated water through the entire period of normal development the amount of benefit was not as marked as in the 6-8 year group. This survey was taken at the end of the first decade following the addition of fluoride to the Brantford water supply. No doubt the improvement in all age groups has continued to show a marked increase.

The results of communal fluoridation are not confined to Brantford and other Canadian municipalities that have communal fluoridation but are matched by several American cities. No untoward effects have occurred and the operation from the mechanical viewpoint is simple and cheap.

COST IS SMALL

The cost of installation of the equipment depends on the type of equipment and feed capacity. The cost of water fluoridation using sodium fluoride runs about 10 cents per capita per year but using sodium silico fluoride the cost would be reduced to about 6 cents per capita.

Compare these costs with the cost of treatment of decayed teeth and you will see they are negligible. According to the Medical Officer of Brantford no ill effects have been observed.

There are certain opponents to fluoridation and they come from a variety of sources. When pasteurization of milk, chlorination of water, diphtheria toxoid and smallpox vaccine were introduced they met with opposition but all have proved of great benefit. Everyone believes in progress and in my opinion fluoridation of communal water is a step forward and in a very few years after the water supply of Belleville is fluoridated people will all agree that it is of great benefit in preventing caries or tooth decay.

Certain religious sects are opposed to mass medication but fluoridation is prevention just as is chlorination. Some contend that fluoride is a cumulative poison, true, but one part per million, the amount added to water, is perfectly harmless. Certain drugs are deadly poison in sufficient quantity, but if properly used are life savers. Fluoride is not accumulative.

Builders, Realtors Propose Land Impost Be Deferred

Noisy Election Rally Held At Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa's rousing civic election campaign reached a new peak Wednesday when a boisterous crowd at a rally was told that Mayor Charlotte Whitton might read the Riot Act.

About 300 persons turned out to hear 37 political candidates in one of a series of regional mass meetings of candidates in the Dec. 7 election.

The trouble began when Mrs. P. D. Richardson, chairman of the meeting, allowed Mayor Charlotte Whitton to change places with Roy Bushfield, a public school board candidate. Miss Whitton was scheduled to be the 36th speaker and Mr. Bushfield the 14th.

When the mayor finished her 10-minute address, Irving Greenberg, board of control candidate, complained about th..switch.

SHOUT SUPPORT

Some members of the audience shouted support for Mr. Greenberg, and Mrs. Richardson, after speaking with the mayor, announced:

"The mayor has the Riot Act with her and is prepared to read it." Mayor Whitton did not speak.

Police arrived a few minutes later, but did not enter the building. They would not say why they were called.

Things cooled off after the incident, and by the time last candidates spoke, only 90 persons remained in the hall.

Members of the Quinte Home Builders' Association, along with a representation of local realtors yesterday at an informal meeting with city council asked that the proposed impost on undeveloped land be deferred until next June.

Council has already approved of the impost by way of recommendation with the intention of putting the charge into force on January 1st.

Yesterday Charles W. Lambert, Quinte Home Builders' president, told council that the decision to put the impost into effect had caught them with development plans already underway and they were unprepared for the additional costs involved.

Mrs. P. D. Richardson, chairman of the meeting, allowed Mayor Charlotte Whitton to change places with Roy Bushfield, a public school board candidate. Miss Whitton was scheduled to be the 36th speaker and Mr. Bushfield the 14th.

When the mayor finished her 10-minute address, Irving Greenberg, board of control candidate, complained about th..switch.

Two weeks ago the builders' association presented a brief to council asking that the impost be deferred and the matter was laid over for two weeks.

The proposed impost would see a charge levied against undeveloped land to assist in paying the costs of storm and sanitary sewers.

Canada Rejects Russia's Demand For Extradition

OTTAWA (CP)—The government has rejected Russia's demand for the extradition of Dmytro Kupiak of Toronto to face charges in the Soviet Union of war crimes allegedly committed during the Second War, the external affairs department announced Wednesday.

A statement authorized by External Affairs Minister Martin said that Russia had failed to provide any proof, evidence or legal basis for the request. Canada "considers the case closed," the statement said.

It said Canada has no treaty obligation with respect to the extradition of anyone to the Soviet Union.

Neighbor Out of Line In Her Nosey Requests

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Last week the woman next door told me (literally over the back fence) she was sure the couple next door is not married. She said, "I happen to know his first wife would not give him a divorce."

The couple under discussion has young children. They are pleasant and they mind their own business. When the gossip asked if I thought she should demand to see their marriage license "to put an end to all the talk," I told her this was not a police state and to forget it. She shot back, "I can show you my marriage licence. Can you show me yours?"

ANN LANDERS

I said, "I don't know where my marriage licence is and even if I did I'd be darned if I'd show it to anyone unless it was demanded by a court."

The woman then hinted that my husband and I weren't married and maybe I'd better find the licence to clear my name. She claims people who have nothing to hide don't resent being asked for proof. Express yourself on this please. — BURNING.

DEAR BURNING — In America a person is innocent until proven guilty. If anyone asked me to produce my marriage license (and I know precisely where it is) I'd tell them to go take a long walk on a short dock.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — What is wrong with a wife who will not recognize apple pie in a cafeteria?

Myrtle is fat, a school teacher and intelligent. Last night we were having dinner out. Myrtle pointed to a slice of pie and asked, "What kind is that?" The young man replied, "That's apple, Lady." Myrtle answered, "Oh, I thought it was peach." The young man looked at her and said, "I thought everybody knew what apple pie looked like."

Myrtle gave him an icy stare and replied, "Thank you, I'll take cherry." All the while she was holding up the line. I'd like your opinion."— L.L. FROM ATLANTA.

DEAR L.L. My opinion is that I can't imagine anything about which an opinion mattered less.

I am printing your letter to show a few million readers what some people consider a problem.

Did it ever occur to you that Myrtle's eyesight isn't as good as it used to be? Now — do you want to take her out and shoot her?

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'd appreciate it if you'd print this letter for all 14½-year-old girls to see.

I want to say how thankful I am that my parents didn't let me do all the things I wanted to do when I was 11. In the 6th grade I wanted heels, and lipstick, lipstick and the whole bit. I didn't see why I couldn't go to boy-girl parties. I was big for my age and thought I was mature.

When my parents said "no," I was sure they were old-fashioned and mean besides. I told them their ancient ideas were ruining my life.

I'm getting those privileges this year and I really appreciate them now. I want to say to my Mom and Dad: "Thanks for a job well done." — GRATEFUL DAUGHTER.

DEAR DAUGHTER — The job isn't done yet — but, thank goodness, you're well on the way. Write to me on your 21st birthday.

'Passion and Destiny' Produced By Canadian Players Enjoyed

Compiler and director Tony van Bridge obviously aims this production at the young or unsophisticated audience who are not quite sure whether they will like Shakespeare. Indeed, the stuffy beginning — a mere reading of sonnets by four stiffly posed actors — goes on long enough to make the audience begin to wish they had never come. Then suddenly some common fellow from the back of the audience cries 'stop' and dashes down to argue with the actors, who forthwith set out to prove that Shakespeare can be fun. A crude device, but effective.

Costumes are hardly used. Straight and simple evening dresses and grey business suits serve admirably, with the addition of occasional properties, and the result is that the actors are free to step instantly in and out of any role. With movement and voice they are completely convincing.

To show the argumentative chap from the audience that Shakespeare is rich in interesting scenes, the players undertake to present some involving elements all might experience, starting with proposals of marriage. First the soldier king, Henry the Fifth, experiences some difficulty getting his meaning expressed to a French-speaking princess; then the murderous Richard woos an English queen across the very coffin of his victim, her husband. The scenes are perhaps not all equally common in everyday experience, but with the Common Man from the audience up there on stage the audience does feel a certain involvement.

THEME EXPLORED

The theme of jealousy is explored a little further; it ends in merriment when Falstaff tangles with two merry wives and a husband, and in tragedy when the gullible Othello is misled by Iago. Between scenes the man from the audience and the actors relax with jesting and philosophizing. But the philosophizing is remarkably thin, only barely an excuse for stringing the various scenes together.

The evening as a whole, though, is well constructed. It comes to a tremendous climax in the long and intensely moving selection from Othello. Then, wisely, the tension is tapered off (remains low and of the program. The last few selections prove nothing much, but they do not even bring us back to where we started, for Max Helpman, as the man from the audience, manages to cut to be an actor and recites rather pleasingly as Julius Caesar.

There is a good balance among the four main selections: Paul Harding agile and changeable, makes love as both Henry V and Richard II, and then acts as the tempter to Mervyn Blake first as the foolish Ford and then, slickly wicked, as Iago. A substantial figure, Mervyn Blake is tricked and betrayed in two selections: riotously as Falstaff, than in grand histrionic style as Othello.

SUNNY AND CHARMING

Mary Benning is sunny and charming, innocently unconquerable as Desdemona, and Amelia Hall brings a breath of early sanity to every line she speaks, particularly as Desdemona's maid.

The set was pleasingly designed and intelligently used: a little platform with steps leading up from two directions, serving to give a variety of acting levels; a curtain to disappear behind; a couple of jalousie-type screens for eavesdropping through and to cast interestingly - patterned shadows; and a long bench to serve as seat, bed, and coffin. A large laundry hamper gets a good workout in Falstaff's scene. Lighting is used to focus attention on the upper level or elsewhere, and, sometimes dim and sometimes bright, to set a mood.

The Belleville Theatre Guild are to be praised for bringing the Canadian Players, particularly since more than half the audience was high school students. An audience has a "great part to play" in any performance, and this one was quick to understand, appreciate and react.

FAMED EMBROIDERY

In the Lounge

(On reading the book, "In Pursuit of Poetry," by Robert Hillyer, in the lounge of the new Y.M.C.A. building, Belleville, November 4, 1964.)

Ironic in this streamlined age,
After all the money spent
On this and that, the latest rage
Of new development

To make this edifice superb,
The pride of modern men —
That here I muse on noun and verb

Of Danish poet, Jensen:

He, winner of the Nobel prize,
Made possible by dynamite,
A strange collusion in our eyes
But end-result is really right:

And apt — the endless train of science
Prevailing in this ukra room;
Just now a silence in defiance
To all the rush, the speed and zoom!

The stillness of my thoughts revere
The busy action of the past;
I muse upon those lines most dear
And make in verse these musings last.

Finns, Spanish, Danes, French, British and some of the other nationalities contributed their specialities.

There wasn't a scrap of anything left," reported Mrs. Janet Piers, wife of Rear-Admiral Desmond W. Piers who is head of the Canadian military mission here. Mrs. Piers and Mrs. Lola Kidd, wife of the senior Canadian minister at the embassy, were co-chairmen under the honorary chairmanship of Mrs. Charles Ritchie, wife of the Canadian ambassador.

This was the 16th year for the food fair and the seventh participation by wives of Canadian diplomatic, military and press representatives in Washington.

YWCA SHARES

The Canadian YWCA will get its slice of the revenue later.

There were six dozen of the Arctic owl dolls which are money-earners for their Eskimo inventors. "Mountie" dolls sold out as usual along with two cases of fiddleheads — tender canned fern tips—donated by the New Brunswick travel bureau.

Canadian saleswomen, asked to describe the flavor for their prospective customers, said the fiddleheads falls between mushrooms and asparagus.

The home - baked goods ranged from shortbreads to flaky white and brown bread, with some Canadian wives baking double lots to make sure supplies would be adequate.

There was habitant pea soup from Quebec and 100 recipe books featuring distinctive Canadian dishes—half in English and half French.

Mrs. Piers, a Haligonian, said the final sale came when she got $3 for some painted branches as the booth decorations were coming down.

Presbyterial Executive Plans Annual Meet

The members of the Belleville Presbyterial executive of the United Church Women met at King St. United Church, Trenton, November 30th to formulate plans for their annual meeting to be held in the same church on January 27th and 28th, 1965.

The meeting opened with a warm welcome to all by the president, Mrs. Frank Smith, Newburgh, followed by an appropriate devotion on Advent led by Mrs. K. Lipsey of Napanee. Routine business was dealt with and the treasurer noted that two-thirds of the total allocation had been received. The members expressed their pleasure and hoped all locals would complete their allocation by December 31 and would also be able to include extra for the "Over and Above Gifts".

Appreciation was expressed through Mrs. Bray of Ivanhoe by those receiving aid through the Bursary Fund. It was decided to continue this fund during 1965.

The vice-presidents each reported in a successful fall rallies.

Included in the reports of the standing committee was the notice read by Mrs. G. Waldie of the Annual Youth Conference to be held at Niagara Falls, December 27th to 30th.

The Presbyterial allocation for 1965 as sent down from Conference was accepted as presented.

Mrs. L. Fields expressed thanks at having been sent to the Presbyterial to the School for Leaders held at Albert College, Belleville, during July.

A training day, under the leadership of Marion Thomas will be held during the week of February 15th, 1965.

Mrs. K. Weaver, literature secretary reported that the Presbyterial had sold over $1000 worth of books this year.

All those having reports were reminded to have them to the Secretary, Mrs. C. Johnston not later than December 31st, 1964.

Program for the annual meeting was discussed at length and a sub committee appointed to finalize the plans. It is to be noted that the men are particularly invited to attend the evening session on January 27th.

Church Groups

CHRIST CHURCH EVENING BRANCH

Members of the Evening Branch Woman's Auxiliary of Christ Church held their final business meeting of the year on Monday evening. The devotional service was conducted by the president, Mrs. L. Mason assisted by Mrs. M. Devolin.

Favorable reports were read by the various secretaries.

SIX BALES SENT

Subscriptions for the "Living Message" were received and church calendars were on sale. Six bales of new and used clothing have been sent to missions in the west.

Pledges and gifts of money to missions to the value of $600 were approved and Christmas remembrances will be sent to a family in Unity, Sask.

CHRISTMAS BASKETS

On Monday evening the closing meeting will take the form of a social evening, each member is asked to bring canned goods which will be donated to the Christmas cheer baskets.

Christmas cards will be sent to sick and shut-in members of the parish.

Following the business a lively auction sale was conducted by Mrs. A. Gilroy when many articles of needlework were sold.

Mrs. A. Bongard and Mrs. W. Edwards were tea hostesses.

SARNIA, Ont. (CP)—Jacoba Coster has been battling for the young for 30 years.

She helped save Jewish children from the Nazis during the Second World War.

She was instrumental in the formation of UNICEF—the UN International Children's Emergency Fund.

And she has long campaigned against corporal punishment for children.

Still remarkably active at 70, Mrs. Coster says there's a big job to be done in Canada where, she insists, "parents are worse than anywhere else I've ever been."

"Canadian parents must learn to have respect for their children. These are small human beings but adults don't realize that, very often. It's shocking, some of the things I've seen and heard."

Wife, mother, psychologist, music and art teacher, sculptor, educationist and master bookbinder, Jacoba Coster draws her convictions from the philosophies of Dr. Alfred Adler, the world famed psychologist, add Dr. Maria Montessori, the educationist and psychologist.

Her indefatigable career began when she left school at 18 with the intention of becoming either a concert pianist or a recital singer. Instead, she married at 21 and travelled with her husband to India and other parts of Asia where he established plantations and factories.

HOMELAND OCCUPIED

In 1927 the Costers returned to the Netherlands. There she was elected a member of the Royal Society of Musicians, a member of the Federated Holland Societies of Artists, Sculptors and Engravers, and later, a member of the American Association of Adherian Psychology, a branch of the International Association of Mental Health.

She founded a branch of the Society of Philosophy and Psychology in Bussum and Hilversum, and, took part in the founding of schools and branches in the Montessori movement.

During this period Mrs. Coster translated eight philosophical books from English and German into Dutch. She also speaks Malay and French.

Actively interested in education trends in Holland, where use of the strap in schools has been outlawed for more than a century, she began her own observation studies in schools founded by Dr. Montessori, in which non-punitive methods are employed to discipline children.

During the war she founded the Children's Aid Society for foreign Children—an extension of the Kinderecomie she created in 1936—and smuggled Jewish children to relatives and foster families in England and North Africa after her homeland was overrun by the Nazis.

MOVED TO CANADA

After the death of her husband, Mrs. Coster moved to Canada in 1958 to join her two children.

Today, from her home near the Lake Huron shore, she is still striving for the young—attempting to educate parents in humanitarian methods of rearing children.

She is the organizer of activities for the Canadian Mental Health Association in Sarnia and district and advises on the benefits of the Adlerian and Montessori systems of raising and educating children.

Mrs. Coster has strong opinions on how youngsters should be treated.

"Psychiatrists should keep their hands off children; shouldn't be allowed near them. They often they advise parents or attempt to help a child, and nothing but harm comes from it."

A child has many "almost insignificant needs" that adults unthinkingly curb, she says.

"Most parents will tell their children not to touch things, at the dinner table or elsewhere, but this is very wrong. To a small child the sense of touch is that child's way of learning about the world. He should be allowed to sense everything . . ."

SCULPTURING COURSE

Mrs. Coster says that although Canadians fought for freedom in two wars and abhor authoritative, dictatorial government, they take their children in an authoritative, dictatorial educational system in their private homes and in schools."

"How many destructive character traits can develop in the minds of children in the cases of authoritative mishandling is shown by the records of juvenile delinquency."

She uses her knowledge of music and art to entertain the children she teaches every week, helping in "this reality of creation, observable all around, in nature, in human beings, in everything alive."

She has conducted a course in modelling and sculpture for the extension department of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., and recently set up a painting group for some 60 acquaintances who now share in those rare moments of relaxation when she sits before an easel and paints.

A vote of thanks was moved to Mrs. Chisholm for opening her home.

Frosty Fair Features Snowflake Decor

Snowflakes inside and out were a feature of the "Frosty Fair" tea and bazaar at Tabernacle United Church on Wednesday afternoon. The first big snowfall of the season did not deter a large crowd from attending what is usually the last big bazaar of the season.

Inside hundreds of white paper snowflakes were suspended from the ceiling carrying out the frosty motif.

Rev. M. G. McFarlane, minister of the church, opened the fair with a few words, explaining that the occasion represented the work of all the church, its people, the men and the ladies.

CHRISTMAS CAROLS

Entering the church the visitor was greeted with Christmas music and a creche scene arranged in the upstairs hall. A gracious welcome was given by Mrs. M. G. McFarlane, wife of the minister; Mrs. R. D. Boyce, convener of the bazaar; Mrs. B. D. Salisbury, convener, and Mrs. J. Aitchison. Tickets were received at the door by Mrs. F. Davidson.

The entrance to the tearoom was marked with two posts to represent stone. One was topped with an arrangement of red and white poinsettias and the other with a rural mail box full of Christmas parcels and an elf perched on the lid.

TEA ROOM

The tea table held a traditional centrepiece with frosted cones, red poinsettias and evergreens tied with red and gold globes. Lighted white candles flanked the arrangement which was balanced by silver tea services at each end of the table. A fireplace scene was arranged on the platform with dolls, parcels under a silver tree, and a spotlight with colored effect that revolved throwing interesting lighting over the whole setting. Mrs. R. Baldrick presented the tea room assisted by Mrs. H. Robinson.

Decoration for the tea room were supervised by Mrs. Lewis Andrews, and the rest of the rooms and the tea tables were in the responsibility of Mrs. R. Atkins, Mrs. E. Goodfellow and Mrs. R. Baldrick.

Those pouring tea were: Mrs. M. McFarlane, Mrs. C. Templer, Mrs. A. Archibald, Mrs. B. Boyce, Mrs. W. Salisbury, Mrs. G. Fried, Mrs. K. Day, Mrs. J. Aitchison, Mrs. E. Cornish and Miss E. Horton.

VARIOUS BOOTHS

The fancy work table, convened by Mrs. G. Gorullos, sold framed pictures of Tabernacle Church as well as the unique pillowslips and other handiwork. The net nylon cleaners, which have been a popular sales item at all bazaars, were again in evidence, some with long wooden handles.

Mrs. C. A. Mott was convener at the delicatessen booth where a whole meal could be purchased and taken home. The home baking table was the centre of activity when Mrs. G. Stewart and her committee doing a brisk business.

Mrs. G. S. Seaman was in charge of the children's booth, where items for the small members of the family displayed. Candy was sold by Mrs. E. Hinas and her committee and the apron table was convened by Mrs. W. B. May. Holiday aprons printed with candy canes and other Christmas motifs brightened the display.

Dolls and doll clothes were focal points of interest for mothers and grandmothers of little girls. Mrs. D. McLean was convener of this table, assisted by her committee.

MEN HAVE TABLE

Mr. Norris Cunningham was in charge of the men's booth, where a variety of goods was on sale, including some woodwork done by the men. The 1-C Club had a white elephant table with Gary Coe in charge.

Mrs. N. Robb and Mrs. Mc-Kinnon looked after the parcel post where an interesting array of packages intrigued the buyer.

Mrs. H. Burley looked after the children in the nursery.

The efforts of many people went into making the bazaar a great success.

Club Activities

MOONLIGHT MUNCHERS MELROSE

The seventh meeting of the Melrose Moonlight Munchers group was held recently in the church basement. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by Gloria Graham. All the girls were present at this time.

The next meeting to be held on December 5 at which time each is to bring a guest. The home assignment was the preparation of a supper which is served on such occasions. The menu for this meal was decided upon after which Mrs. Laker discussed the characteristics of a good tea biscuit.

The members' notes were based on home table services and good table manners.

A work meeting was held on Novembr 21 to make further plans for the forthcoming supper. The girls were assigned various tasks and each was told what to bring to the supper.

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE

The last regular meeting of the Women of the Moose was held in the Moose Hall with the Senior Regent Nell Shandraw presiding.

A new member, Marion Campell, was enrolled in the chapter. It was decided that the Christmas supper would be held on December 16. The Loyal Order and their wives are cordially invited and all those attending are asked to bring a gift valued at one dollar. The children's Christmas party will be held on December 12th.

It was reported that Eleanor Hume was on the sick list and that the hospital chairman, Mary Morris, was still a patient in the Belleville General Hospital. A euchre party is to be held at the home of co-worker Clara Seames in the near future.

After the meeting lunch was served by Lillian Campbell and her committee.

WEDNESDAY, Dec. 2, 1964

Louise-Joseph Pigeon (PC—Joliette - l'Assomption-Montcalm) said he is against a plebiscite.

H. W. Herridge (NDP—Kootenay West) said he personally favors a plebiscite and the Red Ensign as the national flag.

Michael Starr (PC — Ontario) said unless one flag is chosen through a plebiscite a variety of flags will be flown across Canada.

THURSDAY, Dec. 3

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. to continue the flag debate. The Senate stands adjourned until Dec. 14.

Pope

ommy made the sign of the cross, then smiled and reached down to shake some of the upraised hands in the group of 300 non-Christians.

In addresses to the various groups the Pope emphasized the need for unity between all peoples and called for renewed efforts in the "struggle against the ills that darken the lives of innumerable people all over the world: Against poverty, hunger and illness."

In his speech to the non-Christian group he said: ". . . We must come closer together, not only through the modern means of communications, through press and radio . . . we must come together with our hearts, in mutual understanding, esteem and love.

"We must meet not merely as tourists, but as pilgrims who set out to find God—not in buildings of stone but in human hearts. Man must meet man, nation meet nation, as brothers and sisters.

MUST WORK TOGETHER

"In this mutual understanding and friendship, in this sacred communion we must also begin to work together to build the common future of the human race.

"We must find the concrete and practical way of reorganization and co-operation, so that all resources be pooled and all efforts united toward achieving a true communion among all nations.

Such a union, the Pope added, could not be built on universal terror or fear of mutual destruction but on common love.

The Pontiff told the non-Catholic Christian group that divisions among Christians were painful to all those who wanted to serve God.

He said the fact that "so many initiatives have already been taken to repair these divisions is a source of joy and consolation."

PROTESTANTS CALL

His callers at the residence of Bombay's Roman Catholic archbishop included bishops and officials of the Church of South India, a historic merger involving about 1,000,000 Protestants of formerly separate communions.

Also present for conversations facilitated by the Pope were representatives of the ancient Mar Thoma Syrian Church, the Methodist Church in Southern Asia, the Anglican Church of India, Pakistan, Burma and Ceylon, the Evangelical Lutheran Federation, the North India Provincial Synod Methodist Church, and the National Christian Council of India.

Early in the series of audiences, he met privately with Moran Mar Baselios Cugen I, Catholicos of the Orthodox Syrian Church which has about 1,000,000 members. It is one of three ancient Orthodox bodies separated from Rome in the middle ages in a complex dispute over papal supremacy.

Voicing determination to strive "humbly but confidently for the reconciliation of all Christians" in unity, Pope Paul told his Christian guests "the way to full communion is a difficult one."

But it "offers an opportunity to the genuine charity of all Christians and to their patience in striving to carry out the inscrutable decrees of God.

"God grant that the fraternal greeting we are exchanging now be the pledge of our common desire that, with the grace of God, and according to the ways which He will determine, Catholics and the Orthodox in India may one day arrive at that happy state (of unity).

Keep your eye on this picture when you make the Swedish Weathervanes Mary Moore is giving you today. The picture will help you when it comes time to shape and decorate them. These are the traditional Lussekake served with coffee on Saint Lucia's Day, December 13th, in Sweden.

Weathervanes From Sweden

By MARY MOORE

The crossed double S shape of the Saint Lucia buns I have made and am describing today looks more like a weathervane to me than the shining sun it is supposed to symbolize.

I have taken liberties with this traditional bun served in Sweden on the morning of Saint Lucia's Day, December 13th. The original calls for cardamom or saffron for flavoring. I shopped at 4 stores for both before I found them and decided this would discourage too many of you and I want you to make these. So I substituted cinnamon as the spice.

Meanwhile sift and measure flour, raisins and nuts. After 10 minutes when yeast is foamy, add 1¼ cups of the flour and the raisins, nuts and egg and beat well to blend thoroughly, then add remaining flour, mix in and turn out on floured board and knead 200 times (or beat 5 minutes in strong electric beater with dough hook). Return to greased bowl, turn dough over to bring greased side up, cover and let rise until doubled. Don't hurry it. Punch down and roll out thinly on floured board to rectangle 15 x 10". Cut into three 5" wide strips. Cut each into 12 narrow strips. Roll each strip into pencil-thin strip 8" long under your floured palms. Have ready 2 buttered cookie sheets? Form a cross with 2 strips on cookie sheet. Now curl each of the 4 ends into a tight coil, always coiling each tip in same direction. Press a raisin (or for Christmas, a piece of red glace cherry) in centre of each coil. (Note: I think this work proceeds more efficiently if you shape 18 pencil strips at one time, then shape 9 buns on one cookie sheet.) Repeat until dough is used and second cookie sheet is full. Glaze by brushing with 1 egg yolk diluted with 1 tablespoon water and mixed well with 1 tablespoon sugar. Let rise until doubled. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. 12 to 15 minutes or until pale gold. Do not burn. These are'nt their best served warm. The 4 little coiled ends make convenient and delicious first bites. Most of our crowd buttered the buns. Serve warm for breakfast with coffee as the French serve Croissants.

(Swedish Lussekake) (18 buns. Double recipe if you want 36.)

½ cup scalded milk,
¼ cup shortening (room temperature),
½ teaspoon cinnamon (would be cardamon or saffron in Sweden),
1 tablespoon grated orange rind (from 1 large orange),
6 tablespoons sugar,
½ teaspoon salt,
1 package granular yeast,
¼ cup plus 2 tablespoons warm water,
1 egg,
2¾ cups sifted all-purpose flour,
¾ cup Sultana raisins,
¾ cup chopped walnuts.

Four scalded milk into large mixing bowl and add the shortening, cinnamon, orange rind, sugar and salt. When shortening is melted add the warm water. Test the temperature with your finger. When it is just a little bit warm to touch, sprinkle yeast over and let stand 10 minutes.

STIRLING — Last Saturday evening the members of Stirling Lodge No. 60 A.F. and A.M. honored their ladies with an evening's entertainment.

Women's Institutes

FOXBORO W.I.

Mrs. Irvine Badgley was a gracious hostess when the Foxboro Women's Institute met for their November meeting with Mrs. Wallee presiding. Fourteen members and eight visitors were present. The treasurer's report showed an encouraging bank balance and plans were made for another euchre party.

Mrs. Beatty capably dealt with the motto, "World affairs are our affairs," saying in effect, that we all have a certain amount of responsibility in all that goes on in the world, and we are all affected by world affairs.

Bob Dafoe gave two delightful accordion numbers which were enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Walley introduced Mrs. B. Summers, a former resident of the Carmel district, who has just returned from three years' residence in Australia. Mrs. Summers showed a number of pictures of Australia, and a few from other parts of Europe taken on their trip home. This part of the program was particularly enjoyed. Following the showing of her pictures Kay passed around a number of souvenirs she had brought, among them an Australian boomerang and two tanned kangaroo skins which were very soft. Mrs. H. Beatty thanked Kay for her delightful part in the program and presented her with a momento of the occasion.

A delicious lunch was served by the hostess and lunch committee and a social hour was enjoyed bringing to a close an educational and interesting evening.

Susanna's Family Fare

WOW!

Hear Ye! Hear Ye! If you're a copper bottom pot owner, and you have been in such a hurry all these years that those copper bottoms now resemble a foggy London night instead of their original sunshine bright, and you'd be delighted with a no-scour restoration plan, take special heed to this advice from Mrs. Joyce Burton:

Dear Susanna: To make copper bottom pots gleam like new make a paste of 1 cup of vinegar and enough flour to thicken. Thoroughly coat the utensil, allow to dry and rinse off. Or, dip half a lemon in salt and scour briskly. Let dry, and rinse in hot water. — J. B.

Now, we experimented here in our testing laboratory with a pot that was so stained and discolored it was almost beyond recognition, and it seemed to us that there was just no way to bring the copper back to its original lustre without hours of scouring. How wrong could we be!

First, we applied the flour and vinegar treatment. After it was dry we rinsed it well with hot water and immediately sprinkled it thoroughly with salt. Then we dipped a cloth in commercial lemon juice and wiped it over well. What a combination!

The copper came out absolutely gleaming, smooth and brand new looking — and believe me, it's had years and years and years to get nervous in the service in the kitchen.

I couldn't have been more amazed — considering its condition when we started. I just didn't think it was possible! SUSANNA

OF COURSE, there are times when you and your child fail to see eye to eye in matters of personal appearance and dress. It's important that you choose carefully just what's worth asserting your adult authority about, either in the form of a flat veto or in the constant hints known as nagging. Any youngster whose record is excellent except for overly long hair, say, probably won't be delinquent despite lengthy locks.

Neighbors' Aid Group Elects New Executive

2nd THURLOW — The business meeting and election of officers was held at the Neighbors' Aid hall on Wednesday afternoon with about 32 in attendance.

The president, Mrs. S. Ray, presided and welcomed all and thanked the hostess, Mrs. Manley Mitchell presided at the piano.

Mrs. Archie Greatrix gave an interesting talk on their trip to Palm Springs last year. She told of visiting the Mormon Temple at Salt Lake City, which was the most beautiful work of art, being all hand carved with no nails used. The building took years to complete. They went on to California and Palm Springs where they stayed at a trailer camp.

Their niece, Miss Barbara Greatrix, lives there and had the trailer reserved for them.

She told of the mountains which were from 1000 to 1200 feet high. The country was barren, no trees, or grass, just a sandy desert. There were ditches built all over, so when the rain came down the mountains they were prepared at all times for floods, which did occur quite often.

They also visited Disneyland and the salt fields around Mexico.

A vote of thanks was given to Mrs. Greatrix for a most interesting talk.

Mrs. Arnold Mitchell read a fitting tribute to the late Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Gray, who passed away just six months apart. A minute of silence was observed and an appropriate hymn was sung in their memory.

NEW OFFICERS

Mrs. Gene Stratton read the slate of officers, with Mrs. Bruce Portt conducting the election of officers, who are as follows:

President, Mrs. Manley Mitchell; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Jack Chumbley; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Thomas Belnap; secretary, Mrs. Maurice Dent; treasurer, Mrs. Arnold Mitchell; press reporter, Mrs. Douglas Atkins; state officers, Mrs. T. Belnap and Mrs. Gerald Stratton; auditors, Mrs. Earl Wells, Mrs. Robert Atkins; sick committee, Mrs. T. Wever, Mrs. Harry Thomson, Miss Sarah Stickney.

Mrs. Ray thanked all for their fine co-operation during her term of office. Mrs. Arnold Mitchell gave the financial statement for the year. Mrs. Robert Atkins reported that she and Mrs. Manley Mitchell had audited the books.

A potluck Christmas supper was arranged for the members and their families to be held December 11th. Committees were named to arrange the program, decorating hall, candy bags and other preparations.

EUCHRE PARTY

Mrs. Fred Mitchell and Mrs. Douglas Atkins were hostesses for the Neighbor's Aid euchre on Friday night. Fifteen tables were in play with prizes won as follows: ladies, Mesdames C. Turner, C. Allison; consolation, T. McGrath (playing as lady); men's, Messrs. V. R. Watts, Leslie Clements; consolation, Cameron Portt. Lucky draw, Mr. Robert Irwin. Lunch was served and a social time enjoyed.

U.C.W. Meeting

CANNIFTON U.C.W.

The Evening Unit of Canniffton U.C.W. met in the church on the last day of November.

After the regular opening procedure general business was discussed. Doris Ellsworth gave a short resume of the Presbytery meeting. Mildred McPherson invited the members to her home for the December meeting. It was agreed that each member would bring a "White Gift."

The worship service was conducted by Mildred McPherson, assisted by Mary Thornton, Beverly Reid and Gertrude Bowers.

The worship topic was "God is One — There is No Other."

Mary Thornton gave an interesting talk entitled "What if Christ had not been born?" She told about the cruelty and oppression under the Romans at the time of Christ's birth and the strife in the world until the present day, but hope was given to man by the birth of Christ. M. McPherson read a timely article.

The Experts Say
Recreating Tasty Ghosts Of Christmases Past

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) —A kissing ball and plum cakes help conjure ghosts of Christmas past at Mackenzie House in downtown Toronto. Home-made decorations and recipes from old cookbooks are used to recreate the holiday atmosphere of the Upper Canada of about 100 years ago.

Shirley McManus, in charge of the Christmas party, says anyone could do it. "It's a lot of work, but it is fun."

Mrs. McManus is secretary to the director of the Toronto Historical Board which operates the home given to William Lyon Mackenzie, the fiery rebel who became Toronto's first mayor. He died there in 1861.

From Dec. 11 to Dec. 20 it will be decorated, Mrs. McManus says, "not necessarily the way the Mackenzies would have decorated, but it will be typical of the period. We have done a lot of research on it."

Almost all of the decorations are hand - made. Once they would probably have been made by the children of the family.

The most colorful is the kissing ball which hangs in a doorway. Use two crossed embroidery hoops covered with wire mesh as a frame for the ball. Then cover it completely with greenery, small fruits and berries, possibly paper flowers, attach ribbons at the bottom, and you have a kissing ball.

SHELLAC CRANBERRIES

The tree is trimmed with popcorn and cranberry strings, small candles in holders wired to the branches, and small wicker baskets or paper cones filled with hard candies.

Mrs. McManus says cranberry strings should be made at the last minute so the berries will not rot. They can be shellacked with a brush after they are strung to make them last longer. If you dip them, the shellac will soak them too much.

Looping garlands of strung popcorn would decorate a fireplace, with greenery for the mantel top. "Greenery was used a lot, wreaths were common, and garlands of greens."

A century ago a Yule log burned in the fireplace all Christmas day—it was bad luck if it went out.

"They used hardwood. After it had burned all day, the bit left over was put in the attic to keep the house from being struck by lightning. The next year it was used to start the new Yule log."

A colorful substitute for the real thing can be made from newspapers and chemical salts.

Mrs. McManus says Christmas dinner hasn't changed very much, except that once goose was more common than turkey.

During the 10-day open house, token amounts of old dessert recipes are cooked on the wood stove at Mackenzie house. Mrs. McManus found some of them in a cookbook dating from the period and entitled Domestic Cooking for the Family by a Lady. Mrs. Rundel.

One, for cranberry punch, calls for 2 cups cranberries, 2 cups water, ½ cup sugar, 2 tablespoons lemon, 1½ cups ginger ale.

Cook cranberries in boiling water for about 10 minutes or until the skins of the cranberries pop. Strain. Boil the juice with sugar, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Add lemon and chill. Just before serving add 1½ cups ginger ale. Serves 8 to 10.

Another, called little plum cakes—they are actually more like cookies—is: dry 1 pound of flour and mix with 6 ounces of finely pounded sugar. Beat 6 ounces of butter to a cream, and add three well-beaten eggs, half a pound of currants, washed and dried, and the flour and sugar. Beat all for some time, then sprinkle flour on tin plates, and drop the batter on them. Bake in a walnut. If properly mixed, the batter will be a stiff paste. Bake in a brisk oven.

REDEEM SHARES

B.C. Sugar Refinery Ltd. will redeem 100,000 of its five-per-cent preferred shares Jan. 31, the company announced Wednesday in Vancouver. The $20 shares will be redeemed at par plus accrued benefits. The move will reduce B.C Sugar's five-per-cent preferred shares to 300,000 outstanding. It issued 800,000 in August, 1961.

RAWDON — Twenty members of Rawdon circuit Young Peoples Union convened in Mount Pleasant Church hall for their first meeting in November with the president Miss Barbara Williams in charge.

The Mount Pleasant girls served refreshments.

SECOND MEETING

Last Wednesday evening the group held their second meeting with an attendance of 25 young people. They spent over an hour at the Stirling Bowl-O-Drome for recreation. Following this they gathered at the Rawdon manse where Miss Janet Fletcher and her mother Mrs. W. G. Fletcher were the hostesses.

Lyle Couch conducted the devotional and was assisted by Nancy Donaldson, Carol Beckett, Barbara Williams, Janet Fletcher and Fred McAdam.

Plans were made to hold the next meeting at Wellmans on December 2.

Successful Living

Labelled Rattled Because Of His Love for Dogs

DEAR DORIS — My husband is a mail carrier. His fellow workers make fun of him because he likes dogs. All of them seem to hate them and claim they would shoot any dog, even if it did no harm to them. They say he must be mentally rattled because he's the only one in their midst that loves dogs.

DORIS CLARK

Now Doris, my husband asked me this: "If I, among 30 men am the only one that loves dogs (even if I did have a rough time with some at one time or another at my job), am I really mentally low as the fellows claim or am I only one sane person among 30 mentally low persons?"

Believe me, Doris, he's beginning to think that those fellows are right, and I say that they are crude and don't respect his likes and dislikes. — ONE BIG DOG LOVER.

* * *

DEAR DOG LOVER — Some people hate the whole human race because someone once sank their teeth in them. And we call such people paranoid. Dogs are also individuals. Through liking "man's best friend" your mail-carrying husband has learned how to handle them. 'Nuff said?

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I would like to make some extra money for myself. The money I earn goes towards our joint account for bugs and my husband will not let me have any of it. Could you help me? — STYMIED.

* * *

DEAR STYMIED — Any joint account I ever heard of was equally accessible to both parties. Could it be you both agreed on what the account was for, and he is merely holding you to your agreement?

Money squabbles are at times a mere token of a more serious disagreement between a husband and wife. Treating the symptom, i.e., lack of spending money, by doing other work, may compound the problem. It may leave some warmth-producing tasks undone, and further impoverish your marriage.

In case it can help, I'm sending you my leaflet "Why Suffer In Silence?" which puts up a case for talking it out, even if your long since decided your spouse is hopelessly prejudiced. (Available to readers for a stamped, self-addressed envelope and ten cents.)

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I am interested in becoming an air line hostess and would like to go on overseas flights, but am not using a foreign language.

I would like to learn to speak French fluently, but I don't care to learn to write it or translate it. When I get through school, do you think it is a good idea to go to Quebec and pick it up there, till I can talk it like English? — SHARON.

* * *

DEAR SHARON — No. You need the grammar and vocabulary you learn in a school course, if you are ever to "talk it like English." "Picking up" a language might keep you from starving if stranded on foreign soil, but it won't pass you off for an educated native.

* * *

Confidential to DOUBTER — If he wants to talk to you, if he seems to enjoy your company, then — you've guessed it! — He likes you.

* * *

Confidential to STAY OR GO — Just because you are unlucky in love doesn't mean you should break up someone else's happy home. Reams have been written on how married folk (like your husband and you) shortchange each other in physical expression without knowing it. I'll point you in the right direction for counselling and for literature, if you'll send me your right name and address on a stamped envelope.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — Here is a reply to Mrs. C.A.

Mrs. C.A. — why are you so down on people who smoke? Some of the cleverest and finest people in the world smoke. I stopped simply because I have asthma and found it helped. When you say you would permit no one to smoke in your house, I then judge you to be a martinet in your home.

"Now Mrs. C.A., just stop judging other people and practise 'Live and Let Live' and you may gain more friends."

That's all, Doris; from just a man who likes equality in his home, and allows his guests to smoke, put their elbows on the table, etc. if it makes them happy. — W.T.A.

* * *

DEAR W.T.A. — You have a point there. Thanks for expressing it.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I'm 15. My Mom said that she doesn't really mind if I go out with boys, but she likes to know where I'm going or where I'm going to be. I don't mind telling her, but I feel so embarrassed! I don't know why I feel that way, but I hope you might help, because it bothers me!

(1) Do you think that I am old enough to out with boys?
(2) What can I do to overcome my embarrassment?
(3) About what time do you think a teen-ager my age should be in on week ends? Do you think that 12:00 on Friday and maybe 1:00 on Saturday is O.K.? — DESPERATE AND ALMOST 16.

* * *

DEAR DESPERATE—
(1) Some are; some aren't. Do the boys embarrass you too?

No Accidents Despite Bad Road Conditions

PICTON (Staff) — Despite hazardous driving conditions Wednesday night Ontario Provincial Police at the Picton detachment report no accidents of any consequence. With the first day of real winter driving it is surprising that the usual rash of bumper bumping has been so light.

In Magistrate's Court Wednesday only a few minor cases were heard. Appearing in court were 19-year-old Larry Johnson and 17-year-old Roger Ferguson both of Picton. They both pleaded guilty to all charges involving the recent series of thefts and break-ins in the area. Both were remanded for sentence for one week. Their companion, Ronald Langford, did not appear as his hearing is set for next week.

AGAIN REMANDED

William Hudgins charged with the theft of a 40 h.p. motor from Rest Haven Home in Picton was again remanded for sentence for one week. Hudgins pleaded guilty to the charge of theft and last week was remanded while further evidence of his past record was brought to the attention of the Magistrate.

Scouting in County Enjoyed Fine Year Reports Shown

PICTON (Staff) — The annual meeting of District Council—Prince Edward County — Boy Scouts of Canada was held Wednesday night at the Royal Hotel, Picton, with a good number of members present. Officers for the district year were elected.

President for the coming year and past president for the past two years is Jack Rogers; past president, Hugh East; first vice-president, Gene Keaney; second vice-president, Len Tripp; treasurer, Chris Fyallck and secretary, Maria Clapp. There are 75 officers and executive staff on the District Council for Prince Edward County.

A considerable amount of business was completed at the meeting. One of the important recommendations was that a District Committee of Ladies' Auxiliaries be formed. The women of these auxiliaries are among the strongest supporters of Scouting in the county, stated Jack Rogers in his president's report. Reports were also read from the camping committee, the chairman of finance, the District Commissioner Bill Gassira and the assistant District Commissioner Bill Strachan. The annual statement was also presented to the council.

Head table guests for the occasion were: D. Bond representing Ken Hicks, warden of Prince Edward County; Major A. E. Pettigrew, W. J. Harpur of Cobourg, guest speaker, president Jack Rogers, Bill Gassira, district Commissioner; Mayor H. J. McFarland and Maria Clapp, secretary.

The guest speaker, Mr. Harpur, was introduced by District Commissioner Bill Gassira of Wellington.

GREAT DEAL OF PRIDE

In his opening remarks Mr. Harpur said that after looking through the reports he was certain that there was a great deal of pride among the people of Prince Edward for wherever the county was mentioned it was referred to as "The" County.

He said that he was pleased to see the reports indicating that there was a great deal of Scouting activity in the area.

Mr. Harpur continued that he thought that 90 per cent of the problems with youngsters between the ages of 13 and 20 is that they are labelled "teenagers" by the press and some social organizations and are held up to ridicule and criticism. The problem lies not so much with them, he said, but with us. The press, and some of these social workers have provided them a status symbol by bringing their activities to public attention. The young people, he emphasized are not as bad as we would make out, but are not one-tenth as bad as they are sometimes assumed to be. Scouting today, Mr. Harpur continued, is streamlining its program to meet the changing trends of society. This is important and we must keep abreast of the times and help these boys reach out for new horizons.

Scouting is organized he added for three things, fun, adventure and companionship. Scouting helps a boy mold his own character, all we do is put him in the proper situations where he can do this. He must have patient and sympathetic help.

Mr. Harpur was thanked for his interesting address by vice-president Gene Kearney. A lunch and social hour was held following the meeting.

Former Pastor Shocked at Board's Action

CHATHAM (CP)—Rev. Russel Horsburgh, the United Church minister convicted last month on five charges of contributing to juvenile delinquency, expressed shock Wednesday over a decision by the official board of Park Street United Church here not to pay his legal fees.

Mr. Horsburgh, 45, resigned as minister of the church after his conviction. He has been granted leave to appeal.

The decision Tuesday reversed an earlier decision by the same board to pay fees arising out of his court appearance. The board decided to continue Mr. Horsburgh's salary through to the end of this year.

He said he would devote his entire salary until the end of this year toward the legal fees.

Mr. Horsburgh is on bail of $2,500 pending his appeal. He was sentenced to one year on each of the charges to run concurrently.

Meanwhile, a fund started by a group of Chatham businessmen to assist in paying for the appeal has reached $1,650. A Sudbury United Church congregation has contributed $300 to the costs of the appeal.

Canadians Are Determined Not to Let Their Country Become U. S. Satellite

Associated Press reporter Max Harrelson, basing his observations on a recent tour of Canada, says Canadians want to "chuck off" a feeling of dependence on the United States. In this article he details common Canadian complaints about U.S. influence.

By MAX HARRELSON

OTTAWA (AP) — Canadians are determined not to let their country become a United States satellite—or even to have the appearance of being one.

They have demonstrated their political independence by trading with Cuba and China and they are moving toward eventual recognition of the Peking government.

But they are tied closely to the U.S. through the North American defence system and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Since last year they have had American-owned, armed, clear warheads at two Canadian Bomarc missile bases.

For this reason, they are extremely sensitive to U.S. foreign policy decisions.

This accounts in part for the keen interest Canadians showed in the U.S. presidential election. Both Prime Minister Pearson and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker hailed President Johnson's victory as a guarantee of continued friendly U.S.-Canada relations.

On economic matters, Canadian nationalists find it much more difficult to assert their independence. The two countries do more business with each other than with anybody else. About 60 per cent of Canadian exports go to the U.S., and about two-thirds of Canadian imports are from the U.S.

One common complaint of Canadians is that Americans own so much of their country that Canada is no longer master of its own house.

"There is no country in the world," says Finance Minister Gordon, "that can make any pretense of being independent if it does not control its own communications media, its own financial institutions and, in one way or another, the general nature of the decisions made by those who direct its industries."

Comedian Dave Broadfoot joked: "If President Johnson wants to do something to help celebrate the 100th anniversary of Confederation he might give Canada back to the Canadians."

There have been efforts by both main political parties to discourage foreign investments, but the pressure of provincial governments and of business was so great the proposed measures were dropped. U.S. investments are increasing.

Non-residents, mostly Americans, control 70 per cent of the investments in Canadian petroleum and natural gas, 30 per cent in mining and smelting and 60 per cent in manufacturing. This means that major decisions often are made by people who live outside Canada. It also means huge sums of money flow abroad in interest and dividends.

They are afraid, for example, that in the event of a business slump U.S. owners might close their Canadian subsidiaries and cause large - scale unemployment, while keeping their U.S. plants in operation. They also resent the application of U.S. laws, such as those restricting exports to Cuba and China, to Canadian subsidiaries.

Trade Minister Sharp has said Canada is not worried that the U.S. will be unfriendly but that it may "neglect to take our legitimate interests into account."

In 1963, Martin said, Canadian exports of automobiles and parts to the U.S. amounted to $36,000,000 while imports of automobiles and parts from the U.S. totalled $600,000,000. This is due mainly to the fact Canada's automobile industry, almost all U.S.-owned, consists largely of assembly plants and that high tariffs make exports to the U.S difficult.

Canada now is trying to get the U.S. to end the tariffs so that Canada can build more cars for the U.S. market.

SANTA'S PALACE — Snow may fall but Santa Claus now has an ice palace to keep it off his red tossled toque. Belleville Shopping Centre merchants used 13 tons of block ice to build a palace where Santa could meet the tiny ones. Cheryl Allan, 212 MacDonald Ave., waves an early Christmas greeting to passerbys from atop one of the ice walls.

Santa Claus has arrived in a big way at the Belleville Plaza. His representative, a smiling, red-suited statue over 20 feet tall, waves a cheery hello to Belleville's Christmas shoppers.

Campaign Opens to Curb Drunken Driving on British Roads in Festive Season

LONDON (CP) — A sober-sides campaign opened Wednesday to curb drunken driving on crowded British roads during the Christmas season.

Breath-test teams took station on trunk roads within 30 miles of London for an experiment under which 1,500 drivers will be "sampled" until Boxing Day, Dec. 26. This is strictly a voluntary affair in which drivers breathe into self-sealing plastic bags which later are opened in a laboratory.

The transport department, meanwhile, endorsed an appeal by the Manchester town hall for volunteers to act as odd men out at Christmas parties in offices, shops and factories.

The volunteers would be expected to join the party fun on nothing stronger than orange juice and then be responsible for driving their drinking friends home.

The Scandinavian system at parties is for one member not to drink and see that all the others get home safely," said Alderman William Murray at Manchester, urging adoption of the plan here.

"This is just the sort of initiative we hoped for when we launched our campaign about drinking and driving," said a transport department spokesman.

The department's campaign includes the lacing of horrific posters showing dead bodies and wrecked cars in former Christmas accidents.

But Prime Minister Harold Wilson had to defend Transport Minister Thomas Stewart in the House of Commons Tuesday from attacks by two of his own Labor members over the campaign.

The members said Stewart gave the impression it was safe for a driver to follow a "rule of three—that it is quite all right for motorists to drive after taking three small whiskies, three half-pints of beer or one-third of a bottle of wine."

Wilson said "obviously individuals react differently to different quantities of alcohol."

A British Medical Association spokesman, talking with a reporter Wednesday, also stressed the difficulty of making hard-and-fast rules but added that three drinks "would certainly be the maximum" for safety. Four would definitely be dangerous.

The road research laboratory, now undertaking the breath-test experiments, says drink was a major factor in 132 highway deaths in the four-day Christmas holiday last year.

Careless Driving Charge Inoperative Says Court

TORONTO (CP)—An Ontario Supreme Court judge ruled Wednesday that a charge of careless driving under the province's Highway Traffic Act is inoperative.

Mr. Justice Edson Haines said the Criminal Code charge of dangerous driving, enacted in 1961, covers the same field as the Highway Traffic Act's charge.

The two charges, he said, are therefore in conflict. Because parliament has occupied this field, the provincial legislation must yield.

John Weingust, the lawyer who successfully appealed the case, said the effect of the ruling is that careless driving charges can no longer be successfully prosecuted in Ontario.

Mr. Weingust's client was taxi-driver Allen Mann, 38, who was chased by police last February following a dispute about a crosswalk violation in the city. He was later convicted in magistrate's court of careless driving.

An official of the attorney-general's department said he was unable to say whether the decision would be appealed. The department would have to study the written judgment of Mr. Justice Haines before deciding, the spokesman said.

Mr. Weingust said stricter proof is required under the Criminal Code than under the Highway Traffic Act.

Roderick Cormack of the attorney - general's department said driving charges were usually proceeded by indictment only when a person was killed.

He added, however, that pending careless driving charges may be placed again as dangerous driving charges and tried by way of indictment. There is no time limit prevening the placing of charges on indictable offences, Mr. Cormack said.

Mr. Cormack said Mr. Justice Haines's decision stands as law in the province until another Ontario Supreme Court judge, the Ontario Court of Appeal or the Supreme Court of Canada rules differently.

Law Governing Breath-Analyzing Called Delightfully Sporting.

TORONTO (CP)—The present law on the use of breath-analyzing and blood-testing devices for drinking drivers is "delightfully sporting." Mr. Justice Edson Haines of the Ontario Supreme Court told the Canadian Federation on Alcohol Problems Wednesday.

Mr. Justice Haines said the existing law, which allows a motorist the right to refuse these tests, is an obstacle to law enforcement and has removed a valuable diagnostic aid from use in the courts.

He suggested a new law in which drivers would be penalized by fine only if their blood-alcohol level is above .05 per cent. The fine could be equated with laws on speeding, Mr. Justice Haines said—the higher the alcoholic content, the higher the fine.

The new law would be aimed at persons in the no-man's land between sobriety and impairment. The present section enables the motorist to refuse a test if he has been charged with impaired or intoxicated driving, and police may not mention this in court.

Until the law is changed police should place a charge of dangerous driving since they could then tell the court whether the suspect had refused the test, he said.

Transport Minister Irwin Hanbett of Ontario, who was present for the speech, said the proposal would be studied by his department.

The Ontario Temperance Federation in a report to the convention criticized the "association of champagne drinking" with British Columbia Lions in their dressing room after winning the Grey Cup Saturday. The post - game party was televised nation-wide.

In addition the group is opposed to liquor advertising on television and radio, especially when it is connected with sports, said Rev. Eric Smalley, general secretary of the Ontario federation.

He rapped churches for their sharply decreased support of the temperance movement, which he said was the result of more widespread drinking among church-goers themselves.

Clerk Drops Two Bottles of Bargain Scotch

TORONTO (CP)—A buyer watched a clerk drop two bottles of scotch to the floor in a liquor control board store Wednesday.

The liquor board, at two Toronto stores and one in Ottawa, has been selling some lines of scotch, rum and wine at bargain prices. The lines have not been moving and are to be removed from the board's lists.

One buyer walked into one of the stores here and ordered a case of Martin's scotch, regular price $5.90, bargain price $3.50.

"We only have seven bottles left," said the clerk. "I'll take them," said the customer.

The clerk tried to struggle in with all seven. Two slipped out of his arms and smashed on the floor.

Children Will Be Welcomed At Santa Ice Palace at Plaza

Thirteen tons of ice and three days labor by the Belleville Shopping Centre merchants - the result, claim to the world's largest igloo, to be used as Santa's Ice Palace.

Erection of this unusual piece of architecture was conceived by a special committee headed by Ray Rousseau. During the erection of this wall of ice many last minute construction decisions were needed due to weather conditions, levels and pyramiding.

On Thursday, Santa will reign supreme in his Ice Palace, located on the centre mall, and will welcome all his little people for a brief chat. Children will receive a free candy cane.

Santa will be on hand on various days and times for children to visit with him. Days and times are indicated in his Palace.

Hundreds of children will receive a free toy from the Belleville Shopping Centre merchants in their $1,500 parade of toys give away. Parents may have, free, entry forms on behalf of their children, from any centre store. When completed, these entry forms are to be deposited in the special box located in Santa's house. Names will be selected on December 7, 14th and 23rd. Winning entrants may pick up their toy on December 24th.

CONVICTED FOR KILLING

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) An all-white jury Wednesday convicted a young white man of manslaughter for the killing of a Negro woman. J. W. Rich, 22, testified that his pistol fired accidentally last March when Mrs. Johnnie M. Chappell, 35-year-old mother of 11 children, was killed as she searched for a lost pocketbook along the street. He will be sentenced Dec. 14.

Senator Pouliot, 40 Years In Commons and Senate, Congratulated by Friends

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—"Congratulations, senator."

"Thank you, but I need sympathy, too."

So began an hour-long interview on Tuesday with Senator Jean-Francois Pouliot (L—Quebec) on his 40th anniversary of continuous service in the Parliament of Canada—31 years as an MP, nine as a senator.

Surrounded by his scrapbooks and photographic mementoes of his more than one life-time of politics, the senator — long known as the MP for Temiscouata—said he has always regarded friendship as above politics.

"For that reason, I am not a separatist. When you have lived under the same roof for so many years with someone, even though you have your differences, you create a good friendship, that cannot be broken."

ELECTED IN 1924

Senator Pouliot first elected to the Commons Dec. 1, 1924, aged 34, he became the fourth generation in his family to serve Parliament or its predecessor, the Legislative Assembly of Lower Canada (Quebec). His great - grandfather, Louis Bertrand, was a member of the pre - Confederation Parliament of Quebec and once voted against Confederation.

In politics, Senator Pouliot said he had always fought for truth, justice and fairness.

"It is very difficult to make truth shine in any country. That's why I have engaged in legal research, too. Everyone talks about social security, but no one thinks about legal security and they are unwilling to resort to fundamentals which should be the basis of any organized society."

As a law researcher—after engaging in the general practice of law for 10 years—Senator Pouliot is the author of several precedent - setting legal tomes on Quebec municipal law and the law of management of church properties.

It is these accomplishments to which he refers with professional pride. But the packishness that marked his years as an MP and which still shines through in some of his senatorial work never escapes him.

TIRES SMOOTH WAY

"I try the smooth way first, and if I do not succeed, I speak louder. Then I am angry, but they do not realize that at times I am only indignant. . . .

"A man with a long face will never win an election. As Cicero said, a joke will win the ear of a judge more easily than a lengthy argument."

As a party man, Senator Pouliot said he always practised "co-operative liberalism."

"I always gave the benefit of the doubt to my party when my conscience allowed me to do so. But in fact, I am a radical."

One of his earliest stories into political campaigning was in 1917 when he tried to speak on the same platform as Joseph-Edouard Caron, Quebec minister of agriculture, who wanted to avoid him. Finally he got the crowd's attention and said a minister is merely a servant of the people. Therefore, he could say to the minister, "bring me my rubbers."

Mr. Caron protested it was only the youths who supported young Pouliot. An elderly stonemason in the crowd took off his hat and pointing to his bald head said, "look at me and see if it is only the young."

In his first election campaign, a friend persuaded the Conservatives not to oppose him because the byelection contest was sure to be followed by a general election within a year.

"All the die-hard Tories voted for me because they were sure it was only for one year. That was 40 years ago."

He had close friends among Conservative MPs — T. L. (Tommy) Church and John E. MacNicol of Toronto, and Gordon Graydon of Brampton, Ont., now all dead. He counted former Conservative prime ministers Arthur Meighen and R. B. Bennett as friends, too, but fought them bitterly on political issues.

He also fought his own party. He crossed the floor to sit as an independent in opposition to the Mackenzie King Liberal government on the conscription issue in 1944, but the following year Mr. King took the initiative in going to Riviere-du-Loup to speak on his behalf in the general election of 1945.

Recently he was elected honorary president of the Rural Bar of Quebec by acclamation, and counts it among his treasures. He is writing his memoirs and is looking for a title to describe his "40 years of independent thinking and action in politics."

"I owe my good health to my wife, and my survival to hard work and keeping my mind busy."

His record of 40 years in continuous service in the federal Parliament is believed surpassed only by Senator C. G. (Chubby) Power, who first entered the Commons in 1917 and went to the Senate in 1935.

B. C. Scholar in Politics
"Out of the Greenhouse Into the Hurricane"

By MICHAEL BLAIR

VICTORIA (CP)—British Columbia's "instant" cabinet minister isn't sure he enjoys his work.

Ralph Raymond Loffmark, the academically experienced minister of industrial development, trade and commerce finds it "time-consuming" and says it leaves him little time for writing books.

"I could work 18 hours a day if I wanted and still not catch up on all my work," said Mr. Loffmark, a scholar who turned politician overnight.

For seven years until August, 1963, he was an academician with his world bounded by the University of British Columbia and writing books on taxes, on which he is an internationally recognized authority.

"And then I embarked on an entirely new life — instead of dealing with young people with impressionable minds I was dealing with men of strong minds, ambitions and personalities. It was like walking out of a greenhouse into a hurricane."

His rise in politics, from not being a member of a political party to an obscure backbencher and on to become a cabinet minister, must be something of a record.

FAST PROMOTION

He was elected Sept. 30, 1963, by the provincial legislature as a member for Vancouver-Point Grey, and March 20 this year was elevated to the cabinet in B.C.'s Social Credit government.

He was worried about accepting the cabinet post after hearing charges that B.C. is ruled by one man and a half-a-year-ling Premier Bennett's office after my appointment the Premier said: 'Now I have a couple of thinks to tell you."

"I thought he was out.

"But he just told me to honor my oath, to work hard for the province, to get out and promote B.C.—I've been left alone to make decisions ever since."

The minister's qualifications make him the most scholarly member of the cabinet, and he says his degrees serve him well as a member of B.C.'s ruling circle.

Mr. Loffmark, a youngish 43, is a native of B.C. He has a BA in political science and economics from the University of Toronto, graduated from Osgoode Hall law school in 1940 and is a member of the B.C and Ontario bar associations. In 1951 he received a master of business administration degree from the University of Pennsylvania and in 1954 a chartered accountancy degree in B.C.

He rose to the rank of lieutenant while serving overseas with the Canadian Army from 1942 to 1946.

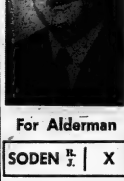
Mr. Loffmark describes himself as B.C.'s No. 1 salesman and the province's economic publicist.

WATCHES ECONOMY

"If business or employment slides downward in one area we warn the appropriate people and suggest remedies — we're continuously testing the economic pulse."

In his short time in office he has become one of the most travelled cabinet ministers, continually popping up at speaking engagements around B.C.

As a salesman he went on a trade mission to Japan last June and will probably return there in the spring as part of an economic mission to be led by Premier Bennett.



He says adequate credit facilities for new firms are holding up development of the province and is a proponent of the proposed Bank of B.C. as a means of aiding industry.

"The bank would help expand credit - granting facilities," he says.

"At present I've got negotiations underway for new industry for the province ranging from investments of $200 to $80,000,000."

The minister moved from Vancouver to nearby Sidney during the summer, but plans to move his family back to the mainland because "I spend most of my time in the financial centre—Vancouver."

Whether he'll stay a politician is still up in the air, but Mr. Loffmark says he is learning one of the main rules of being one: "patience and sympathy."

Small Attendance Seen At Nomination Meeting

BANCROFT — A disappointingly small group of ratepayers attended the annual nomination meeting of the village council on Monday evening, held in the United Church hall.

Reeve M. J. McAlpine, deputy reeve, Mrs. Audrey Sexsmith, councillors Gordon Groves, John Hattin and Earl Hawley were returned to office by acclamation, and George Whitfield was re-elected by acclamation to the public school board. The only change was the election by acclamation of Russell Hawley to the Public Utilities Board.

In his address Mr. McAlpine said he was saddened by the small number of people at the meeting, the smallest for several years. He outlined the achievements of the council for the past year noting the appointment of a Centennial committee directed by Councillor Groves.

Commenting on the connecting link program he said this should have been started in 1964 but would now begin in 1965 when the south bridge would be widened and Bridge Street East would be rebuilt to the eastern boundaries. This would be the first phase of a three-stage project in conjunction with the Department of Highways to improve all highways running through the village.

SPEAKS ON HEALTH UNIT

Mr. McAlpine spoke of his activities on county council which included chairmanship of the committee to promote the establishment of a County Health Unit in Hastings County. Despite considerable support for this in the northern half of the county the project was turned down at Council. He did, however, feel that a Health unit would eventually be established, Hastings County being one of the few counties without such a unit.

When no questions were forthcoming Mr. McAlpine told the group he hoped this indicated satisfaction with the council and disinterest in municipal affairs.

Mrs. Sexsmith outlined her duties on the council and at county council. She serves as a member of the police commission and is chairman of the recreation centre committee. Her responsibilities at county level includes chairmanship of the Home for Aged committee. She also serves on the board of directors for I.O.D.A.

Councillor Groves wished to go on record as favoring a two-year term of office for reeve and council, pointing out that this was the most necessary for the efficient operation of council. He did note, however, that most councillors do serve for at least two years.

As chairman of the Centennial committee Mr. Groves gave a brief resume of the progress made by this committee, which is currently negotiating with Bowes and Cocks, real estate agents, for the purchase of a piece of property on Faraday Heights in the village known as "The Ten-Acre Field." It is hoped that this land will be developed into a village recreation park.

MANY TESTS MADE

Councillor Hattin spoke of the recent period of crisis when it was found that the York River which passes through the centre of the village was severely polluted. At the request of council some 62 tests were made throughout the entire length of the river and the source of pollution pin-pointed.

Following suggestions from the Medical Officer of Health, Dr. O. W. Anderson, very definite steps are being taken to effectively put an end to this inadequate sewerage system.

Councillor Hawley spoke of the adverse publicity Bancroft has received concerning radioactive pollution of two lakes in the area. He proposed that something very definite be done by council to offset the effect such erroneous reports might have on the tourist industry of the area.

As chairman of the streets commission, he spoke at some length about the maintenance of village roads and streets. "A strong effort is being made," he said, "to have all remaining unpaved streets paved in the next two years."

Several of the speakers mentioned the work of the Bancroft and District Chamber of Commerce which as sponsor of the very successful first annual Rockhound Jem-Boree in August brought the largest number of tourists ever to the area.

The industrial committee of the Chamber of Commerce was also given attention. Rev. Henry C. Maloney, chairman of this committee, with other interested men and women worked hard in an unsuccessful bid to keep the mines operating. The committee recently presented a brief to J. F. Pickersgill, Minister of Transport, requesting the postponement for at least two years of the removal of the C. N. Railway tracks north of the village.

Control Board Left Intact At Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP)—The smallest percentage of electors in more than 20 years left the board of control intact here Wednesday and elected only four new aldermen out of 16 in this city's civic elections.

Victor Copps, elected to his first term as mayor in 1962, was returned for another two years by acclamation.

Officials said after three-quarters of the vote had been counted that only 29 per cent of the 176,500 persons eligible had voted.

Controller James Campbell, who ran fifth for the board of control in 1962, topped the polls in Wednesday's contest.

Other board members re-elected were Archibald McCoy, Brian Morrison and Leslie Parker.

Mr. Pilsch polled 5,767 votes to Mayor Pereseck's 5,046. A third candidate, Sam Primerano, received 427 votes.

More than 50 per cent of the city's 18,000 eligible voters cast ballots.

MODS AS CLIENTELE — John Stephen, 28, owns several male attire stores in London, England. His clientele includes most of the far-out singing groups bursting into the hit parade in rapid succession, as well as that British phenomenon, the Mods. The Mods, extremists when it comes to clothes, will not be caught dead in accessories even a month old. Therefore, Stephen's stores discard styles when they catch on. (CP Photo)

He Designs Modes for Mods

By MARGARET NESS

LONDON (CP)—"As soon as a style catches on we discard it."

This unusual merchandising method, far from being suicidal, has placed 28-year-old John Stephen in big business.

But, then, his clientele includes most of the far-out singing groups bursting into the hit parade in rapid succession, as well as that British phenomenon, the Mods.

The Mods, as devoted to long hair and elegance in clothing as the Rockers are to their leather jackets, usually fall into the 14-17 age group. They're extremists when it comes to clothes.

The singing groups can justify their preference for radical styles by pointing to the publicity it wins them. Lacking such justification, Mods explain simply that they like the extremes.

They spend the greater part of their earnings and allowances on the ever-changing Mod styles. And it's expensive, for no true Mod would be caught dead in accessories even a month old.

London's Carnaby Street is the main shopping thoroughfare for extreme male attire. Strung along the short three blocks are eight boutiques and a shoe store, most of which are owned, under different names, by Stephen. He also has other outlets scattered around London.

TOO OLD AT 19

Born in Glasgow, Stephen was expected to take over his family's confectionery business, but at 19 he took off for London. A job in the military department of Moss Brothers got him interested in clothes.

In the last six years, since opening a second-floor boutique in Soho, he has expanded so rapidly that he now has 100 employees, and a publicity agent.

In Stephen's main boutique, a small ground floor shop bearing the name His Clothes, a young man was discussing a new suit with an assistant. From the details of the single-button jacket, back half-belt and vents, I assumed he must be a Mod. But he said no, he'd outgrown the youthful phase. He was a blase 19.

"I still want to dress well," he said, "but not as way out."

This particular boutique is the haute couture of the Mod world, specialising in made - to - order clothes.

At another of Stephen's shops, Male West One (so-called because its district address is London West 1), Frank Mertell, the young manager, displayed real Mod accessories.

"Pink is the most popular for shirts," he said.

He looked slightly hurt when asked if he meant baby pink.

"No, it's a sort of washed-out pink.

"Of course, now we wear contrasting collars and cuffs." BLACK WATCH TARTAN

He brought out black-and-white checked collar and cuffs and placed them on the pink shirt, hastening to add: "That's quite conservative."

The manager explained that it's possible to use plain color combinations but that unless violent opposites are employed the mixture isn't far enough out for a Mod.

The manager also brought out a frilled front—blue with both

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

On December 30th, 1960, the only Canadian to hold the world heavyweight boxing championship stepped into a Sydney, Australia, ring in defence of his title.

He was Tommy Burns of Hanover, Ontario, who stood five feet-seven, was 27 years of age and weighed 175 lbs.

His opponent was the huge negro brawler Jack Johnson, possibly one of the greatest heavyweights on record. The purse, an all-time record, was $24,000. He whipped Burns so terrifically that police jumped in and stopped the massacre in the 14th round.

Now out of the mixed-up mess that is the heavyweight situation with its champions and non-champions, emerges the possibility of a Canadian fighting for the title.

He is George Chuvalo, who, his backers and handlers claim, has come a long way since he graduated from the Amateur ranks to opposition class.

As is known, the Toronto boxer has been matched with Floyd Patterson in one half of an elimination series for the World Boxing Association title. The WBA has refused to recognize Cassius X as champion and has started a titular merry-go-round of its own.

Chuvalo's claim to this sort of finstic glory came after his technical knockout of Doug Jones, a highly rated contender. Jones had never been knocked out and lost a squeaker to the Louisville Lip before Cassius took the title away from Sonny Liston.

The Canadian, known as a fighter with stamina, guts and little else, has been beaten by Bob Biehler, Pat McMurtry, Pete Rademacher and twice out of three times by Montreal's Robert Cleroux. He took a layoff and came back to be defeated by Zora Folley.

Chuvalo's decisive victory over Jones may have affected his ego. He has openly stated he will knock out Patterson and shoot for a crack at the heavyweight title. What's that about coming from Missouri?

Originally the WBA first choice Ernie Terrell, was slated to meet Cleveland Williams who got into a police jam and was shot for his trouble. The winner of this fiesta was supposed to meet the Patterson-Chuvalo bout victor.

Chuvalo is willing, he says, to take on Terrell for the WBA title but Patterson is not so keen on such a match. He wants to get a crack at Cassius Clay, still recognized in many areas as world champion.

There is no doubt that the Canadian heavyweight champion is vastly improved since he was going the rounds pounding with minor opposition. This is due, it is stated, to a different system of training and management.

A Toronto business man, George Ungerman, and some associates formed a corporation and took over Chuvalo's contract. Said management with the Chuvalo trainer, Yvon McWhorter, included in the package.

They went into serious training and set up a regular training camp on a farm near Toronto. They engaged Cody Jones who helped train Clay for Liston and Curtis Crawford, one of Floyd Patterson's favorite sparring partners.

Reports say Chuvalo responded well to the new training system and used it to good effect in his victory over Jones. And he will need all of it in his upcoming bout with Patterson.

Confidence is an important factor in any athlete's mental make-up. But like sleeping pills, an overdose could prove dangerous.

Patterson, who met ignominious defeat on two occasions at the fists of Sonny Liston, will be out to prove he is far from washed up. He will go all out to regain lost prestige and if so happens that Chuvalo is his first stepping stone.

On the other hand the bout with Patterson can make or break Chuvalo. This is his big moment. If he defeats the former champion he will be in line for the shot at the title. As was noted, he has said he will fight Terrell, one of the WBA's top boys—if and when.

But first he has to get over the Patterson hurdle. If he does that he stands a good chance of bringing the first heavyweight boxing title to Canada since the turn of the century.

There's a tip to the World's Fair people. How about a Chuvalo-Clay title fight in Montreal come 1967?

Blues, Hawks Tie In See-Saw Battle

Tied For Third

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Rangers are fighting.

That's one point no one considered when New York was picked to wind up in the National Hockey League cellar. Another factor overlooked was talent owned by the Rangers corps of rookies.

Both were obvious Wednesday night as the Rangers fought from behind three times to tie Chicago Black Hawks 3-3 in the only NHL game played. The tying goal came from a rookie.

The tie moved the Rangers back into a tie for third place with Montreal and left Chicago three points behind in the cozy, stantly-juggled NHL standings. More musical chairs are scheduled tonight.

Toronto Maple Leafs visit Montreal Canadiens while Boston Bruins meet the league-leading Red Wings in Detroit. A Toronto victory and Detroit loss would put the Leafs in first.

The Rangers, figuring .500 hockey will get them in the playoffs, maintained that pace by taking their 21st point in their 31st game. But it wasn't easy.

Chicago went into the lead three times as both teams scored once in each period.

Stan Mikita stickhandled the length of the ice to beat Jacques Plante for a 1-0 lead in the first but Bob Nevin got that back six minutes later.

Eric Nesterenko got the Hawks a three to front again, scoring after Elmer Vasko had broken up a Ranger power play rush. Mikita Henry netted his 10th of the season.

However, scored on their next manpower advantage when Chicago outshot the Blueshirts 30-21.

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chicago's Stan Mikita snapped out of a mild slump Wednesday night to reclaim second place in the National Hockey League scoring race.

Mikita scored his seventh goal of the season and added an assist to push his point total to 23 with New York to move to within a point of idle Norm Ullman of Detroit with 22 points. Bobby Hull of Chicago, held pointless, leads with 25.

New York's Camille Henry held fourth place with his 10th goal and 17th point. Teammate Phil Goyette moved into fifth position with 16 points after earning an assist.

The leaders:

Could Score More Than 60 Says Rocket

Hull Will Break Record

By BEN OLAN

NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Hull, Chicago Black Hawks' golden boy, will score 60 goals and break the National Hockey League record this season, Maurice (Rocket) Richard predicted Wednesday.

"Hull is off to a great start and he could even score more than 60 if he doesn't get hurt," said Richard, hockey's first 50-goal scorer. "He has the strength, the speed and the shooting ability to do it."

Richard, one of the NHL's greatest while with Montreal Canadiens, set the league mark by scoring 50 goals in 50 games 20 years ago. The record was equalled in 70 games by Bernie Geoffrion of the Canadiens in 1960-61 and by Hull the following season.

"The calibre of hockey today is tougher than it was when I scored 50," Richard admitted. "The league is better balanced now than ever before and there is more pressure on anyone going for the records.

"The record before I broke it was 44. I got 45 with quite a few games left in the season," he said, "but I was shooting for 50 because it meant an average of one goal a game . . . and I got it in the 50th game against Paul Ribeault of Boston."

Richard, who retired as a player five years ago, now is a Canadiens' executive. His career total is 544 goals, second to Detroit's Gordie Howe, who has 628.

"Most hockey players reach their peak between 25 and 30 years of age, so Hull may even get better," said Richard in a telephone interview from his Montreal home. "The way he is going, Hull could finish with more than 600 goals.

"I enjoy watching him play because he's so fast. And what I like about him, too, is that he's a clean hockey player."

OMHA Teams Win Three, Tie One

Belleville OMHA minor teams won three of four games last night and played a scoreless tie in the fourth tilt.

Ontario Championships

Lewis Was 'Best Lifter'

One new record was established when the Ontario senior weightlifting championships were held here on the past weekend.

Ald Roy, of Sudbury, set a new press record of 260 pounds while competing in the 165 pound class.

Lewis, lifting with a sore wrist, made a total of 920 lbs., earning him the meet's "best lifter" award, donated by Gene Rosebush.

Lewis hopes ot retain the coveted Canadian "best lifter" award which he won last year for the first time. He will be competing in the Central YMCA open meet in Toronto on Saturday, December 12, where a good performance will help him in the trophy hunt.

Pierre St. Jean of Montreal, has the highest rating at this time in quest of the award.

Following are the top three lifters in each class of the meet here, plus their club name, and total lift:

123 pound class—E. Evans, Woodstock, 500; W. Rushlow, Apollo, 450; L. Carr-Brainf, Apollo, 260.

Blues Bros. Tops College Score Race

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Monteith brothers of the University of Toronto Blues hold down the top two places in the Senior Intercollegiate Hockey League scoring race.

Steve, the older of the two at 21, has been an all-star in each of his three seasons with Toronto and has eight points on five goals and three assists to head the scoring list. Last year he placed third in the race.

His brother Hank, second last year behind Gilles Lefort of University of Montreal Carabins, is running second again this year with six points from one goal and five assists after two games.

Brian Conacher of the University of Western Ontario Mustangs, John Van Brunt of Queen's Golden Gaels and Ward Passi of Toronto are tied for third with four points each in the nine-team league.

Toronto moved into first place in the schedule's opening week on the strength of two wins. Montreal and Western are tied for second. Queen's and McMaster are fourth after a 3-3 tie.

Waterloo is the only team which has not yet played this season and will open at McGill Friday, with a second meeting at Queen's Saturday.

Other games this week include Montreal at Toronto and Laval at Western Friday, and Montreal at Guelph and Laval at McMaster Saturday.

HOUSTON (CP)—One of the most progressive moves in baseball history was approved Wednesday at the annual winter baseball meeting here, but trades made and missed were still of predominant interest.

The minor leagues, by a surprise unanimous vote, approved starting a draft of high school and college players in the same way professional football does.

The proposal was to be considered today by the American and National leagues in separate meetings and was expected to win their endorsement, mainly because of the unanimity among minor league executives.

Under the plan, there would be three drafts each year of players with no professional experience. The first two—in January and June—would involve college players and high school players who do not intend to attend college. The third—probably in August—would involve only American Legion and sandlot players.

Commissioner Ford Frick said: "This new law, when it becomes effective, should be a strong factor in curtailing some of those exorbitant sums of money spent by big league clubs on untried talent."

If adopted, the plan would become effective in January.

On the trading market, it was learned that a trade between Houston Colts and Los Angeles Dodgers was killed when Bob Smith, Houston board chairman, decided third baseman Bob Aspromonte was worth more than Los Angeles outfielder Frank Howard.

An informant said Paul Richards, Houston general manager, and Buzzie Bavasi, Los Angeles general manager, had agreed to a deal whereby Howard would go to Houston in exchange for Aspromonte and pitcher Ken Johnson.

It also appeared there was still a fair chance Los Angeles Angels would trade pitcher Bo Belinsky to Philadelphia Phillies, but no one seemed to know which Philadelphia player or which Philadelphia players might be involved.

YANKEES MAY DEAL

There was also a rumor that Houston and New York Yankees might deal Johnson and catcher Jerry Grote of Houston and catcher - outfielder John Blanchard and pitcher Stan Williams of the Yankees.

Pittsburgh Pirates were believed interested in outfielder Tony Gonzales of the Phillies but unwilling to part with left-handed pitcher Bob Veale or right hander Al McBean to get him.

There was talk of a three-way deal among Cleveland Indians, Minnesota Twins and Detroit Tigers. It would go like this:

The Indians would send right-handed pitcher Ralph Terry to Minnesota for one of three southpaw pitchers — Jerry Arrigo, Jim Roland or Dick Stigman. The Indians would then send the lefthander to Detroit for outfielder George Thomas.

Pacific Coast League president Dewey Soriano said Wednesday he is confident the league will weather its latest crisis and operate with 12 teams again next year.

The problem developed when Boston Red Sox announced at the winter baseball meetings here that they wanted to pull out of Seattle and set up their triple - A operation closer to home, in Toronto.

J. Brown, Ernie Green Top Rushers

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jimmy Brown has a corker of a running mate in Ernie Green—two good reasons why Cleveland Browns stand first in the National Football League rushing department.

The Browns have churned 1,904 yards, with Brown personally accounting for 1,236, also tops in the NFL.

But coach Blanton Collier says Green's performance this season has kept defensive units from keying on his big fullback. Green doesn't capture the spotlight as much as his famous running mate, but he has been consistent. The six-foot, two-inch 205-pound halfback has a 4.6-yard rushing average with 448 yards in 98 attempts. He has served touchdowns, compared with eight for Brown.

Directors Offered $80,000 For Share

Bid Battle Looms For Riders Control

OTTAWA (CP) — Just four years ago the Ottawa Rough Riders football club was purchased lock, stock and sweaters by eight men for about 12 cents apiece.

Next Monday, when the Eastern Football Conference club holds its annual meeting, each of the present seven-man board of directors will be offered up to $80,000 for his share.

Club president Barry O'Brien and director, Sam Berger announced their intentions Tuesday to bid for control of the team. Two other prospective buyers popped into the picture Wednesday.

One is wealthy city contractor Robert Campeau. Mr. Campeau who says he's interested only in keeping professional football in Ottawa, indicated he'll go beyond $350,000 in his ownership bid.

The third bidder is former football great Eddie Emerson, now one of the directors and slated to succeed O'Brien as club president at the Monday meeting.

O'Brien, president of the club for the last 4 years, says he believes the Riders would be strengthened if fewer than seven men control the club. Each year the directors vote themselves a profit and O'Brien says more money should be left in the coffers in the event of bad years.

Emerson said merely that he'd like to bid for the team if it is to change hands.

"I'd like to make sure football remains here . . . under the best possible management," he said.

Director James P. (Jim) McCaffrey is willing to sell but charges that O'Brien and Berger represent a Toronto group.

"I would prefer Ottawa interests," he said. "But the Ottawa offer would have to be as good or better than the outside one."

Also ready to consider offers is director Robert Thompson.

Another director, Dr. C. E. Laurin, wants to keep his share and the seventh, William McEwen, is out of town.

Riders were taken over by the present directors in 1960 after the Big Four decreed that its members must be under private ownership. At the time the Riders were considered a community property.

Gordie Howe's Hockey

By GORDIE HOWE

Camille Henry of New York, Don McKenney of Toronto and my Red Wing teammate, Parker MacDonald, are specialists at deflecting teammate's shots, turning them into tip-in goals.

You'll find the majority of the players in the centres put out on the power play are very adept at tipping them in. It was only a couple of years ago I discovered I'd been doing one thing wrong for years.

Probably if I'd been a little better student, I'd have realized why Sid Abel, who was centre on what has been called the original "Production Line" was so good on tip-ins.

It was after I practised tipins with Parker MacDonald, quite a few times that I discovered what I had been doing wrong.

When the puck came at Parker, all he did was put his stick out to make sure he got a piece of it. He didn't swing at it. All he was trying to do was meet it.

Instead, I had been swinging at the puck. Trying to meet it and guide it in one and the same motion. Parker's action was like a baseball player attempting a bunt.

However, he held his blade at a slight angle so the carom was towards the net.

All he did was put his stick there and like whatever came. If a shot is in plain view, along the ice, or high or low, you can reach for it and attempt to deflect it up if its along the ice or down, if it is in the air.

Whenever the shot was in midair, he never took a whack at it. All he'd do was make sure he got a piece of the stick on it.

You're trying to direct it. A lot of times you try to direct it low and it goes high. If it gets by the goalie you look good. And nobody knows whether you were trying to direct it high or low, and you're not going to tell anybody different.

Open Defence Of Canada Cup

EAANAPALI, Maui, Hawaii (AP)—With Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus making the shots, the United States today opened defence of the pro-like-packed Canada Cup golf matches.

Two-man teams representing 32 nations, plus twosomes from Hawaii and Puerto Rico, were set to tee off over the lush green acres of the Royal Kaanapali Golf Course that measures 7,215 yards, with par 36-36—72.

There will be 18 holes each day, concluding Sunday.

The Canada Cup, put into play first in 1953 as an emblem of international good will through the medium of golf, is the big prize. It is determined by the total scores of two players.

The companion award is the International Trophy which goes to the low medalist.

Palmer and Nicklaus won the Canada Cup last year in Paris, and while Palmer has yet to capture the International Trophy, he sounded a warning Wednesday.

Palmer broke the course record in the pro-amateur prelude with a seven-under-par 31-34—65. Nicklaus had an individual 72.

Al Balding and George Knudson are the Canadian entries.

Teen-Age Canada "Project Pen Pal" Is Catching on With Teeners

By JACK HUTTON

A St. Catharines, Ont., class is watching its school mailbag for exotic stamps and postmarks expecting letters from either Ghana or Jamaica any day.

Another group in Winnipeg, Man., expects to hear soon from Idia, an I thought why not I try swapping coins by mail."

This same reader supplied a hint I'd never heard before: "Do not reply to any letter in pencil. I did this once to a student in Nigeria and he told me this means you are writing to someone not your equal. Be especially careful of this when writing to Africa."

So put your pencils away. And here is today's list — from a different corner of the world, Japan.

Miss Mitsue Veda, Japan Correspondence Club, P. O. Box 7, Hirakata-Shi, Osaka-Ken, Japan (Miss Veda obviously has other names as well); Miss Eiko Fujimoto, 753-3 Nishisarchi, Samboumatsu, Okawa-gun, Kagawa-ken, Japan; Miss Takako Anzai, 2761 Matsuba, Inasarari-cho, Kawa . gun, Kagawa-ken, Japan. Mr. Eiichiro Hayashi, 829 Hamamachi, Samboumatsu, Okawa-gun, Kagawa-ken, Japan.

They all want pen pals.

They're all members of the Project Pen Pal club, which is blossoming into what we knew it would be: the fastest growing form of international communication anywhere in the world.

OVERWHELMING

I promised you three weeks ago to include a weekly list of names from distant countries in case you were looking for a pen pal. Frankly, I didn't anticipate the response. Not by half.

You'll find more names at the bottom of this column. But I thought you'd b. interested in some of the comments that our project has already drawn.

Miss Trisin Yast, 14, Winnipeg: "When the paper arrived I immediately dived for the teen section. I was very pleased to find your article on pen pals and of the major stories. I think it's a fabulous idea and I'm right behind your new item. I already have several pen pals around the world, so you can see why I'm particularly interested."

(Trisin, who's at Westwood Collegiate, also mentioned a youth newspaper in England called the Daily Sketch which gives information about pen pals around the world. Anyone know anything more about it?)

Miss Herta Franzen, teacher, St. Catharines: "Your article was most timely indeed. Several days before my class had decided that it would like to write to children and young people abroad. I suppose this was largely sparked by the fact that I have just spent two summers on teaching assignments in Malawi and Uganda. . Now we are looking for addresses in Malawi and Uganda." (Sorry, none there yet, but will have some soon.)

FRIENDSHIP BOOST

Kathleen Irwon, Ottawa: "For a long time now I have been writing to pen pals around the globe and I have almost a dozen of them. Writing to other people truly is an experience which no one can appreciate until 'e has tried it Thank you very much for this boost for world friendship."

Carol Stefanson, Winnipeg: "I think it is a wonderful idea and also agree that it is a fast growing form of international c o m m u n i c a t i o n . . I am especially interested in Great Britain and have been searching for a pen pal from there for over a year without much success. I'm sure many teen-agers will take advantage of your column."

John Hatfield, 17, Toronto: "Maybe mental telepathy had something to do with your column on pen pals because several of us discussed the same idea a few days before. We agreed we didn't know w h e r e to find names. Now you've supplied them and we'll let you know what response we have."

Marilyn Marshall, Halifax: "Congratulations on your column. Reading about what is happening in Africa today only proves that the older generation has failed completely. And if we're going to accomplish anything our generation has to communicate with the people who'll be African leaders tomorrow. Thank you for making this possible."

A Simcoe, Ont., reader: "In about two years I contacted people in over 40 countries and managed to keep up a steady correspondence with people in all walks of life. My real hobby was collecting coins. One day I was reading a news item that had a name and address in India, so I thought why not I try swapping coins by mail."

Unheralded Film Exceeds Ordinary Expectations

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — New movie—

Evie Jackson is the kind of a woman who knows everyone in her car by the time she gets off the train. Big telephones & welcome messages to be delivered to her-ell. so people at the hotel won't think she's lonely. She knows avery bellboy by name and has herself paged in the lobby.

She is a smalltown postmaster—she prefers the title of postmistress, which sounds racy to her. In New York on a convention, she strives desperately to get with other people's lives and to avoid the clutches of three old-maid harpies who want her in their bridge-and-gossip matches. But she also tries to avoid the trap of another convention idyll with a handsome married man.

Dear Heart by any name seems to be the most promising sleeper since Marty, which it resembles. Not that Dear Heart was made on a shoestring: it is a production throughout. But it qualifies for classification as a sleeper, defined as an unheralded film that far exceeds ordinary expectations.

SCRIPT HELPS

What makes it so good? In the beginning it was a script by Ted Morel which is human without being sentimental. It tells parallel stories of Evie Jackson, the busybody who admits she "goes on too long" and Harry Mork, the greeting-card salesman who has been promoted to a New York job and plans to marry an Altoona, Pa., widow. Inevitably, the artistic of Evie and Harry converge.

Producer of Dear Heart is Martin Manulis, making an impressive debut in films after a distinguished career in television (Playhouse 90). The director is Delbert Mann, who continues the skill he showed with Marty, which won him an Oscar.

Geraldine Page has won Academy nominations for three of her four previous films (Hondo, Summer and Smoke, Sweet Bird of Youth) and she is likely to make it four out of five with her Evie Jackson.

Glenn Ford, who was born in Portneuf, Que., makes the most of his role as the romantically confused salesman, providing as convincing a performance as he has given in years. He is an actor of more insight and sensitivity than he has been given credit for.

Gilles Vigneault

Reigning Monarch Of Quebec's Bards

By JANET KASK

MONTREAL (CP) — Gilles Vigneault, the lean wispy haired bard of the St. Lawrence, is probably the most popular entertainer in French Canada today.

A gentil who rose from the magic lamp of Quebec's cultural renaissance, he has been many things—from lumberjack to schoolteacher.

But he is famous as a chansonnier — a poet - composer-singer—a tradition in French Canada that during the last few years has become a cult.

"Every school in Quebec has one," Vigneault says, jokingly.

Vigneault is tall and gaunt. His hands are large and so is his nose. His singing voice leaves much to be desired, and he's the first to admit it.

But he is a master of mime, timing and dramatic nuance. When he sings he jigs, clowns, shouts, then breaks into a moving love ballad. He writes the words and music for all his songs.

His power is his personal warmth and "vrai habitant" quality. One writer called him "the first genuine folk singer" in Canadian on the entertainment scene today. At times he seems to be acting out the characters of his folksongs characters.

HAS MESSAGE

Vigneault in conversation invariably wanders back to the sleepy north - shore village where he was born, where he returns each summer, and where the outlandish characters in his whimsical songs are real people.

He attributes his popularity to his message. He is essentially a poet and has been writing since the age of 12.

(He's also editor and publisher of Emouvie, an annual poetry review. He published three books of poetry and expects to publish a book of short stories in February.)

"I sing because I have something to say. I tell the Quebecer what I think, what he is, himself—that he exists, that he has a special way of life, that he's rooted to the soil of Quebec."

His views reveal him as a socialist, but a "non-political socialist"—"not the same as being a separatist."

"If I were obliged to separate to be independent — economically and politically — I'd be against it. But I'd prefer not to separate."

To Vigneault, independence doesn't mean economic domination by French-Canadian capitalists but preference for "les Anglais" now ruling St. James Street.

"Capitalists are a nationality all their own."

DETESTS WAR

He detests war of any kind and is sardonically that "money makes way."

"I've sold my fir tree for a street lamp.
"I've sold the salmon and even old me
"To some English millionaire
"And I've learned by selling, so much
"That without my birthright
"I'm a servant again."

So go the words of one of his ballads.

Off stage, Vigneault is sympathetic and unassuming. Talking to a visitor, he is often absorbed in drawing a map of the St. Lawrence north shore showing its dozens of tiny villages, among them Natashquan, opposite Anticosti Island.

From this isolated country come the heroes of Vigneault's songs. They're often giants—lumberjacks, fishermen and stevedores with such names as Calliou la Pierre, Joe Hebert and John Lemieux.

Another giant, Jos Monferrant, has a special importance "SHUT UP AND SING'

Four years ago Vigneault decided to change something in his life. He opened a boite de chanson in Quebec where he featured other singers while he recited his own monologues. One night someone in the audience shouted, "Shut up and sing a song."

"That was Aug. 3, 1960," he recalls. "I was very apprehensive because I haven't much of a voice."

But he sang his only song, Jos Monferrant, and was an instant success.

Now he sings to packed houses wherever he goes. Recently he had a weeklong engagement at Montreal's Theatre Comedie Canadienne, a new booking for a solo entertainer, and tickets were sold out long in advance.

Jos is a lumberjack saves feet tall. "I compare him to a poet. He talks with the clouds and the beasts as if he was one." Jos tells a lonely boy in the song:

"One day you'll feel the earth turning under you.
"And you'll understand clouds. . .
"And, my little boy, you'll be alone then."

Vigneault admits Jos may be an exaggeration of himself.

"I became a giant without growing an inch. I realized I had the soul of a giant because I was born with it. I've been all the people in my songs—I know what they did. I fished, I lived, I was a lumberjack a docker—and a little boy."

OPENS TONIGHT
"MONDO CANE NO. 2"

"Impressive, hard hitting! Brash and provocative!" Why a second Mondo Cane? And why did the authors want to risk a repetition of what some critics could call the same subject?

They happen to have what we believe is a logical, and even polite answer ready. In the original Mondo Cane, crudity was never gratuitous. It was a documentation, or else a way to arrive at mercy. It was an act of accusation against cowardice and conformity, a reaction against the disgusting deceptiveness of a world that is all rose-colored on the outside. The film was a personal fact in its authors own intentions, a coherent chapter of genuine 'reporting. an open-hearted poem without poetic intentions. Mondo Cane was one thing; its well balanced miracle can never be repeated. And it is just to demonstrate this reality that they have made "Mondo Cane No. 2." It is a demonstration through the absurd, conducted with the same bitter new spirit, sticking close to a topicality that is less tragic and more curious but which nevertheless, fits in with perfect honesty to a Mondo Cane idea of agreeableness.

Even the title of "Mondo Cane No. 2" has an innocent intention. Let's say that it means: Goodness me! Fancy that! Well I never would . . . ! or Who'd have thought that!

The juxtaposition of themes and scenes is a work of magic, provoking in the viewers a constant heightening of interest and controversy. Add all of this to the realistically acidit commentary as developed by Gualeiro Jacopetti, and you have a well mighty potent medicine, Photographed in Technicolor for Colombia release.

Yes and definitely, strong medicine for the jaded moviegoer!

"Mondo Cane No. 2" opens tonight at the Park Theatre for first Belleville and district showings for a week's showing. Complete shows tonight and tomorrow at 7.00 and 9.00 p.m. Continuous show Saturday from 1.00 p.m.

TV Viewers Taken on Trip Around Japanese Capital

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Fads—or trends, as they care called in television—infect the public at fairs shows as strongly if less obviously as they do entertainment programs.

A few seasons back the vogue was for the controversial, over daring, approach often accompanied by a strong editorial point of view. Those were the days when NBC's White Paper series was tackling everything from Russia leadership to public welfare philosophies and when CBS Reports was working with hidden cameras to expose a Boston bookmaking establishment.

Lately, the networks have been on an armchair tourism kick.

Wednesday night, CBS, in a production called Five Faces of Tokyo, gave us an hour trip around the Japanese capital.

SHOW THE CITY

The idea was to have five Tokyo residents from different social classes show us their city.

Chosen were a young 218-a week workman in a door-thing factory, a middle - aged mattress - with eight children, a married white collar worker inspired by his religion and nationalistic emotions, a woman politician who had once translated Peter Pan into Japanese, and the president of Japan's biggest trading company.

Five people were too many and much of the time it was hard to know whose eyes we were looking through.

Recommended tonight: The Defenders, CBS, 10-11 EST—The judge, a drama with Robert Redford playing an escaped convict.

In expressing his opinion, Mr. Justice Roach said: "I find the testimony of Prof. Robertson Davies and Arnold Edinborough, editor of Saturday Night, to be valid at the February trial they favored the book.

Mr. Justice Roach said: "It is possible that a witness whose specialty is literary may be so enthralled by that quality in a publication that he is insensible to its obscene features. He cannot see the forest for the trees."

Court Rules Controversial Novel 'Fanny Hill' Fit For the Public to Read

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Appeal Court ruled Wednesday that the controversial 18th-century novel Fanny Hill is fit for the public to read.

In a majority decision, Chief Justice Dana Porter and Mr. Justices Colin Gibson and Frederick McKay ruled in favor of the book. Justices Wilfred Roach and J. L. McLennan dissented.

The attorney general's department is considering an appeal of the decision to the Supreme Court of Canada, Hodgerick Cormack, a counsel in the department' criminal appeals and special prosecutions branch, said later.

Chief Justice Porter said the book, written by John Cleland in 1749, describes life in 18th century bawdy houses and sexual and abnormal sex experiences in them.

"Fanny was a person of happy nature who adjusted herself to a life of prostitution," he said.

"Her letters present a picture of a segment of life in a licentious age with a candor and vividness that rings true.

The chief justice said the Criminal Code is not designed to punish exploitation of sex where sex is a dominant characteristic of the book unless that exploitation is "undue.

AGE IS LIBERAL

"Community standards must be contemporary, he said. "That is a liberal age in which we live. Even in public conversation various aspects of sex are made the subject of comment with a candor. Judges and juries of a generation ago would have been regarded as indecent and intolerable.

Chief Justice Porter said it is his view that "people of this day and age today who read books generally prefer candor.

The appeal — from a judgment of Judge Everett Weaver last February when he ordered all copies of Fanny Hill off Toronto street after ruling the book obscene.

One Toronto bookstore said after the decision was announced Wednesday it intends to take copies of the novel out of storage for sale.

However, sale of the book may be delayed until the 60-day counter appeal period has expired.

President Follows Through With Policy of Last Year

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

President Johnson, having carefully punctured speculation a harder United States military line was imminent in South Viet Nam, has followed through with adherence to the policy his administration inherited a year ago.

The alternatives — especially expanded military operations against the Communists—have been pondered another time and tucked away.

Once again, priority has to be given to the task of hardening the sand-castle U.S.-domestic political structure to the base needed to support any successful battle against the Communist Viet Cong.

The president has asked U.S. Ambassador Maxwell Taylor to "consult urgently" anew with the South Vietnamese government on this and other matters.

But the tone of Taylor's discussions in Washington, including his 2½-hour meeting Tuesday with President Johnson, is being described as pessimistic.

LATEST APPRAISAL

Some indication of the atmosphere at this latest appraisal can be read in a remark attributed to Defence Secretary Robert McNamara, in an aside to Johnson as reporters entered the conference room: "It would be impossible for Max (Taylor) to talk to these people without leaving the impression the situation is going to hell."

There was no press conference with Taylor.

The official statement on the talks carefully avoids, unlike some earlier ones, any timetables for military, economic or political achievement. Its only real teeth seem to lie in this sentence:

"The meeting reviewed the accumulating evidence of continuing and increased North Vietnamese support of the Viet Cong and of North Vietnamese forces in, and passing through, the territory of Laos in violation of the Geneva accords of 1962."

This is interpreted readily as a warning that while the U.S. has decided now to forgo expanded military operations to hit the trans-border and, the decision can be changed.

DIFFICULT SITUATION SEEN

Backing that sentence is the restatement of basic American policy in South Viet Nam "of providing all possible and useful assistance to the South Vietnamese people and government in their struggle to defeat the externally - supported insurgency and aggression being conducted against them."

While the report says that the form output continues to rise and prices and money values are stable, the political situation is "still difficult."

This is the essential immediate and continuing battleground for Taylor, the former military chief of staff who is labelled as the man who sold a policy of deeper American involvement to the late President Kennedy.

He now is thus committed in a personal sense to making work a policy which, probably through no fault of his, has gone from bad to worse conditions.

Unless warring political factions can be cemented in Saigon, it seems evident that eventual alternatives for the Taylor policy are complete American withdrawal or extended military action beyond the national borders.

SAFETY SALUTE

The tradition of firing a cannon as a salute is thought to have begun with the need of a victor to be assured his opponents' cannons were empty.

Baby Sitter Says Quint Struck Her

MONTREAL (CP) — Mrs. Florian Houle, 30, one of the Dionne quintuplets, is scheduled to appear in municipal court here Friday on a charge of simple assault.

A private complaint originally was filed against her Oct. 21 by Mrs. Georges Asselin, who said Mrs. Houle, born Marie Dionne, "struck her on the body with a hand."

The complaint gave no further details of the incident but it is understood Mrs. Asselin was acting as a baby-sitter for Mrs. Houle at the time.

Mrs. Houle was freed on $25 bail after appearing in court and pleading not guilty Nov. 13.

FBI Holds Sixteen In Mississippi

Arrests Made In Murders Of Civil Righters

Five More Are Sought In Slaying of Three

PHILADELPHIA, Miss. (AP) The FBI arrested 16 Mississippians, including Neshoba County's sheriff and his deputy, today in connection with the mid-summer slayings of three civil rights workers here.

Federal agents took Sheriff Lawrence Rainey, 37, and deputy Sheriff Cecil Price, 27, into custody at their office. Rainey and Price surrendered quietly and removed their revolvers.

Other FBI agents fanned over this east central Mississippi town picking up other men. Others were arrested at nearby Meridian.

In Washington, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said 21 men altogether have been named in criminal charges in connection with the deaths last June of Andrew Goodman and Michael Schwerner, two white New Yorkers, and James Chaney, a Negro from Meridian.

Hoover said 19 were charged with conspiring to interfere with civil rights and the other two with being accessories after the fact of a crime.

The FBI said its information will be made available to state authorities for possible murder warrants.

VANISHED JUNE 21

Deputy Price was the last person to acknowledge seeing the trio alive on June 21 and was one of those who helped remove the bodies from a shallow earthen dam near here on Bird 4.

Among others arrested here were Herman Tucker, the foreman of the construction crew at the earthen dam; Pete Jordan, an automobile salesman, and Jerry Sharp, a used car dealer.

The scene at the courthouse was tense as FBI agents arrived. Shots were fired. Two were cut on a call. The FBI, while waiting, attracted a crowd of curious onlookers and newsmen.

The crowd got angry after the FBI departed with the arrested officers. Some Negro newsmen were threatened reporters and photographers and one pulled a shotgun on Jack Nelson, Associated Press photographer.

IDENTIFIED BY FBI

Bernard L. Akin, 50, Meridian salesman; Earl B. Akin, 32, Meridian trailer salesman; Jimmy Arledge, 27, a Meridian service station driver; Horace Barnette, 25, a salesman formerly of Meridian; Travis M. Barnett, 25, a

Africans Chafe at Restraints Imposed by UN No-Vote Truce

UNITED NATIONS (CP)— Chafing over the no-vote truce in the UN General Assembly, the Afro-Asian group mobilized today to force the world forum to get down to controversial issues.

The African particularly want to put pressure on the assembly to take up its agenda— and the stormy African issues on it—rather than wait out three weeks of general debate and a month-long Christmas recess.

A leader of the group said a move may be launched Monday to get prompt election of the assembly's 13 vice - presidents and the chairmen of its seven principal committees. This is necessary before the committees can begin considering the items on the agenda.

But until the U.S.-Soviet dispute over finances is settled, any proposal requiring a record vote will result in an American demand that the Soviet Union be barred from voting because it has not paid its assessments for peacekeeping operations.

The Russians have threatened to walk out if they are denied their vote.

The Russians and Americans agreed Tuesday that the assembly would proceed with noncontroversial business—not requiring votes—while negotiators worked on the financial dispute. Many of the smaller nations resent marking time.

External Affairs Minister Martin met with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko Thursday and afterward said the financial dispute would be settled by Christmas.

But he warned that long and difficult negotiations might be necessary to resolve underlying problems over control and financing of UN peace forces.

A 12-nation "financial crisis" committee of the 61 - country Afro-Asian group has proposed a compromise plan to break the financial deadlock. Informed sources said the United States and the Soviet Union have accepted the plan conditionally.

The plan would outlaw for this assembly Article 19 of the UN charter, which specifies that any nation two years behind in its assessments loses its assembly vote. It would also let a review board to work out a method for financing future peacekeeping operations and it would establish a "rescue fund" to which all members could contribute voluntarily.

Although the rescue fund would not be earmarked for any special use, it actually would be used to cover the deficit on The Congo and Middle East peacekeeping operations. This would allow the Russians to pay their share without admitting formally what they were paying for.

May Settle GM Strike Quickly

TORONTO (CP)— Company officials were optimistic early Friday about settlement of a strike that had tied up five General Motors of Canada plants in Ontario.

"We have reason to hope that a master agreement will be settled in a reasonably short time," a company spokesman said.

Officials of GM and United Auto Workers of America (CLC) met in sub-committees until after midnight Thursday and were scheduled to resume their meetings on a new three-year contract today.

The spokesman said sub-committees should end their talks "within a few days." Then the master committee will hammer out monetary issues.

A total of 23,375 workers were on strike. Of that, 14,500 had struck prematurely Wednesday at GM's assembly and stamping plants in Oshawa, claiming that GM was speeding up production.

At 11 a.m. Thursday — the strike deadline set by the union — 8,875 went on strike at McKinnon Industries Limited in St. Catharines, 1,150 at GM's transmission plant in Windsor, 1,000 at Frigidaire Products of Canada Limited in suburban Scarborough and 950 at General Motors Diesel Limited in London, Ont.

BURT OPTIMISTIC

George Burt, the UAW's Canadian regional director, was guardedly hopeful Thursday that the strike would be short.

Negotiations Thursday centred on local issues dealing mainly with seniority and working conditions.

While officials talked, picket lines were formed at the plants and other firms handling work for GM began laying off employees.

Tales of Atrocities Against Hostages Told by Evacuees

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)— Tales of atrocities against rebel-held hostages mounted today following the arrival of three planeloads of evacuees from the northeast Congo.

Twenty Congolese soldiers in the airlift, who had been captured by the rebels four months ago, showed signs of torture. Some had had their ears cut off and their noses slit.

The whites included many priests and nuns who reported that three priests and a nun, all Belgians, were killed during the last two weeks.

Belgian Sister Elza Raphael described in about 500 the estimated number still in areas controlled by the rebels.

The known number of white civilian deaths since Belgian parastroopers dropped into The Congo 10 days ago totalled at least 96. Another 96 liberated hostages were reported recovering from wounds. Two Canadians were killed and eight are believed held in rebel territory.

Missionaries who arrived in Leopoldville Thursday said about 60 more whites remained in Bunia.

The insurgents abandoned the priests, who were later shot by other fleeing rebels.

One of the Congolese soldiers said the rebels pulled out his toe nails, cut off his ears and slit his nose with a machete.

"But the idea was not to talk. Once you talked they killed you," he said.

The whites freed in Bunia reduced to about 500 the estimated number still in areas controlled by the rebels.

Yuletide Spirit Not Seen

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — Christmas carols rang out in the Commons Thursday during a quiet moment in the redoubled flag debate, but the Yuletide spirit was not apparent otherwise.

A group of Liberal MPs from Quebec sang carols and French-Canadian drinking songs to relieve their boredom as the division bells rang for 25 minutes before a procedural vote.

When the roll-call was finally sounded, the government drew solid support from the three smaller parties and picked up five votes from dissident Conservatives to crush a Conservative motion to adjourn the flag debate. The vote was 129 to 95.

The adjournment motion by Clifford Smallwood (PC—Battle River-Camrose) was opposed by 101 Liberals, nine New Democrats, eight Creditistes, and six Social Credit MPs as well as the five Conservatives.

The maverick Conservatives, who all want the flag issue to reach a final vote soon, were from Quebec.

LIBERAL DISSENTER

The motion was endorsed by 84 Conservatives and Ralph Cowan (York-Humber), the only Liberal MP to break a party ranks. The record in favor of the retention of the Red Ensign.

Thérèse Ricard (St. Hyacinthe-Bagot) was the only Quebec Conservative who voted for the motion. The other five Quebec Conservatives missed the vote.

Mr. Smallwood said the Commons should deal with the labor trade bill and legislation to assist destitute farmers in Eastern Canada instead of wasting time on the flag debate.

LBJ Ready To Alter NATO Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson evidently is prepared to agree to extensive changes in U.S. plans for a NATO nuclear missile force in an effort to gain British participation.

He also intends to handle the highly controversial project in such a way as to keep open the possibility, however slight, that France eventually may be persuaded to go-operate.

But he is determined not to let the present opposition of President de Gaulle, who is building a French national nuclear force, block formation of the NATO force, which Johnson hopes can be started next year.

These points of administration policy emerged from a speech Johnson delivered Thursday at Georgetown University. Setting the stage for his meeting next Monday and Tuesday with British Prime Minister Harold Wilson, it appealed for unity among the Atlantic allies and denied the Atlantic alliance is "in the midst of crisis."

Rather, Johnson asserted, the alliance "is in the midst of change," and he argued that the direction of change in the alliance has been characterized by debate and dire warnings of trouble.

No Degree of Police Protection Could Guard Man in Toronto, Claim

The trial of a Sicilian immigrant on counterfeit charges was dramatically interrupted yesterday in Belleville, when his lawyer claimed the man could not testify in his own behalf for fear of underworld vengeance.

Toronto lawyer, Malcolm Robb, claimed no degree of police protection could safeguard 27-year-old Simone Chrisolago if he testified truthfully about his part in the counterfeit operation.

Chrisolago, who came to Toronto from Sicily in 1955, had earlier pleaded guilty to a charge of possessing counterfeit bills and uttering. He was arrested at Bancroft Aug. 30 after bogus money was discovered circulating in the area. A house-painter he had no previous criminal record.

Yesterday's hearing before Judge J. C. Anderson looked likely to be a brief one, after the accused entered his plea of guilty. It was toward the end of the case, as Mr. Robb was summing -up on behalf of his client, that the proceedings abruptly ignited.

Mr. Robb, who once practised in Belleville before becoming one of Toronto's leading criminal lawyers, told the judge Chrisolago could not go into the witness box himself without danger of perjury.

If he were to say anything about the counterfeit operation, punishment would come to the accused and his family.

Judge Anderson interrupted and said he could not accept the claim since it would mean "the people that are in that business are in control of the country."

WOULD GET PROTECTION

If Chrisolago wished to assist the administration of justice he would be given protection, said Judge Anderson.

"In the city of Toronto," replied Mr. Robb, "there is no degree of protection the police could give him that would protect him from punishment. I say that with absolute sincerity."

Mr. Robb's claim was also challenged by Crown Attorney John Pringle.

"I just know my friend's attention that . . . Igor Gouzenko is still alive," he said dryly.

"This is Canada and we are not going to be run by a bunch of subterranean hoods who are going to tell the courts and law enforcement officers what to do."

Judge Anderson agreed he "was pretty much disturbed" about the implications in Mr. Robb's statement.

Mr. Robb replied by asking

Killer's Life Is Spared By Cabinet

By JOHN E. BIRD

OTTAWA (CP)—The cabinet's decision to spare the life of convicted killer Georges Marcotte may be the spark that will bring an end to capital punishment in Canada.

A cabinet statement released Thursday by Justice Minister Favreau said that Marcotte's death sentence has been commuted to life imprisonment as a result of new evidence furnished by Yves Mayrand, counsel for Marcotte.

In the same statement, the cabinet said that Parliament will be provided with an opportunity at its next session for a "free vote" on whether capital punishment should be abolished in this country.

A "free vote" gives members of the Commons an opportunity to make a decision without regard to partisan politics.

Marcotte, 23-year-old former Montreal carpenter, was convicted of capital murder in the November, 1961, machine-gun slaying of Constable Claude Marineau in the 20 - called bank holdup in St. Laurent, Que., near Montreal. He was also charged but not tried for the murder of Constable Denis Brabant in the holdup in which one bandit wore a Santa Claus outfit.

Marcotte had been scheduled to be hanged early today in Montreal's Bordeaux Jail.

NO EXECUTIONS

During the period that the former Progressive Conservative government was in office—from June, 1957, to April, 1963—the death sentences of 32 convicted murderers were commuted and 14 executions took place. Since the Liberals took office there have been nine commutations and no executions.

The last executions in Canada took place Dec. 11, 1962. At that time Ronald Turpin of Toronto was hanged for the murder of a policeman and Arthur Lucas was hanged for the underworld slaying of a man and a woman.

A source close to the cabinet said the decision to let Parliament consider abolition of capital punishment means, in effect, that the death penalty is not likely to be carried out in

Wilson's '100 Days' Half Gone, He Finds Ruling Is Not Easy

LONDON (AP) — Halfway through his promised "100 days of dynamic action," Prime Minister Harold Wilson is finding that it is easier to oppose than to govern. But he appears confident his Labor government can get Britain moving ahead again.

Wilson's first 50 days in office are essentially the story of his fight to save the pound sterling.

It began with an emergency meeting of top ministers Oct. 17, one day after Wilson was named prime minister. They rejected devaluation of the pound as a way of solving the nation's developing economic crisis.

The climax came Nov. 25 with a Bank of England announcement that 11 friendly countries led by the United States had established a $3,000,000,000 credit to support the pound against further international speculation.

The rescue act succeeded in its first aim of plugging the cascade of nearly $400,000,000 of reserves that the Bank of England had to spend in one week to support the pound in foreign money markets.

Britain's reserves, under $3,000,000,000 now, are not much more than her total 1964 foreign trading bill.

To curb spending abroad, the Labor government slapped a 15-per-cent surcharge on most imports. It announced raises in taxes and gasoline prices, while voting some new social welfare benefits.

Measures the Wilson government was compelled to take, such as raising the Bank of England rate, and borrowing abroad, were in conflict with Labor philosophy.

For years the Laborites have been campaigning for policies that would expand Britain's economy, hoist exports, and liberate world trade. But they have confessed no acceptable alternative was open to them. They have promised their checks and curbs will be dumped just as soon as possible.

Laborites have claimed Britain's financial crisis began to build up when Conservative Sir Alec Douglas-Home, the Conservative prime minister, delayed an election to get favorable conditions for it after the October election. Douglas-Home was countered with the argument that Wilson's own constant talk of crisis helped to bring it along.

Now Wilson is turning to international help. He meets President Johnson in Washington Monday, Prime Minister Pearson in Ottawa two days later.

For all the sig-nagging forced on him by events, Wilson thus far has been careful in trying to win the confidence of the Johnson administration so that a new and sounder basis of cooperation can be built between the U.S. and Britain.

First impressions suggest he has succeeded in this.

Continued Demand for Help Is Prevalent in District

The comparatively strong construction activity in the immediate Belleville area is reflected in a continued demand for help with result that the local employment picture is brighter than was the case in early December last year.

Cecil Hinser, manager of the Belleville Employment office, stated today that during November his office has received 306 orders for help as compared with but 256 during the same period last year.

The employment picture for men is fairly strong and we attribute this to the construction activity in the district," Mr. Hinser said.

Job seekers registered at the local office totalled 1,235 at the end of November as compared with 1,352 in 1963. This is a drop of 117 or about nine percent.

A breakdown of the job seekers shows that 46 men and 196 women are looking for clerical or associated positions; 85 men and 45 women are registered as job hunting sales personnel while in the service occupations there are 83 men- and 81 women looking for work.

BENEFIT LOAD DOWN

In the skilled trades there are only three electricians, 12 painters, 14 carpenters and eight construction machine operators out of work.

As is increasingly the case, a big percentage of the job seekers are in the unskilled categories. In this category there are 424 persons — 318 men and 118 women.

Applications for benefits during November totalled 485 as compared with 513 last year, or a drop of about 20 percent.

Fellowship Group Has Bible Study

A group of persons of the congregation of Christ Church Anglican are meeting after the Sunday evening service under the supervision of the rector, Canon R. B. Wright for Bible reading and study of "The Living Word."

"It is not a group that knows all the answers," stated Canon Wright, "But we are a group who, in Christian fellowship are searching after the truth."

The Bible reading fellowship is open to all members of Christ Church and at present meets in Canon Wright's office, but the minister expects that if the group continues to grow it will necessitate looking for larger quarters.

The motto of the organization is "learn to come - come to learn."

No Advance Poll For Murray Twp.

TRENTON — There will be no advance poll tomorrow in Murray Township, as past history shows hardly anyone needing to make use of the convenience.

Voting on Monday will be held between the hours of 10 a.m. and 7 p.m. at the following polls: (1) the old S. S. No. 4 School; (2) at the Carrying Place home of Certon Miller; (3) Hart's Corners School; (4) Wooler Town Hall; (5) Stockdale Community Hall.

Deeve Douglas McMaster was acclaimed for another term of office last Saturday.

There will be a contest for deputy-reeve between Councillors Ian Gerald Ross and Ronald Webb.

Voters are asked to choose three councillors from among incumbent Leo McAuley, James Day, Harry Lafferty, Douglas Williams and Robert Seeley.

Five township school board members must be chosen from candidates Hugh Fox, Douglas Tafford, George Plumpton, J. E. Leveridge, Richard Kent, Steve Mainprize, Paul Ross and Archie Bennett.

Three Questions To Be Answered By the Voters

TRENTON — Trenton voters will be asked to express their opinions on three questions at Monday's voting polls.

Two are questions on which only voters eligible to vote on money by-laws may cast a ballot. These are property owners.

(1) Are you in favor of the town spending up to $20,000 towards the construction of a swimming pool in the present high school? The pool would be jointly administered by the school board and the recreation committee with the town acting as "referee" should dispute arise.

Total cost of the pool is $101, 000, for which sum council would "float" debentures. Money, (other than the town's contribution) would be realized through government grants, a promised $20,000 donation from the Trenton Lions Club; a $1,000 donation from the Quinte Disabled Persons' Council and from public subscription. The school board members interested in the project have promised to enlist the aid of local businessmen in raising the public subscription.

Voting "yes" to this question does not necessarily mean the pool would be built tomorrow immediately. The members of 1965 council would have to be assured the town could afford to left "holding the bag" on the deal. Unless the pool is built in the present high school, the Lions' donation and special grants are nullified. The government would also make an annual grant towards maintenance costs if the pool were built in the school. Maintenance would be carried out by the school's custodial staff.

Property owners will also be asked: are you in favor of the town making an annual grant to municipal bands? This does not mean a grant would be forthcoming to any or all bands and the sum varied would fluctuate from year to year. All municipal bands, (including such groups as the Trenton Citizens' Band and the Quinte Pipe Band) could benefit. Council would be in the "driver's seat" on the matter.

The third question is one on which any voter may vote: are you in favor of town council approaching the Ontario government with the suggestion that some way other than through municipal taxes" be found to finance school capital costs?

This would mean that the government would make larger grants towards school construction costs.

Advance Poll Will Be Open On Saturday

TRENTON — An advance poll will be held in Trenton in the town hall, over the police station, tomorrow, Saturday, Dec. 5, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 7 p.m. Town voters who will be forced through business to be out of town on Monday, Dec. 7, may cast their votes at noon next year, five to eight persons have voted in the advance poll.

On Monday, voters will be asked to elect three councillors, out of a slate of 12.

Running for council this year are incumbents Edward Todd and Rose Burtt; Eileen Foxcroft, George Greer, Donald McPherson, L. G. Phinney, Daniel Senik, Herbert Simrod, Howard Tackabery, Paul Tripp, Alfred Vaughan, Vernon Wannamaker and J. A. (Dick) Whitley. Mr. Whitley has seen council service before and, therefore, is the only candidates have "tried" for council.

Seven persons have offered themselves for the four vacant seats on the school board and these are: Louis Axia, James Coad, Mrs. Charles (Lois) Knack and incumbents: Jack Hadley, E. M. Parker Jr., and Donald Sinclair. Mr. Coad and Mr. Coad are newcomers. Ralph Weaver and Louis Knack are also newcomers to the board.

For the one vacancy on the Quinte Commission last year's nominees, Charles Hilton, Sherman Graham and Robert Galloway are standing. Mr. Hilton is the former PUC chairman.

Voting Monday will be between 10 a.m. and 7 p.m. with first results expected by 8.00 p.m. By tradition, citizens gather in the town hall over the police station to see the votes tabulated on the blackboard and results, as soon as they are known, will be broadcast over CJBQ.

UNICEF Store Sales Go Well

TRENTON — This year's sales at the UNICEF Christmas store in Trenton (next to the Bata Shoe Store) are going well, according to Mrs. E. T. Mumford, secretary of the local UNICEF committee.

Ladies from the RCAF Women's Auxiliary and other groups are manning the booth. Ladies from the Quinte Women's Institute are also donating their time but also have made agrons to sell.

On sale are Christmas cards, wrapping-paper, table napkins, candle making kits and other small items to assist the shopper.

Pros and Cons

TRENTON — Councillor Edward Todd, sighting a bid for re-election, arrived at Wednesday night's Meet Your Candidate Night, sponsored by the Trenton Jaycees, armed with a rebuttal to council candidate Herbert Simrod's charges and promises made during Mr. Simrod's address to the ratepayers at Monday night's annual meeting in the high school.

Mr. Simrod had expressed his disapproval of "the 1964 council criticizing town officials."

Mr. Todd said that in his three years on council, "there had never been a dispute between council and town employees. To my knowledge," he added.

"The parking situation in downtown Trenton was bad! (Simrod.)

"It's not near as bad as people try to make out." (Todd).

"Council should adopt a hands off policy with the Trenton Police Commission!" (Simrod.)

"Ridiculous." (Todd).

"Implement the Norwich Plan of imprisonment in downtown Trenton?" (Simrod.)

"Only one other town Ontario has used it." (Todd)

"Council held secret meetings last year!" (Simrod.)

"In my three years on council, there has never been a secret meeting." (Todd).

After-thought: "Except when required by the Ontario Police Commission or when it was more fair to parties concerned."

South Viet Nam Armed Forces Back Premier

SAIGON (AP) — South Viet Nam's armed forces threw their weight today behind the civilian government of Premier Tran Van Huong.

There is a need for unity of all people to fight off effectively the Communist invasion and the dark designs to neutralize South Viet Nam," military leaders said in a communique.

The public stand appeared to be a victory for the "Young Turks," a group of younger officers who demand a tough line against Buddhist leaders and others seeking to overthrow the government.

Fluoridation Proven Safe Declares Belleville MOH

By DR. McCOLL METCALFE
Belleville M.O.H.

Much has been written and said for and against Fluoridation. It is in fact nothing more or less than the addition of sodium fluoride to the communal water supply which has already been chlorinated. It is a subject which has certainly raised public interest and the average layman finds it hard to know what he or she should believe. The prime interest in fluoridation is its effect on dent a l cavities.

Ever since mankind existed he has had to have nourishment to survive. Today the commonest cause of death is cardiovascular disease and this disease is in some ways related to nutrition.

Tooth decay is the most prevalent chronic disease in mankind and it too is related to nutrition. This disease can be reduced by 60 to 70 percent by adding mineral nutrient fluoride in the public waters and this must be considered as a really great advance in public health.

Fluoridation i. not the complete answer to tooth decay but it is the best answer available and as stated above will reduce tooth decay 60 to 70 percent. Perhaps additional percent reduction can be added to that by good dental hygiene and improved overall nutrition.

FLUORIDATION SAFE

Fluoridation is safe, absolutely safe. According to statistics, 45 million people in the United States are now receiving fluoridated water and there is no reliable evidence of harm of any kind to any individual in any state of health, any age or either sex.

Some people continue to point out what may happen following fluoridation but nothing has happened. According to the great majority of professional people who are qualified to evaluate this subject and also in my own opinion, nothing will happen except less tooth decay.

Fluoridation will reduce tooth decay by more than half. It is simply adjusting the fluoride content of the water to a level that gives these results. Most waters have a low fluoride content but unfortunately in the waters around Belleville the fluoride content is nil. There is no difference between the fluoride naturally present in water and that which is added in fluoridation.

Evidence overwhelmingly supports fluoridation for safety effectiveness and economy. Substitutes for fluoridation are important for those who cannot obtain fluoridated water but are less than half as effective and much more expensive.

There is not a single scientific organization of any recognized status that opposes fluoridation and I doubt if there is a health department that does not recommend and support fluoridation.

ASK YOUR DOCTOR

Do not be taken in by critics without credentials or by critics who know nothing else but the publicity value of attacking fluoridation. You should ask your own doctor, dentist, or health department. This is a health problem.

A recent development in fluoride research that in addition to strengthening teeth to decay, fluoride may strengthen bones against fracture and porosity of old age. Porous bones are very common in aging and fluoride has been shown to prevent this. Th.. time may come when there will be good evidence to indicate that the older person may have more to gain from fluoridation than the child. Not only may he have better teeth and thus be able to retain his natural teeth in his or her old age but he may also have stronger bones a nd would be less likely to fracture them.

Concluding this discussion of facts let me say that fluoridation is one of the great advances in public health and it is absolutely safe and should be given strong support.

200 Getting Paid to Attend Training School

Belleville and district unemployed people are taking advantage of the "back to school" retraining courses being offered at the Quinte Secondary School under the Dominion-Provincial Program 5 training scheme.

Approximately 200 persons are taking courses but they differ from day school students in that they attend classes from 4.15 until 11 p.m. and get paid for going to school. Depending on circumstances both single and married people attending the classes receive living allowance.

Of the 200 persons taking the training courses many are sitting them for new skills and jobs or upgrading present skills, 19 are taking brushup courses, 71 are upgrading, 35 are taking clerical studies, 20 power sewing and 45 doing basic studies.

Social Services Planning Council Organized Here to Co-ordinate Welfare Work

Anew welfare council was formed in Belleville last night. It is to function as the Social Services Planning Council and has been formed with the purpose of establishing co-operation, co-ordination and communication in the Belleville and surrounding area. The council will manage and plan the services and recreation needs.

The planning council was formed last night at a dinner meeting at the Hotel Quinte, attended by 20 local citizens interested in the welfare and other service needs in the city.

NAME 18 DIRECTORS

A board of 18 directors, was named whose job it will be to appoint a president, name various committees and approach officials of the Belleville Unified Appeal with the view of incorporating this body into the new planning services council.

The first meeting of the new board of directors is scheduled for Monday afternoon, December 7th, at which time discussion will be held with the view of arriving at a first-year budget to be presented to city council.

Mayor Jack Ellis told the meeting that he felt the new Community Services Planning Council would have to approach city council in order for it to "get off the floor" during its first year of operation.

Named to the first board of directors were Thomas Fell, Gerald Cunningham, Robert Laughlin, Gordon Hutchinson, Gerald Wishart, John O'Flynn, Friedel Schmidt, Mrs. Lennox Smith, F. "Bun" Sheffield, Mrs. Joel Mazer, Mrs. J. H. Forrester, Rev. F. P. Sullivan, Rev. C. W. Coleman, Cecil Hiuser, Douglas Burr, Alderman Donald D. Williams, W. G. Killough and Dr. George Pearce.

MAYOR'S PROJECT

The idea of a planning services council for Belleville to co-ordinate welfare and recreational services was born early this year under the direction of Mayor Jack Ellis.

A special planning committee was set up with Alderman Don Williams as its head.

In the spring a general meeting was held with the head of the Brant county welfare council as the main speaker and it was later decided to have the Canadian Welfare Council do a survey on the social welfare needs and resources in the city.

This report was outlined last night by Miss Florence Philpot, executive director of the Canadian Association of Social Workers and by Harold Knight, executive director of two Metro Planning councils.

The report indicated that there was an obvious job to be done in Belleville to develop community understanding and support of welfare work, and highlighted several kinds of needed activities which need to be undertaken.

It was noted, however, that a report by a welfare consultant could do no more than identify the problem.

"It is the local community which must make the final decision as to what is feasible, what its priorities and goals are, appropriate at any given time," the report said.

EIGHT GAPS

Eight major gaps and deficiencies in social welfare and recreational activities, were identified in the study.

Needed were family and youth counselling services and extension of the Children's Aid Society protection services; informal education, recreation and park facilities to meet the needs of all groups, especially girls, young adults and old people.

Also required were day care services for children of working mothers; emergency shelter for homeless men and women and hostel accomodation for transients; housing for families and older persons, including inspected boarding homes and lodgings for senior citizens; a mental health clinic, nursing homes for older persons and disabled people, and vocational guidance and retraining opportunities.

Possible area of duplication in present services was also required clarification of policies and coordination of work were in the field of financial aid for emergency work, health services and recreation services.

Mayor Ellis said that action was already being taken in senior housing and in the establishment of a mental health clinic.

In addition to the formation of a community planning council, the survey report also recommended that the council, when organized, consist of two main sections under one single administration.

These should be (a) fund raising, and (b) planning and coordination.

UNITED APPEAL PROBLEM

The survey recommended that the new council as a first step should concentrate on the reorganization of the Belleville United Appeal to bring procedures and policies in line with current best practices, to gain greater community acceptance and enough financial backing to reduce the multiplicity of appeals.

The re-organization should include an examination of the present service and fund raising boundaries, consideration of extending the campaign to a much larger area, and a more formalized statement of admission policies for the United Appeal.

It was recommended that the new council seek the help of the Canadian Welfare Council in this re-organization.

The new council was also advised to move towards setting up a strong planning section comprised of key community leaders, this planning section to consider priorities and procedures for dealing with the needs for services and required new policies identified in the report.

NEED DIRECTOR

The new council was also advised to recruit a qualified director who would be needed to work with the council board in its reorganization of the United Appeal and in implementing the planning and co-ordinating section.

With the hearing of the report out of the way, Alderman Don Williams, as chairman of the meeting, called for open discussion, choice of a name for the proposed planning council and for nominations to the board of directors.

He noted that persons present were a hand-picked group representing a cross section of every walk of life in the city. They had been invited, he said, not because they might belong to any specific organization, but because of their interest in social welfare in the city.

This followed the thinking of the visiting social workers. Miss Philpot said it would be a mistake to name anyone to the board of directors who might hold a torch for any specific organization.

MAYOR PLEASED

Mayor Jack Ellis complimented members of the special committee headed by Alderman Don Williams in doing a "tremendous job" in bringing the local social welfare study to fruition.

He said the survey report had a wealth of information which would cause its readers to realize the need for a social welfare council in the city.

He also expressed his personal appreciation to United Appeal officials, Thomas Fell, Gerald Cunningham, Jack O'Flynn and Bill Killough.

"It was these four young men who brought us as far as we got in the United Appeal," he said.

Campaign officials told the meeting that the Appeal had so far raised approximately $85,000.

But Miss Philpott said Belleville's United Appeal was not a true united giving, pointing out that there were almost as many organizations making separate canvasses as there were members of the United Appeal.

December Meet Held By Senior Citizens

The Senior Citizens held their regular monthly meeting in the recreation centre on Wednesday. Despite the wintry weather there was a large attendance.

The president, Mrs. Clapp opened the meeting.

The evening was spent in playing cards. The winners were: men's first, Mr. A Forestell; second, Mr. H. Taylor; third, Mrs. Bone playing as a man; ladie's, first, Mrs. J. Doyle, second, Mrs. Goyer, third, Mrs. Gist and Mrs. Downey tied.

Mrs. Clapp won the door prize.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Taylor and her committee.

Lions Hear Address by D. D. Governor

President Ernie announced that six new members had been accepted for club membership, formal induction and initiation will take place in the new year.

Guests were welcomed by Lion John Skarka.

Speaker, Deputy District Governor Bob Smith, directed his remarks to the principles of Lionism, stressing the opportunity which Lionism offers to find useful and worthwhile endeavor in a world where earnings and material goods are stressed far too much.

Bob Smith was thanked for his talk by Lion Harvey Frid. Several items of business discussed and the meeting closed.

Highway Traffic Cut to Minimum Due to Storm

The weather closed in around Belleville this morning, giving the district its first blast of severe winter.

Snow started falling in the area before 8 a.m. and by noon had dropped 1.3 inches on the city.

On district highways traffic was cut to a minimum as visibility was sharply reduced and provincial police reported heavy drifting.

Risky road conditions also slowed city traffic.

No serious accidents were reported.

Bank's Letter Gives History Of Canadian Cheese Industry

As well as reviewing the state of agriculture across the country during 1964, the November issue of the Commercial Letter of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce notes the centennial of cheese-making in Canada with a survey of this industry's change and development, from the first hand-stirred wooden vat in Norwich, Ontario, to the mechanized stainless steel equipment of today.

In the general agriculture picture, farmers in the first six months of 1964 received $1.6 billion in cash returns, a record total for this period of the year. The record wheat crop, and record export volume, contributed to this level.

Canadian wheat and wheat flour exports in the 1963-64 crop year amounted to 594.1 million bushels, surpassing the previous high attained in 1928-29. Export volume was 79 per cent higher than the year before, and the most twice the average of the preceding 10-year period.

The commercial letter reports that "during the past century, the Canadian cheese industry has earned a reputation for high quality cheese and has gained important export markets for its main product, cheddar cheese."

Although cheese has been made on farms from the days of the early settlers, Canada's first cheese factory was not established until 1864. In that year, Harvey Farrington opened a factory near Norwich in Southern Ontario.

The innovation quickly spread to Eastern Ontario, and by the turn of the century there were cheese factories in all provinces. At its peak, the industry had 2,300 cheese plants and 570 combined cheese and butter factories. At present there are about 200 cheese factories in Canada, most of them in Ontario and Quebec. About 90 per cent of production is cheddar cheese. Cheese exports reached a peak of 224 million pounds in 1904. From this time on, they turned downward but fluctuated considerably.

In recent years the overseas market has experienced an upturn, and in 1963 it took about 25 million pounds.

Canadian consumption of cheese is rising, the Commercial Letter notes. At the present time on an average of eight pounds of cheese per person per year, and by 1980 it is forecast that consumption will have risen by one-third to 11 pounds per person.

"The Canadian cheese industry has experienced a century of change. But one feature - quality - has been

Three Questions

With no election for mayor, the main interest in this year's municipal elections may well centre on three questions.

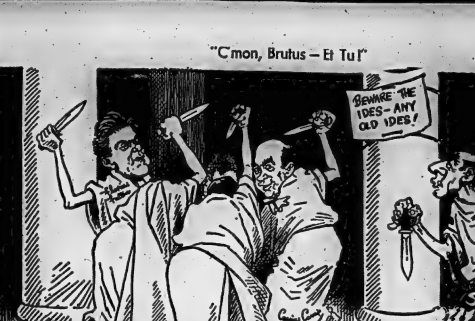
Voters should not have too much difficulty in making up their minds about two of these.

The great majority of intelligent people approve of the fluoridation of water. It has been proven, by adequate tests, that fluoridation reduces tooth decay amongst the young. For a small cost our younger citizens can be spared pain, and their parents expense. There is no scientific evidence to suggest that fluoridation is harmful in any way; many people have lived healthy, happy lives in districts in which nature puts more fluoride in the water than would be done here artificially. Many arguments against the proposal will be raised by those opposed; none of these deserves to be taken seriously by intelligent, responsible citizens who are concerned with the welfare of the majority and are not merely interested in avoiding the slight extra expense the process involves.

Voters will also be asked whether they would like the size of the council reduced. Most municipalities manage quite well with councils smaller than ours. Ten aldermen would be adequate to assure that all viewpoints were presented. Less time would be lost in repetitious debate. Greater speed in handling business might induce some well-qualified citizens, who now feel they cannot afford the time, to offer their services. With the pay of aldermen just increased, a timely reduction in the total of aldermanic salaries would result.

The third question is by far the most difficult. It is whether the parks board should be abolished and the administration of the parks entrusted to the city council. The yardstick by which this question should be decided is the continued improvement of our parks. They still an increasingly important role in the community life. On the one hand, control by the city council would make the administrative group more readily answerable to the taxpayers. On the other, the parks would be just one of the concerns of councillors, whereas in the past many able and public-spirited citizens have devoted practically all their spare time to parks problems.

The decisive factor, though, for many voters will probably be the question of finances. Here, again, there are arguments on both sides. As long as there is a parks board, it is entitled to receive a city grant equivalent to one mill on the assessment. If the parks come under the city administration, this statutory provision does not apply.



The amount spent would be decided by council in the same way in which amounts are set for other departments. There is a danger here that the parks budget might be pared to the bone, in an effort to keep the tax rate down. Some people regard parks as luxuries. On the other hand, all grants based on a fixed mill rate are unrealistic, since the amounts can vary widely as the assessment varies. The city has just revised its assessments, bringing them more in line with today's property values. Thus the parks board could demand a grant greatly in excess of that received in the past. It could do so, but it is unlikely that it would.

There, then are the choices. The taxpayers must either trust the parks board, and risk overspending on parks, or trust the council, and risk penny-pinching at the expense of parks.

It is a matter of opinion, but on the whole, taking the records of councils and parks boards not only those but in other municipalities, we think we would prefer to trust the parks board not to overspend than we would to trust the council not to starve the parks in favor of some pet project of a group of aldermen.

A cat can be comfortable in a penthouse or a palace, but when it comes to people it will be infinitely choosy. A cat likes you, then you feel flattered. It likes you because, in its judgment, you are a person worthy of its affection. Make no mistake about it, stray cats are not simply looking for somewhere to live; they are looking for someone acceptable to live with. —Llewellyn Chanter in BBC "Woman's Hour."

And, remember, when Romeo wooed Juliet on her balcony it was dark. It was his voice that melted her. So isn't it odd that we care so much how we look, and so little how we sound?—Mary Stott, Woman's Page editor of "The Manchester Guardian."

To Your Good Health
Cause of Cystic Fibrosis Unknown to Medical People

By JOSEPH G. HOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My two-year-old son has a lung ailment called cystic fibrosis. He has repeated colds and very often ends up in the hospital.

How serious is this disease and what precautions are necessary. — Mrs. I. L.

Cystic fibrosis is a very difficult and dangerous condition with which some children are born. Other than that it is congenital, we still can say only that the cause is unknown.

It is not exactly a lung ailment, although the lungs are affected. But so are other organs. It is a disorder of the mucous glands.

In the lungs, a very thick, sticky mucus is produced which, of course, hampers breathing, plugs small bronchial passages, and accounts for a child's excessive susceptibility to colds and other respiratory infections.

But cystic fibrosis also affects the body in other ways. The pancreas does not behave normally, digestive juices do not reach the digestive tract in proper amounts, and bulky stools result.

Excessive amounts of salt are released from the sweat glands, which is a useful feature in diagnosis but is accompanied, in some cases by clogging of small glands of the skin and trouble. some cysts.

There is no cure for the disease, but there are extensive efforts to discover one. I hope it, and we can, at least say this: the outlook for children with C.F. is much better today than it was 20 or 10 or five years ago.

Many used to die in infancy from what appeared to be pneumonia. Others were weak because they could not digest their food effectively.

Today, with more rapid diagnosis of the disease, such babies and children (and some now grow to adulthood) can be given more effective treatment.

Aerosol inhalation and other methods keep the mucus moving on the lungs. Use of antibiotics at the slightest sign of infection combats that hazard. Low fat diet and giving of pancreatic material helps digestion.

Once science can learn enough about the mucous glands, and how they behave, it may be possible to do something about the basic problem of cystic fibrosis. Right now, however, we are limited to "treating the symptoms" — combatting the problems resulting from faulty glands.

Dear Dr. Molner: What are the pros and cons of circumcision? We have a 6-year-old boy who hasn't been circumcised. Now we are expecting another child and if it is a boy my husband insists on circumcision.

I would prefer not to have it done, as both boys will be the same, although I know it seems to be done routinely. If it is best for the new baby to be circumcised, then should the older boy have it done too? What is the best age? — T. S.

Circumcision is a good practice from the standpoint of hygiene, and the best time is at birth because a newborn baby's pain threshold is high and the simple operation bothers him very little if at all.

I'd by all means have it done for the new baby. As for the 6-year-old, if he has no trouble, I'd let him stay the way he is. I see no point in subjecting him to the operation unless necessary.

Strictly Personal
Frightful Shock for Right Wing

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of the most ironic features of the recent election — from a psychological viewpoint — was the attacks on the American press by the conservative faction.

For some 30 years, the press had been mainly Republican. Democratic candidates for President, in that period, were undoubtedly non-supported by the daily newspapers. It may not have been a "one - party press," as the Democrats charged, but it was not too far from it.

Then, unable to swallow Goldwater's inconsistencies and absurdities, his reckless perversion of the conservative position, many of these newspapers threw their support to Johnson — and were promptly accused of "unfair treatment" by the vociferous Goldwater faction.

What is ironic in this situation is not merely the reversal of customary roles, but the fact that the press itself was, in considerable measure, responsible for the rabid Goldwater support.

For, during those 30 years, the public had been informed day after day that we were slipping into socialism, that the Republic was in constant danger, that our liberties were being steadily eroded, that the "American way" was threatened by everything from Social Security to free milk, in the public schools.

Much of this, of course, was campaign rhetoric, not taken seriously by the more sophisticated observers of the national scene. It is doubtful that during eight years of Eisenhower's administration, not one New Deal measure was repealed or even modified; even such a sacred cow as "balancing the budget" was given only lip service at banquets and rallies.

The press had done its work so well, however, in impressing upon millions of Americans were convinced that the nation was only a step away from Bolshevism, and that — return to the practices and principles of the McKinley era was the answer to our most pressing contemporary problems.

And this is why that large fiction felt so confused and betrayed when suddenly the majority of the press turned on Goldwater and repudiated him. Was he not something far clearer and simple (oh, so simple) terms the very catechism that the newspapers had been promulgating for three decades?

This was a rightful psychological shock for right-wingers — like a bride finding that her groom has turned into a toad on the wedding-night. But the simplistic answers given by Goldwater were too much for the press to swallow — to its eternal credit — and it forsook its echo to make another choice. And, among the right-wingers, all dare call it treason.

My Fair Lady -- Ottawa Style

Ottawa Journal

Alas for the love affair that is no more. The Journal once picked up Miss Charlotte Whitton's 'kerchief ever so gallantly and now she calls it a gauntlet and hurls it in our face.

Out in the Glebe school hall she recollected how 18 years ago The Journal had challenged her to enter the race for Board of Control, which she did and successfully. But now, alternately pouting and shouting, she says we've thrown her over, which we have and we hope successfully.

The "sustained misrepresentation and evident vindictiveness" of her enemies, including the anonymous editors of The Journal have upset her no end and she determined her to be Mayor again.

Our first reflection was to William Congreve's lines:

Heav'n has no rage, like love to hatred turn'd,
Nor Hell a fury, like a woman scorn'd.

But it is not in our hearts to be quite that brutal about this old love of ours. Cole Porter says it better for us, more in tune with the times:

It was just one of those things,
Just one of those fabulous things
Just one of those things
In a trip to the moon on gossamer wings,
Just one of those things.

If we thought a bit 'bout the end of it
When we started painting the town,
We'd have been aware that our love affair,
Was too hot not to cool down.
So goodbye dear and amen,
Here's hoping we meet now and then,
But it was just one of those things.

But still she's there! And campaigning to remain there. The break would be easier if it were complete but it is not complete we must recognize her candidacy or seem like UN not recognizing China.

And so to her speech we return, noting that she makes a good deal of sense. Speaking on Nov. 4 that she was "intelligent, honest and well-intentioned." It didn't quite say that it had gooded her to hurt us downstairs for asking the defeat of an "intelligent, honest and well-intentioned" candidate. How like a woman! There we were trying to be gentle and let her down kindly, and she hurls it in our teeth. Rex Harrison should meet her.

The Mayor's use of our triple compliment takes us back to those posters in front of Broadway theatres: "An Interesting Play" — Brooks Atkinson. "This poster doesn't go on to say that what Brooks Atkinson wrote was that it was an "interesting play but unspeakably badly done, ill-designed and produced with more fire than thought."

This is what The Journal said on Nov. 4:

"Mayor Whitton is intelligent, honest and well-intentioned. But she has a superlative knack of making enemies of virtually all those with whom she must work and the sum of that characteristic is bad civic administration."

Her Worship is bad medicine in a co-operative operation, despite her intelligence and honesty and good intentions. And we are not enamored of her asking her committee people to select a new group who might co-operate with her in Council to end the fish - market atmosphere of the place. Congreve anticipated that too!

Rental Trend Is Analyzed

Sault Ste. Marie Star.

Is pride of ownership a thing of the past? It would seem so according to a recent market review. An estimated $500 million will be paid in rentals across Canada in the next decade, a national organization forecasts.

In times gone by, 'cash on the barrelhead' was the criterion for the buyer who somehow felt a social stigma attached to buying on time or renting. Nowadays, the hard economic fact is that with an ever increasing cost of living index, and with prices soaring astronomically, pride must take second place to practicality since the averageman can seldom afford to buy outright, say a home or an automobile, and for which are now regarded as necessities.

Not that there items — homes and automobiles — stand alone in the rental or hiring method of purchase. Indeed, a Canadian rental firm points out that there are hundreds of everyday articles, ranging from lawn-mowers to light airplanes, that these days are being rented.

In fact, several large establishments now operate on the basis of paying a substantial trade-in-allowance on such items as home furnishings or electrical appliances, providing the customer agrees to continue payments on newer and more modern items. This, in effect, is a rental and hiring system reach a tremendous range of items which the average man must hitherto simply couldn't afford.

Apart from the economic advantages of leaving capital untied, the association points out that the method makes good business sense in other ways in some cases.

If, for instance, a homeowner wants to keep his home in good shape and decided to tilli it twice a year, as may spend anything up to $200 for a rotoviller and use it twice in 12 months, and have the job of storing and maintaining it for the other 360 days.

However, a rotoviller may be hired for $5 a day, which means that the job can be done for $10 with no storage or maintenance problems. Besides this, there is no loss of investment from depreciation.

A spokesman for rental groups claims that the expansion potential for such firms 'is beyond belief.'

The industry is still in its infancy in Canada, being a mere thing like five years behind the U.S., where, in California alone, some 3,000 rental firms are doing business to the tune of $300 million a year.

Whether the figures are correct, or the optimism justifiable, remains to be seen. However, one thing we can be sure of, is that renting is now commonplace and, by the look of things, will become an increasing part of our way of life.

Mass Slaying Takes Lives of Seven Persons

DETROIT (AP) — A simple, well-kept frame home in a quiet neighborhood was the scene Thursday of the second mass slaying in the Detroit area in a little more than two months.

Seven persons were killed, each with a single .22-calibre bullet through the head, including a young father who, police said, apparently became angry because his wife was leaving him.

James Burgan, 28, telephoned his sister - in - law, Mrs. Mary Judkins, 31, and told her he had "killed my wife and children."

WIFE MARRIED BEFORE

Police identified the victims as

Burgan's wife, Joyce, 22; their children, 18 - months - old Linda; six-months-old Robert; Kathy, 3; and Mrs. Burgan's son by a previous marriage, Roger, 6; and Mrs. Billie Nolan, 22, a friend of Burgan's wife.

Mrs. Judkins said Burgan, who worked for a paper box company, told her Monday that his wife had left him and had taken Roger with her.

Burgan left the other three children with her until Thursday, when he returned for them less than 30 minutes before the killings, Mrs. Judkins said.

Employees at the restaurant where Mrs. Burgan started working as a part-time dishwasher six weeks ago quoted her as saying she had decided to leave her husband because he "couldn't stand him and fou. kids."

Last Sept. 28, the wife of William G. Gravlin and her six children were found slain with an axe, hammer and rifle in their home in nearby Troy.

Can Use Blood From Dead Within 6 Hrs.

MOSCOW (AP)—A Soviet doctor recommended Thursday that big city hospitals throughout the world take blood from accident victims dead less than six hours and use it to keep the living alive.

He said blood from the dead had been used in transfusions here for 30 years and saved many lives.

Mikhail M. Tarasov, director of the Scientific Research Institute of Emergency Aid at Moscow's Sklifosovsky Hospital told a press conference that 85 per cent of the institute's reserve blood supply now comes from the dead.

Tests here showed that blood from the dead could be used for transfusions to the living without ill effect if it was collected within 15 hours after death but the institute had imposed a limit of six hours after death.

Brezhnev Chides U. S. For Provocations

MOSCOW (AP) — Leonid I. Brezhnev accused the United States Thursday of committing provocations against North Viet Nam and said the Soviet Union "is prepared to render the necessary assistance."

The first secretary of the Soviet Communist Party added: "Let the imperialists beware of playing with fire."

He also denounced last week's Belgian-American paratroop action in The Congo.

Brezhnev, Nikita Khrushchev's successor as Communist chief, replaced stands already taken by the Soviet government, without threatening direct Soviet intervention in either troubled area. "Necessary assistance" was left vague and undefined.

His previous expressions of willingness to settle differences with the West were missing this time.

So were similar statements of Soviet foreign policy that have angered China, except for mentioning "peaceful coexistence," which Chinese advocates and Peking calls an illusion.

Brezhnev's remarks on Viet Nam followed a charge by Hanoi Radio Wednesday that 12 U.S. planes bombed and strafed three villages in the North Vietnamese half of the demilitarized zone between North and South Viet Nam Tuesday. The broadcast asserted it was the fourth such attack since Oct. 16.

Woodville Industries Limited, which makes bumpers and body parts, laid off 60 of its 720 workers, and Coulter Manufacturing Company Limited, dealers in door handles and locks, sent 40 employees home and said another 20 might have to leave today. Both firms are in Oshawa.

Some Oshawa merchants were offering Christmas gift goods with no down payment and no payments until after the strike ends.

PARITY IS ISSUE

A major union demand is wage parity with GM's United States workers.

Union officials say the average hourly wage of the Canadian workers is about 37 cents less than in the U.S., but fringe benefits put Canadians nearly $1 behind.

GM President E. H. Wilkie said Thursday that his company's proposals are "the most generous and forward - looking package ever in Canadian automobile company."

The previous contract expired Sept. 15. Contract talks started Sept. 9.

Negotiations with the Ford Motor Company of Canada and Chrysler Canada Limited also are continuing. Strike votes have been taken, but no deadlines set. No settlements are expected until the GM agreement is reached.

by Conservative MPs, bringing to 23 the number of Conservatives who have spoken this week. Earlier in the week three Liberals and six members of the smaller parties spoke.

The Conservatives continued to hammer at the theme that the Liberal government is splitting the country in trying to replace the ensign and that a flag plebiscite should be held in conjunction with the next federal election.

In one of the most slashing personal attacks on Mr. Pearson ever witnessed in the Commons, Gene Rheaume (PC—Northwest Territories) characterized the prime minister as "petulant and perverse Santa Claus."

CONCEDED DEFEAT

He predicted flatly that his party will lose its fight for a flag plebiscite because of a "weird and pathetic obsession by Mr. Pearson to obliterate the Union Jack" by Christmas.

Mr. Pearson would go down in history as "the man who, as a Christmas present for his nation, took away from his people their cherished national symbols and left in their place a flag division that will remain in this country for a hundred Christmases to come."

When Harold Danforth (PC—Kent) rose to speak in favor of a plebiscite, Gilles Gregoire (Creditiste — Lapointe) interrupted to remark that this would be the 200th speech of the session on the flag issue.

As Liberals thanged their desks in mock applause, Mr. Gregoire said he occasion called for a fitting celebration as when a hockey player scores the 200th goal of his career.

The Quebec MP suggested that Mr. Danforth be inducted into the Order of Systematic Obstruction.

Signing Powers Taken Away From President

OTTAWA (CP)—The $16,000-a-year president of the Canada Commercial Corporation, a Crown company, said Thursday he signs no documents on behalf of the corporation and doesn't know who does sign them.

Lucien Lamoureux told the Commons defence committee that over his objections his signing powers were taken away from him by Introduction of Defence Production Minister Drury and members of the corporation's staff were transferred last year to the defence production department.

Mr. Lamoureux now has a staff of one—a secretary.

Harold Winch (NDP — Vancouver East) said: "You sign no documents. You sign no cheques and you have no staff. What are you?"

Mr. Lamoureux denied Mr. Winch's suggestion that he is a "figurehead" but said he is not performing presidential duties as set out in the act of Parliament establishing the corporation.

ACTS AS ADVISER

He said he acts as an adviser to the assistant deputy minister of defence production and arranges appointments for representatives of Canadian industry with officials of the defence production department.

Mr. Lamoureux said members of the Glassco Royal Commission on government organization, which recommended transfer of the corporation's staff to the defence production department, had never come to see him.

Mr. Drury said the corporation and his department were duplicating work. The transfer had lessened efficiency.

Mr. Lamoureux said that when the corporation's bylaws were changed responsibility and authority he had been given the choice of resigning or agreeing with the changes. He had finally agreed.

"Fanny Hill" Good Literature Says Wishart

TORONTO (CP)—Fanny Hill is here to stay.

Describing the book as "good literature," Attorney - General Arthur Wishart said Thursday he sees with an appeal court ruling that the 17th century novel is not obscene.

"I don't think that I would be inclined to appeal the decision," Mr. Wishart told reporters.

He said he read the book several months ago. "I think it's well written." he commented.

He was with the appeal court decision of the court. It's good literature."

The appeal court ruled Wednesday that the controversial novel is fit for the public to read. The appeal was from a judgment of Judge Everett Weaver last February when he ordered all copies of Fanny off the street after ruling the book obscene.

Killer's

Canada until Parliament has voted on the question.

Marcotte's murder case was one of the most bizarre in Canadian history.

After his conviction in March, 1963, he took two appeals to the Quebec Court of Appeal and two to the Supreme Court of Canada. It was the first time that the Supreme Court had ever heard two appeals in a capital case.

Marcotte was granted three stays of execution to enable his appeals to be heard, one by Governor-General Vanier. The cabinet's final move commuting his death sentence reversed two earlier decisions not to interfere with the execution.

ADJOURN INDEFINITELY

Parliament last debated capital punishment in 1960 on a private member's bill proposed by Frank McGee of Toronto, former Progressive Conservative member for York-Scarborough. During a two-day debate which was adjourned indefinitely, 30 members supported abolition of the death penalty, 12 favored its retention and two were undecided.

In the following year the Conservative government of John Diefenbaker introduced the present system of capital and non-capital murder. Under capital murder, a killer is premeditated murder are subject to death by hanging while non-capital murder convictions for slayings of an impulsive nature carry a sentence of life imprisonment.

The cabinet announcement said that Mr. Mayrand provided Mr. Lamoureux with evidence never made previously to the governor-in-council or the minister of finance.

It concerned a letter which Mr. Mayrand received from Jean-Paul Fournier, a main Crown witness at Marcotte's trial. After Marcotte's conviction for capital murder, Fournier was convicted of non-capital murder and sentenced to life imprisonment.

Mr. Mayrand told Mr. Favreau that Fournier offered new evidence in return for money. He said it would be dangerous to hang Marcotte on the evidence of this type of individual.

The announcement also said that under new parole regulations Marcotte may not be released from imprisonment except with the approval of cabinet.

Efficient Staff Makes up Lack Of Brain Power

TORONTO (CP)—It doesn't require "too many brains" to sit on a municipal council, the Ontario legislature's select committee on the Municipal Act was told Thursday.

Hollis Beckett (PC — York East), chairman of the committee, said an efficient staff can make up for a lack of brain-power on council.

The committee was discussing a letter from an Ottawa resident who criticized that city's council and suggested that potential councillors be given intelligence tests.

Mr. Beckett demands that a plumber, lawyer or doctor display his qualifications, said Fred Young (NDP - Yorkview), "but for the most important job of all—the direction of the economy of a region—we accept anyone off the street."

No Evidence Of Instrument Failure in Plane

By RUSSELL PEDEN

MONTREAL (CP) — Instrument failure was mentioned Thursday as a possible cause of Canada's worst single plane disaster, the death of 118 persons in the crash of an Air Canada DC-8F jet a year ago.

The possibility was brought up at a formal inquiry by Ottawa pilot Stuart T. Grant, who concluded however that his investigating group found nothing wrong with the loading, dispatching, takeoff or operation of the plane.

The huge airliner plunged into a swamp five minutes after taking off from Montreal for Toronto Nov. 29, 1963.

Mr. Grant, 42, employed by the civil aviation branch of the transport department, conceded under questioning that instrument failure was investigated only as a possibility and there was "no evidence for or against" any of the theories tested.

His group examined the effects of a number of possible malfunctions by trying them out in a flight simulator used to train pilots.

Mr. Grant dealt at some length with the results of simultaneous failure of all three gyros was unlikely.

"Yes, I agree," the pilot said. This, and other faults, had been investigated "only as possibilities."

Mr. Grant said his group also took 110 statements from witnesses of the crash and found in comparing testimony that many of them had been "misled"—possibly by the pilot—as to weather conditions or sound echoes.

Mr. Grant concluded from witnesses' testimony that near Ste. Rose—Montreal suburb about six miles south of the crash site—the aircraft had reduced power, levelled for the flight and "descended quickly."

The total time in the air had been five minutes, plus or minus 15 seconds.

LEND MORE MONEY

The chartered banks increased their general Canadian loans by $1,049,000,00 or more than 2 per cent in the year ended Oct. 31. The monthly finance department statement issued in Ottawa showed Thursday that in the same period, total assets of the eight banks increased by $1,900,000,000 to an aggregate $23,467,000,000. The letter figure was $624,000,000 higher than at the end of September.

for a week's remand when "I will call police officers from Toronto to show it."

The judge agreed.

RELEASED ON BAIL

"I will just see to what extent in the minds of the police officers this situation exists," he said, rejecting Christakos's plea of guilty and releasing him on $5,000 cash bail, posted immediately after his arrest.

The case will resume Dec. 10th.

Earlier OPP Constable Eldred Rodika told of arresting Christakos in Bancroft after a restaurant owner had shown him a bogus $20 bill.

The accused was driven to Bancroft's OPP offices in a police cruiser.

Later, four counterfeit bills with the same serial numbers were found hidden in the front seat of the cruiser.

A search of Christakos's car later revealed eight more bills with the bogus number in a wallet hidden in a trunk compartment.

Youth Charged With Murder

STURGEON FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Provincial police Thursday night arrested Maurice Devost, 16, of Cache Bay, Ont., and charged him with capital murder in connection with the stabbing death of a 69-year-old Cache Bay woman Saturday.

Police said today Devost is being held in custody at the OPP detachment here prior to his transfer to North Bay.

Family of Seven Held by Rebels Arrives Home

MONTREAL (CP)—A family of seven, held in Stanleyville by Congolese rebels until their rescue Nov. 24 by mercenaries and Belgian paratroops, arrived by air Thursday, unharmed but much relieved.

Dr. Meivin Loewen, 33, of Steinbach, Man., his American wife Elfrieda, 41, and their five children aged five to 13, had been under house arrest for a month before their rescue.

Dr. Loewen told reporters that during all time armed rebels repeatedly searched the house for hidden arms and radio transmitters and frightened the children.

They were the second group of Congo refugees to arrive here this week. Four Canadian nuns of the Daughters of Wisdom order returned Tuesday from Leopoldville.

Dr. Loewen, a Mennonite, became head of the Protestant University of Stanleyville in mid-June after three years in Leopoldville. He and his family continued his normal educational and missionary work until Aug. 7, when the rebels captured Stanleyville.

He and his family were supervised and their movements controlled by the rebels for nearly three months, but were permitted reasonably free movement around the city. During the last weeks they were confined to their home.

Dr. and Mrs. Loewen said they were never harmed or seriously threatened" by the rebels but added that on the day of their rescue their fate seemed uncertain.

Mrs. Loewen summed up the family's ordeal in a few words she said: "We are terribly glad to be here but it's very cold."

Will Appeal Ruling by Supreme Court

TORONTO (CP)—The attorney - general's department decided Thursday to appeal a ruling by Mr. Justice Edson Haines of the Ontario Supreme Court that the province's careless driving law is "inoperative."

W. C. Bowman, director of public prosecutions, said the appeal to the Ontario Court of Appeal would be filed as soon as possible—maybe today.

Mr. Justice Haines ruled the charge was in conflict with the Criminal Code charge of dangerous driving, and said that since the federal law takes precedence, the Ontario statute is invalid.

"We think the judge was wrong," said Mr. Bowman. The decision to take the appeal was made Thursday afternoon in a conference between Mr. Bowman and Attorney-General Arthur Wishart.

The case could reach the appeal court before the end of the year. However, failing that, it was learned that it is sure to be heard by the end of January, 1965.

Meanwhile officials of the attorney-general's department expected careless driving charges now before the courts would be put over until a decision is rendered by the court of appeal.

Mr. Bowman said no instruction would be given to magistrates on how to deal with careless driving charges. He said it was conceivable that magistrates could elect to go ahead with them. However, they would be liable to attempts by defence lawyers to block the trials.

Some Workers To Get Refunds In Pension Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—About one in every four employees contributing to the proposed federal pension plan likely will be entitled to year-end refunds for overpayment, the revenue department estimated Wednesday.

However, no refunds will be made for overpayment by employers, the joint Senate-Commons pensions committee was told. Their excess payments will be "bookshee" for the pension fund, Senator M. Wallace McCutcheon described it.

D. H. Sheppard, assistant deputy minister for taxation in the revenue department, estimated that approximately 1,360,000 refunds would be made to employees each year.

Mr. Sheppard said more than 1,000,000 will be entitled to refunds because they work less than a full year, but have had payroll deductions made by employers using deduction tables based on annual income.

Th. others will be those working for more than one employer a year. Both employers are required to deduct pension-plan contributions. Thus in many cases their combined deductions on behalf of the employee will exceed his share.

Under the plan, the employee and the employer each must pay 1.8 per cent of the employee's annual earnings above the starting annual exemption of $600 and up to an annual ceiling of $5,000, or hence a maximum amount of $4,400. Their shares would be a maximum of $79.20 each, or a total of $158.40.

DESCRIBES PLAN

Mr. Sheppard said deductions will work this way:

For every employee, the employer will establish the basic exemption of $600 a year, or $50 a month. He then will pay the combined contributions of 3.6 per cent of all amounts paid to that employee above the $50, regardless of the $5,000 ceiling.

The employer will do this until the combined total contribution is reached. For an employee earning more than $5,000 a year, therefore, payroll deductions will be made only for the number of months required to reach $158.40.

For a man paid $7,200 a year, $600 a month, the employer will pay 3.6 per cent of $550 or $19.80 a month for eight months until the $158.40 is reached.

This would mean monthly payroll deductions of $9.90 January to August inclusive, with no deductions for the last four months of the year.

Hellyer Appalled At Estimated Cost of Phantom

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Hellyer is reported appalled at the estimated cost—some $600,000,000—of the proposed program to build 108 American Phantom jet fighter-bombers in Canada.

Financial experts said Wednesday adoption of such a program likely would increase the $1,585,000,000 annual defence budget through the next three or four years.

For a maximum of $420,000,000 Mr. Hellyer hopes to get a new tactical fighter for the RCAF, six new warships costing $176,000,000 and about $50,000,000 worth of army equipment.

FAVOR PHANTOM

Generally speaking, the Canadian aircraft industry, the defence production and industry departments, the RCAF and at least some Montreal cabinet ministers—any new plane likely would be built at Canadair, Limited, Montreal — are believed in favor of the McDonnell F-4 Phantom.

The defence department, army and navy are said to favor a less expensive plane such as the Douglas Skyhawk or Northrop Freedom Fighter.

There is apparently little or no dispute that the Phantom is a better aircraft than any other under consideration.

But the defence department argues that the intended role—close support for the army, land-based or carrier-based or both—can be carried out by a cheaper plane.

They say it would be folly to spend so much on a strike plane unless it is intended to carry nuclear warheads.

But the government has already indicated it would not withdraw from the nuclear strike role.

The CF-104 low-level jet nuclear bomber, in use by the RCAF air division in Europe, cost $457,500,000 and has run into serious maintenance problems.

How to Respond to Reptiles. Or... Getting Along With Your Lizard

By BARBARA FROOM

Unless you have an indoor swimming pool, don't buy a pet caiman (South American alligator)—they grow to a minimum length of six feet. Unless you have a knack for breeding crickets, flies and grubs, don't buy a small lizard. And if you can't stand temperatures in the 80s, don't consider any kind of reptile for a pet.

During the last few years, various kinds of southern reptiles have been sold as pets in increasing numbers. The Canadian Amphibian and Reptile Conservation Society, as well as other conservation and humane organizations, deplores this situation as few of these reptiles when bought by the casual pet fancier, have any chance for survival.

All reptiles require a great deal of warmth. Depending on the species, the ideal temperature is from 75 to 85 degrees.

Most of the small, insectivorous lizards such as the horned lizards (often called horned toads) and the American chameleons refuse earthworms if meal worms which are often sold for them form their sole diet, they develop a fatal internal inflammation.

The beautiful green iguana lizards present little difficulty as far as feeding is concerned as they are vegetarians. They will also accept raw, lean meat However, they grow anywhere from four to six feet in length.

Caimans are the kind of alligators sold as pets. When small, they will feed well on minnows, earthworms, frogs and strips of raw fish and raw, lean meat. But as they grow, rodents would also have to be added to their diet to supply the necessary bone matter for a six-footer.

EASIEST TO CARE FOR

Snakes as pets can be fascinating and will become quite tame, but are highly specialized feeders. They prefer starvation and death rather than eat what they do not relish. But the common garter snake will accept earthworms, minnows, frogs and sometimes even bits of raw meat and chicken if mixed with strips of fish. Snakes must be kept in clean, dry surroundings as they won't develop skin fungus which is caused by dampness.

Of all the reptiles, turtles are the most simple to care for, but over the years, few creatures have been the victims of more ignorance. The little greenish turtles known as sliders are the kind most commonly sold. They come from the southern United States and may attain a shell length of 12 inches.

One of the killers of pet turtles is a sole diet of commercial turtle food. This leads to slow starvation, soft shell, blindness and eventual death. Young turtles have enormous appetites and should be fed daily on a varied diet of raw fish, raw lean meats and chicken, earthworms, aquatic snails, aquatic weeds, raw spinach, other greens, raw tomatoes and any other fruits and vegetables that the turtle will accept. An elaborate container is not necessary but a fairly large one to allow for growth is best.

Land turtles or tortoises require terrestrial surroundings with only a large water dish. They are mostly vegetarians, relishing fruits, berries and plenty of greens. Some also will eat earthworms, raw meats and snails.

Don't acquire a reptile or amphibian for a pet unless you are sure you can give it proper care not only when it is young but also when it reaches its full size.

Miss Froom is editor for the Canadian Amphibian and Reptile Conservation Society.

Gene Wianko Captivates Audience With "Balkan Mysteries" at Collegiate

By A. HENDERSON

From the minarets of glorious Istanbul on the Black Sea, to the golden waters of the Adriatic, Gene Wianko, of travelogue fame, carried with him, his pleasing narration, colorful scenes and lovely Balkan folk singing, the large audience which filled the Collegiate auditorium last evening. As on previous occasions, the travelogue was sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Belleville, and is the 13th showing of the annual Adventure Series, entitled: "Mysteries of the Balkan World."

Mr. Wianko is a native son of California and a graduate of the University of California. He has had considerable experience in both radio and television fields as well as being an author. In 1956 he turned his attention to the field of travelogue presentation, for which he has received outstanding commendation.

BALKAN STATES

The Balkan states, comprised by Roumania, Bulgaria, Greece, and Yugoslavia, were established following the World War, and so named from a short, but rugged chain of mountains which extend from the Black Sea to Servia and the Adriatic. The range, which is about 300 miles in length, has a height of 5,000 to about 9,000 feet.

Among the fascinating scenes shown was that of the Oracle of Apollo. At Delphi, showing the attendant Vestal Virgins clothed in white, flowing robes, who enquired from the god, portents for the future, whether good or ill, such as the ten destructions of Ephesus, which was fulfilled. Another scene of exquisite beauty was that of the acropolis and parthenon at Athens, in moonlight, on the hilltop. Here was taught logic and philosophy, and it was here the Apostle Paul told them of the "Unknown God."

MOUNTAIN VILLAGES

The speaker also told of the rise and fall of mountain villages overrun by the Huns and the Goths. Where these races from is not known, but by repeated inroads, the people were either destroyed or fled to neighboring countries or states. These invaders were finally the destruction of the Romans.

Folk dances were in colorful dress, the men in red embroidered jackets, with white trousers ornated with bands of black. In everyday dress the men always carry a knife at the belt. These dances are without music; in the main, they are a sort of the modern child's dance of "Ring-around a Rosy." Other dances, especially the Warrior dance is done in semi-darkness.

Promenades are also enjoyed when the people meet at sunset and hold a time of relaxation, meeting friends and sweethearts. It was noticed that the women were usually in colored dresses and the men with gleaming white shirts, which their women folk washed down at the seaside. Wedding were hilarious and enjoyed by everybody, the bride with white gown and over-the-face veil.

LITTLE FARMING DONE

Very little farming is done, due to the rocky condition of the land; but fishing was relied on for daily food. Some fishermen managed to sleep in off-shore thatched huts on stilts out in the water, where the fish had to come to them instead of the fishermen going to the fish. In the fields which yielded a harvest, the threshing was done by horses treading out the grain by going round and round in a circle tied to a centre post, and guided by a young woman. Rice was also one of the industries worked by the women. Out-of-doors movies, theatres, and comic shows, as well as bill-boards stressing "Laurel and Hardy"—showed the western trend.

EARTHQUAKES

Great earthquake destruction was evident, with great fissures in the streets, people searching in the debris for loved ones, and whatever might remain from their lost homes; mosques were teetering at dizzying angles, with the sides half gone.

The church is a social centre. Christianity was the main religion for over 500 years. Some of the same churches still remain which were there when Christ was here, and while Christianity is still the dominating religion of the state.

The Balkan people are dark, reddish-brown in color, with dark hair, and fairly tall of stature. They are kindly and hospitable; but wanting to learn more of the ways of the west, so leave their homes, returning after many years, to revisit homes again. They are devout and love of country is predominant.

INDUSTRIES

The industries are mainly carpet weaving of fine workmanship, and done in bright colors, which are exposed to the sun's rays to fasten the colors. The carpets are woven by hand from designs furnished, made by designers near the workshop.

The wandering musicians go from house to house earning a penny or two, for all are poor. For over 500 years the Balkans were ruled by the Ottoman government, when life was hard. Since they are ruled by the communists, and so far over 700,000 from Albania have escaped to Montenegro. This they do by moonlight to find the paths of the mountain sides and through the valleys to safety.

GYPSIES

The Gypsies, a free wandering people, who enjoy life, as they think is thought, from day to day, originally. They have a dialect of their own, as a clever wanderers, called the "Balkan Musicians." They are known as persons with a beautiful bouquet of red and white roses by her daughter, Mrs. Irene Ross from Mrs. Ross and her husband, Tom Ross and grandchildren Eric and Susan.

A letter of good wishes was read from the White Shrine of Jerusalem, Belleville from the Worthy High Priestess, Mrs. Margaret Stalker and the scribe Miss Jean Stevenson on behalf of the members.

As the chaplain was presented at the altar Mrs. Muriel Goosby accompanied by Mrs. Lamoine West sang an appropriate selection. The newly installed worthy matron Mrs. Theresa Kilpatrick thanked the installing board for their part which was carried out in such a dignified manner. She also thanked everyone who had assisted in any way and asked for the support of the officers and members in the year ahead. The Worthy Patron also voiced his thanks.

The immediate Past Worthy Matron and Past Worthy Patron were presented in fact, where the Worthy Matron, Mrs. Pat Lloyd was presented with her Past Matron's jewel by her aunt, Mrs. Theresa Kilpatrick. Mrs. Blanche Keller made the presentation to Past Patron Jesse Reid.

Doesn't Give up Cigarettes, Just Stops Buying Them

DEAR ANN LANDERS — A certain man in this office has been bragging to everyone in sight that after inhaling two packs a day for 15 years he has quit smoking. What he means is he has quit buying cigarettes.

ANN LANDERS

Every time I look up, he's begging a cigarette from somebody. Last week he bummed at least ten cigarettes from me and I am sick of it.

This morning I reached the end of my patience. When he came by my desk and asked for a cigarette I said, "Why don't you buy your own for a change?" He replied, "Because I have quit smoking. If I buy cigarettes I'll start smoking again, and the doctor says I shouldn't."

DEAR STUMPED — The next time the moocher comes by and asks for a cigarette remind him about the doctor's orders.

Give him a mint instead. In fact, he a short and give him a whole roll of mints. This might make him feel so cheap that he could either start buying his own cigarettes or his own mints.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Some close friends returned from vacation $2,000 richer. They figured out a system to beat the dice tables. It worked like a charm.

One friend has offered to cut my husband in on the system for $1,000. I'm against it. My husband says we're not so crazy to pass up a chance like this. I know it's a long shot but is it worth the investment? — SECOND GUESSER.

DEAR GUESSER — Who do you think pays for the thick carpets and the fancy trimmings in those gambling joints? Wise guys like your friend who thought they could outsmart the experts.

Some people like to gamble for the fun of it and I have no quarrel with them — if their bills are paid.

The most sensible system for people who gamble for entertainment is this: Set aside whatever you can afford to throw away and never miss. Consider it the price of the evening's fun. When it's gone — and it will be — go home and forget it.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am the mother of a retarded child. I read with interest the letter from the girl whose 15-year-old brother is retarded.

The father of the boy was mistaken when he said, "The boy is a fool and nothing can be done about it." The mother was wrong, too, when she said, "This is our cross and we must bear it." A great deal can be done to help retarded children. The mother and father who do nothing are fools and society bears the cross after the do-nothing parents pass on.

There are 5,500,000 mentally retarded children and adults in the United States. Each year approximately 120,000 join this group. It would be disastrous if all parents thought this way.

Retarded children are not stupid and they are not crazy. They can learn if someone will take the time and patience to teach them.

Too often the retarded child is spoiled because he is allowed to get away with things for which the normal child would be punished. Doesn't it stand to reason that any child who is undisciplined will grow up to be a problem to himself and to others?

Parents of retarded children have an obligation to educate themselves so they can help their children develop their abilities to the maximum. They can get information from the city, county or provincial Association for Retarded Children. — A MOTHER.

• • •

Parents are people — they can be right and they can be wrong. To help understand their viewpoint and to promote harmony at home, write for Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Successful Living

May Have to Risk Losing Friendship to Find Love

DEAR DORIS — I do hope you won't think me a silly woman. I have known this man going on three years but never went out with him until just recently as I was married, and though I didn't love my husband I would never be unfaithful to him. Then late last year my husband dropped dead with a heart attack.

I keep house for this man, his brother and invalid father. He has always been a perfect gentleman. He is 48 and never been married and I am 43, so we are not teenagers. He says he likes me very much. He knows I love him. He said he will never say that he loves me unless he really means it.

If I quit going with him I will quit my job as I wouldn't want to be where he was. I have never loved any man as I love him. He suggested I write you and see what I should do. — VERY MUCH IN LOVE.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR VERY — Wouldn't it be nice if we could just take all our big decisions in life, lay them at someone's feet and say "What shall I do?" Haven't we all wanted some answers from a crystal ball?

You are not a silly woman. Love is not silly. But you will have to decide what you can take. At 48 your bachelor friend values his freedom, and won't switch to marriage without a compelling reason.

Can you enjoy his companionship on the present basis? Then do so in the hope that love will grow. If you can't, it might be wise to quit him and the job, in the hope he will miss you and discover he cares, after all. It could happen!

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I have been watching your column and say without obligation that you are doing a good job as a social worker. I do have a problem which you can try to solve with your long experience.

I am a newcomer from India. I do not know the customs and culture of this country, hence have been unable to make friends.

Sometimes I am courageous enough to talk to others, but then their smiling faces give me an inferiority complex. I do not know how to handle the situation.

I am 21 years old. — SHY.

• • •

DEAR SHY — Too shy to even give me a name and address for you! Shouldn't you start to trust somebody, namely me?

From there you might trust, a little, the worker at your local Y, who will take a special interest in someone from so far away. Then smile and reach out your hand in friendship to the young people she will introduce you to.

Canadians may be reserved enough to respect another's privacy; they may be shy enough to shy away from things unfamiliar; but when people put trust in us and a hand in ours, we take it!

• • •

Confidential to FUTURE D.J. — Please write again enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope, for a private answer to your question. Repeat the question.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I am 15 and like a boy of the same age. We went steady for three months, but then his cousin started telling him things about me which weren't true, because she wanted him to go with a friend of hers who also liked him. We broke up.

I have received threatening phone calls telling me to stay away from him and have gotten into several fights because of talking to him or dancing with him at a dance.

I like him a lot and am pretty sure he likes me, but he is constantly told what to do by his cousin and her friend. I suppose he is as confused as I am but he has his friends and family whereas I have neither who care about me. — CONFUSED.

• • •

DEAR CONFUSED — Sure he likes you: and the other girl. And others. Don't lower yourself to fighting over childish phone calls. Have you given your family a chance to show they care about you and your feelings?

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I am married for the second time. My 16-year-old daughter has been living in another province with her father. Now she wants to live near me.

My present husband doesn't want her to live with us, as he says she might be a bad influence on his daughter, who is ten years old. I've looked after this little girl for four years, working part time while she is at school to help support her, as well as my own daughter.

Right now I have my own daughter boarded out. She's a good girl and doing so well. But it is hard to swing all this with the money I have. I wrote to her father for help but he ignored my letter. — STYMIED.

• • •

DEAR STYMIED — Even my best mind reading doesn't give me the reasons for all this. What can be so bad about two young half-sisters becoming acquainted? And having companionship with each other?

And why should Husband Number One ignore your letter? Did he resent his daughter leaving? From where I sit, two grown men are letting you solve their problems for them. And letting their flesh and blood go shortchanged — of both money and a sister. Youngsters can be lonely, especially where the family is broken up.

A personal counsellor can help you with this, much better than I can, after you give him all the facts.

Horticultural Society Plans Centennial Year Project

STIRLING — Mrs. Bill Morgan, Stirling R.R. 3, was hostess on November 30th for the last meeting of Stirling Horticultural Society for 1964. There were 22 adults in attendance and this included four gentlemen, the president, Mr. Floyd Armstrong, her mother, Mrs. William Ashby, the hostess and her daughter Suzette.

The president chaired the meeting and Mrs. Ray Rose read messages of thanks and other correspondence. Mr. H. Waite presented a most gratifying bank account. The president handed in $65, the proceeds from the four bus trips. Mrs. H. Beddow gave an outline of the recent top dressing of flower beds in the village. The bill for this was authorized to be paid. A discussion followed re the purchasing of Canadian centennial trees to be planted in 1965. It was decided to purchase 12 trees and a novel way of disposing of them to paid up members was outlined. A special drive for new members will be undertaken early in the new year.

The 1965 slate of officers will be presented at the next meeting on January 5th to be held at the home of the president.

Mrs. Ray Rose and Mrs. Ashley Brooks, delegates to the annual meeting of the Provincial Association held at Guelph Ontario Agricultural College in June gave comprehensive reports of the various sessions They also enjoyed tours to beautiful landscaped homes and places of interest in the Guelph area. A total of 1100 delegates were in attendance. A special arranging was greatly enjoyed. Mrs. Brooks in her report stressed that all Horticultural Societies plan for 2nd point centennial committees and thus make Canada more beautiful.

CUP OF BRIGHTNESS

Dear Susanna: Want to freshen the kitchen and bathroom tile floors between scrubbings?

Put half a cup of liquid wax into a cup and a half of water, in a bucket. Apply with a squeeze mop. After it dries buff it up with the polisher and the floors shine beautifully again.— Mrs. Harold H. Hackson

HOLLY CANDLES

Dear Susanna: If you would like to try a twinkling, lace-like, geek-a-boo decorator candle, here is what to do:

Cut off the sloping top part of a quart size milk carton. Puncture a hole in the bottom and after tying a knot in the end of a wick, run thread up through. A thick piece of cord dipped in melted wax will do. Hold it taut in the center at the top while you dump in a tray of ice cubes. (If you lay a knife across the top of the carton and tie the wick to it, it will stay in place.) Then, pour in your melted cord wax until it nearly reaches the top. After the wax has set, cut away the carton and release some of the water. It may take a couple of hours before all the ice melts, so leave it sitting on the kitchen drain board. — Mrs. Jean Hall

Word of Warning: Never melt wax directly over the heat. Always use a double boiler. A good idea is a tin can set in a pan of water — then you don't have any cleaning up to do — and always spread plenty of papers out on your work area. It was does get splattered about. Nylon net is wonderful for whisking it away. — SUSANNA

QUESTION

Any time you find new ideas for hamburg I am sure every reader would appreciate them as I know with the cost of living the way it is, hamburg appears quite often on family tables. What I am writing for is a recipe to make a Chinese dish that I have had in a restaurant, but I don't know the name. There are cubes of green pepper with sort of a sweet sauce, also other ingredients. The peppers seem so crisp and green, yet they also taste cooked. When I steam peppers for stuffing they lose their color and wilt a bit. I would appreciate this recipe, also any other Chinese recipes you may have time to send me. I am planning on serving Chinese food at my card club in January. I cut out of the paper tonight Sweet and Sour Spareribs which I also plan to serve. Thanks a million for such a terrific addition to our paper.... Lorna M.

ANSWER

Thank you, Lorna, for a kind letter. It is very nice of you to mention peppers as the Chinese do.

Dinner Menu

Sole Fillets Baked in Milk with Cheese Topping; Shredded Buttered Curried Cabbage; Glazed Sliced Carrots; Tomato Jelly Salads on Lettuce; Cottage Cheese Dressing; Canned Peaches or Sliced Bananas with Custard Sauce; Coffee.

GREEN PEPPERS - CHINESE STYLE (serves 4)

Wash 2 large green peppers, cut in quarters, remove inside ribs and seeds and cut into 1" squares. Heat 2 tablespoons peanut oil (or other cooking oil if you cannot buy peanut) in frying pan and saute the peppers over medium heat for 3 minutes, turning 2 or 3 times. Remove peppers to a warm dish. Mix together 1 tablespoon soy sauce, 1½ teaspoons corn starch, 1 teaspoon sugar and ½ cup cold water and stir into the oil remaining in pan until thick. Add sauteed peppers, barely heat through and serve at once before peppers lose their crispness and color.

I have mailed to you some of my most recent hamburg recipes and Chinese recipes. A reader described as "perfect gems" the following hamburg recipes for meat pies given here January 15, 1960.

INDIVIDUAL MEAT PIES (Hamburg)

Make your best pastry and line individual pie plates or muffin tins with it. Fill ¾ full with the following: Two-thirds cup undiluted evaporated milk, 1½ lbs. ground beef, ¾ cup fine dry bread crumbs, 1 egg, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, ¼ cup finely chopped onion, ¼ cup finely chopped green pepper (optional). Mix all ingredients together and use for pie filling. Cut out gashed pastry tops to fit top and seal edges. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. until done, browned - about 15 or 20 minutes longer. Time depends on size of individual tins.

Every Office Is Contested, Largest Crowd in Years Hears Views of Candidates

CAMPBELLFORD — The largest crow. to attend a nomination meeting in many years turned out Monday night in Campbellford. Every office is being contested. While there were no accusations or stormy incidents one could not help but realize a serious vein of thought prevailed.

One of the issues in which every one seemed concerned was the sewage disposal problem, there are three facets to consider, the first is why is the town of Campbellford being pressured by the Ontario Water Resources Commission to institute sewage disposal when almost all of the towns and villages of the Trent system above Campbellford do not have even sewers.

The second contentious issue appears to be whether to build an activated sludge plant or a lagoon system and the third point is whether a comparative survey should be received from other consult ig engineers, who might give a report of lower cost to build a disposal system.

FINANCIAL ABILITY

The second issue revolves itself around the financial ability of the town to carry the expense of any sewage disposal. In the past two years of administration the mill rate has risen 19.3 mills to an all-time high. A. C. Newman in his bid for the office of Mayor has indicated he is not satisfied that such a high mill rate is necessary and his main objective is to see a change in the financial policy that has been carried out in the previous administration under Mayor Tanner.

Mr. Newman stated that he is well experienced in the administration of public funds, he has had 14 years on the Campbellford P.U.C.; he has been chairman of the Commission a number of times, also served on the Public School Board. He said the tax rate had increased 19.3 mills and now the town is faced with ½ million for sewage disposal of doubtful value. He also quoted names of surrounding municipalities who were adequately serviced with small lagoons if disposal of some type became compulsory.

MAYOR IS HEARD

Mayor Tanner told the assembly that taxes receivable were in much better shape than in previous years due to the fact that Clerk E. M. Dey and Town auditor C. W. Cochrane were instructed to demand that taxes be paid. The amount of receivable and uncollected taxes November 30, 1964 as per financial statement is $99,801.91. The inicorical side of this is to say the least amusing. Going back to 1961, taxes uncollected were $60,547.50; in 1962 $74,069.11 and in 1963 one year ago uncollected taxes were $89,621.

Mayor Tanner stated that he had worked hard in conjuction with Douglas Maybee a former Mayor and at present President of the Campbellford Chamber of Commerce endeavouring to attract industry to Campbellford, but had nothing to offer at the present time.

Mayor Tanner paid tribute to those who arranged the industrial Day.

REEVE GEORGE FREE

Reeve George Free spoke briefly of County Council work stressing the various committees he served on in 1964. He said the County's assessment was now over $4 million. He also outlined the County's road system leading to Campbellford with connecting links through the corporation. The county mill rate was 12 mills, six of which are for county road maintenance and work. Mr. Free did not give the cost of County Roads expenditure which according to County E.N.S to date is $1,300,000 and according to County Engineer John Moorehouse by the end of the year will be $1,478,141.

DEPUTY - REEVE LOCKE

Deputy Reeve R. J. Locke said in his position as Chairman of Finance he had a good knowledge of all expenses of every committee. He felt taxes were getting rather high, the mill rate rapidly increasing and that, we should watch where we were going. Mr. Locke touched on Industry very lightly in comparison with previous years.

W. G. VANDERWATER

Speaking for Campbellford P.U.C. were Hydro Commissioner W. G. Vanderwater, Vice Chairman. He stated the town of Campbellford was in the unique position of owning a fully paid for small generating station, which supplied two-thirds of the electricity needed. It is the only power house left in Ontario producing two-thirds of power needed for the municipality. Mr. Vanderwater said he would stand for re-election.

Mr. MacArthur, chairman of P.U.C. announced there would be a cut in coal of power in the Campbellford consumer of 16.6 beginning the first of the New Year. He stated all lines in good condition, low water level, had resulted in some 800 cut outs. Mr. MacArthur also stated he would stand for re-election.

F. M. RUTHERFORD

F. M Rutherford, addressed the meeting briefly as a nominee for office on P.U.C. He spoke of an organization which had not been mentioned at any time at the meeting but which deserved special mention, the Merryvale School for Retarded Children He said he had been instrumental in having a resolution presented to Premier Robarts and the schools be put on the same financial basis as Public Schools In the coming January the government will assume 60 percent of the cost of operation.

Mr. Rutherford also drew to the attention of those present that there was $99,810 taxes outstanding. He also mentioned the fact that he had served four years on the P.U.C. during which time he felt there were many achievements for the betterment of the community.

During Mr. Rutherford's term on the P.U.C. he stated, the new hydro substation was built, the power house was put on semi-automatic, the new filtration plant plans for building and financed we finalized and the tenders were let. Water rates had not been revised for 32 years. This was done and the filtration plant i. being paid for through these revised rates, not as many still believe through the taxes, the only charge is the water bill.

Mr. Rutherford expressed the view that experience was valuable in any public administration and said he had had 14 years in municipal offices which also contained four years in the P.U.C. by virtue of him being Mayor for that length of time.

ARTHUR BROWN

Arthur Brown retired hydro employee is opposing incumbent Reeve George Free. Mr. Brown spoke briefly on the lagoon type of sewage disposal basing his information on research of a number of municipalities using this lagoon system. He said next years council should do more research and take some definite action, and a sewage disposal of any type should be in line with the financial status of the town.

R. B. BENNETT

Councillor R. B. Bennett, industrial Commissioner for the past year, explained what his committee and the Chamber of Commerce had endeavored to do along lines of industrial promotion. He outlined the highlights of the Industrial Day held in Campbellford in October.

Mr. Bennett explained that the cost to the tax payer was only in the neighborhood of $150 mainly for expenses of the speakers, and that the Chamber, Committee, Chamber Member and business man paid $5 for his own ticket. According to the town pay sheet $140 of the taxpayers money was paid out for cheese of which each local man received a gift of cheese, a Cooke's chocolate bar from Cooke's Chocolate factory coupled with a noon luncheon and refreshments at noon again refreshments and a dinner in the evening. One taxpayer remarked "Not bad for $5."

Mr. Bennett suggested the formation of an over all Industrial Commission comprised of appointments from Council, the Chamber of Commerce, P.U.C. about seven in number. He spoke favorably of the efforts of the committee in charge of building a new Recreation Centre. He said he would prefer to see balance of necessary funds done by private subscription but would be in favor of limited participation by the town.

Mr. Bennett said as this was his first year in Council he thought he had learned more than he had contributed.

COUNCILLORS HEARD

Councillor Sharp spoke briefly concerning his Property and Park Committee and also of Police committee, both well within the budget.

Councillor Grills of the Fire and Water Committee stated 37 fire calls had been made in Campbellford and 21 in the township, 2 boat rescues had been made, one drowning accident at Bradley Bay.

Councillor Torrance, Legal Committee said there had been very slight legal committments during the year.

Councillor Hughes, Recreation and Welfare had very little to report.

Councillor R. McGregor came late into Council in 1964 because of resignation of Councillor Thompson. He said he had no committee during his period in office.

REPORTS FOR BOARD

Wm. Macbeney, Chairman of Public School Board reported for the Board, 10 acres of land has been bought as a site for a new Public School and is being paid for by budget over a period of 4 years to eliminate a debenture issue. Running for office on the Board are Wayne Gunter, C. Johnson, Hector McMillan, Clarence Irwin, William Murray.

Don Bennett reported for High School stating there were 29 teachers on staff, an enrollment of 370 and no new addition was anticipated at the present time.

Only Matter of Time Before Air Raids Are Carried Out Against Communist Routes

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON (AP)—It looks here as if it will be only a matter of time before air raids are carried out against Communist Viet Cong infiltration routes outside South Viet Nam.

The anticipation here is the raids would be made by South Vietnamese Air Force planes, possibly with U.S. pilots aboard to accompany South Vietnamese crews, rather than U.S. Air Force planes.

Indications are the basic decision to go ahead with limited raids already has been made. Such raids are not likely to involve actual communities in North Viet Nam or the southern tongue of Laos, but would be against jungle supply depots in the mountains and valleys.

Statements from Washington have not clearly indicated raids are definitely planned. But the implication of plans for "urgent consultations" between U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor and South Vietnamese Premier Tran Van Huong is the U.S. is ready to back raids.

Certainly Washington statements are seen by Saigon officials as meaning just this.

PLANS LAUDED

The South Viet Nam official news agency Thursday night lauded reported American plans for increased military support.

Taylor is due back here this weekend after his consultations with President Johnson and top Washington officials. The feeling is he may be armed with authority to unleash South Viet Nam's increasingly powerful air force on targets outside South Viet Nam.

The South Vietnamese Air Force is equipped with several hundred propeller-driven A-1E fighter bombers daily capable of carrying large bomb and rocket loads to targets almost anywhere in the Indochina area. The pool of U.S.-trained South Vietnamese pilots also has grown dramatically in recent months.

Whatever Taylor has in mind, he will get a warm reception from the Saigon government. The South Viet Nam news agency said:

"The Vietnamese government eagerly awaits Ambassador Taylor's imminent return to Viet Nam and is prepared to consider all measures to use the increased American aid."

Maj.-Gen. Nguyen Khanh, former premier and now chief of the armed forces, and Brig.-Gen. Nguyen Cao Ky, air force commander, long have advocated extension of the war outside South Viet Nam. Both have contended the only way the roots of the Viet Cong can be cut off is by direct action against North Viet Nam or even China.

U.S. officials have argued action against North Viet Nam would not in itself turn the fortunes of war in South Viet Nam in favor of the government, but that attacks on infiltration routes would be useful. South Vietnamese officials apparently are happy to settle for that.

KENNEDY WALES

BOSTON (AP)—Senator Edward Kennedy, who has been in hospital with a broken back since a plane crash June 19, took his first steps Thursday in his rooms at New England Baptist Hospital. Wearing a back brace and hospital garb with shoes and stockings, Kennedy walked the length of the room, about 10 feet, and back. The frame in which his back is kept immobile was raised to an upright position to allow the senator to step off his orthopedic bed.

Mariner Rolls, May Delay Course Change

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The U.S. spacecraft Mariner IV went into a wild roll early today, probably delaying for at least 24 hours an attempt to fire a rocket that would send it closer to Mars.

The malfunction — first serious problem since the launching Saturday—came at the start of a delicate manoeuvre to position the spacecraft for the firing of the small rocket in its base.

Jet propulsion laboratory scientists sent a series of commands which were to be stored in Mariner IV's electronic memory and obeyed later. These commands included giving up its lock on its celestial guide, the distant star Canopus, and starting to roll so its nose would be pointed closer to Mars.

The rocket - firing attempt was to have been ordered by radio as Mariner IV passed over the jet propulsion laboratory's Goldstone, Calif., tracking station.

At that point Marine IV, launched Saturday, will be 1,084,344 miles from earth, apparently still well ahead of Russia's Mars-bound Zond II, and 133,584,864 miles from Mars.

The last report from Moscow placed the Soviet craft, launched Monday, 443,750 miles from earth Wednesday noon. At about the same time the U.S. craft was 771,583 miles from earth.

Firing of its 50-pound-thrust liquidfuel rocket was planned to increase Mariner IV's speed from 7,048 to almost 7,100 m.p.h.

Just before the firing, tiny jets of steam were to roll the spacecraft and point it more directly at Mars. Hopefully, the burst would send it past Mars at a distance of about 8,600 miles next July 14, with a chance to snap the best pictures yet of the mysterious planet's surface. Without the corrective manoeuvre Mariner IV would miss Mars by 150,000 miles, reaching closest proximity July 17.

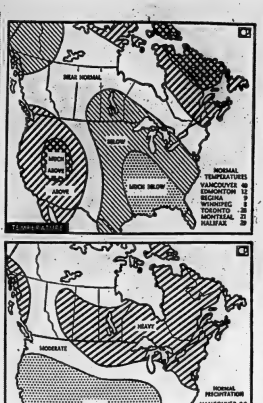
Five Byelections Will Be Held In January

LONDON (Reuters)—The Labor government today named two of its elected members of Parliament to the House of Lords, thus setting up a "little general election" expected in January.

Byelections to fill the two seats, and three others vacated when outgoing Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home named three Conservatives to the House of Lords, will probably all be held on the same day.

They are not expected to bring any change in party standing in the House of Commons, since all the seats are regarded as "safe" for the party that held them.

The two Labor members of Parliament were given life peerages today in order to open up safe Labor seats for two leading members of Wilson's cabinet who are not members of the House of Commons.



They are Foreign Secretary Patrick Gordon Walker, who will run in the East London seat of Leyton (Labor won by almost 8,000 votes in October) and Technology Minister Frank Cousins, who will seek election in Nuneaton (Labor by 11,700 in October).

The two new peers were among 13 Labor supporters and three Liberals, all named as life peers today.

Among the new Labor peers are James Chuter Ede, 82, home secretary in the 1945-51 Labor government; Fenner Brockway, 76, for many years a controversial figure in movements aimed at helping people in Britain's colonies; and Harold Collison, 55, chairman of the 8,000,000-member Trades Union Congress.

The three Liberals named to the peerage included Lady Violet Bonham Carter, 77, daughter of former Liberal prime minister H. H. Asquith.

One other woman, Mrs. Norah Phillips, widow of the former general secretary of the Labor Party, was among those elevated to peerages.

NORMAL WEATHER FOR MOST — Temperatures will be near-normal for most of Canada in December according to the 30-day outlook of the United States weather bureau. Warmer weather is expected for Quebec and the Maritimes and below-normal in southern Manitoba and part of Saskatchewan.

Precipitation is expected to be heavy in most parts of the country. Precipitation is given in inches of rain; one inch of rain equals 10 inches of snow.

Other temperatures for the period: New York 36; New Orleans 55; San Francisco 50.

Other precipitations are: New York 3.4; New Orleans 4.1; San Francisco 4.1. (CP Newsmap)

Bill to Abolish Capital Punishment Likely Will Carry in British House

LONDON (CP) — A private member's bill to abolish hanging in Britain was to be presented in Parliament today and the government has promised to find time to debate it before Christmas.

The bill is sponsored by 48-year-old Sidney Silverman, Labor member of Parliament and confirmed opponent of the death penalty. It seems certain of success.

A majority of the House of Commons now is known to be in favor of scrapping the 1957 Homicide Act — a compromise measure that retained the death penalty for murders committed with guns, by explosions, in the course of theft or for murdering policemen or prison officers.

Silverman's bill will be open to a free, non-party vote and a majority of more than 100 is expected. Conservative and Labor MPs with reservations are likely to abstain.

The reason for the swing against hanging is partly because of the steady pressure abolitionists have maintained during the last seven years and partly because the 1957 act, with its arbitrary distinctions, has offended consciences and proved unworkable.

Silverman also can count on increasing support in the House of Lords. Not only have most of the bishops of the Church of England changed sides since 1957, there is also a strong current against hanging running through the law benches.

"I regard hanging as an obscene futility," said Silverman, who has been introducing abolitionist bills since 1948.

Also backing Silverman are Labor's new home secretary, Sir Frank Soskice, and Lord Gardiner, the Labor lord chancellor and a powerful influence in the Lords.

Sir Frank, who has long opposed capital punishment, has made it clear he never wants to make the home secretary's traditional and agonizing decision on whether to grant a reprieve on a death sentence. Lord Gardiner was until recently co-chairman of the society for the abolition of capital punishment.

It is likely the last people ever to be hanged here were Gwynne Evans, 24, and Peter Allen, 21, two dairymen convicted in separate prisons Aug. 13 after they were jointly convicted of murdering a 55-year-old lauudry truck driver in the course of a theft.

Russians Uneasy on How K Was Deposed

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—"It is better that the truth were printed."

This remark by a young Moscow working girl echoes an apparently widespread feeling of disquiet here over the ousting of Nikita Khrushchev's removal as top man in the Soviet Union.

Though guarded in their comments, many Muscovites betray a marked distaste for the whole affair, and particularly for the secret and conspiratorial manner in which it was brought off.

They are inclined to give Khrushchev's political executioners the benefit of the doubt insofar as the actual merits of the case are concerned. After all, though liked and respected, Mr. K had raised doubts with his inclination to improvise in handling problems.

What they are disturbed about is the cavalier way in which the Communist party leaders acted.

"The man had his faults but this was no way to treat him," said one Muscovite, apparently overlooking the fact that the rules of the Kremlin power game require that conspirators act swiftly and decisively or not at all.

Russians whose work brings them into association with foreigners showed embarrassment over the fact that the dynamic personality who had dominated the scene for 10 years could so suddenly topple from public view.

Some made little jokes to the effect that the Soviet Union had achieved a change in government before the voters of Britain and the United States even had a chance to cast their ballots.

But most Soviet citizens were not disposed to be jocular.

One common response was sheer bewilderment, unrelieved in the early post-Khrushchev period by any credible explanation of just why he was booted out. As with people elsewhere, Russians took with a grain of salt the official explanation that age and poor health had prompted Khrushchev's removal.

A possible sign of popular misgivings was the restrained applause given the Communist party first secretary, Leonid Brezhnev and Premier Alexei Kosygin when they appeared in Red Square three days after the announcement that they had taken over. The occasion was a public reception for Russia's three new cosmonauts.

What adds significance was that the people in Red Square that day were hard-core Communists since only militant activists could hope to be in such a place on such an auspicious occasion.

The reaction inside the Soviet Union had its counterpart abroad in the quite extraordinary outburst of questioning among Communists elsewhere. That such pressure for explanations could build up within the once steel-tight Soviet empire is perhaps a tribute to Khrushchev himself.

It is a reflection of the faint stirrings of free expression that occurred as a result of his policy of relaxing controls over the population and taking away some of the power of the police. It is also symbolic of the shattering of Moscow's hegemony in the Communist world brought about, perhaps inadvertently, by Khrushchev's policies.

Safe-Driving Week Success

December Road Toll Reduced

By FRITS ROOS

OTTAWA (CP)—The month of December once was Canada's worst for traffic deaths. Now it is seventh.

Part of the credit for the change may be attributed to the annual Safe-Driving Week held in the first seven days of December.

In the first eight years of the campaign, the average death toll for Dec. 1-7 was 56. This compares with the average of 38 deaths a week for the last half of 1963.

This year, the Canadian Highway Safety Council, which coordinates the campaign, forecasts a death toll of 50 for the week. It terms this "conservative though realistic."

The estimate compares with an actual toll of 38 last year and 70 in 1962.

It envisages six traffic deaths in the Atlantic provinces, 18 in Quebec, 16 in Ontario, nine in the prairie provinces and four in British Columbia.

Council officials figure that Safe-Driving Week, an "awareness campaign" on the virtues of good, law-observing driving, saved some 190 lives in its first eight years.

COULD SAVE 1,000

On this scale, they say it would be possible to save about 1,000 lives over a whole year if motorists and pedestrians were to make every week a safe-driving week.

The council's basic philosophy is: Accidents are almost always the responsibility of one person. They happen one at a time. They can be avoided one at a time.

It says most people know quite well how to behave in traffic. What counts is that every driver should be persuaded to put that knowledge to work.

The first week of December is selected for the campaign because it coincides with the start of stepped-up vigilance by police with the advent of hazardous winter driving complicated by holiday celebrating.

Thousands of members of local and provincial highway safety councils, service clubs, women's organizations and representatives of industry, business, government and the legal profession will co-operate with police in a massive education battle against bad driving habits.

The trend has been for rising accident figures in Canada. Traffic fatalities increased 16 per cent in the first six months of the year to 1,842 from 1,584 in the same 1963 period, the bureau of statistics reports.

QUEBEC LEADS

Greatest increases were in Quebec, to 622 from 462, and in the Prairie provinces, to 290 from 200.

The number of accidents with injuries during this year's first half rose 13.5 per cent to 59,807, while accidents with damage over $100 went up 3.5 per cent to 118,662.

On the average, one person died, 30 were injured and 160 suffered material damage in traffic accidents every two hours last year.

The annual traffic death toll has grown steadily to 4,210 last year from 1,316 in 1936. However, the number of traffic fatalities per 100,000,000 car-miles travelled decreased to seven in 1961 from 16 in 1936.

What worries the traffic experts is a recent reversal of this trend. In 1962 the death mileage ratio rose to eight. Last year it was 8.3. This year it may be higher.

W. Arch Bryce of Ottawa, executive director of the Canadian Highway Safety Council, sees the most important cause of this upward trend as the increasing numbers of teen-agers and elderly citizens — both above-average risk groups—taking part in traffic.

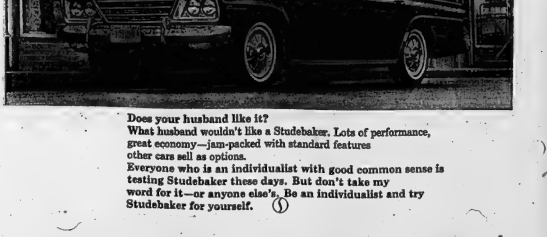
Truck Traffic Restricted at Glenora Ferry



PICTON (Staff)—Due to low water conditions, extensive changes to the approaches and ramps at Glenora Ferry crossing have been found necessary and these will affect service there.

Beginning at 8 a.m. on Monday and continuing for approximately three weeks the larger ferry the "Quinte Loyalist" will be taken out of service. Dredging of the slip will be done by an Ivy Lea company also the docks and ramps altered. The smaller ferry, the Loyalist, will continue to operate, but this slip will also be dredged and possible changes made at a later date. This will mean restriction on truck traffic as the smaller ferry cannot accommodate the larger vehicles. The Department of Highways in making the announcement said every effort is being made to maintain service for vehicle traffic. Water is reported to be steadily dropping and predictions are that the bay waters will fall another foot or two before spring.

ANTISEMITE PAYS

BERLIN (AP) — A former West Berlin police corporal was sentenced to four weeks in jail Thursday because he said the Nazis had not killed enough Jews. Helmut Koenigsdorff made the remark two years ago during a political science class for police cadets here.

Good morning madam! May I help you?
Just browsing, thank you.
May I show you the latest gidget? Everyone is buying it.
What's the difference between this new gidget and the other model?
Why there's all this extra chrome and the toney, tri-colour ornaments top and bottom . . . and of course it cost more.
Naturally . . . but does it do the job better, is it more economical, quicker, safer?
No.
Well why should I buy it?
Everyone is buying—just everyone.
Everyone?
Well everyone who can't make up his mind for himself.
I suppose it's easier that way, but not very sensible.
Of course madam . . . I knew you'd see it my way—I mean . . . our way.
No, I'm sorry I don't see it that way at all, you see, I think for myself . . . and, I drive a Studebaker.
My goodness madam, what must the neighbours say?
No problem at all—I just get them to try it.
They like it?
They love it. It's all quality and good taste with plenty of room inside, a slim, trim shape outside.
Dependable too! Nothing ever goes wrong with my Studebaker Cruiser, and if it ever did, my Studebaker dealer provides the finest service there is.

Does your husband like it?
What husband wouldn't like a Studebaker. Lots of performance, great economy—jam-packed with standard features other cars sell as options.
Everyone who is an individualist with good common sense is testing Studebaker these days. But don't take my word for it—or anyone else's. Be an individualist and try Studebaker for yourself.

TORONTO (CP) — Murray Watts, president of Baffin Land Iron Mines Limited and discoverer of an iron ore deposit on Baffin Island, said Thursday that four main deposits have been discovered.

Commenting in an interview on Northern Affairs Minister Laing's announcement earlier in the day, Mr. Watts said that since discovery of the deposit in 1962 about $1,000,000 has been spent in proving the extent and value of the ore.

Exploration of only the first deposit is completed, he said. Evidence gathered from cores taken from 5,000 feet of drilling showed the presence of 118,000,000 tons of iron ore.

Mr. Laing called the find a "tremendous deposit of the richest ore in the world."

Mr. Watts, who made the discovery for British Unpava Exploration Limited, said the ore compares with the best in the world.

Anglo American Molybdenite Mining Corporation of South Africa was the largest single shareholder in the Arctic enterprise, Mr. Watts said.

He said other firms holding shares are: Baffin Land Iron Mines Limited, Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of Canada Limited, Asbestos Corporation Limited and Westfield Mines Limited.

Pope Paul Breaks Bread With Orphans in Bombay

BOMBAY (Reuters) — Pope Paul the pilgrim today shared simple breakfast with a band of poor Indian orphan boys in their ramshackle dwelling.

Photographers fought police and Vatican plain clothes security men in an attempt to get pictures of the scene through a tiny window of the old wooden house where 216 boys live and sleep on the floor because there is no room or room for beds.

The Roman Catholic home is run by Monsignor J. S. Lobo and is supported by the begging of a few priests. The Pope made them a gift of 50,000 rupees ($8,340).

The boys took holy communion from his hands—the first 26 orphans, aged only seven, were so small the Pope had to kneel to give them the host.

The Pope said early-morning mass for 25,000 persons in the open air nearby.

The Pope had his on the third day of a four-day pilgrimage to India that brought him 4,000 miles by jetliner from Rome on the longest trip ever made by a pope, and the first such journey to Asia.

After mass and breakfast the 67 - year - old pontiff, looking strained and tired around the eyes, went on a tour of Bombay's big J.J. Hospital, so named after Sir Jamsetjee Jeejeebhoy.

He was warmly greeted by 100 doctors, 700 nurses, staff and hundreds of families crowding on to balconies and perched in every nook and cranny.

Addressing the staff, the Pope said: "We have visited your blood bank, and in this we see the meaning of true brotherhood whereby men, regardless of race, caste or creed, give of their own life and blood to succour the needs of those less fortunate.

"We cannot but encourage this wonderful work and invoke upon it the blessing of almighty God.

"With great interest and affection have we visited the children's wards. It grieves us to see the young suffering, and our heart goes out to them and their families. In their name and in the name of all suffering children the world over, we express appreciative thanks for all the work being done on their behalf."

The Pope laid hands on two men volunteers who were giving blood. He visited the tuberculosis children and adults in the T.B. section and was told 65 children aged 18 months to 12 years in a children's ward.

The pontiff stopped at each bed and blessed every Catholic, Hindu and Moslem child—60 per cent of the hospital's patients—from malnutrition. The 1,700-bed hospital is in a lower class Hindu, Moslem and Christian area.

The Pope's last contact was with 11 children in the T.B. ward, about 11 whose head the pontiff touched. He then met hospital workers, among them 100 Catholics.

In another stopoff the Pope delighted a gathering of students when he hailed them with the "Ug" (a long live) traditional Indian greeting.

Since his arrival Wednesday the Pope has given only himself to the crowds by freely using the salutation. He has also moved them by showing Indian holy books and the works of India's poets.

The Pope visited the Don Bosco School in Matunga suburb went wild with enthusiasm waving yellow and white papal flags as the Pope rode among them in an open jeep constantly gesturing with his hands and blessings.

Meanwhile, the mass circulation left-wing Weekly Blitz described the Pope's welcome as "spectacular, tremendous, simply prodigious."

Thursday, 250,000 people received the Pope. Paul concelebrated six new bishops in the highlight ceremony of the International Eucharistic Congress here that he officially came to attend.

The sacred rite took place in a vast open space called The Arid fringed with palms and bright banners, which was blessed as a cathedral especially for the occasion.

On his schedule today, the Pope also visited St. Paul's Church. About 200 ill persons sat patiently inside under rotating ceiling fans, waiting for his blessing.

The Pope went to the altar, prayed briefly with the sick and spoke a few words of comfort. He then blessed a new wing of a neighboring technical school named the Pope Paul IV Wing.

At the Don Bosco Catholic Boys High School a crowd of at least 100,000 jammed the streets for two blocks, perching in trees and on balconies and lining the rooftops.

Shortly before the pontiff arrived, the surging throng burst out of control and engulfed a narrow path police were trying to keep for the papal car.

Police in steel helmets brandished lead - weighted bamboo clubs and shoved the crowd back and people near the front lost their balance. As they fell, crying out in fear and pain, people behind them also toppled. Hundreds of screaming persons were on the ground in an instant.

But a loudspeaker appeal calmed them as the Pope arrived in a government sedan instead of the white convertible brought from the Vatican for his use.

A deafening roar went up as Pope Paul emerged and raised his arms in blessing before entering the Don Bosco Church.

Outside the church, he boarded a jeep and rode around a 15-acre field where students were gathered. Then he entered the sedan again to continue his rounds.

Security officials had advised against the Pope's mingling with the throngs but the pontiff insisted on it.

Justice Dryer Resigns as Board Chairman

MONTREAL (CP)—Mr. Justice Victor L. Dryer has resigned as chairman of the Federal Board of Maritime Trustees, it was learned Thursday night.

"I have no comment and I have not made any statement," Mr. Justice Dryer said when reached on his return to Montreal from Vancouver.

In Vancouver, the Sun says Mr. Justice Dryer expected to be given leave to duties as a justice of the British Columbia Supreme Cort.

The board was appointed following the Norris commission report on violence on the Great Lakes.

The board took over five maritime unions including the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.) and fired SIU president Hal Banks.

Charles H. Millard and Judge Rene Lippe, the other board members, could not be reached for comment.

Mr. Justice Dryer has opposed demands by House of Commons members that the trustees appear before a parliamentary committee to answer questions about their mandate.

American-European Cabinet Aim of Wilson in Washington When He Arrives Sunday

LONDON (AP)—Harold Wilson flies to Washington Sunday with a plan for a permanent American-European cabinet to shape nuclear policy - making around the world.

Political aides reported Thursday night Britain's Labor prime minister hopes such a group of ministers can be created for the U.S. Security Council in Washington, would supplement his contact for an Atlantic nuclear force.

The new cabinet, as the British see it, would consist of representatives of West Germany, Italy, Canada, Holland or some other small Atlantic Alliance nation and France, if President Charles de Gaulle or his successor cared to join.

It would have rights to consult, and be consulted by, the U.S. president or his delegates in all emergencies inside and outside the NATO area.

The American chief executive would be expected to be willing to hear the views of his allies up to the moment, if it ever came, when he would have to decide whether to press the nuclear trigger.

Wilson is expected to submit this and other far-reaching proposals to President Johnson Monday and Tuesday when the two leaders discuss ways of improving the West's global military, political and economic arrangements.

On Wednesday the British prime minister will go to Ottawa for talks with Canadian leaders.

Among Wilson's chief aims in Washington:

—He wants Johnson to abandon the scheme for a multilateral nuclear force in its present form which would consist of 25 surface ships armed with Polaris rockets, manned by mixed NATO crews and owned jointly by the six or seven countries interested in it.

—He wants Johnson to accept his own scheme for an Atlantic nuclear force of perhaps eight or 10 ships and including all Britain's H-bombers and three Polaris-firing nuclear submarines the British are building.

—Wilson would like the allies to follow up any move creating a force with an approach to the Russians for an agreement on arms control.

—Wilson is hoping Johnson will recognize that much of Britain's billion-dollar yearly bill for overseas garrisons serves the over-all allied interest. At a time of financial crisis for Britain, he would be glad if the Americans could find ways of contributing toward the upkeep of some of those positions.

Madras Engineer Visits Here To Study Ontario Hydro Setup

Devasirvatham Samuel Nelson, an electrical engineer from India's province of Madras, is visiting Belleville Hydro Canada's Colombo plan to study Ontario Hydro's regional operation.

Electricity in India, he says, is an important factor in feeding the country's 460 million population, a figure which increases by 20 millies each year.

In Mr. Nelson's home state of Madras most of the electricity is directed into the provincial's villages where it is used to draw water from the wells into the irrigation ditches.

Since India's electricity is expensive, costing six cents a kilowatt-hour compared to 1.118 cents in Ontario, the Indian government provides a subsidy of three cents a kilowatt hour.

WEATHER IS KEY

Weather is important to India's water supply. In Madras, located on the south-east tip of the country, power depends on a south-west monsoon wind.

Should these winds, which blow off the Arabian Sea and cause heavy rainfall from April to December, be 15 days late the water supply necessary to produce power will be lessened and agriculture will suffer.

Using steam driven turbines and generators to produce electricity for Madras is impractical as coal, necessary to create the original energy, must be brought from the interior 300 miles away.

Mr. Nelson is now connected with the Kundah project, a Colombo plan project in his home state.

The project is partially finished and when completed in 1965 will have a capacity of 780,000 kilowatt hours.

This is about two-thirds the capacity of the St. Lawrence plant at Cornwall.

RUSSIA HELPS TOO

Russia is paralleling the Colombo plan by providing machinery and machinery for India's Mutlur power project. The Indian government provides the money.

Mr. Nelson stated that India is considering building an atomic energy plant to provide electrical power.

Should this come about, he feels it would be similar to Canada's atomic plants, using natural uranium and heavy water instead of the processed uranium and graphite used in the U.S.

Parliamentary Notebook

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — There's nothing that a lawyer likes more than to be able to back up an argument with a good solid precedent.

When that lawyer is one with the record and chill in courtroom practice of John Diefenbaker, Q.C., he need have few qualms about the decision of the judge and jury.

And when that lawyer also has the political acumen of John Diefenbaker, P.C., M.P., he can use a good solid precedent not only to back up his legal case, but also to add a few political barbs to his argument.

So it was on Monday when Opposition Leader Diefenbaker rose in the Commons to accuse that his party's propo al for a national plebiscite on the flag question was, in fact, in order under Commons procedural rules.

He found his precedent in the records of the Commons in June, 1926, in the few days before the Mackenzie King government resigned after mounting criticism over the so-called customs scandal.

Basically, the situation in June, 1926, and in December, 1964, was the same—a parliamentary committee had investigated and submitted its report to the Commons, first on administration of the customs department and secondly on the choice of a flag for Canada.

In each case, the Conservative opposition moved an amendment to the committee report to add clauses, and the Liberals objected on procedural grounds. In both cases, the objections were overruled by the Speaker and the opposition amendments declared in order —in 1926 by one of the Commons' great speakers, Rodolphe Lemieux, and this week by the present Speaker, Alan Macnaughton.

But in reciting the 1926 precedent last week, Mr. Diefenbaker found not only a solid legal precedent but an occasion to chide the Liberals about their current difficulties with allegations of bribery and coercion in high places.

The Conservative resolution in 1926 complained about ministerial actions being influenced by improper pressure of political associates and friends, of prosecutions being suspended and in some cases abandoned, and of improper interference with the course of justice between the conviction of offenders and the execution of judgment on them.

"In those days," said Mr. Diefenbaker as an aside, "there were only a couple of executive assistants. I think there were two assistants at that time—in any event there were in 1919."

Then he went on to quote the 1926 Conservative resolution as deploring the practice "of certain men influential in public life to direct appeals to the minister to relax and depart from the proper administration of his department for reasons of political expediency."

"If there is any likeness between this situation and subsequent events," Mr. Diefenbaker added while Liberal MPs squirmed, "it is merely coincidental that I am raising this particular matter."

In 1926, Prime Minister Mackenzie King sought a modification of Parliament before the Conservative motion could come to a vote. He was refused and so resigned to make way for the short-lived government of Arthur Meighen before its defeat and Mr. King's re-election in the 1926 general election.

But Mr. Diefenbaker proved by his argument that the Conservative motion this year was in order, and Speaker Macnaughton so ruled.

Indonesian Police Battle Communists

JAKARTA (Reuters) — Indonesian troops and police battled with clubs to beat back scores of Communist Youth Front members who stormed the U.S. cultural centre here today in protest against American action in The Congo.

Hundreds of Youth Front members marched on the building as police used tear gas, machine-gun bursts into the air during the hour-long clash.

The security force was quickly reinforced by guards from the presidential palace a few hundred yards away.

But as fast as the attackers were pushed back from one section, new groups rushed in from another direction.

Scores fought their way inside where they ransacked rooms and ripped books from the U.S. Information Service library shelves, dragging them outside and burning them in the streets.

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

THURSDAY, Dec. 3, 1964

The Commons continued debate on the flag design of a red maple leaf on a white ground flanked by red panels recommended by a committee.

A Conservative motion to adjourn the debate for the rest of the sitting day was defeated by a vote of 129 to 55.

Harold Danforth (PC—Kent, Ont.), making the 206th speech on the flag, criticized the committee - approved design.

Gene Rheaume (PC—Northwest Territories) said a plebiscite is needed because there is no real reason the flag should be changed.

Ken More (PC — Regina City) said adoption of the maple leaf flag would bring bitterness affecting future Canadian progress.

provide the extra punch needed to dislodge the "so-called rebels" from Stanleyville.

And partly it seemed a justifiable resentment that the outside world should be so concerned over the safety of a few whites when the slaughter of Africans had been so long ignored.

In the corridors, at receptions and in public statements Africans were making the point repeatedly Africa must settle its own problems; the day of the European role in Africa affairs is over.

White listeners would have had to be singularly unperceptive not to notice the hardening tone of the argument.

In the assembly, the American delegate had hardly finished congratulating Zambia and Malawi on gaining their freedom peacefully when the Tanzanian delegate set out to "dispel any notion of the peaceful transition to independence" of the two countries.

In both, he said, "blood had to be shed to water the tree of liberty."

The statement had an ominous tone, recalling an earlier comment by Britain's Lord Caradon that he was "seized with a great depression" over The Congo events and the realization "all the problems of Africa are thereby complicated."

Africans at UN Demonstrate Africa is Full of Surprises

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

"Out of Africa, always something new."

The quotation came from Alex Quaison - Sackey, the big, jolly Ghanaian delegate who shortly after he took his place earlier this week as the first envoy from black Africa to serve as president of the United Nations General Assembly.

He attributed the Latin quotation, "ex Africa semper aliquid novi," to the Roman Seneca, thereby bringing a quick reaction from classicists who said it came from Pliny the Elder, quoting Arbitotle.

In any event, delegates watching Quaison-Sackey sweep down the aisle in his fantastically colored robes must have mused Africa is indeed full of surprises.

The Ghanaian himself is a man of surprises, combining as he does something of the Oxford-trained lawyer and something of pure African dynamism that borders on explosiveness.

There was an inescapable symbolism in the fact he presided over admission of the two latest arrivals from Africa—Zambia and Malawi.

Quaison - Sackey said the UN was witnessing the "renaissance of the African personality." UN veterans must have paused to think of the surge of African influence within the organization.

Zambia and Malawi brought African membership to 36. Five years ago only nine of them were in the UN. Ten years ago there were only four—Egypt, Ethiopia, South Africa and Liberia.

To many, it seemed significant Africa was having its day at a time when the remnants of African savagery and African hatred for white intervention were being demonstrated in The Congo.

That tragedy was reflected at the UN by implacable African rejection of the Belgian-American operation to rescue white hostages held by the Congolese rebels in Stanleyville.

The rejection seemed to result partly from the bitterness of most of the continent against Premier Moise Tshombe, considered a traitor because he hired whites to fight Africans.

Partly also it was a widely held feeling among Africans the operation was designed not so much to rescue whites as to

Sunday School Lesson

When Faith Faces Error

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

One way to recognize the contemporary nature of the Bible is to read it in the light of contemporary situations and problems. The Bible did not grow out of speculation. It grew out of actual situations in which something of God's truth was revealed to men.

Something happened recently in the United States that helps us to read the letter of Titus in the New Testament with a new understanding, and to see how this little letter throws God's light on current situations.

In the city of Baltimore, a militant atheist challenged the right of public schools to require Bible reading and prayer as a part of class-room procedure. She carried her fight to the Supreme Court where she won her case. However, she and her family were subjected to such a barrage of vilification and abuse they moved to Hawaii to try to escape it. In defence of religion, misguided people stooped to the most un-Christian kind of utterance and conduct to try to show this woman the error of her ways.

ABUSE NOT THE ANSWER

Whatever their reaction to the Supreme Court decision, these people would agree that this woman is in error in her atheistic beliefs. But, as the letter to Titus emphasizes, the answer to error is not abuse. In New Testament days, there were those who stooped to the reprehensible level of abuse. One person who called himself a prophet accused Cretans of being "always liars, evil beasts, lazy gluttons" (Titus 1:12 RSV) Any who would stoop to such vilifications, says the letter, must not only be rebuked, but "silenced." Of course, the so-called prophet had a right to speak, but not to show his prejudice by telling deliberate lies about others. He had a right to disagree with Cretans, but not to vilify their character. Abuse is never the answer to error. The answer to error, says the letter to Titus, is not abuse, but sound doctrine.

It is important to remember that in both the Old and New Testaments, doctrine did not grow out of speculation, but experience. The writers of scripture did not say, "We think God is good," they pointed to actual experiences where the goodness and judgment of God were revealed. In spite of the sin and cruelty in the world, experience led them to the faith that God is always on the side of justice and mercy.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for December 6: "Righteous Living," Titus 1:10 through 2:10; 3:1-3, 8b-15.

The disciples of Jesus did not begin with theories, but with experiences. They knew Jesus and His teachings. They had seen His wonderful works. They experienced His presence after the resurrection. They went out to tell the world what Jesus meant to them. Their doctrines were not pulled out of thin air. They were tested and verified in experience. Their beliefs had brought them new hope and joy. They believed they would bring hope and salvation to all who would accept them.

WHAT GOD HATH JOINED

Again, the letter to Titus says the answer to error is not abuse, but godly living. Most of the letter is about this. If one's faith is superior, his life should show it by superior conduct. This letter was written (1) to combat false doctrine, and (2) "so that those who have believed in God may be careful to apply themselves to good deeds." By their deeds, men are to "adorn the doctrine of God our Savior."

Dr. D. T. Niles tells about a religious leader in Ceylon who could, on occasion, fly into a rage and use very abusive language. Yet he was always careful to observe the rubrics of his religion. He prayed at prescribed hours, but his prayer life did not carry over into his daily discipline.

The Bible would never sanction such a division between faith and conduct. Faith and works, like husband and wife, are joined together by the Lord, and ought never to be separated. The letter spells out moral goals for church leaders and members, old and young, men and women, slaves and citizens. All are called to honor God by their living. The letter, however, does not leave it all up to the individual. The answer to error in the world, it says, is a strong and "purified" church.

Jesus came not only to "redeem us from all iniquity," but to "purify for Himself a people of His own who are zealous for good deeds." (Titus 2:14 RSV) Not just isolated followers, but "a people" was His goal: not a people on the sidelines, but "zealour for good deeds." A church purified by His presence and prominent in the good it does. This is the answer to the world's error by Him who came not to condemn the world, but to save it.

MR. MELTZER ON REAL ESTATE
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Under ordinary circumstances in order to conclude a transaction the buyer must pay the price demanded by the seller. When the buyer is a governmental agency using the Powers of Eminent Domain, however, the seller's demands do not necessarily set the price. The evaluation of real estate experts is the determining factor. The following is an example of this.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Some ill-brained planner has decided that the houses in our block (30 including mine) are in such poor condition they should be torn down and replaced with a park. We are trying to stop this and think we have a solution.

We consulted a lawyer who told us we couldn't stop City Hall, as they have the right of Eminent Domain. At our last block meeting, however, a neighbor who is a real estate salesman suggested that we all get together and demand very high prices for our houses. Since there is only a limited amount of money budgeted for the park, he says we can stop it this way. Sounds like a good plan to us. Do you agree? — H. H.

ANSWER: I'm afraid I don't agree. You can't stop the project this way. Your salesman neighbor had bad examples in his education in real estate. He is not well informed.

The price you will be paid is based not on the price demanded by you, but upon the "Fair Market Value" established by qualified real estate experts.

Your best bet is to discuss the possibility of changing this into a conservation and rehabilitation project. If you all want to stay enough to be willing to invest time and money in improvements, you may find that "bird-brains" also have sympathetic ears.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Two years ago I paid $1,000 for a lot in a retirement development. A few months later the salesman called to tell me the value of my lot was already $1,500 — and it still rising. I bought another lot. About six months later he called again to advise me I had yet another windfall and that my lots were now worth $2,400 each and would go higher after their new advertising campaign. I bought a third lot and wish I had been able to buy more. When I called him recently he told me they were worth $3,000 now.

I didn't buy this time, however, as I had called to ask him to sell my three lots because my wife insists we buy a house here. He said his company did not repurchase lots, and that I should get a broker to sell them for me.

Could you recommend a real estate broker for this, and give me some idea of how much he will charge me out of the $9,000? We are eager to get our money quickly because we already have a house picked out. — R. G. W.

ANSWER: The house you have picked had best be a dog-house because that is about all you will be able to afford with the money you can expect from the sale of your three "$3,000" lots. A real estate broker will not have great difficulty finding another buyer like you. I'm afraid you've been had.

My most recent investigation indicated that the going price for land in the area of your lots is roughly $80 per acre.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My house is one of 20 similar ones in a development built in 1929. When we bought our houses we were told our back yards were 150 feet deep. Through the years we and our neighbors have built garages, fenced our places in, planted gardens, built barbecue pits, patios, etc.

Recently a builder who acquired the land behind our houses informed us that we were using his land and that our yards were not only 75 feet deep — not 150. We checked and discovered he was right.

We asked if we could have more time to move things properly, or to at least be paid something for our losses. He said he had a schedule, and if we didn't have everything out in two weeks he would send in bulldozers to clear his land.

We are sick about this. Is there anything we can do to make this builder act more reasonably? — M. R. J.

ANSWER: You have the shoe on the wrong foot. The builder should be pleading with you — not you with him.

You and your neighbors have occupied and used this ground for 35 years. It appears to me that you have now acquired ownership rights to the additional 75 feet of land under the Doctrine of Adverse Possession.

Check with your attorney to be certain if you have satisfied all of the legal requirements for adverse possession.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: A young widow moved in next to us and now my husband spends all his time over there doing "little things" to help her around the house. He fixed her windows for the winter, the rain spouts — now he is painting the place!

There is nothing at home. He claims he is just being neighborly, and that her house is in poor shape and he is helping our property's value by putting hers in good condition. He even quoted me.

I don't think her house is in such poor shape, and as enclosing a snapshot to prove it. Can you give me some advice on this problem? — J. L.

ANSWER: It is difficult to determine the "shape" a house is in from a picture. It is the wrong picture anyway. I am inclined to believe I could get a better idea of the extent of the problem if you sent a picture showing the shape of the young widow.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

For some time now Tovarich Tarasov's Russian national hockey team has had a secret yen to cross puck rapiers with a National Hockey League club.

Not that the Reds have the opinion they can defeat a Canadian professional squad but they want to know how they would stack up against our pro calibre of hockey.

Five years ago in the sweat-sroun'd interior of the Belleville McFarlands' dressing room in Prague's ice stadium, "Solly" and "Tregy," two of the nicest Russian guys I've ever met, were post-game guests of the Macs.

Sol and Treg are battle-worn veterans now and likely retired from active duty by the Soviet puck sharpshooters. With the Mass they sipped the beverage the Czechs called tea, which was given us piping hot between periods and after the game.

Both Russians spoke good English. "Solly" in particular was one of the most personable chaps I have ever met. You couldn't help but like him. He had a TV toothpaste commercial smile (there are no cavities in Russia) and a blonde hair-do ungarnished with that greasy kid stuff.

Both Russians talked freely about hockey and showed marked curiosity about the professional game in Canada.

At that they showed a surprising knowledge of the sport and when asked by Ike Hildebrand if Russia would ever develop a team to match Canadian professionals, shook their heads. "Perhaps in ten years," they said.

Solly flashed the big white-toothed smile. "First," he said, "we must beat your amateur clubs (I thought his left eyelid dropped in a meaningful wink) and that will keep us busy for some time."

Now, it seems the Russians will get the chance to find out how their 1964-65 hockey edition will stack up against Canadian professionals.

The Red national team is starting an eight-game tour of the western side of the Atlantic pond, opening in Montreal next week.

But it won't get its first taste of Canadian professional opposition in a package deal. The Canadian powers-that-be are seeing to it that the Soviets do not pull the greatest sports upset in history by defeating one of the six clubs of the major circuit.

In fact they are not sending their best professionals against the invaders. Six of the Quebec Aces have been delegated to bolster the Montreal Junior Canadiens in the opening tilt of the Russian tour.

Presuming the games will be played under international rules, in deference to the visitors, the pro-juniors may be at some disadvantage adapting themselves to the precision-passing hard-shooting Soviets style of play with its limited body-checking.

David Molson, president of the Montreal Canadiens Hockey Club, waxes enthusiastic over the idea. He believes the pro-junior Russian tilt is the first step toward an international playoff for the Stanley Cup. "It is my hope one day in the foreseeable future to see such a playoff," he says.

I don't know what period of time Mr. Molson means by the "foreseeable future"—but that during the passing of time the Russians will have to improve a lot to match the ability of the National League champions—or any other pro club for that matter.

If memory is correct, two or three top European hockey stars were brought here to try out with the National League clubs. It ended with them being offered postings with minor league clubs. They wouldn't buy that and went home.

With all their year-round training in other sports like swimming, field hockey and whatnot, I cannot see much improvement in Russian national hockey squads over the teams that met the Whitby Dunlops in 1958 and the Belleville McFarlands in 1959.

And those clubs wouldn't stand a chance against any of the National Hockey League teams, particularly the Stanley Cup winner.

Wings Bump Bruins; Habs Whip Leafs

* * * Had 4-0 Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Detroit Red Wings continued their league-leading ways while Montreal Canadiens showed signs of full recovery from a bad slump in Thursday night's National Hockey League action.

Detroit, led by centre Norm Ullman who set up three goals, gave rare an early-game goal by cellar-dwelling Boston Bruins and won 4-2, the same score by which Montreal defeated Toronto Maple Leafs. Both teams won on home ice.

Canadiens smothered after the game that Bill Hicke, a four-year veteran with the Habs had been sent to Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League to cut Montreal's squad to the permitted 16 players and two goalies.

Boston struck first against Detroit as Murray Oliver's goal with the game only 61 seconds old but Detroit rallied in the second period to shoot four goals past Ed Johnston in a 22-shot barrage. Pit Martin tied the game before Ullman set up Floyd Smith, rookies Gary Bergman's first NHL marker and Parker Macdonald's 100th.

PUT ON PRESSURE

Bruins put on pressure in the third period, finally clicking when John Bucyk, scored. The game was Detroit's fifth without a loss and left them in first place with 26 points, three more than runners-up Toronto and Montreal.

Montreal won its third game in a row by defeating Toronto. The victories followed Canadiens' dismal four game road trip in which they lost three and managed a tie.

After a ragged, scoreless first period, Montreal's Dave Balon and Jean Beliveau scored in the second and Canadiens' Bobby Rousseau and Jim Roberts in the third before Toronto retaliated on goals by Dave Keon and Ron Ellis. The marker was Keon's 100th in NHL action.

Gananoque Meets Juniors
It's PonyNight At Arena!

Gananoque Islanders will make their initial appearance of the season here tonight in an OHA Eastern Junior Hockey League game against the Belleville "B's".

Game time is nine o'clock, at Memorial Arena, but there is more to the evening than first meets the eye.

It's children's night here!

Belleville club officials expect a packed house, due to a special ticket sales promotion conducted for the past few weeks. And most of the fans will be children.

A number of special door prizes will be drawn for and topping the list is a real live, honest-to-goodness pony, fully saddled and ready for riding. Bicycles and other fine prizes will also be won.

And the many youngstars should witness a good hockey game to boot. The Islanders are near the top of the loop standing, with three wins, a tie and only one defeat on their record to date.

The "B's" will be looking for their fourth victory in six tries. They will also be putting a perfect home ice record on the line. Belleville has won all three starts here.

It adds up to a good night's hockey — and a great time for the city and area youngsters.

NHL Will Consider New Draft

MONTREAL (CP)—Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, said Thursday there is merit to a proposal by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association for a universal draft of over - age junior players.

"We think the proposal has enough merit to give consideration to it," he said. "But that doesn't mean to say that anything is going to happen."

"We have recommended it for consideration. But you can't even imagine the enormous problems involved. It's going to take a lot of work and study, and we are in no position to implement anything like it now."

N.H.L. Scoring Statistics

Detroit Red Wings' Norm Ullman broke the monopoly Chicago Black Hawks have had on first place in the National Hockey League's big seven by registering three assists Thursday night in a 4-2 win over Boston Bruins.

He moved from third place to the top with 26 points made up of 10 goals and 16 assists.

Chicago's Stan Mikita, Bobby Hull and Stan Mahovlich are next with 23 and 22 points respectively while Camille Henry of New York Rangers, who also had Thursday follows with 17 points.

Montreal Canadiens' Claude Provost picked up an assist in his team's 5-2 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs to move into a fifth-place tie with New York's Phil Goyette, both with 17 points. Canadiens' Bobby Rousseau scored a goal to move into a seventh place tie with three other players.

Petes Dump Flyers 5-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Peterborough Petes' affinity for home ice has moved them within one point of second place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A race.

Petes extended their home winning streak to nine games as they climbed into fourth-place Niagara Falls Flyers 5-2 to give them 24 points, one behind Flyers and seven behind Toronto Marlboros.

In other action the tail-end Montreal Junior Canadiens climbed into a seventh-place tie with St. Catharines Black Hawks with a 5-3 victory over Hamilton Red Wings in Hamilton.

Don Herriman, Mickey Redmond, Andre Lacroix, Dan Grant and Gord Tucker shared the Peterborough goals in the rugged game marred by two fights and 21 penalties. Bill Goldsworthy and Barry Wilkins scored for Niagara Falls.

The Petes continued the battle after the final whistle when two players from each side scuffled. Officials separated the combatants and sent them to the showers without penalties.

Rene Drolet paced Montreal with two goals while Serge Savard, Carol Vadnais and Guy Dufour added the others. Captain Jim Peters, Peter Mahovlich and Nick Libett tallied for Hamilton.

Charlton Recalled By England

LONDON (Reuters)—The recall of Bobby Charlton to outside-left in the England team to play Holland in Amsterdam next Wednesday again spotlights England's problem position.

Charlton's return is in itself no surprise. What is a little odd is that Charlton, in brilliant form for Manchester United at inside - forward, should be brought back on the left wing.

He is the third England outside-left in five matches this season. Peter Thompson played against Northern Ireland. But England team manager Alf Ramsey believes he is a far better player on the right flank, though his team Liverpool plays him on the left.

Alan Hinton, who appeared in one international two years ago in an earlier effort to solve the problem, played against Belgium and Wales.

Now Charlton is back.

Not Serious About Argos
Clair Signs Three-Year Contract

OTTAWA (CP)—Coach Frank Clair officially signed a three-year contract with Ottawa Rough Riders Thursday and a few hours later told a press conference he really hadn't seriously considered switching to Toronto Argonauts.

Clair turned down a $30,000-a-year pact with Argos during Grey Cup week. Reports said he did so because he couldn't get the same control over players as he has with Riders. His Ottawa contract calls for an annual pay of $20,000 plus bonuses.

"Of all the things that have happened . . . I am very happy to be back with Ottawa," Clair said.

He said that he wanted to explore the Toronto offer but that his mind was just about made up in advance that he'd stick to the Ottawa club.

General manager Red O'Quinn, the only other Rider official at the conference, said assistant coaches Bill Smyth and Don Clark will probably sign new contracts early next week.

LEAVES ON TRIP

Clair, who leaves today on a recruiting trip, said Riders have some good Canadian and import material to go with the club that finished second in the Big Four this season.

He said the better Canadian prospects are Dick Dupuis, a 22-year-old halfback from Windsor, Ont., now with Notre Dame. Another is Ted Collins, 20, also of Windsor, who played last season with University of Detroit.

Clair declined to name any imports he had in mind but revealed that Riders missed the boat in attempts to sign Owen Briggs, a quarterback with University of Cincinnati.

Briggs signed with Dallas of the National Football League after turning down an Ottawa offer of $15,000 a year and a bonus of $6,000.

Quinte Hockey League

Both games in the Quinte Hockey League were decided by a single goal at Memorial Arena here last night.

Ter-Haar Daubers nipped the Horlocks Electrics 2-1.

SACO shaded Rossmore by a 4-3 count.

The Daubers took a 1-0 first-period lead and after a scoreless second, each club tallied an ace in the third.

Kellar triggered both Ter-Haar goals, assisted by D. Moore and A. Buttan on the first. His third-period goal was unassisted.

M. Brant scored for Horlocks, aided by B. Hurst.

There were only four minor penalties dished out, three to the winners.

SACO blew a 2-0 first-frame lead and Rossmore tied it at 3-3 at the end of the second.

G. Genereaux scored the only goal of the third to give SACO the nod. He also bagged the second-period goal. K. Forsythe and A. Deline scored in the first. J. Johnson earned two assists, D. Knapton, Genereaux, D. Forsythe, Deline and K. Forsythe one apiece.

D. Adams fired two Rossmore markers and assisted on the other one, scored by P. O'Connor. D. Reid drew two assists, K. Osterhout, O'Connor and M. Thompson one each.

The winners collected eight of the game's 12 minor penalties.

North Shore Hockey League

Proctor Silex chalked up a 5-3 win over Albury in one of two Prince Edward North Shore Hockey League games played last night in Wellington.

In the other tilt, Demorestville and Cherry Valley fought to a 2-2 deadlock.

The Silex crew led all the way against Albury. It was 2-0 and 3-2 by periods.

C. Herrington sparked the winners with a pair of goals. Singletons were scored by M. Weeks, S. Foster and R. Irvin.

Billy Genereaux fired two Albury markers and Pete Mitchell got the other.

There were four penalties per side.

The other game was a tight one all the way. It was 1-1 after one period and Cherry Valley held a 2-1 margin entering the third.

H. Kemper fired both Demorestville markers.

H. Brummell and G. Fraser collected one goal each for Cherry Valley.

There were 10 penalties in this game with Demorestville getting six of the total.

Both games were close, hard-fought affairs.

AWARDED TROPHY

LONDON (Reuters) — Lynn Davies, who won the Olympic broad jump gold medal in Tokyo, was awarded the sports-man-of-the-year trophy at the British Sports Writers' Association's dinner Thursday. The sportswoman - of-the-year award went to Mrs. Mary Bignal Rand, who in Tokyo won a broad jump gold medal, pentathlon silver medal, and 400-metre relay bronze medal.

KAANAPALI, Hawaii (AP)—Arnold Palmer went birdie-eagle - birdie on three straight holes in one of his typical driving finishes for a six-under-par 66 Thursday which got the United States off to a strong start in defence of the Canada Cup golf title.

Palmer's 33-33 over the 7,215-yard, par 36-36—72 Kaanapali Club course, coupled with Jack Nicklaus's 72 gave the Americans a first-day team total of 138 to tie with South Africa for the lead.

The Americans were the first to finish in the parade of picked two-man teams from 32 countries, Hawaii and Puerto Rico, playing for both team and individual prizes.

Al Balding of Toronto was six strokes off the pace with a par 72 in a bracket with four other players including Nicklaus. Balding's partner, George Knudson of Toronto, had a 74, giving the Canadian team a total of 146 to tie with Australia for ninth place in the team standings.

Only a temporary lapse and another roll of the ball kept Palmer from beating the record 65 he set Wednesday in the pro-amateur preliminary.

COULDN'T KEEP UP

Big Jack, feeling, "tired and logey," rallied with a 35 on the back nine after shooting an out-going 37. A key shot was a 20-foot birdie putt at the 16th.

Two strokes behind Palmer was Nationalist China's Chen Ching Po with a 68.

South Africa's Gary Player and Denis Hutchinson shot a pair of 69s along with Leopoldo Ruiz of Argentina, Ted Makalena of Hawaii and Jose Maria Gonzales of Brazil.

Ruiz's teammate, Roberto de Vincenzo, fired a 71 to give his country third place. Hawaii was fourth with a total of 141, The Philippines fifth with 142 followed by Brazil with 143, Nationalist China and England, tied with 144, and Canada and Australia, each with 146. Belgium had 147. Among the other Commonwealth teams, Wales had 151, New Zealand 152 and Scotland 154.

Leagues Approve Major Legislation

'Bo's' Stock Drops; Trade Value 2 Minors

HOUSTON (AP)—Bo Belinsky's stock is dropping sharply on baseball's rumor exchange.

A couple of days ago Los Angeles Angels, his present owners, were supposed to be hagging with Philadelphia Phillies in an effort to get Tony Gonzales, a pretty fair outfielder, for their unwanted southpaw while the Phils wanted to give them John Herrnstein, a second-string first baseman, instead.

Today, a source close to the Angels told The Associated Press the club probably will settle for a couple of minor-leaguers.

There hadn't been a deal of any consequence in more than three days as major league executives became the final session of their winter meeting today.

But American and National League club owners did approve two important pieces of legislation Thursday.

They adopted a pro-football-type draft of players with no professional experience and voted to give the next commissioner of baseball the broad powers vested in the first man to hold the office, Kenesaw Mountain Landis.

The legislation involving the commissioner's power and the free-agent draft was approved by the two leagues in separate meetings Thursday and was expected to be ratified at a joint meeting today.

BROADEN POWERS

Owners decided to broaden the commissioner's power in two ways:

1. By repealing a rule that no action taken by vote of club owners can be construed as detrimental to baseball.

2. By providing that owners will have no recourse to the courts on action taken by the commissioner.

The commissioner was stripped of the-e powers during the administration of A. B. (Happy) Chandler, who succeeded Landis and preceded the present commissioner, Ford C. Frick.

Frick will retire next year.

ISTANBUL WINS

ISTANBUL (AP) — Galatasaray of Istanbul defeated Waregem 1-0 in the second leg of the second round of the European Cup Winners' Cup soccer tournament here Thursday. The result means a third game on neutral ground because Warsaw won the first match of the scheduled two-match series by the same score.

Name Saved Him From Minors

Bragan Fingers Spahn

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Milwaukee Braves manager Bobby Bragan was quoted Thursday as saying that Warren Spahn pitched so badly last season that only his name kept him in the major leagues.

The 43-year-old Spahn, baseball's greatest left-handed winner, was sold to New York Mets last week at his own request. He said his 6-13 record in 1964 was due in part to Bragan's refusal to start him regularly.

In a story from Houston, Milwaukee Journal baseball writer Bob Wolf quoted Bragan as saying of Spahn:

"He's a future hall of famer and an immortal and all that stuff. But let me tell you that if any other pitcher had been shelled the way he was last season, he would have been shipped to Denver. But this was Warren Spahn and had to be handled with great care even if he couldn't get anybody out."

The great lefthander, who has won 356 games in the National League and holds nearly a score of other records, was, Bragan said, "10 to 15 pounds over weight all season. He was dead on his feet. His legs were gone. He couldn't move off the mound, and they were busting him silly. On top of that his control was terrible."

"Bragan's made pretty much the same statement about other guys that were traded." Spahn said. "I was kind of expecting it. He does things like that."

Spahn added: "If he wants to say things like that, why that's his business. But after all, the big thing is what I do next year and I'd rather not get into a running argument with him. I just want to do the Mets a good job."

The Trots

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Ron Feagan became the first driver to win three events in one evening at the Garden City Race way when he placed first in three of the four events he drove in Thursday night.

The 22-year-old Goderich, Ont. driver guided Lenore to victory in the first race, placed first with Miss Angela Mary in the second and returned to take the fifth with Grattan Hal G in a mile pace for $700.

The win by Miss Angela Mary made it a $9.80 daily double.

The young driver almost took a fourth race when Brother Bob placed second behind Jack Mehlenbacher's Harmony Chips in the final race, a mile pace for $800.

Forest Mite, driven by Lloyd Gilmour, took the featured $1,100 mile pace to pay $9.70, $.50 and $2.70 across the board.

G. J. McGregor won the sixth for $26 and combined with second placer Ronny C. Grattan for an $84.30 quinella.

The crowd of 2,004 wagered a total of $112,650.

PICTON . (Staff) — The Merchants climbed out of the OHA Eastern Junior hockey league basement here last night by scoring a 7-3 victory over Napanee Legion. The losers dropped to last place with the defeat.

Picton broke a first-period 1-1 deadlock with three unanswered goals in the middle frame. Napanee made it a tight 4-3 game early in the third but Merchants answered the challenge with a final trio to wrap it up.

The winners outshot Napanee 41-32 in a contest that saw only five minor penalties assessed, two in the first period and three in the third.

Galt scored the first goal for Napanee at 7.49, assisted by Cook and Miller. Billy Hicks tied it for Picton, aided by Jones and Haddock, at 14.23.

Merchants poured on the power in the second. Rookie Ernie Sharpe fired goals at 6.21 and 17.32. Harold Haddock helped on both and Hopkins on one. Ron Riley made it 4-1, with Hopkins helping at 18.24.

In the third, Galt's combined with Jocko and Fox at 5.45 and just five seconds later Smith scored unassisted to leave the Legion crew trailing by a single goal.

Picton ripped back with three quickies of their own. Haddock got on a solo effort at 8.02. Hicks scored from Haddock at 9.08 and Jones, aided by Thompson and Frederick, completed the scoring at 9.38.

Packers Square Off With Bears

Browns, Cards Tangle In Crucial Clash

A year ago the Saturday game between Chicago Bears and Green Bay Packers would have been the big one, but now it just serves as an appetizer for the St. Louis - Cleveland clash.

Cleveland Browns, long-time also-rans in the East, can clinch their divisional title with a victory over the Cardinals in the National Football League's top attraction Sunday, while the Cards must win to keep alive their paper-thin hopes.

Chicago and Green Bay, one-two in the West last season, are out of title contention now—Baltimore Colts have clinched it.

The rest of the Sunday schedule has Detroit Lions at Baltimore, Los Angele Rams at San Francisco 49ers, Minnesota Vikings at New York Giants, Pittsburgh Steelers at Washington Redskins and Dallas Cowboys at Philadelphia Eagles.

Boston Patriots and Kansas City Chiefs, the divisional runners-up, clash in the feature of the American League scheduled Sunday. The Chiefs have only mathematical prospects of catching San Diego Chargers, the Western leaders, who can sew up the title by beating New York Jets in another fixture. Both clubs have three games to play with San Diego 3½ games in front.

But the Patriots, only a game behind Buffalo Bills and with a home game against the leaders to close out their schedule, can't afford to drop a point. The Bills travel West to meet Oakland Raiders while Houston Oilers and Denver Broncos, the two tail-enders are idle.

Big Business Says Briton

Canada Cup 'Bogus Tourney'

LONDON (CP) — James L. Manning, Daily Mail sports commentator, says the Canada Cup golf tournament is becoming "little more than a big business investment" and may soon become "a bogus championship."

Manning, in a report from Maui Island, Hawaii, scene of this year's tournament, says it will soon fall short of the ideals of late John Hopkins who offered it in 1953 to promote good will through golf and banned it the Canada Cup because Canada was host to the first tournament.

He says players and residents of Maui will get little out of the match and suggests that only big business executives—members of the organizing International Golf Association—will profit.

"The population of Maui Island is only 35,000 and 90 per cent would not care less about golf," Manning writes. "So this is an exhibition tournament not for the good will of the people."

As for the competitors, the prize money is "mere chicken feed to American-circuit players."

Manning says the seven directors of the IGA include executives of a giant tourist firm, an airline, a firm that owns land in Maui and a firm that has invested more than $100,000 ($9,000,000) in island hotels and resort centres.

("Let the businessmen running the IGA appreciate that any more of this and the Canada Cup will be the Wall Street wash with the Professional Golfers Association doing the scrubbing and the public innocently hanging it out to dry.")

Aces Shade Bisons 4-3

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec Aces beat Buffalo Bisons Thursday night by the same 4-3 score in the second overtime American Hockey League game between the two teams this week.

Wayne Hicks scored the winning marker halfway through the 10-minute overtime period on passes from Ted Hodgins and defenceman Doug Harvey.

Keith Ecans scored twice in the first period and single goals in the middle frame.

Guy Gendron, Leon Rochefort and John Blackburn counted for the Aces, in first place in the eastern division of the AHL.

Buffalo marksmen were John Stanfield, Len Lunde and Pat Hannigan.

Quebec's big guns were held in check by spectacular goaltending from Denis Dejordy.

Aces netminder Lorne Worsley played the game with an injured ankle although this had no bearing on the three goals scored against him as all three came on screened shots.

Quebec now has won four of its last five games, including two on the road.

Argos Coach Angling

TORONTO (CP)—British Columbia Lions' defensive coach Jim Champion acted as a two-day interview Thursday for the Toronto Argonauts' head coaching job.

"It was just a normal interview," said Lew Hayman, Argonaut managing director. "Nothing was resolved. We checked out a few things."

Hayman had no hopes to narrow down the 21 applicants to three by next weekend. Then he will consult with the club's directors to pick one of the three.

"I have interviews scheduled within the next few days," he said. "About one or two of the people we have in mind may not be available immediately."

Champion indicated recently that he would like the job. Another contender mentioned as a successor to Nobby Wirkowski, fired two weeks ago, is Joe Restic, assistant coach of the Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Hayman said he received permission from Jake Gaudaur, managing director of the Teats to interview Restic.

Income Tax Explained

By C. A. MILLER

Taxpayers are often in a quandry when they have paid and claimed medical expenses which were incurred as a result of an accident, and have at a later date been reimbursed for their outlay. Many are of the opinion that as they have been allowed a deduction on their income tax return, the amount they received in reimbursement should be shown as income.

Medical expenses incurred by the taxpayer may be claimed by him, and no one else, regardless of who has paid them. Any amount he may have received as reimbursement for medical expenses he has paid, is not income for any purposes under the Income Tax Act. Such a receipt of income is pure capital gain and in no way taxable. This will also apply to medical expenses paid by the taxpayers insurance plan.

The confusion arises when the taxpayer knows he cannot claim hospital bills paid by any provincial hospitals services plan, and he is of the opinion that this also applies to doctor bills paid by his medical insurance policy. He can claim all doctor bills, no matter who pays them, but not his hospita bills paid by the Hospital Services Plan. However, if there was any part of this hospital bill that was not paid by the provincial plan and for which he was personally responsible, then this may be included with the other medical expenses. This will arise when the taxpayers hospital insurance called for standard ward accommodation but the patient was in a private or semi-private ward. The taxpayer would be responsible for the difference in rates and he would be quite correct in claiming this difference as a medical expense.

For personal replies pertaining to income tax problems, please enclose a self-addressed five cent stamped envelope and 25 cents to cover each question you wish answered.

QUESTION: I was in a bad accident and had large medical expenses which I paid and claimed on my return. Two years later I was reimbursed by the other party's insurance. Do I have to show this as income this year?

ANSWER: No. It is capital gain and not taxable.

QUESTION: I am 17 years old and have a taxable income. I had large medical expenses this year, which were paid by my father's insurance. Can he claim these bills?

ANSWER: No. If he cannot claim you as a dependant, he cannot claim your medical bills. You are the only one that may claim them.

TEA'S LEGEND

An ancient Chinese legend says a Buddhist saint once cut off his eyelashes and where they fell to the ground grew the first tea bush.

Three Tied In Senior Points Race

GALT (CP)—Guelph Regals' front line of Joe Malo, Dave Luciuk and Don McGregor are one - two - three in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior scoring race for the second consecutive week.

Their only competition comes from each other. Malo moved into a tie for first place with last week's leader, Luciuk. Each has 30 points, one more than McGregor.

Galt Terriet captain Joe Hogan, climbed into fourth place with eight goals and 12 assists for 20 points. Hogan did not qualify for the top 20 two weeks ago but has tallied 13 points in the last six games.

Boat Hurley of Guelph remained in the lead for goal-tending honors for the fifth straight week with a 2.80 average in 13 games. Dave Dryden of Galt is second with 3.25 in 16 games.

Nielsen Ratings Eagerly Studied by TV Sponsors

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Monday will be network television's "N" day—for national Nielsens, the first estimates of program popularity this season which the industry considers really meaningful.

The Nielsen research organization reports on its estimates of the size of audiences for network TV shows every two weeks. Monday's report is considered critical because the period covered — the middle two weeks in November—were the first this season when no programs were pre-empted for U.S. political campaign broadcasts.

Although there has been a barrage of criticism directed at sampling methods, the report is used as the authoritative yardstick by the industry. Millions of dollars and the future of many programs are affected by it.

The public may think of ratings as a mere program popularity contest, but they have a far more serious use for the companies that pay for the programs. If a sponsor spends $100,000 to participate in a program, its rating gives him a rough idea about how much it costs to reach 1,000 viewers. This figure is called CPM—cost per thousands—and it increases as the audience decreases. That is why a program with a low audience rating is usually a candidate for TV's boot hill.

SUMMIT URGED

PARIS (Reuters)—The assembly of the Western European Union adopted a recommendation Thursday calling for a "summit" of the six Common Market countries plus Britain to discuss European political union. It was adopted by 49 votes to two with seven abstentions.

It's carnival time! And it's time for both men and women to let off some steam as this exciting scene shows! Life is short! "Enjoy it while you may," seems to be the theme of this wild and frolicking group caught in action by the all-seeing camera eye of "Mondo Cane No. 2," in its international tour, now showing at the Park Theatre.

Once a year, the inhabitants of certain cities decide that they have had it. Wise King Momo, king of carnival, makes his happy entrance and joyous life rums riot as costumed bells and dances break the monotonous day by day living of the average man and woman. What starts as simple fun, breaks out into wild abandonment and riotous frolicking! Of course, as everything good has to come sometimes to an end, the carnival is also followed by strict penance and chaste living.

This and other scenes of life in the raw can be seen in "Mondo Cane No. 2," the new real life documentary by Jacopetti & Prosperi for Columbia release in Technicolor.

Actor With Ugliest Face Can't Stand Ringo Starr

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Harry Wilson, who has billed himself for years as the movies' ugliest man, can't stand Ringo Starr, the Beatle with the hangdog face.

"All the women go for Ringo because he is so ugly," laments Harry. "It could ruin my whole career."

For 42 years, Harry's face has graced more than 800 movies.

The gentle actor, London-born, has a face that could have been copied from one of Coney Island's distortion mirrors.

"It's my fortune," says Harry proudly.

Producer Walter Seltzer recently hired Harry for a key scene in The War Lord. In doing so, Seltzer paid Harry this tribute:

"In Hollywood's constant search for new faces, we mustn't overlook the fact that some faces fit their owners so exactly they seem everlastingly new. Lincoln had such a face. So did Queen Victoria. So does Harry Wilson.

"We could search the earth and find no one better able, in one quick flash of craggy ugliness, to convey the atmosphere of terror we needed."

SAVING ON SCRIPT

One glimpse of Harry behind bars saves pages of script and thousands of dollars. Such a scene is an immediate tip-off to the audience that here is a maximum security prison housing the most hardened of criminals and that all hell will break loose at any minute.

"With a face like mine you don't need an agent," says Harry.

Sometimes you need a good lawyer.

Once Harry was waiting for a streetcar in Hollywood. The trolley was late and a fretful Harry peered...repeatedly through a drug store window at a clock.

Before the streetcar got there, three squad cars pulled up and I was hauled up to the station. They thought I was casing the place for a robbery. Fortunately, the captain recognized me and I was released."

In 1964

Voters Rewrote U.S. History

WASHINGTON (CP)—American electors rewrote United States political history in 1964 and turned 1965 into a crucial year.

President Lyndon Baines Johnson must measure up to an unparalleled mandate.

The Republican party, shattered by the smashing rejection of Senator Barry Goldwater's right-wing campaign, has to rebuild if it hopes to stand and fight again in the 1966 congressional elections.

The question is whether moderate Republicans, many of whom converted support in Johnson, can marshal a united front strong enough to oust Goldwaterites entrenched in the party organization.

It was plain these conservatives intended to stick, hoping for eventual victory.

For Johnson, the Texas millionaire, it appeared that none of the years left to him in public life could equal the triumphs of 1964.

He sought and obtained election Nov. 3 in his own right for the next four years, while Democratic majorities in both the Senate and Congress were increased.

That seemed to guarantee passage of medical care for the aged through Social Security action, more anti-poverty programs and similar legislation that the expiring Congress had denied him.

INDEBTED TO BUSINESS

At the same time, he was beholden to unprecedented support from business and a pledge of budgetary spending. While he pondered various studies on creation of his Great Society, Johnson signed a tax cut and hold-the-line budget of under $100,000,000,000 and similar assurances after business economy.

American politics in 1964 opened still under the shock of the Dallas assassination of President Kennedy, which had thrust Johnson into the White House, eighth American vice-president so elevated.

But the motivation caused by the Kennedy murder gradually dissolved. Republicans announced his candidacy in January and a conservative Republican - Democratic coalition in Congress dug in to slow the Kennedy legislative program.

The log jam broke in midsummer with the end of the filibuster on civil rights bill and extending social and economic equality for Negroes.

Johnson, marshalling Congress with the special skill acquired as a former Senate majority leader, swiftly began ramming through major legislation faster than anyone had ever expected. There was no stalemate.

BEAT ROCKEFELLER

Goldwater drove to the Republican presidential nomination at San Francisco after defeating New York Governor Nelson Rockefeller in the state primaries and easily crushed a last-minute moderates' bid by Governor William Scranton of Pennsylvania. He named little-known William E. Miller, New York congressman, as his vice-presidential nominee.

Johnson was nominated at Atlantic City in August in a rare and-dried show of party enthusiasm and—as expected—chose Minnesota Senator Hubert Humphrey as his running-mate after specifically excluding Robert Kennedy, attorney-general and brother of the late president.

The campaign, as virulent and as dull as any in American history, officially began in early September. Goldwater trailed from the first and never gained.

MORAL ISSUE

Johnson set concentrated on the hazards he said exist in big government and on accusations that Johnson was tainted by corruption.

Johnson, remaining aloof until the last three weeks, rarely mentioned Goldwater by name but talked of peace, continuing prosperity and—taking advantage of wide-spread belief that Goldwater would be more inclined to commit the country to war—prudence on the nuclear trigger.

It was a landslide, as predicted, in the Nov. 3 election. Goldwater harvested the anti-civil rights vote in five Deep South states and won his native Arizona by a sliver. Johnson took the other 44 states.

Robert Kennedy won the senatorship of New York, beating a well-liked moderate Republican in Kenneth Keating.

ACTOR RECUPERATES

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actor Ronald Reagan is resting at home in the movies as Pa Kettle, is recuperating in a rest home after surgery, performed last month in a Los Angeles hospital. Kibbie, 76, was transferred to the home Wednesday. The brain surgery resulted from injuries suffered when he was struck by a train. Doctors said he is partially paralysed and unable to speak.

CENTENNIAL ROSE—An orange coral floribunda rose has been chosen Canada's Centennial Rose in a nationwide vote. The rose stands two to three feet tall and counts 55 to 70 petals. (CP Photo)

6th Sidney

6th SIDNEY — On Sunday afternoon eight young people were accepted into full membership of the United Church in Wallbridge. Rev. Roy Vesbury, Belleville, officiated, with Mr. John Cooper, the local pastor, assisting. The four members from Scott's congregation were: Master William Dudgeon, and the Misses Monica Sine, Betty Sine and Irene Sine.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Dafoe and boys visited their aunt, Mrs. C. Brenon at Marlsham on Sunday where they partook of an early Christmas dinner before Mrs. Dafoe's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Dudley, Foxboro Road, leave for their annual visit to Florida.

The Senior Sewing group, organized by Uniondale W.I., "More About Finishes," under the leadership of Mrs. M. Sine and Mrs. M. Dafoe held their first meeting in Scott's United Church hall during the week. They will hold one more meeting before the Christmas holiday. Those participating are expected to make a garment or blouse using the techniques taught, namely: collar, bias binding on collar, hems back cuff, covered belt and bound buttonhole.

Mr. and Mrs. Cameron Sine and Tony motored to Toronto on Sunday and spent the day with her sister, Mrs. Stanley Howell and Mr. Howell.

Mrs. Carman Frost and Mrs. Ken Fail spent Sunday and Monday in Toronto and visited Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Hutchison.

Unionsale W.I. held their annual "Family Night" in the form of a potluck supper in Scott's United Church hall on Friday evening. Over 70 partook of a sumptuous meal, after which there was music and a reading.

FOR SWIMMERS — The rubber, inflatable tube built into this bathing suit can save lives. Two Montreal inventors created the "spare tire" without sacrificing swimming style. Joe Palmorini, one of the inventors, claims the tube, which looks something like a small hula hoop, is hardly noticeable when not in use. "The swimmer is wearing protection at all times but doesn't have to use the tube unless he gets tired or into trouble. (CP Photo)

Girl Rescues Father and Brother

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — A 21-year-old girl rescued her father and five-year-old brother from the Otonbee River here Thursday in the same area where another brother was drowned 14 years ago.

Laura Whawell and her father William, 58, spotted the boy Robert partially under water about 10 feet from shore. The two ran over the ice, but it gave way and Mr. Whawell, who cannot swim, disappeared. Laura pulled her father to safety then returned to rescue her brother who had managed to support his head on a cake of ice.

Robert is in hospital in satisfactory condition.

In 1950, another brother, Alfred, 5, was drowned in the same area.

Anger, Unrest Grip Mississippi Town After Arrests

PHILADELPHIA, Miss. (AP) Anger, unrest and unanswered questions gripped this eastern Mississippi town today after the FBI arrested 21 white men Friday in connection with the murder of three civil rights workers last summer.

Twenty of the 21, including Sheriff Lawrence Rainey, of Neshoba County, Deputy Cecil Price and five Ku Klux Klansmen, were free on bond, awaiting a hearing in federal court at nearby Meridian Thursday.

The FBI charged 19 of the men with violating the civil rights of the three workers, and the other two as accessories.

The FBI complaint said Price and nine others plotted the interception of the workers near Philadelphia and that it was part of the conspiracy that they a place of paradox after the news of the arrests.

"This has just ruined our Christmas," said one woman, who asked that her name not be used.

And there was anger. "It s.ems like they are trying to make an example," one businessman said. "That's why it's so unfair."

The 19 men charged with violating the rights of the murdered men could get 10 years in prison, a fine of $5,000 each, or both, if they are convicted on the federal charges.

The other two charged as accessories could get three years in prison, a $500 fine or both.

Governor Paul B. Johnson refused to comment on whether he would act to remove Sheriff Rainey or Deputy Price from office.

Also arrested were a city patrolman, Otha Neal Burks, 71, and Rev. Edgar Ray Killen, 39, a fundamentalist Baptist minister.

A U.S. commissioner released 18 on $5,000 bond each. Another was arrested at Gulfport, on the Mississippi coast, and another at Shreveport, La.

The last, Tommy A. Horne, 28, of Meridian, was arrested at his home Friday night when he returned from a business trip. Horne, one of two arraigned on accessory charges, was released on $3,500 bond. The other man charged as an accessory, Earl B. Akin, 32, of Meridian was freed earlier on $5,000 bond.

Reaction to the arrests was varied.

Rev. Martin Luther King, who has criticized the FBI's effectiveness in the south, commended the agency but said "honesty and realism compel me to admit that it will be very difficult to get a conviction."

Robert Goodman, father of one of the murdered youths called in New York for "prompt and vigorous prosecution of those responsible."

In Washington, Mrs. Rita Schwerner, widow of Michael Schwerner, said:

"How can you get convictions when the jury will be composed of relatives and friends of the defendants and no Negro can sit on the jury?"

In Meridian, Mrs. Fannie Chaney, mother of Robert Chaney, said:

"I've been just praying for this. I just wanted to know their names. I'm going to go to the trial of those men who killed my boy and I'm going to sit right there every day and listen to every word."

Arms Are Transshipped At Khartoum's Airport

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP)—Planeloads of weapons apparently destined to bolster the retreating Congolese rebels are passing through here en route to an airport only 100 miles from The Congo's northern border, Khartoum airport officials have acknowledged.

The officials said at least a dozen planeloads of arms have been processed since Wednesday. It was their belief the weapons are for rebel leader Christophe Gbenye's Peking-backed forces.

The arms shipments strengthened the belief that the Sudan is becoming the key supply base for the rebels opposing Premier Moise Tshombe's Congo government. The Sudanese government has denied this.

A United Arab Republic military transport and planes registered to Ghana and Algerian airways carried the weapons to Khartoum starting Wednesday. Flights continued Friday.

Airport officials said the weapons are being sent from here to Juba, in Sudan's equatorial province. The city, 100 miles from The Congo border, is believed to be a main supply base for the rebels.

A group of Sudanese soldiers transferred rifles Friday from a Ghana Airways Comet jet into U.A.R. aircraft believed to be shuttling between Khartoum and Juba. Officials said the plane's cargo was labelled "medical supplies," but airport officials said they were rifles.

Three days ago Sudan's Foreign Minister Mohammed Ahmed Mahgoub denied in an interview that the 1,000,000-square-mile nation, the largest in Africa, had any intention of being used as a base for war operations.

In Leopoldville, Tshombe said Friday night that Congolese troops had rescued 400 white hostages from the rebels in the northeast Congo since last week's Belgian-U.S. paratroop operation.

He said that a mercenary-led column moving toward the Sudanese border freed 71 hostages Friday in a drive from Bunia, capital of Kibali-Ituri province on Lake Albert.

Trawler Missing Off N. S.

HALIFAX (CP) — Snow and freezing rain interrupted the search today for the fishing trawler Sea Hawk, missing off Cape Breton Island with a crew of 15 or 16 men.

The Sea Hawk, a Mulgrave, N.S., vessel, was working off Cape Breton Tuesday and Wednesday when a fierce wind, rain and snow storm lashed the Maritimes. She has not been heard from since, but search officials said her radio may have been knocked out in the storm.

The trawler is one of seven ships known to have been caught in the storm, and the only one accounted for. Two fishermen are missing.

The two men presumed to have drowned were lobster fishermen Philman Quinlan and James Smith of Stony Island, N.S., missing despite the discovery near Yarmouth of their capsized 35-foot lobster boat.

A British freighter arrived at Sydney Friday with all 11 men safe and well despite a communications failure in 60-mile-an-hour winds and 25-30-foot waves which kept her overdue for more than 24 hours. The 865-ton Bosworth was blown 40 miles off course in the area of St. Pierre.

New Evidence Tends To Prove Coffin's Guilt

Judge Assails Author For 'Venomous Abuses'

QUEBEC (CP) — A Quebec royal commission report released Friday night upholds the conduct of authorities in the Coffin case and aims severe criticism at voices continuing to protest his innocence.

The inquiry headed by Mr. Justice Roger Brossard of Quebec Superior Court concluded there now is even more evidence pointing to Wilbert Coffin's guilt in the rifle-slaying of one of three United States bear hunters killed in 1953 near the Gaspe community of Perce. Coffin was hanged in 1956.

The commission was established last Jan. 8 following publication of Montreal author Jacques Hebert's book, J'accuse les Assassins de Coffin. (I accuse Coffin's Assassins.) An English translation, was subsequently published. He claimed Coffin was railroaded to the gallows by Quebec authorities.

Mr. Justice Brossard, appointed to the Court of Queen's Bench Friday, said the report should finally banish "the monstrous and dangerous downfall" of the Coffin case.

He said author Hebert's

Liberal Favors Ensign

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP) — A Liberal MP told his party members Friday that a vote for the proposed new Canadian flag could cost them their jobs.

Ralph Cowan (L—York-Humber) broke his party's four-day silence in the Commons by accusing the government of putting both itself and the opposition in a straitjacket by insisting that the flag issue be settled.

Calling for retention of the Red Ensign as Canada's national flag and for no action on a committee report asking for adoption of single-maple leaf design, Cowan said the issue "is more urgent business for the Commons to deal with. The flag

Coffin Probe Highlights

QUEBEC (CP) — Highlights of the Brossard royal commission report on the Wilbert Coffin case:

Evidence confirmed rather than contradicted the jury verdict of murder against Wilbert Coffin.

• • •

"Venomous" accusations against persons in authority by author Jacques Hebert were largely unfounded.

• • •

Sensational journalism, doubtful affidavits largely responsible for the Coffin controversy.

• • •

Police and Crown prosecutors generally acted conscientiously in the Coffin case.

• • •

Behavior of defence lawyers Raymond Maher and Francois Gravel referred to Quebec Bar Association for study.

• • •

Evidence indicated Mr. Maher took Coffin's rifle from a camp despite his denials.

Working On Master Contract

TORONTO (CP)—Negotiators will work through the weekend in an attempt to settle a strike of 23,575 General Motors of Canada workers at five Ontario plants.

Spokesmen for GM and the United Auto Workers of America (CLC) were hoping that a committee seeking a master contract might be able to meet today or Sunday after local union issues are settled.

Talks on a new three-year contract were disrupted Wednesday when 14,500 workers at the company's Oshawa plant walked out over what they claimed was production speed.

They were joined Thursday morning — the strike deadline set by the union—by 6,775 workers at McKinnon Industries Limited in St. Catharines, 1,150 at GM's transmission plant in Windsor, 1,000 at Frigidaire Products of Canada Limited in the Toronto suburb of Scarborough and 650 at General Motors Diesel Limited in London, Ont.

Lay-offs resulting from the strike have already occurred at

Hello, Santa!

It's Nice to Have You Back With Us Again

In weather sharp as reindeer antlers and spirits that warmed thousands of hearts Santa came to Belleville today.

And the jolly didn't disappoint the jolly gentleman with its welcome.

To escort him through the city's crowded downtown area was one of the most exciting parades to be seen anywhere.

Thousands lined Front and Pinnacle Streets to greet the cheery Christmas visitor and ooh and ash at the spectacular procession.

Here were floats galore, comic clowns and marching majorettes striding to sounds of brazen bands.

It took nearly an hour for the entire parade to wend its way past any given spot in the downtown district. Not that any spot was given — all of them were taken as crowds filled along the procession route from earlier in the morning seeking observation vantage points.

It was ideal weather to greet Santa. Not one complaint was

Santa Visits Hospital Here

Kiddies confined to beds in Belleville General Hospital did not miss out on all the fun of this morning's Santa Claus parade in downtown Belleville.

The young patients may have missed the excitement of the parade but they were compensated by a visit from Old St. Nick himself.

Following the parade Santa went to the hospital children's ward where young faces lighted up as the jolly old fellow distributed gifts to approximately 45 youngsters.

Pope Paul Flies Home From India

ROME (AP) — Pope Paul came home today to a jubilant Roman welcome by tens of thousands after a dramatic visit to India.

An Italian airline jet carrying the Pope non - stop from Bombay touched down at Fiumicino Airport at 4:30 p.m. A 21-gun Italian military salute. Premier Aldo Moro and cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church were present to welcome the 67-year-old pontiff.

On the flight, Turkish jets came dangerously close to the Pope's aircraft.

Gerardo Caglioti, commander, was unable to make contact with the jets directly because he did not have their radio frequency. He put in a call to Turkish ground control, but was unable to reach it, because of communications traffic and interference, until after the planes pulled away on their own as the Pope's plane entered a cloudbank.

Deeply moved by what he saw as he walked through Bombay's poorest slums, the Pope issued a plea to all nations Friday to halt the arms race and at least part of the funds to help poor countries.

"honestly and realism compel me to admit that it will be very difficult to get a conviction."

In Washington, Mrs. Rita Schwerner, widow of Michael Schwerner, said:

"How can you get convictions when the jury will be composed of relatives and friends of the defendants and no Negro can sit on the jury?"

In Meridian, Mrs. Fannie Chaney, mother of Robert Chaney, said:

"I've been just praying for this. I just wanted to know their names. I'm going to go to the trial of those men who killed my boy and I'm going to sit right there every day and listen to every word."

Sees Separatism Declining, Next Move Is up to English

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A University of Toronto professor told a Canadian-American relations conference Friday that separatism in Quebec is declining but the forces that fostered it still demand attention.

Paul Fox of the department of political economy said he thinks the separatist movement reached its peak Oct. 10 when separatists were unable to muster sufficient enthusiasts to demonstrate effectively against Queen's visit.

"I realize that brutal police action prevented any demonstrations but I am also aware that despite the general summons issued by the movement in its following, only a few thousand appeared from all points of the province."

Mr. Fox said a more serious threat to national unity than the separatist movement is the more sophisticated idea of an associate state status for Quebec, in association with a sovereign English Canada.

Although separatism may be diminishing, the old relations between English and French Canadians are the most important problem in Canada today. It involved the survival of Canada as a country.

"The responsibility for resolving it (the crisis) no longer rests on French Canadians, who have made the overtures, but on English Canadians, who must reply," he said.

Jacques Parizeau, professor of economics at the Ecole des Hautes Etudes Commerciales in Montreal, gave his view of separatism in a paper read in his absence.

"... separatism does not appear to be the foolish, fogey, unrealistic option that a number of people often think it is," he said.

"Against it, federalism must be a most serious and well-studied political structure and not just the result of past habits."

First Major Storm of Winter Blankets Ontario and Quebec

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The first major storm of the season brought freezing rain to southern Ontario and heavy snowfall to Northern Ontario and Quebec Friday and early today.

The freezing rain covered an area from Windsor to Kingston. Up to six inches of snow at Bracebridge and five inches in Montreal was predicted before the storm subsides today.

Rain and snow caused cancellation or delay of most flights from Toronto airport between noon and midnight Friday.

Metropolitan Toronto police traffic department called police-men in for extra duty because of hazardous driving conditions on ice-covered roads.

The weather was blamed for the death of one Toronto man who collapsed while cleaning the windshield of his car. A 12-year-old boy was killed at Oak Ridges, Ont., when he was struck by a car during the snowstorm.

The weather also disrupted shipping on the lower Great Lakes. Three lake vessels pulled into Toronto Bay because the weather made navigation almost impossible, while two ocean-going ships were delayed four hours by the ice, snow and hail in clearing Hamilton harbor.

In the wake of the storm many Ontario and Quebec roads were left snow-covered or icy and drifting was expected in open areas.

Lighter snow and rain also fell on the Atlantic provinces and British Columbia Friday, while low temperature records were set by a cold spell in the eastern Prairie provinces.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Today will be mainly cloudy, windy and cold across southern regions with a few snowflurries likely along the Niagara and Bruce peninsulas. Further north mainly sunny but cold weather will continue and on Sunday some sunshine is expected in all areas.

Fluoridated Water Can Save Parents Heavy Dental Bill

By DR. McCOLL METCALFE
Belleville M.O.H.

"The first duty of medicine is not to cure disease but to prevent it."

Canada has only one dentist for 3,000 people, and this shortage is particularly acute in rural districts. It has been shown that five out of ten four-year-olds across Canada suffer from tooth decay as well as eight out of ten in the six-year-old group. The average 12-year-old has already eight permanent teeth decayed and has lost one permanent tooth.

In its natural state water contains some fluoride and in communities where water contains enough natural fluorides, one part of fluoride per million parts of water, people benefit and the same beneficial results can be obtained by adding fluoride to water which does not naturally contain enough. It has been shown that the water in the vicinity around Belleville does not contain any fluoride.

In cities which now fluoridate their water, children born since the water supply has been fluoridated have as little tooth decay as children of the same age in municipalities which have had naturally fluoridated water for years.

GREAT SAVING

The cost of fluoridation even in small communities is negligible. The saving to any family by reduced dental bills is very great. The cost of fluoridation works out to about 10 cents per person per day.

Fluoridation is for prevention of dental decay and is not a remedy. There is absolutely no change in the taste or odor of the water supply because of fluoridation.

Fluoride tablets can be obtained at your local pharmacists but there is doubt about how practical it would be to take fluoride tablets as the dosage in this form has to be with the amount of fluorids naturally present in water and it is possible that children might take either too much or too little in the form of tablets. Further tablets would need to be given daily from birth until at least eight years of age and even the most conscientious parents might have difficulty in keeping this up for so long a time.

It is more practical and more economical to add fluorids to the entire water system than to treat the drinking water separately, the same applies to chlorination.

PROCESS SAFE

Fluoridated water is safe and it has been shown by special medical examination of children who have lived in communities where there is fluoridated water there is not any greater degree of cancers, kidney disorders, hardening of the arteries, and heart disease, rheumatism, arthritis, bone fractures, goitre, or any other condition.

Poisoning by fluoridated water would require the drinking at one sitting of at least 450 glasses of water containing one par. of fluoride per million parts of water.

The following is a quotation from Osler, "There is not one single thing in the private or medicine that equals in importance of mouth hygiene and the preservation of the teeth."

Unemployed Are Fewer Than Year Ago

TRENTON—J. K. White, the manager of the local employment bureau, reports the employment picture improved over last year, with only half as many men seeking employment as was the case in 1963.

November 30, this year, 270 men were unemployed and 294 women. At the same time last year, 449 men were registered and 174 women. Mr. White said the increase in women seeking employment could be laid to seasonal layoffs in industry.

The Trenton area covers 450 square miles.

The crying need at the employment bureau at the moment is for skilled machine shop workers, waitress and domestic help.

Welfare administrator A. Gordon Davis reports the welfare picture as considerably improved over last year. This has been the story since last spring when construction took an upswing in Trenton.

Word from the town office is that 30 men are at present employed with the town. A sanitary sewer is being laid along Kidd Ave. and North Byron St., and the town men are engaged in this work.

Defer Spending $275,000 on Plant

TRENTON — It looks as if town council's fear of having to take up something close to $275,000 in the not too-distant future, had been allayed.

A letter from the Ontario Water Resources Commission this week said that an expansion of the sewage treatment plant may not be necessary for some years.

The OWRC notified the town a few weeks ago it would not approve further applications for extending sewers until the town was prepared to expand the plant.

Store Theft

TRENTON—Town police making rounds Friday morning found the front door to O'Malley's store in North Trenton, forced open. A check of the store revealed that small quantity of cigarettes had been taken. The robbery was discovered around 2.00 a.m.

Reeveship Only Contest At Frankford

TRENTON — In Frankford, there will be a contest Monday for the reeveship, with the incumbent H. Willmott Rose and Councillor Raymond Moran in the running.

Voting will be in Frankford Community Hall, (polls one and two) and in the public library, poll three.

Councillors were acclaimed last week with the 1965 councillors being, Carman Mikel, Harry Wickson, Douglas Brown and Gilbert Gilmore.

Roy Waterhouse was also acclaimed to the utilities commission, as were Gerry Vasey, Douglas Bastedo and G. McCrary to the school board.

Deseronto House Blaze Caused By Toy Train

DESERONTO — A toy train caused a $4,000 fire in the home of A. Pfleferle here Thursday morning.

One of the children woke the father to tell him an upstairs room was on fire.

Arriving minutes later, Deseronto volunteer fire department smothered the fire within 45 minutes. The roof of the dwelling was completely destroyed and minor damage caused on the main floor.

Cause of the fire was a toy train transformer.

SWINDLED BANK

MONTREAL (CP)—A man who admitted swindling a bank and the creditors of several businesses of nearly $150,000 was sentenced Friday to seven years in fall—with the concurrent sentences against him totalling 28 years. Hilaire Paquette, 36, admitted he had been involved in a swindle that cost the Bank of Montreal $47,000.

THE HORSE, OF COURSE, is papier mache but the people are real enough. Linda and Denis Lane are shown aboard Northern Electric float, one of many in spectacular Santa Claus parade here today.

QUEEN OF HEARTS . . . and her two lovely attendants were part of this morning's Santa Claus parade. Parade of 31 floats, 11 bands and over 100 walking personnel was seen by thousands.

Hello, Santa!

heard from the throng of kids of ages lining the route. All of them apparently felt high-spirited that the old gentleman once more proved himself imperishable.

Few of them complained about frozen feet or fingers despite sub-zero temperatures.

SNOW CLEARED AWAY

The route had been cleared of parked cars by police order from early morning.

And to top off the preparations the route, snow-covered from last night's storm — was sanded, salted and made solidly safe by the city public works department.

Long before the parade even lined up, families were streaming into the city to view the annual spectacle of spectacles.

They weren't disappointed.

Once again, the Santa Claus parade committee, with the guaranteed help of city firemen under Chief Gerald Vance, were in top showmanship form.

The animated pageant of color was as sparkling as anything ever to leave Santa's toyland.

In fact, the floats looked just like that: as gay and exciting as new toys — only bigger, much, much bigger.

HEAD PARADE

The fire chief's red car, parade marshal Harry Abbott and a color party of five horses headed off the annual Santa Claus parade, followed by the Salvation Army Band.

And in keeping with the Christmas theme, the first of the 31 floats making up the parade was one depicting the Nativity scene at Bethlehem centuries ago.

Immediately following was a choir float, with personnel singing traditional Yuletide carols.

Then fantasy took over with the "Good Ship Lollipop" floats, the "Toy Town Express", the "Diamond Queen" and "Mary Had a Little Lamb."

Then there was the funny monkey cage, a helicopter float and one reaching back into early Canadian history depicting storied Hiawatha.

Following in order were a dinosaur, a circus float, the Shriner Camel Herders, Old King Cole, Senior Citizens and an animal satellite.

Again reaching back into history, there was Robin Hood, followed by the Snow Queen, and the local Elks Lodge float.

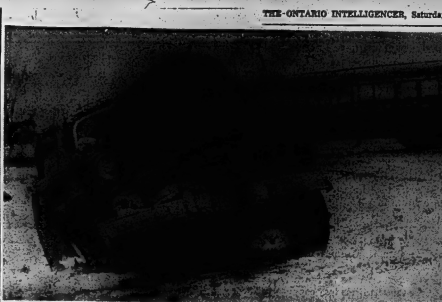
Local firemen once again got into the act with a 1918 fire engine followed by Petticoat Jct. of TV fame and an aquaplane float.

QUEEN OF HEARTS

Of course any Santa parade would not be complete without the Queen of Hearts and there she was in all her glory. She was followed by the Man in the Moon, a winter scene, a rub-a-dub-dub float, another animal float, a bride and groom presentation and a night-before-Christmas scene.

Then there were Sleeping Beauty, and Frosty the Snowman and finally Santa Claus himself, with his lovely young attendants.

Bands taking part besides the Salvation Army Band, were the Cobourg Drum Corps; the Quinte Secondary School Band and Majorettes; a clown band; the RCEMO Band; the Quinte Pipe Band; the ANAF Pipe Band; the Colborne Band and Baton Corps; the Bowmanville Legion Pipe Band; the RCAF Pipe Band, and the RCAF Brass Band.



MAJORETTES MARCH

Majorette groups taking part included Dorothy Dickey Majorettes; Brenda Branscombe Majorettes; Gail Chapman Majorettes; Wellington Majorettes; the Joytown Majorettes, and the Picton Majorettes.

In addition there were over 100 other walking personnel, including dozens of clowns and fairyland creatures.

Committee members assisting Fire Chief Vance in planning the annual Santa parade included George Rutledge as treasurer; Deputy Fire Chief Ted Poste, bands; Stu Martin, floats; and Gerry Brennan as secretary. In charge of costumes and make-up were Mrs. George Grant, Mrs. George Rutledge and Mrs. Pat Hunter.

Building of sponsored floats to a great extent was taken on by a number of city firemen.

DRIVER OF THIS CAR was reported seriously injured when it was hit broadside by school bus (at rear) on Highway 14 at Thurlow township's fourth concession yesterday. Charles Blair, 34, Crookston, suffered head and chest injuries. It was the only serious accident in district during day of stormy winter weather.

Worried by Mottling Caused by Fluorine

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

Regarding fluoridation of the city water supply, I believe that the amount of fluorine that is proposed to be added is 1 part per million. However I have been unable to find out what the natural fluorine content of the water is at present.

Durland's Medical Dictionary defines "Mottled Enamel" as "a chronic endemic dental flourosis that is found in communities using a drinking water that contains one part or more of fluorine per million. The permanent teeth of children so raised tend to erupt more or less chalky white and later tend to become pitted and stained yellow, brown or almost black."

In Boyd's "Preventive Medicine" on the subject of mottled enamel it states that "Through the work of H. V. Smith it has been ascertained that the condition is due to the presence of fluorine in the water in amounts exceeding 0.9 P.P.M.

It would seem therefore that the public should be informed as to the natural fluorine content of the present water supply before being expected to cast an intelligent vote on the issue. If the natural content is sufficiently high then adding further fluorine would be costly, pointless, and possibly even dangerous.

Amelia Forster (Mrs.)
80 Wright Ave.

Note:—The health authorities of the province and the city can be expected at take all safeguards in the same way as other communities which have approved the addition of fluorine to the water supply.

Dr. McColl Metcalfe, Belleville M.O.H., in an article printed in The Ontario Intelligencer this week stated there is no natural fluorine present in

Fear Parks to Suffer If Board Abolished

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

There is a plebiscite to be held on December 7th in reference to the abolition of the Board of Parks Management. We believe that the public should be fully aware that city parks can suffer considerably if this board is abolished. Provincial law requires that the city give the park board, a proportion of the taxes levied amounting to one mill for the provision and maintenance of parks. This would no longer be the case if the parks board were abolished. It is our fear that upon the abolition of the board, Council would discontinue or greatly reduce the allocation for parks without reducing taxes by a like amount.

Furthermore, city council appears to have more than sufficient to do now without administering parks. If council is dissatisfied with management of the parks, let them remember they are responsible for appointment of the Board of Parks Management. Let them appoint a park board, which will do a better job.

For a city of the size of Belleville the parks and recreational facilities are woefully inadequate. Opportunities lost now for lack of funds are lost forever. We therefore urge all responsible citizens to vote Belleville's water supply.—Editor.

Picking Party Leaders

The Conservative Party in Britain is considering changing the manner in which it selects its leader.

Now it is done by an inner circle whose members are not known to the public.

Nothing democratic about that, some may say.

But will the proposed alternative be much better? It is thought the Conservatives may copy the method now used by their Labor rivals. The Labor Party leader is selected by a secret ballot of the party's members in the Commons. Now, it is true that these members are elected by the public, which thus has an indirect voice in the selection. But how about those Labor Party supporters in ridings where the Labor candidates did not win? They do not have any say of the choice of a new leader.

Here in Canada we do things somewhat differently. Our parties hold conventions. Theoretically, any person interested can participate in the selection of a delegate. In practice, the average citizen has little more say in the choice of a leader of the party he supports than does the Conservative voter in Britain.

The United States, perhaps, comes even closer, again in theory, to selecting the party leader democratically. This leader is the party's candidate for president, and some states hold primary elections which enable voters to indicate directly their preference. But many other states do not and in practice the selection is made by the "backroom boys," with their influence likely to be greater than that of their counterparts in Canadian parties, although their control may not be quite as absolute as the British Conservatives' inner circle.

Some will argue this means we do not have a true democracy, in Britain, in Canada or the United States, since in none of these countries has the average man any real influence in the choice of party leaders, from whom come the prime ministers and the presidents.

That, though, is probably asking too much of democracy. Senator Goldwater was right about one thing—the essential ingredient of a democratic system is that the voters should be offered a real choice. Any effort to arrange things so that the voters themselves selected the alternatives to be placed before them would probably not work. The average citizen lacks the inside information which would be necessary for his choice of a party leader was to be realistic. But as long as he has a real choice when he goes to the polls at a general election, then the methods used in selecting party leaders, though not perfect, will not defeat the real principles of democracy.

Premature?

Early in January, senior officials of the Commonwealth nations will meet at London to discuss the formation of a Commonwealth secretariat.

There are already several Commonwealth organizations. For instance, an economic committee has been functioning since 1927. An agricultural organization has eight bureaus, seven in London and one in Canada.

At first, care will be taken to avoid stepping on the toes of these existing Commonwealth bodies. Eventually, however, they may all be brought under the wing of the proposed secretariat.

The idea of a secretariat was once the darling of the old Commonwealth lands, but it has been the new African members which have pushed for action.

Canada has been a dissenter, opposing efforts to harden the formula of Commonwealth relationships within the framework of institutions.

There may well come a day when the Commonwealth will have to establish some kind of supreme parliament, to give that type of leadership which used to be provided, naturally and without question, by Britain in the days when the Commonwealth was still an Empire. If that day comes, a civil service will be essential.

Still, Canadian statesmen who dislike the idea of a secretariat could reasonably question the wisdom of establishing a bureaucracy before the legislative body it is designed to serve is even contemplated, let alone in existence.

To Your Good Health
Several Possibilities Surround Cracked Skin

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My finger tips keep bursting open. Nothing else hurts but the very tips. Please tell me how to stop this. — F. B.

Like so many problems, this one may not come from a single cause. There are several common possibilities. So let's discuss them, along with some ideas which can help you figure out which are bothering you.

If the skin is either especially thin or especially thin on the finger tips, it can crack easily, from pressure or from the action of some irritant.

That can mean handling things — packages in stores, objects at work, or whatnot. Oil can irritate the skin. So, of course, can cleaning compounds, chemicals of various sorts, or smoke or fumes. There have been cases of the skin being sensitive to smoke from a cigarette.

Another underlying cause can be temper dirt. Lack of enough protein, and lack of vitamins are the chief factors in this. So, do you eat a balanced diet?

The problem can stem from allergy, or sensitivity to something you touch, or even something you eat. One victim had no luck in clearing his cracked fingertips until he stopped drinking coffee. This, I would say, is a rather unusual case, but it shows what odd quirks of allergy can prove to be important.

Keeping the skin soft and pliable can make a difference between cracking and not cracking if your skin tends to be dry. Use of a lotion or skin cream can be helpful for men as well as for women.

But don't depend too much on just lotions, or on combatting food allergies until you have first examined (1) is the cracking caused by something you constantly touch? (2) are you eating a well balanced diet?

Dear Dr. Molner: I had an attack of pneumothorax in the summer. Would this result from a run-down condition or would it have happened regardless? — Mrs. J. S.

Spontaneous pneumothorax means a hole on the surface of the lung ruptured allowing air to escape and be trapped in the chest cavity between the lung and the chest wall. Being "run-down" had nothing to do with it. Extreme physical activity or a sudden strain or cough might cause a hole to break.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have something floating before my eyes, not a veil, but it seems to look like a circle. It started just a short time ago. At night in the dark I seem to get a flash across my eyes. I also see dots at times. I am 65.

Do you think I am going blind is there any help? — H. B. A.

From the description, this could be beginning of glaucoma or excessive pressure building up inside the eyeball.

Glaucoma is the commonest cause of blindness. Fortunately, when it is detected early, it can be controlled and sight saved.

Glaucoma can be determined very quickly by use of a pressure reading instrument called a tonometer. The eye doctor can do this, at the same time, make other examination of your eyes to be sure that the trouble isn't from some other cause.

Hemorrhoids can be cured by prohibition, by refining bathing and other rectal problems, write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 188, Dundee, Ill., requesting a copy of the booklet, "The Real Cure for Hemorrhoids," enclosing a long self-addressed stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

The Sexes

Montreal Star

The statisticians in Ottawa report that there are 161,400 more men in Canada than there are women and Washington reports the United States has 3,000,000 more women than men. Which could lead to something, or be quite significant, but we're not sure what.

Surcharges Justified

Quebec L'Evenement

It doesn't seem that Canada will be affected to any considerable extent by the new import surcharges imposed by Britain. Our exports to Britain are largely made up of agricultural products and raw materials, which don't fall under the new surcharges. Great Britain suffers from a long-standing shortage of farm products and doesn't see the importing of such products as any threat to its own production. . .

The Labor government's measures are justified if they remain in force for a limited period. The trade deficit makes them necessary for a certain length of time. But in an age of general trade liberalization, it would be short-sighted for London to follow too hard and fast a protectionist policy. This artificial protection would damage the British economy in the long run by leaving it in a state of false security, by depriving it of the steady spur provided by other countries. In the long run, it doesn't seem that Britain can find a real solution to its economic problems if it doesn't join the European economic bloc. What Britain is looking for, Britain wants too. The economic future of Britain lies in that direction. Its current protectionist stand can be only provisional.

Realtor in Favor Of Proposed Import

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

An article on December 3rd, reports a meeting between city council and the members of the Home Builders Association and local realtors, with the builders and realtors being opposed to the proposed import on undeveloped land.

In fact only one realtor was there and he appeared as a builder rather than a realtor. No other realtors were invited, nor were the members of the public. The realtor who was there spoke as an individual and not on behalf of the Real Estate Board.

As a taxpayer, as a realtor and as a candidate for municipal office, I am in favor of the import. It is an excellent method of placing the tax burden for developing land where it belongs rather than on the entire city. It is in fact only a token recovery of the cost of providing services to new areas.

Canadians Are Eating Better

Small Bite. Marie Star

It is probably cold comfort to housewife harassed by rising food bills to be told, in effect, that she's not as badly off as she thinks she is — that these rising bills are largely the result of changes in Canadian eating and housekeeping habits as well as of higher prices applying to specific foods.

The patterns of Canadian food consumption will "continue to shift in the direction of higher protein foods and those which satisfy an increasing demand for variety and convenience," according to the Bank of Montreal Business Review for October.

The bank reviews changes that have taken place in food in the past decade and notes that, with new methods of processing and distribution, the housewife buys a "packet of built-in services."

Many of the changes in the last decade reflect the tendency, as living standards rise, to eat less food with a high carbohydrate content.

With these changes, plus higher spending on restaurant meals the bank says some rise in food prices would be expected and this has taken place.

"The wonder is, however, not that food prices have gone up, but that they have gone up so little." The Review points out that, on the average since 1951, food prices have actually risen less than the prices of other consumer goods and services, and substantially less than the rise in incomes per capita.

For the future, it says there are two opposing influences at work in the market for food.

"Real incomes in the population as a whole are rising and the distribution of income is changing in such a way that there are relatively more families in the higher income brackets," the bank notes. It adds that these changes indicate a continuing decline in the percentage of total consumer expenditure devoted to food.

On the other hand, the population is increasing and the age distribution is shifting in such a way that there will be relatively larger numbers of "young eaters" (teenagers and young adults) in the years ahead than was the case in the recent past.

Therefore, "total expenditures on food in Canada, which in 1962 reached 8.3 billion, will in all certainly rise, but the extent of the rise will depend on the strength of the opposing influences," the Review concludes, not very comfortingly.

This May Be Bad as Flag

Financial Post

Attempting to reach agreement on whether Canada has, should have, or even wants a national flag should be exercise enough for one parliament's try session. But apparently our intrepid politicians are eager for more controversy. Two backbench MPs have introduced bills to declare officially that Canada has a national sport.

Jack Roxburgh (Lib. Norfolk) wants this to be hockey.

Robert Prittie (NDP, Burnaby-Richmond) retorts by plumping for lacrosse.

Who, if any one, will get the nod of approval from the PM?

Single-minded as he may be on the flag, Mr. Pearson could show a fine impartiality even a split personality, on this sports issue. He played lacrosse for Oxford in the winter of '22-'23and made the British Olympic team. However, he also played lacrosse for the Dark Blues, though lauiler Canada regarded it as a girls' game and irreverently dubbed it's exponents "Butterfly Catchers," because they "waved nets," i.e., lacrosse sticks.

How wrong they were and for Mr. Prittie's sake, what a shame it is that the Hon. George Hees is not still an MP. Lacrosse can be the roughest, toughest sport. Hees played lacrosse for Trinidge in 1933-'34 when the Canabs routed an Oxford team of which incidental Dean Rusk, the U.S. Secretary of State. By his own admission, George made the team, not through any knowledge of lacrosse, but because of his prowess as a boxer, a heavyweight boxing champion and former Argonaut footballer.

But then, it is entirely possible that the Red Argo sport is probably come out for football as Canada's national game.

If some MP introduces a bill to glorify the pigskin officially before November 28, Grey Cup day, we may have a real national issue on our hands. Naturally Mr. Roxburgh and his supporters would filibuster to delay voting until the Stanley Cup series sets hockey fever raging.

Explanation Is Hilarious

Montreal Star

The chilling aspects of the Man-in-the-Trunk mystery have faded into the background. The victim, the hapless Mordecai Luk, is back in Israel to face the music for having left the country illegally—although why a citizen shouldn't leave the country at will is beyond us. The case is now in its hilarious aspect, with red - faced Egypt wriggling frantically in an attempt to get the trunk out of its system.

The best explanation yet given for the presence of Luk in the trunk comes from Cairo. The Egyptian diplomats were caught red-handed so far as Rome police are concerned, but for Egypt they were victims of Israeli cunning. Israel agents, say the Egyptians, somehow switched trunks between the Egyptian embassy and the airport.

The Egyptians don't seem to mind what a blunder they are paying to Israel's intelligence agents. They are so skilful and highly organized, on Egypt's showing, that they know when Egyptian diplomatic mail is due to leave the embassy and able to switch trunks right under the noses of ostensibly vigilant Egyptian diplomats. Clever people, these Israelis!

Dec. 8th, 1944

Attempts were being made today to find remains of a meteor which was thought to have caused an explosion in the North Bay area early Monday morning. The explosion which startled the country-side for miles around, was preceded by a blinding flash that was seen a few minutes before the blast. Firemen sleeping in the North Bay fire station, awoke with a start as the building was badly shaken by the explosion. Railway employees who saw the flash said they believed the blast occurred near Lake Nipissing, but other reports concerning location of the disturbance were conflicting.

Rumors of an airplane crash as well as of a V-2 bomb' circulated early today. The first was dispelled when a check with North Bay airport revealed no plane accident.

A Lift for Living
Open-Hearted Ways Should Be Distributed All Year Long

By REV. HAROLD B. KOHN

Here we are in December. This is not so much another month as another state of mind.

December is a month of Christmas melodies, Christmas decorating, Christmas planning, Christmas buying, Christmas giving. For 11 months some folks suppress their best impulses and splendid sentiments. They would feel self-conscious send a little silly singing the joyous songs of Christ's coming, decorating their homes so gaily saying the kind, appreciative word and performing the gracious deed any other time of the year. For 11 months they attempt to hide their best selves. But now, in December, they seek a way to reveal their hidden feelings. These are man's most open-hearted moments.

Besides revealing the hidden splendor God has fashioned within us, the Christmas season manifests what life should be like all the time. Of course, this does not mean that daily life should ring with Christmas carols or shine with Christmas candles or be loaded with Christmas gifts. But the open-heartedness of Yuletide month should distinguish all our days.

For instance, at Christmas time we offer gifts to those near and dear to us with a holy kind of carelessness: we do not give according to the merits and worthiness of our families, nor do we receive according to our just desserts. (Horrors. Can you think of a worse fate than getting what you really deserve?)

Isn't this what life should be like, always? Should we not always serve the world according to our love and the world's need, and rather than according to what we determine others deserve from us?

Again, at Christmas time, when we are at our best, we care less about what we receive and care more about what we give; care less about our own happiness and more about the happiness of others. What a year it would be if that Christmas spirit were allowed to break its December bonds and flood and saturate the other 11 months.

What the world needs is a less spectacular Christmas celebration and a more enduring Christmas spirit.

LIGHTING THE WAY

By Walter S. Crane

WHAT IF SCIENCE IS WRONG

Science tells us that if our sun refused to shine, within 48 hours, this earth would be frozen solid in temperatures approximating 250 degrees below zero. But, let us suppose that Science is mistaken. What then?

If the sun refused to shine, this earth would be enveloped in utter darkness. A thick, heavy, inky blackness we have never experienced, would close in around us, permanently. As a result, all vegetation would die and become decaying mass for disease-breeding germs. These would produce pestilence and would be the death knell of all physical life.

The Bible refers to Jesus Christ, the Son of Righteousness as the "Light of Life"; and the "Light from above." It is He who lights the way of life for us. To the degree in which we walk in the light of His truth, we shall be saved from spiritual darkness, decay, and death. TEXT FOR TODAY: — "I am the Light of the world, he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life." (St. John 8:12)

ALBERT COLLEGE

(A story of a church school)

"Where a society is religious an active missionary interest is almost inevitable." — Dr. Waldo E. L. Smith.

* * *

The year 1884 brought with it — change.

In 1884 the various branches of Methodism in Canada united.

This union formed the Methodist church.

The change introduced what might be called the "Missionary Age of Albert College." Hitherto the school was a part of the Episcopal Methodist church and its missionary activity was confined to Ontario and the Northwest, due to the denomination's small membership.

But now!

The Methodist Church opened doors to larger, distant horizons: the Indians of Canada, Japan in 1873, West China in 1892 and Africa 1896. Albert College was to give close to one hundred volunteers for missionary work in the 30 years which followed the Methodist union. Over 50 were to "become actual missionaries in one field or another."

FRONT PAGE ACCOUNT

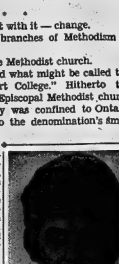
Being the first Canadian to visit Africa, people the mission-aries were the fore-runners of foreign correspondents as we know them today. They reported on what they saw and experienced. The newspapers welcomed them as news, personal accounts. Dr. Meacham's description of the Torpedo Ride in 1880 was given front page treatment in the Belleville Intelligencer.

By the 1890's missionaries were returning on furlough bringing personal accounts of their activities. Dr. Smith in his book "Albert College, 1857-1957" says:

"A generation of young people, religious, generous and well accustomed to hard work and no luxury, responded in warm sympathy and idealism." For the Student Volunteer Movement gained force. Young people who offered to become missionaries challenged the church with 'Our lives against your money!' One student wrote later:

"About 1905, the evangelization of the world in this generation caught the attention of its youth. 'Pray, study, give. . .' with scores of young men renewed in spiritual life gathered from many placed into "Albert" with a united vision, consecration and ambition, the College took on a mighty task. . . The fellowship of spirit was beyond description and the whole life of the church was quickened. Boys and girls gave themselves to Christ, to the mission fields and to the ministry."

ELLA GARDINER



Dr. Smith finds the starting date for this flowering of missionary interest not easy to establish, for records are incomplete. But he points out that a teacher was "at the heart of it." She was the well-loved Ella Gardiner.

In those days, when women had small place in public affairs, this unagressive, rather shy minister's daughter graduated with the first Arts class of the University of Toronto that had included women. She was 25 years old when she joined the staff of Albert College in 1882 and taught modern languages until she retired in 1928. She is ever remembered for the "profound influence she had on her students."

She was deeply interested in the missionary movement, and kept many records and diaries, one of which is still in the college's possession. Missionaries, the "old students," wrote to her as the centre of the "Albert College family". These letters read aloud to the students formed a personal link as they listened to Dr. Frank Livingston tell of treating Natal Kaffirs during the cattle plague of 1896 or Dr. Will Smith describing operations on Chinese sufferers in Szechuan as surgeon and holding services on Sunday as minister. Or John Ferguson a missionary in China, telling how he was asked by the Empress to plan a national school system."

YEARLY FRIENDS

To the young students who were occupying the same seats as these missionaries, these men were friends; friends weary risking disease, riot and cruel discouragement. Friends who needed their prayers and "practical support and new reinforcements."

Mr. Ray Auld, executive director of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children, announces the appointment of Miss Norma McNaughton to the Belleville District, which includes the Counties of Hastings, Lennox and Addington, and Prince Edward.

Miss McNaughton, a graduate of the Ottawa Civic Hospital School of Nursing, obtained her certificate in Public Health Nursing from the University of Ottawa. Her professional experience includes practice in both hospital and public health fields in Canada and the United States.

The nursing service provided by qualified experienced public health nurses with special training the care and rehabilitation of crippled children is one of the services financed throughout Ontario by Easter Seals.

* * *

"One would give much to be able to tell the stories of the many men and women from this school whose lives have enriched our nation's life." says Dr. Smith. He cites the Reverend Sam Gaudin as an example:

In 1890 Sam Gaudin took his matriculation at Albert. After he was ordained in 1895 he went to the Northwest Territories. From there he wrote of the 3,000 Indians of his parish where he did his own freighting by canoe and portage as well as his own carpentry. One sick Indian at least was always in his home.

LOVED INDIANS

Indians weren't impressed too much with education, declaring, "It doesn't give greater strength to muscles of back or neck to pack the heavy load across the long portage." But they Rev. Sam Gaudin loved his Indians who were "so generous in giving and so suffered by the severities of their life." He worked successfully among them.

When Rev. Gaudin visited Albert (his small children could speak nothing but Cree), he found he himself had so learned to think in the Indian tongue that he faltered, and apologized for not being able to speak English fluently. Yet as a student he had carried off the prize in elocution. —

"Many graduates," says Dr. Smith, "have risen to distinction in law, education and political life, while the church has been served by many missionaries and ministers whose thought an power of expression have been fashioned at Albert College."

The Queen's Christmas Shopping

How would you choose Christmas gifts if you were the Queen? Here is the inside story of the royal Christmas presents, written by Helen Cathcart, whose new book "Sandringham" has just been published.

By Helen Cathcart

The Queen Mother did her Christmas shopping early this year. In the Invercauld Galleries at Braemar she chose lovely hand-knitted blankets and engraved glass, sprigged with Scottish wayside flowers.

HIGHLAND CRAFTS

At the sale of work at Crathie Church, near Balmoral, both the Queen and the Queen Mother also bought pottery jugs and ashtrays, hand-knitted socks and scarves, a tiny dressed doll, a deerskin bag and other samples of Highland craftsmanship. Before the next folk had begun to think of Christmas gifts, they had made a dint in their Christmas shopping list.

The royal ladies have been shopping busily ever since, both personally and by proxy. To ensure that the royal gifts remain a surprise, a number of London stores and charitable organizations have joined in a genial conspiracy of silence.

BUYS MOTHER A PAINTING

The Queen usually visits an art gallery shortly before Christmas and buys one or two paintings, but her purchases are rarely revealed until the New Year. The Queen Mother once particularly admired a painting by Paul Nash only to learn a day or two later that the picture was sold. Imagine her delight on Christmas Day on discovering that the painting had in fact been bought for her by the Queen.

A member of the Queen's staff also tours the antique shops, armed with a considerable number of possibilities that Her Majesty has in mind. When something suitable is found, a secret fine china perhaps or a silver candlestick converted into an electric lamp, it is sent along to the Palace for approval.

GI'E BOOKS

Books are a frequent royal choice, and Miss Olivia Hedley, the library assistant at Windsor, is kept busy ordering half-a-dozen nearly every member of the Royal Family. Sometimes a hint is dropped, as both Princess Margaret and the Queen Mother have decided to give themselves some books and then the little problem is tactfully ironed out.

It is fair to say that this year there have been some royal purchases of my own new book Sandringham. Princess Anne clearly believes in giving books to her young friends and her own Christmas gift list is growing longer.

At Windsor the Queen also likes to browse among the shelves of a glassware and handicraft shop near the Castle. The doors are closed after her arrival, and earlier customers tactfully complete their purchases and then leave her undisturbed. The problem is rather different in a large London department store where the Queen likes everything to go on just as usual.

CLEAR THE AISLE

In practice, the central aisle is cleared just before the Queen arrives, and customers are asked to stand back "just for a few minutes, please." Some shoppers cannot resist waiting. Some eccentrics even manage to curtsey. Accompanied only by the store manager and a lady-in-waiting, the Queen soon chooses a route of her own and wanders around without too much fuss.

The royal visit to a toy department has become almost a tradition. The Queen is always intensely interested in the latest mechanical toys, new children's do-it-yourself kits and novel board games. At a bazaar one year no fewer than five royal ladies — the Queen, the Queen Mother and Princess Margaret, Alexandra and Marina, all chose toy rabbits. This did not mean that little Prince Edward was going to find a whole family of bunnies around his cot on Christmas morning. At least one of the rabbits, it turned out, was bought for a royal chauffeur's baby son.

BUYS FROM EX-SERVICEMEN

The Queen similarly rarely fails to visit a store selling the work of disabled ex-Servicemen. In 45 minutes of systematic shopping, I have known her to buy a set of glove puppets and a nest of tables, a folding picnic table, a pullover, a handy wastebasket, a Red Riding Hood doll and a dozen other things.

MARGARET'S LIST

Princess Margaret buys no less decisively and her representative list one year included a ring set, a teddy bear, two fur ducks, two black leather handbags, a fruit basket and breakfast tray, a shoe scraper and some Christmas tree decorations.

The bill came to over $180.

Accounts for royal purchases are settled by cheque in the usual way. Yet the royal ladies seldom indulge in really lavish gifts for friends or family. The Queen Mother reassuringly murmured, "They're not dears! They're absolutely charming!" when she paid 13 guineas — about $40 for a pair of white and gold piecrust tables.

HOT WATER BOTTLE

The essential simplicity of the royal household is also shown by the wastepaper basket and hot-water bottle which the Queen lugged unwrapped one year. The Duke of Edinburgh, I believe, once gave her an automobile association reminder to keep an eye on the time and it stands in a place of honour on the Queen's desk. Her Majesty once gave her husband a set of car mascots... knowing that he always likes to feature the right piece for the occasion, a silver guardsman for a military inspection, a mounted polo player when he is on his way to a game.

The children are encouraged to make their own presents. It won't be spoiling the surprise to say that the Prince of Wales this year will almost certainly give his parents some of the pottery he has made at Gordonstoun. The Duke of Edinburgh similarly likes to design Christmas gifts himself. Students at a technical art school received precise instructions one year when he wished them to convert an old silver tea-kettle into an electric kettle. Another time, he spent hours patiently designing a beautifully engraved platinum powder compact — complete with a slide-out lipstick, as a gift to the Queen.

Like any husband, Prince Philip cannot altogether suppress awkwardness when he ponders over his quick Christmas tour of the stores. He chooses quickly but asks for many articles to be sent to the Palace for more leisured inspection. Then he enlists the aid of Miss Margaret MacDonald, the Queen's dresser, to help him select the charming feminine surprises that meet a wife's favour.

GIFTS FOR STAFF

The Queen likes to open her packages under the Christmas tree on Christmas afternoon. Yet this is only the climax of a busy holiday season of present-giving around the palaces. Several hundred Christmas gifts for the staff bulk largest of all in the Queen's generosity.

Almost before most people have begun thinking of Christmas, indeed, the housekeepers at Buckingham Palace, Windsor Castle and Sandringham begin asking their staffs what they would like. Even newcomers to the staff learn that they will receive a small gift. "Perhaps a pair of socks then?" dubiously suggested a new hand in the Palace kitchens, fresh from watering school. He was astonished to receive three pairs.

EXQUISITE GIFTS

Cooks and housemaids with long terms of service often receive exquisite gifts. After receiving a tea-set one year, one housemaid thought she felt that the Queen had given her enough and declined to state her preference. Her name was called as usual, however, as the staff lined up and she received a matching tea service.

Christmas puddings and preserves also go to estate employees. Old pensioned servants continue to receive their Christmas gifts. There are two-pound puddings for each of the policemen and duty postmen at Buckingham Palace and Windsor.

DELIVER COAL

There are humble backstreets in Windsor where free coal is delivered to 400 old folk every Christmas "with the Queen's compliments". Officials hinted not long ago that this gesture cost the Queen $750 a year and was no longer economic in a welfare state. The Queen decided that deliveries should continue, but stipulated only that newcomers to the list should be at least 65 years of age.

Wife's Reliance on Mother Shows Lack in Marriage

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My wife and I have been married three years. Millie always was a mama's girl but I thought she'd grow up when we moved out of town. The reason I asked for a transfer was to get Millie 400 miles away from her mother.

ANN LANDERS

Every night Millie is on the phone crying to her mother about some darned fool thing. Either she put a blue sock in the wash and the dye ran on a white tablecloth or her cake caved in. Tonight she was bawling because she fell off her bicycle and twisted her knee.

What can I do about this? — PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZ. — I hope Millie has been crying after 6.00 p.m. It's cheaper.

A married woman who continues to lean on her mother may not be getting the proper emotional support from her husband. I suggest joint counseling. Don't just look in the phone book and go to anybody who is listed. Contact the Family Service Association or the Y.M.C.A.

* * *

DEAR ANN — I moved to the west coast two years ago Soon after I arrived I received my orders from the selective service board to report for the armed forces physical examination. I was 20 years of age at the time.

I decided to answer all the questions honestly. In reference to homosexual tendencies I checked the block admitting that I am a homosexual. *

I was selected and classified 4-F. Now as I approach my 23rd birthday more and more people inquire as to why I have not been drafted. Among those most persistent in their questioning is my mother.

How shall I explain to her and to others that I will never be drafted? Considering the attitude of our society toward homosexuality I would be doing myself more harm than good by admitting it.

Can you advise, or do your editors consider the subject taboo? — ANSWERED TRUTHFULLY.

DEAR ANSWERED — I have dealt with the problem of homosexuality in print on previous occasions. My column appears in 870 papers. So far as I know, only two papers refused to print the letters.

I see no reason why you should go into detail as to why you were classified 4-F. It would be entirely correct to say you were rejected because of an emotional disturbance.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am 18 and I know what I want. I want to go steady with Craig but my parents are against it. They think Craig is a prince of a fellow and would be pleased if we married — someday — but I can't go steady with ANYBODY and that's final.

I love Craig and he loves me. He doesn't want to date anyone else and neither do I. We can't marry for at least another four years. He is 19 and has four years of college ahead of him.

Why should I be forced to date others when I don't want to? My parents are not the kind you can talk to, I mean REALLY talk. I can't stand the not being able to communicate with them about this. Will you help? — B.A.J.

DEAR B.A.J. — Sorry, but I'm against going steady, even with a prince of a fellow. Surely there are two or three other fellows in the world you can tolerate.

"Dating others will keep the relationship with numero uno in perspective. When you do finally marry Craig (if you do) you won't feel you've been married half your life.

* * *

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Lines on Life

Discipline and Devotion Key Words of Family Life

It is not without reason that the Old Testament reserved for the very last lines of the very last of the Prophets, Malachi, a teaching which cuts deeply into the heart of life's meanings. Taught the Prophet:

"Behold, I will send you
Elijah the prophet
Before the coming
Of the great and terrible day of the Lord.
And he shall turn the heart of the fathers to the children,
And the heart of the children to their fathers;
Lest I come and smite the land with utter destruction."

FAMILY LOVE

Before the world can know the bliss of messianic love it elders have abdicated this must first know the meaning of role. They are afraid to be what family love. Instead of coming in fact, their children want closer to that moment, we have them to be.
been moving further and further away. Modern teachings have succeeded in sharpening the division between the generations, not in bringing them closer to each other. Children do not need or want "pals," they want and need parents, whom they can lovingly respect as compassionate teachers. Parents want really to be parents and not fear to express their love in pedagogic terms which would consciously and willfully bind their children to a distinctive pattern of group behavior. They need to know that they have communicated a feeling that they are dependable, relevant, and irreplaceable. They need to feel that they have brought children into the world not merely as passionate biological progenitors, but as moral agents of a power greater than they.

Nowadays, as a result of modern thought, parents often act as though they must love their children as an act of enlightened self-interest to be emancipated from the anxieties caused by their unresolved biological guilt. This compulsive, rather than a moral, love leads to the absentee parent who neither acts as a model or examplar nor serves as target for rebellion. He is either missing at the crucial moment, or so tolerant and permissive as to be almost unreal. While young people want and need models to follow, and feel cheated by parents if they do not serve them in this way, their

NO TRUE COVENANT

And children, in turn, raised in our child-centered society, feel that they should love their parents, as a strategy of toleration even though by now they have been so "brightened up" that they are always capable of "seeing through them." They have reached a new "height," they "understand" their parents, but do not love them; they "understand" their inability to communicate and have more pity in their hearts than love. Because there is no true covenant between the generations because we have mocked or missed the indispensable opportunities for the spiritual growth which the family offers, there is no fundamental acceptance of the proper roles of parents and children. Thus, the hearts remain unturned and neither has an abiding spiritual share in each other.

PRESENT SITUATION

Discipline and devotion — these are the key words of family love. If we are to avoid a land smitten with utter destruction we need to rediscover their vital relevance to our present human situation.

1 cup buttermilk,
¼ cup melted fat (see note).

Note: Fat may be half and half melted butter and shortening or melted bacon fat or melted chicken fat. Melted chicken fat is excellent in cornbread.

Combine ingredients in order given and beat until smooth. Melt an additional tablespoon of butter or fat in 8 x 8 x 2" pan. Heat hot to be preheated to 450 deg. Fahr. for this. Pour batter into hot pan and bake 18 to 20 minutes. Serve at once cut into 9 squares.

FAVORITE PANCAKES (repeated from February 18, 1964.)

1¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour,
2½ teaspoons baking powder,
⅝ teaspoon salt,
2 or 3 tablespoons sugar,
1 egg, beaten,
1¼ cups milk,
2 tablespoons melted shortening.

Sift flour once, measure, then sift again with baking powder, salt and sugar. Combine egg, milk, shortening and add to dry ingredients. Stir until smooth. Drop by tablespoonfuls onto hot griddle. Cook on one side until puffed and full of bubbles. Turn and cook on other side.

BUCKWHEAT CAKES

2 cups cold water,
1 cup sifted flour,

Going Places
Lost City of Incas Strange, Fascinating Place to Visit

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

MACHU PICCHU, Peru — In the dinky railway station at Cuzco, the dispatcher yanked a rope attached to the skipper of a silvery fire bell. The engine on the contraption known as an "auto-carril (car-train) coughed convulsively, ground agonizingly into low gear, and we were off on the stunning ride we've ever been on, in the strangest train in the world, to one of the strangest places in the world.

The autocarril is a 130-year ago bus mounted on railway wheels. For the first few kilometers out of Cuzco, it zig-zags insanely, in forward and reverse, over a series of switchbacks which ultimately lead it into the two-mile high passes of the forbidding Andes, and toward a place that a generation ago was accessible only to archaeologists on foot. Half a century before that it was unknown, its memory buried in obscure myths of Indians, its location lost in the rubble and overgrowth of the centuries.

The auto-carril rumbled and screeched like a hag through the scrubby green of the brown and green mountains, blasting its klaxon to chase pigs and llamas off the tracks. Mystified wayside crews flashed by. Above them stood centuries old farming terraces of the Incas, shored by stone walls of cactus and wild willows grew on the moonscape, and finally the train emerged in the full valley of the Urubamba River, its course twisted into a fury of white water rapids by mammoth boulders.

The valley soon narrowed, and once again the Andes rose straight above us, their tops lost amongst the clouds — like mists. The landscape became steeper and blacker. Patches of cold mountain below gave way to jungle - green trees, some blossoming wildly with red and blue blooms.

LIKE HUGE FISTS

Finally, the tracks found their way to Machu Picchu station, deep in the valley, and were surrounded by seemingly topless peaks rising vertically like huge raised fists.

A station wagon waited at the tiny station, and took us up a dirt road which winds a hairraising roller-coaster course around one of the peaks. From its summit, perched 2 months later, the Urubamba appears like a tricking rivulet, and the station and tracks a mere line through the wrong end of binoculars.

Here then, at last, we found ourselves in one of the most spectacular sights on earth, a veritable Shangri-la at the top and end of the world, a place so remote, so inaccessible that looking at this living legend offers one of those rare experiences of absolute something, as it literally not believing the eyes.

When the Incas retreated before the onslaught of the conquistadors, inevitably they fled into the fastness of the mountains. Spanish chroniclers reported the existence of a city there. Whether it had been built as a retreat or had existed for centuries, they didn't know; at any rate, they never found it.

Nor did anyone ever find what became of the last of the once-mighty nation that ended its dominance of a third of a continent here. When American archaeologist Hiram Bingham, following a trail compounded of myth and his intuition, found the site in 1911, there were only a few women's and children's skeletons in the area. The Incas had disappeared off the face of the earth, but they left a monumental legacy which will challenge investigators for a long time to come.

Machu Picchu, the lost city of the Incas, sits scarcely on what appears to be a sheared-off mountain peak, the slopes of which plunge almost vertically to the valley beneath. All around it, like sentries, stand similar vertical peaks.

VIRTUALLY INTACT

The city, virtually intact except for long-disappeared thatched roofs, is a self-contained community which may have supported as many as 5,000 souls and is at least 500 years old. Its facilities included council chambers and homes, fountains and ceremonial places, prisons and defence citadels, all built of the huge fitted stones builders that were the style of the Incas. To this day no scientist has presented a workable theory as to how the great blocks — many taller and wider than a man — were brought up to this perch.

As a self-sufficient city, Machu Picchu raised its own corn and potatoes — staples of the Indian diet to this day — and its most dramatic feature is the series of farming terraces on each supported by five-foot stone walls, climbing the slope like a giant stairway to the sun.

From this condors nest, the Incas lived in splendid isolation still visible along the side of a neighboring mountain. Archaeologists have traced all the way to Cuzco, and by it the Incas maintained communication with what remained of their once far-flung empire.

Archaeology still is a new study in Peru, and scientists are convinced many other lost cities lie beneath the ancient avalanches and growths of this sprawling, inhospitable terrain. In the tangled jungle of the Amazon valley, where perhaps a quarter of a million savages hunt with poison darts and never have seen a white man, another American archaeologist, Gene Savoy, believes he has discovered the true lost retreat of the Incas. Vilcabamba, also known only through Indian legends. Some say an untold fortune in Spanish gold may be hidden there.

But whatever else may ultimately be found in this heady world of secret cities, nothing is ever likely to challenge the grandeur and spectacle which is Machu Picchu, one of the world's incredible sights.

Successful Living

This Family Needs Mutual Understanding, Respect

DEAR DORIS — My husband and I met and married overseas. We were still in the forces, and very happy for the two years before my first child arrived. Then we came back here and moved into a house of our own.

The first step my husband took into town, he was brought home drunk. Over the 15 years we have been married his drinking problem has worsened. If I had gone along with drinking, with him, he would think there was no one like me. But I nipped that in the bud, right from the start.

His folks resent me for taking a firm stand, so I broke all ties with them some years ago. I believe they are at fault. Instead of making him stand on his own feet they fought his battles for him.

DORIS CLARK

He refuses to co-operate with me; he dislikes me intensely, and has tried for years to turn the children against me, all because I am firm with them. I love my family, but it is getting very hard for me. — DISCOURAGED.

DEAR DISCOURAGED — The trouble with a war marriage is that neither partner knows the other's background. Life in the army is regimented and provides little opportunity to pursue normal congenial interests and learn about each other. So your honeymoon was abruptly over once you set foot in your own home.

Your husband is easy going, irresponsible; you are disciplined, orderly. And neither of you gives an inch. Probably he drinks more because you scorn him. Probably you become more of the dominant because of his drinking.

Your teen-agers need your love more than your stern discipline. You need the love you will not accept from your husband. And that is no longer open to give. You all need a new deal. Perhaps a counsellor could help, but not until you are ready to see your own part in this.

DEAR DORIS — As mother of the bride I wore my corsage on the right side; the groom's mother wore hers on her left. She said I was wrong. What do you say, Doris?

Our 25th anniversary is coming up soon and I want you to tell me which side is the corsage to be pinned on. Also what to say in the nicest way when the friends and relatives ask you for a speech. — VERY NERVOUS.

DEAR NERVOUS — Suit yourself. Wedding is legal whether corsage appears on left or right shoulder, at waist or in hair. For a dance, the lady may prefer right shoulder, to avoid crushing. Always wear flowers right side up, the way they grow.

What to say? Something nice about your husband and your quarter century, together. Something grateful about those who are helping you celebrate; and the way you prize your friends. Something relaxed, and smiling. And brief.

Incidentally, why isn't your husband doing the talking? This is his job!

I BELIEVE IN BELLEVILLE

The city which is situated near the centre of the great population and industrial centre of North America, on a waterway that reaches into the heart of a continent, and served by the nation's leading transportation systems, and recreation areas, second to none; is destined to head the list of cities that people will want to live in and where industry will want to locate, if given inspired leadership.

I BELIEVE, it is the duty of every citizen, who has benefits from living in a community, to offer his or her talents in some manner in the service of that community. Since coming to Belleville with my family, a quarter of a century ago, the good people of Belleville have honored me by election to many high offices; such as, the Board of Education, the High School Board, City Council, President of The Chamber of Commerce, Chairman of the United Appeal, etc. For this I am humbly grateful and trust I have made some small contribution. It has always been my philosophy that one must always have in mind the greatest good for the most people and still be fair to all concerned, be they rich or poor, and without thought of their political beliefs or religious persuasion.

I BELIEVE that in a democracy all levels of government are important, and all electors should be concerned who they elect and support.

I BELIEVE that our local or municipal administration should be the first concern, because it affects you directly and daily. Electors should make it their first duty to keep informed about the business of their government, commend good measures, and speak up against undesirable ones.

I BELIEVE in the Council-Manager form of administration which you, the electors, voted for in 1953 and if elected will continue my efforts to improve and support same.

I BELIEVE that a smaller council would be more effective, if you vote for it, and council procedure were amended to eliminate all the three standing committees, and operate as a committee of the whole of Council. At present, an Alderman can only be a member of one of three committees. Now, I ask you, can he be well informed if he has not listened to the debate of the other two-thirds of council and the advice and information which must be provided by city officials such as, the City Manager, City Solicitor, Assessor, Treasurer, Clerk, Personnel Manager, Chief of Police, Fire Chief, City Engineer, etc.

I BELIEVE it is the duty of every citizen who feels he can make a contribution to the various boards and commissions, should make his wishes known to council so that a pool of names is available from which a considered choice can be made.

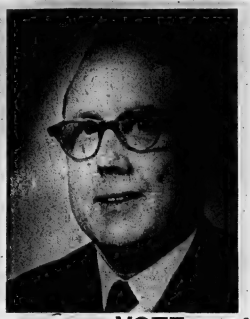
I BELIEVE that the greatest assets of a community are the human resources; therefore, the soundest investments we can make are those which contribute to the health, education and welfare of our children and adult population. As a city we cannot survive or compete without a healthy well educated, well informed population.

I BELIEVE that Belleville is a good education centre, but there is need in this area for a post secondary Trade School to serve Hastings and nearby counties and will encourage the establishment of same by our provincial government.

I BELIEVE that Belleville has a good department of health, but a much wider service to include dental and mental health could be available if we were part of a county or multi-county health unit, such as is the case in more than 80% of the Province of Ontario. We would then qualify for substantial Provincial and Federal Health Grants. In the fourteen years that Belleville has had a full time health department, I estimate that almost a quarter of a million dollars could have been received. If elected I intend to seek co-operation of our neighbouring officials toward this objective.

I BELIEVE there is urgent need for housing for low income families and senior citizens which can be provided at little or no costs to the city because of senior government grants. I have been pressing for this since last January and am glad we are now taking action.

I BELIEVE that a candidate for council who offers his services, should know that the allowance made does not begin to compensate for the loss of earned income of an able alderman as he must be prepared to serve on many organizations which take a great deal of time. In the past two years I have served as a member of the Public Works - Traffic and Light Committee, Board of Health, Board of the Children's Aid, as well as chairman of the committee that established program 3 in the education of the unemployed. I have enjoyed the work and given my time unstintingly, have missed only one or two meetings. I am prepared to continue to serve you with my limited talents but broad experience, and all the time necessary to do an effective job.



I hope I shall continue to merit your confidence on December 7th.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: I am making a trip to Washington, and would like to have any information you could give me on driving down, as to what proper highways, etc. — W. B., Napanee

ANSWER: From Napanee to Ivy Lea, Watertown to Syracuse No. 81, then No. 11 to Binghampton, and 81 to Norristown. Take No. 320 to Wilmington, then No. 40 to Baltimore and Washington. The OML offices in Cataraqui would be happy to provide you with information on any detours and construction on the way. This trip is approximately 565 miles.

QUESTION: We are going to Florida this month, and want to drive down by the most direct way. Which route should we take to miss the mountain roads as I understand they could be snow-covered and dangerous to drive through? We would like to steer away from the mountain as much as possible. — Mrs. O. A., Belleville

ANSWER The most direct way to go to Florida from Belleville and to keep away from mountain driving, is to drive to Watertown, and then take No. 81 to Syracuse, No. 11 and No. 81 again to Norristown. Then take No. 320 and No. 40 to Baltimore, No. 301 to Jacksonville, and No. 1 to Miami.

JEKYLL ISLAND

Not a peep has come from Florida's tourist operators about resuming last year's policy of accepting Canadian dollars at par. At best, it was a hit - and-miss proposition anyway.

However, you will be guaranteed your full dollar's worth if you visit Jekyll Island, Georgia, this winter. Motel owners on the island have announced through their association that they will accept our money at par value in payment for lodging at the resort.

This is a repeat of last year, and Donald Negley, chairman of the motel association, explains, "One out of five of our winter guests is from Canada. In fact, Jekyll Island is becoming quite a Canadian winter colony."

Jekyll Island, just off Route 17 at Brunswick, was for many years the winter colony of some of the famous U.S. families, the Rockefellers, Morgans, and Goulds. Bought by the state in 1947, Jekyll is now open year-round to the public, with a number of privately owned motels, two golf courses, indoor and outdoor swimming pools, and nine sandy beaches.

TRAVEL TIPS

PREVENTION: Avoid motoring mishaps by using extra care in winter driving:

1. Let road conditions determine your safe speed. Slow down for curves and icy patches.

2. Maintain safe stopping distances and anticipate braking needs. Pump your brakes when slowing on ice or snow. Do not jam them on.

3. If your car skids, steer in the direction the rear of the car is skidding.

4. Keep gas tank more than half full. This means less condensation in the gas tank and less risk of water in the gasoline, with a possible tie-up if a bit of it freezes in the lines some cold day.

5. By keeping the battery's solution level lower in cold weather, the battery stays stronger.

Auto Insurance Rates Increased First of Year

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Underwriters Association, representing about 100 insurance companies, announced Thursday that Canadian car owners face auto insurance price increases of from five to 21 per cent beginning Jan. 1. The association blamed the increase on costlier claims, noting that 1964 is the fourth year in a row in which accident frequency has risen and the sixth consecutive year that the average cost of accidents has increased.

Increases across Canada average 15.3 per cent, with Newfoundland the only province receiving a reduction, the announcement said.

The increases range from five per cent in Ottawa to 20 per cent in Toronto and 21 per cent in Niagara Falls, Ont. The Sudbury, Timmins and Kirkland Lake districts will escape the increase.

The last general increases in the association's rates was in January of this year when rates for most Toronto drivers rose by about 20 per cent.

Select Two of Three S's Is Gary Schreider's Advice To Pupils of His Old School

There are three S's in school — studies, sports, and social life — but you can only achieve two of these if you wish to remain a successful student, professional footballer Gary Schreider told those attending the annual graduation exercises of St. Michael's Academy last night.

Speaking to a body of approximately two hundred students and parents, Mr. Schreider, a former student at St. Michael's who played professional football with Ottawa, Hamilton an Vancouver and practises law in Ottawa, spoke of the value of education.

In this era he feels it is essential that if one has the ability he should obtain all the formal education he can. He explained this does not mean the student who is unable to go on is left out, for everyone has his place in life.

Mr. Schreider reminisced about some of the warm memories he holds from the days when he was a student at St. Michael's.

Outstanding student of the year, James Keogh, was presented with a trophy from the Belleville Separate School Board.

Mr. Keogh was seriously injured in March, 1960, while in Grade nine and after an eight month absence from school returned in February, 1961, to successfully complete his Grade 10.

". . . At $18,000 per year or $1,500 per month, with 40 months from now until the end of the life of this Parliament, this is a $60,000 question," he said.

And he quoted the words of an ancient Roman king:

"One more victory such as this and the country is lost."

HEARD 40 SPEECHES

At week's end the Commons had heard 40 speeches on a Conservative amendment to send the report back to the committee, asking that the committee recommend a plebiscite to decide a new flag during the next federal election.

Conservatives made 30 speeches, Liberals four, New Democrats three, Creditistes two and Social Credit MPs one. The debate is to continue Monday.

NDP House Leader Stanley Knowles asked the government to set aside one day for consideration of the proposed new Labor Code if the flag debate threatens to take up all of next week.

Acting government House Leader Judy LaMarsh said she would bring the request before the cabinet.

Mr. Cowan has been the only Liberal MP to line up with Red Ensign supporters. Several Conservative MPs have indicated they will support the committee's maple leaf design.

The barrage of interruptions that has met most Conservative MPs supporting a plebiscite, stopped during Mr. Cowan's 5-minute speech.

At one point, when Mr. Cowan asked Speaker Alan Macnaughton to call for silence, the Speaker replied:

"I must say I think you have very good order and rapt attention, certainly better than a great many others."

POINTS NOT NEW

None of Mr. Cowan's debating points were new but coming as they did from the government side, they set Conservative MPs to banging their desks while Liberals sat almost in dead silence.

The government, Mr. Cowan said, is a minority one and has no mandate to bring in a new flag. The issue was being used to cover up government indecision in times of stress. Prime Minister Pearson's claim that the vote was to be a free one—the outcome would not cause an election—was phoney.

There couldn't be a free vote among the government members because too many MPs held "sincere hopes for senatorships and judgeships." They wouldn't dare displease the government by voting against the design.

FILES SUIT

NEW YORK (AP)—Dr. Sam Sheppard, the convicted Ohio wife slayer recently freed from prison, Friday filed a $5,000,000 federal court slander suit against columnist Walter Winchell. The one-time Cleveland osteopath claimed that while he was on trial for his life in 1954 he was falsely accused by Winchell of fathering an illegitimate child by a woman then under arrest in New York for robbery.

three sub-contracting firms in Oshawa.

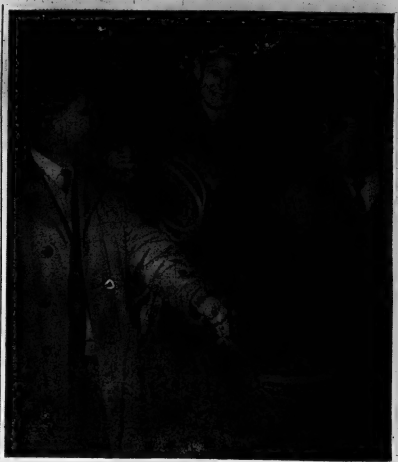
Strikers in Scarborough, St. Catharines, Windsor and London received pay cheques Friday for the week ended Nov. 27. Cheques for the three days worked this week will be delivered next week.

The Oshawa strikers will not be paid until today, the company said, because pickets there prevented office staff from entering the building Friday.

A UAW spokesman said strike benefits will be paid on the 15th day of the strike and will cover the preceding seven days.

Benefits will be $20 a week for single persons, $25 for married men and $30 for married strikers with dependent children. The union will continue contributions to hospital and other insurance plans.

The Oshawa strikers will not be paid an extra day for jumping the gun on the strike deadline, the spokesman said.



SUB-COMMITTEES MEET

Sub-committees have been discussing working conditions and seniority this week, matters which have to be settled before the master negotiating committee can meet to discuss wages.

One union demand is wage parity with the company's United States employees which, counting fringe benefits, would give the Canadian workers an average of $1 an hour more, according to the union.

Unofficial reports say GM has offered the union the same raise it gave recently to its U.S. workers, but did not agree to the union's demands for wage parity.

UAW members have taken strike votes at Ford Motor Company of Canada and Chrysler Canada Limited, but no deadlines have been set. Negotiators are expected to await a GM settlement, which would set a pattern for the Canadian industry.

Working with mortar presents a problem in cold weather. Tweed Construction solved the problem at the Argosy warehouse site by using fire. The burning wood under the drum on the left keeps the motar warm while the fire in the centre drum keeps the frost out of the sand. Mike Murphy, R. R. 1 Tweed, is on the shovel.

Belleville's family YMCA has won an award for design and qtiality of workmanship. Built by local contractor Hugh Murray Ltd., the building placed third in a province-wide competition.

Construction Round-Up

HEXA PLANT

Cement abutments for the outside tank at Union Carbide's Hexa plant are poured and the heating system is in operation. Workmen are still running the piping system into the process ing plant, and gravel have to be spread on the roof, and facia and cant strips to provide a water runoff on the roof need to be attached. The roof work, weather permitting, should be done by Wednesday. The windows are still without glass.

UNION CARBIDE DRAINAGE

Lightfoot Construction has completed the foundation walls for the Union Carbide's settling tank. Next week handrails will be attached and the backfill packed around the sides. Painting the inside of the tank with water proofing requires covering the tank with a tarpaulin and using a heater to raise the wall temperature to 70 degrees.

Outside, the drainage ditch is completed for the final hook-up to the tank. Inside the plant workmen were not able to cut the 100-foot drainage ditch last weekend, but hope to get at it today, Saturday.

DUNDAS STREET CLINIC

Friday the block side walls at the Dundas Street Medical Clinic stood at about five feet. The masons estimate it will take at least another two weeks to finish the walls. Sixteen more layers of blocks have to be placed.

WILLIAM STREET CLINIC

Dr. John Stock's medical clinic on William Street has its foundation completely dug. Straw is spread over the foundation to keep the frost out of the working area. When the block foundation work begins depends on the weather.

L.C.B.O.

The plastering and concrete work at the L.C.B.O. Station Street building is completed. Next week the carpenters will start the wooden bins for the side. Foreman Don Jackson estimates the plumbers and electricians will be working till at least the end of December.

STRADWICK'S

Outwardly Stradwick Floor Covering's new building on North Front Street is finished. The fluorescent lighting system was installed yesterday and the gas heating system will be in by Wednesday. Only the sub-trades are working.

has men tearing out walls on all three floors. By Wednesday they should be finished. Thursday they will star the framing. Total cost of the renovations will be over $90,000.

ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER BUILDING

Partitions have been constructed and the door frames set in the basement of The Ontario Intelligencer building. Brickwork on the east side is done up to the second floor. Next week, provided the weather is favorable, door frames will be installed on the first floor and the brickwork started on the west wall.

DIXIE LEE CHICKEN

Block work on the back and side walls of the Dixie Lee building on Coleman St. began last week. The back wall is now about seven feet high and has the steel window frames set in. Until the cold weather lets up, brick work on the front wall and further block work are halted. The seven foot deep sewage ditch is started and will be finished by Wednesday.

WILSON CONCRETE

Wilson Concrete Ltd. has built a precast concrete roof over a section of their crane bays. The roof is made of precast slabs each about 60 feet long. Two-thirds of the roof has been tarred and gravelled and the balance will be covered next week if the weather permits. Polyethelene stretched over wooden frames has been used to wall the sides of the covered crane bays.

AMODEO'S

The interior basement walls are in at Amodeo's on North Front Street. While Lumber, the contractor, is waiting for the pre-stressed concrete to be used for the main floor.

LAMBERT CONSTRUCTION

Aside from beginning the block walls a week ago no further work has been done on Charles Lambert's new double tripiexes, located at the corner of West Moira and Wallbridge Road.

ARGOSY

Masons laid block wall all last week at the Argosy warehouse on Adams Street. Unless the weather improves, the walls will take at least another three weeks to finish. The crew could use another two more block layers but masons are still scarce.

SMITH'S GARAGE

Glass was put in, the conduit trench for the wiring dug, and the mezzanine floor poured during the past week at the Smith garage on Adams Street. Next week door frames and doors will be put in and the furnace hooked up. Outside work is finished except for caulking around the windows.

CITY BARNS

Tatham Construction, contractors for Belleville's city barns, have been building foundation walls all week and hope to have them completed by next week. The water piping system is ready and only has to be connected to the city line. Hauling fill will begin this week and possibly some block work.

POLICE BUILDING

Renovations on the old YMCA building began last Monday. Foreman Dick Wilker

Marcotte Will Be Tried on Second Charge

MONTREAL (CP)—Attorney-General Claude Wagner said Friday the Crown will proceed with the trial of Georges Marcotte on a second charge of capital murder "unless we receive an indication the federal government will commute the sentence."

Mr. Wagner also called the idea of abolishing the death penalty "a sad thing . . . and a blow to justice."

Marcotte's death sentence in the hold-up slaying of a police constable two years ago was commuted Thursday to life imprisonment by the federal cabinet.

He also had been charged but not tried for the murder of another constable, killed in the same hold-up.

It is the death of the second policeman that would be the issu in a future trial, which Mr. Wagner said would begin Feb. 1.

The attorney-general refused to comment directly on Justice Minister Favreau's announcement of the commutation but he added:

"You can guess my reaction when I heard about it."

CRIMINALS WILL LAUGH

He told a group of reporters and policemen at a ground-turning ceremony:

"Criminals will laugh at the abolition of the death penalty."

Government authorities "should think more than twice" about abolition.

The cabinet has decided Parliament will be provided at its next session with an opportunity for a "free vote" on whether capital punishment should be abolished in Canada.

Mr. Wagner said he was never consulted by Mr. Favreau on the Marcotte case,

NEVER CONSIDERED

He said the authorities concerned decided on the commutation "without considering all the judgments rendered against him (Marcotte)."

At a press conference following the out-door ceremony, Mr. Wagner was asked if he supports the federal government's constitutional power to commute death sentences, he said:

"The prerogative of mercy should be exercised with judicial discretion, taking into account the judgments rendered by the (lower) courts, the appeals courts and the Supreme Court."

He said he feels "consultation should take place with the provinces in all capital murder cases."

Fire Destroys London Station

LONDON (AP) — Fire destroyed the Bishopsgate railroad freight depot here today and burned to death two men who worked there. Their bodies were found as firemen searched the ruins.

The fire, one of London's worst since the Second World War blitz, also destroyed thousands of Christmas packages.

Design of New YMCA Here Wins Award From Masons

The excellent design and workmanship on the Belleville Family YMCA has won honor for local contractor Hugh Murray Ltd. and an award for the architects Craig, Zeidler and Strong of Peterborough and Toronto.

Judged third from amongst 16 finalists, the YMCA brought the architects an award of merit from the Ontario Masons Relations Council at a ceremony held November 23. Only six merit awards were presented.

To be eligible the buildings had to be designed by a member of the Ontario Association of Architects in private practice, constructed in Ontario within the last four years, made basically of Canadian structural clay products, and not be an attached or detached dwelling or an apartment under four storeys high.

Submitted were 169 photographs illustrating 37 buildings designed by 20 architectural firms.

Before making their final selections, the judges visited the site of each building to confirm that the photographs had truly indicated the design and workmanship. These two qualities were the main basis for their decision.

"This building is well-sited and conveys an inviting and uninstitutional feeling. There is an appropriate use of rugged brick, well studied and detailed. A particularly fine treatment of the pool," was the judges' comment in making their award on the YMCA design.

Photographs of the award-winning entries will be exhibited at the Ontario Association ff Architects headquarters building in Toronto and will be published in various trade and other journals. After on display in Toronto for a month they will be sent on a tour of the province.

Mr. Murray, president of Hugh Murray Ltd., the general contractors, shared credit for the achievement with Archie Parks, the project superintendent; masonry contractors Bradshaw Construction Ltd., Domtar Ltd., which provided the face brick; and Wilson Concrete Products Ltd., which supplied the precast concrete beams, columns, panels and blocks.

Justice Dryer, Maritime Union Trustee, Quits

OTTAWA (CP) — Putting an end to two days of speculation, Labor Minister MacEachen announced Friday night that one of the maritime union trustees is stepping down.

Mr. Justice Victor Dryer of the British Columbia Court of appeal gave his resignation to the government, effective Dec. 15. He is one of three trustees appointed 14 months ago to end violence on Canadian waterways.

Judge Rene Lippe and Charles Millard remain to their posts and Mr. MacEachen said he has "a couple of people" in mind as possible successor to Mr. Justice Dryer.

The resignation will not interfere with Mr. Justice Dryer's appearance, along with the other trustees, before the Commons industrial relations committee, the labor minister said. The Commons decided last week to call the trustees before the committee for a report on their activities since they started riding herd on the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.) and four smaller maritime unions.

The Commons committee is expected to call its hearings in about two weeks.

Announcement of the resignation of the 53-year-old Vancouver judge was made in Mr. MacEachen's Parliament Hill office. The minister said Mr. Justice Dryer had asked to be relieved of his post several months ago in order to return to the bench in B.C.

"At my request, he agreed to remain until the end of the current shipping season."

Grateful Tribe Grants Lawyer Million Dollars

HOLBROOK, Ariz. (AP)— The Hopi tribal council has voted to pay its lawyer, John S. Boyden of Salt Lake City, $1,000,000 in fees for his services in a successful legal fight stretching back more than 25 years.

A prominent tribal member said the council voted Friday to pay $250,000 to Boyden for his services over the past 26 years and $200,000 in appreciation for his "taking the case when no one else would."

Boyden helped guide the tribe's victory in a dispute with the Navajo over land in northeastern Arizona. The Hopis were granted 631,000 acres and one-half interest in another 2,000,000 acres in the case, which eventually reached the U.S. Supreme Court.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The sports-minded people of the 29,000,000 visitors expected to attend Canada's 1967 World Exhibition in Montreal, know as "Expo 67", won't lack for attractions.

A retired soldier, Colonel Eddie McClelland, who describes himself as a golf and ski buff, is in charge of the "Expo's" sports program.

A copy of the "Expo Journal" which the morning mail brought says the colonel is organizer of sports and spectacles and the 55-year-old Montrealer thinks "we are going to be terrific."

He says he has a lot of good people working on the program and "it's hard to see how we can miss."

The attractions Col. "McClelland envisions is a sports kaleidoscope, blending a wide variation of the amateur with the professional.

A 25,000-seat stadium on the southern lip of Montreal Island, a balcony-trimmed 2,500-seat in Expo's main amusement area and a 1,000-meter pond on Expo's island are proposed as the venue.

Among the leading features the colonel says he is shooting for is an international track and field meet immediately following the 1967 Pan-American Games in Winnipeg.

"It would run for three or four days and bring together the top athletes from Winnipeg along with some of the finest from overseas countries as well," he says.

The multi-purpose stadium would also accommodate such attractions as an international soccer tournament for teen-agers and, as proposed by Canadian soccer officials, a round robin event tossing together professional teams from countries that unfurl exhibits in Expo 67.

Indoors, at the hall, world titles would be decided in a sweeping range of athletics: wrestling, fencing, table tennis, judo, karate and badminton among them.

On the pond the Canadian Canoe Association wants to put on the national and North American championships and the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association meanwhile plans an international meet utilizing various pools in the Montreal area.

Col. McClelland says "we would like to get into archery, skeet and trap-shooting gymnastics and perhaps field hockey and water polo. Moreover, we could have a world amateur water ski championship on the heels of the world meet they are laying for 1967 in Sherbrooke, 100 miles east of Montreal."

He says Expo would also probably be associated in some way with other world events proposed for the area then years hence, such as sailing on nearby Lake St. Louis and hydroplane racing at Valleyfield 35 miles west of Montreal.

A number of major spectacles—not associated with Expo—are to be held in the Montreal district in 1967, adding to the sports stew.

For example, a Montreal area course is to host the Canadian Open Golf Championship, featuring a glittering field of big-game golfers vying for at least $50,000 in prize money.

And although Col. McClelland does not mention it, there is the possibility—albeit a dim one—of a Canadian heavyweight fighting for the world's top boxing title. It has been suggested that in the event the Canadian heavy champion, George Chuvalo batters his way to the chair for the world's bauble and its accompanying sacks of gold, the bout could be held at Expo 67.

But don't hold your breath.

Senators Get Howard ★★★ Player Trades Boost Phillies' Stock ★★★ Osteen, Belinsky Move

HOUSTON (AP)—A flurry of player trades on the closing day of the baseball winter meetings makes Philadelphia Phillies the winter book favorites to win the National League pennant in 1965.

It also provides Washington Senators with an opportunity to rise above ninth place for the first time in five years.

Baseball people were really shook up Friday by two major deals involving Frank Howard, Bo Belinsky and Claude Osteen.

In the biggest transaction of the six-day meetings, the Senators swapped Osteen, their left-handed ace, third - baseman John Kennedy and an estimated $100,000 to Los Angeles Dodgers for Howard, infielder-outfielder Ken McMullen and pitchers Pete Richert and Phil Ortega. The deal was made after the Phillies acquired Belinsky from Los Angeles Angels for young hopefuls Costen Shockley, a first baseman, and Rudy May, a left-handed pitcher.

Of the 10 deals consummated since Sunday, the Phillies were involved in four. They acquired first baseman Dick Stuart from Boston Red Sox for southpaw Dennis Bennett, right - handed pitcher Ray Herbert and first baseman Jeoff Long from Chicago White Sox for outfielder Danny Cater and shortstop Lee Ella, and sold first baseman Vic Power back to the Angels.

"We accomplished what we were after," said Philly manager Gene Mauch. "We needed to shore up our pitching and right-handed power hitting. I know we are stronger now than we were at any time last season."

The six - player transaction

FRANK HOWARD

with the Dodgers was the Senators' second major trade. In the first they got first-baseman Bob Chance and infielder-outfielder Woodie Held for outfielder Chuck Hinton.

"I believe we now have as much power as any club in the American League," said manager Gil Hodges of the Senators.

The Dodgers, too, figure they helped themselves greatly.

"We came here looking for more power and wound up with more defense and pitching, said general manager Buzzie Bavasi. "But it served the same purpose. A strong defense can be your best offence.

"Where will you find a starting staff better than Sandy Koufax, Don Drysdale, Johnny Podres and Osteen?"

The biggest man in the trades, as well as in baseball, is Howard. The 6-foot-7, 290-pound outfielder batted only .225 last season but he smashed 34 home runs and drove in 96 runs. A $106,000 bonus "baby", he was National League Rookie of the Year in 1960 and enjoyed his best season two years later when he batted .296, hit 31 home runs and knocked in 119 runs.

Belinsky not only carries a be pitching record to Philadelphia but a reputation as a playboy. The Angels suspended him after he had an altercation with a Los Angeles sports writer in a Washington hotel Aug. 14. They later reinstated him and optioned him to Hawaii. He wouldn't go, so they put him on the disqualified list and cut off his salary.

March said he wasn't worried about Belinsky's reputation.

Gordie Howe's Hockey

By GORDIE HOWE

Andy Bathgate and Bobby Hull are among the top marksmen in the National Hockey League these days who are using hockey sticks which have a hooked blade.

I tried the hooked blade a little bit myself. It was a little frustrating because when I tried a backhand shot with it I'd miss the net by six feet because of the arc in the blade.

However, Bathgate claimed that one of the goals he made in the Stanley Cup playoffs against us last year took a sudden drop near the net, causing Terry Sawchuk to miss it. He said it was because of the spinning action he got with the arched blade.

In my book, it is not a question whether the arched blade caused it to drop. I've seen a puck do that fairly often.

Particularly, during shooting practice, you'll shoot one that will curve or drop like crazy.

I think it is a result of wrist action. Probably Andy caught the puck far out on the toe of the blade. Bathgate was hopping a little so he caught the top half of it. Or even if he caught the blade three-quarters of it, he gave it good forward momentum. But the tendency is to throw it down.

It is like a golfer cutting across the ball, instead of meeting it squarely. In golf, it causes a slice. In hockey they definitely drop or curve. I've seen the odd shot on occasion when the goaltender makes a move to catch it with his glove and it hits his pad, instead.

I've been using a modified blade for years. It's definitely a right hand stick. It's not a neutral. I think I have a little more puck control as far as keeping it down.

Bobby Hull has a terrible looking hook on his blade. I've got one of his sticks hanging on the wall in my recreation room. I traded sticks with Bobby after we put Chicago out in the semi-finals last year. I'm sorry I didn't start using sticks a long time ago. Gosh, I could have had Syl Apps' and Rocket Richard's — everybody's.

Rollins Peewees Whip Wellington In OMHA Play

Belleville Rollins scored a top-sized 11-1 OMHA peewee victory over Wellington on the losers' home ice last night.

Rollins led all the way, 4-1 after the first period and 7-1 going into the final chapter.

Wellington's lone goal was scored by Paul Lavender, with assists going to Holmes and Cregg.

B. Buchanan spearheaded the Belleville attack by scoring in every period. He had a pair in the third to complete a four-goal effort, plus one assist.

B. Cousins scored a pair of goals and added one assist and A. Neil also potted two markers. C. Jamieson had a goal and two helpers, R. Meagher and T. Meagher one of each. J. Mulvihill helped the cause with two assists and D. Cone got one.

Next OMHA games involving Belleville teams have the bantams and midget Oddfellows at Wellington on Monday while the A.C.T. Juveniles go to Picton the same night.

Trotters Collect 3-2 Win

TRENTON (Special)— RCAF Globetrotters evened the score with York Steel by snatching a 3-2 exhibition victory over the Toronto team here last night. Despite the bad weather, a fair crowd turned out and enjoyed a fast, hard-hitting game. The win for Trenton evened the re cord between the two clubs at one victory each.

A third game will be played here on Friday, December 18.

York Steel played without the services of four regulars last night including the first-string goalie. One of the team cars failed to make it from Toronto. The visitors opened the game scoring but it was a 1-1 tilt after twenty minutes of play and Trenton led 3-1 going into the final heat.

Gord Comport tallied for York Steel on a solo effort at 6.25 of the first period. Larry Riley bagged the equalizer for the Trentons less than two minutes later. Stu Muirhead and Keegan drew assists on the goal.

Trenton struck early in the second, tallying their 3-1 lead in the first three minutes. John "Shaker" Baker combined with Muirhead to send Lindsay in the net at 2.15.

Flori Gogaan scored an unassisted counter at 3.01 to complete the winners' scoring.

In the third, Ted Dubrol rapped home Kendall's pass at 4.27 for the tight 3-2 score but that's the way it stayed.

Referee Ralph Plane and Doug Williams, of Toronto, drew majors for a second fight with the loser's bench collecting a misconduct at the same time. In the third, Rosowan pitted up a butt-ending major and a misconduct in the rough going. The Toronto player made motions at the officials to earn the extra ten minutes.

Palmer Sets Pace

South Africa, U. S. Share Lead

KAANAPALI, Hawaii (AP)—The United States and South Africa remained in a deadlock going into today's third round of the Canada Cup golf matches, with their team leaders, Arnold Palmer and Gary Player, one-two in the struggle for individual honors.

Referring to Palmer's pro-amateur score of 65 Wednesday, his partner Jack Nicklaus, cracked:

"Sixty-five, 66 and 67, that's pretty good, but Arnie, you're going the wrong way."

"I'll start back the other way," Palmer promised.

Trailing the U.S. and South Africa in third place for the Canada Cup was Australia with 279, and tied at 287 were Hawaii and Spain.

A pair of 74s Friday by Al Balding of Markham, Ont., and George Knudson of Toronto left Canada in 10th place at 292. Balding, who had a par 72 in the first round, was tied for 21st place in the individual list at 146 while Knudson, two strokes back, was tied for 28th.

Trailing Palmer and Player in individual play were Harwall's Ted Makalena, 137; Denis Hutchinson of South Africa and Leopoldo Ruiz, Argentina, 139; Argentina's Roberto de Vicenzo, 140, and Nicklaus and Flory van Donck, Belgium, 141.

Scores All Goals
Lang Sparks Bees To 4-3 Win

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

With one player scoring all their goals and some 600 or more spectators voicing their approval, Belleville "B's" trapped Gananoque Islanders 4-3 to keep their home-ice victory streak intact here last night.

The win was Belleville's fourth in as many home starts in the OHA Eastern Junior puck loop — but it did not come easily.

Belleville led 2-0 after one heat, blew that early in the second and later held a one-goal lead to see it tied 3-3 going into the final frame.

The "B's" needed Bill Lang's fourth goal of the night, mid-way through the period, plus some fine goaltending by Bob Moon to snatch the decision.

The large turnout of youngsters was with parents in tow despite the bad weather, for the special "children's night" billing given the game.

A live, saddled pony was the big prize of the evening and was won by Jeff Meadow, of 303 Ann Street. The lucky lad, apparently with his parents' approval, took the splendid animal home. Two other winners, Beryl Young of 9 Bettes Street and Jim Wood of 100 Lemoine Street, took home new bikes. Other youngsters won hockey sticks.

Gananoque fought hard after falling behind early and out-shot the winners 37-34 but found Moon in a stingy mood. He kicked out tough shots all night and robbed Higgins and Willson in the dying minutes as the equalizer pressed for the equalizer. They shoved six attackers into battle for three Belleville ice but to no avail.

Lang, enjoying his best night in a junior uniform, opened the scoring at 4:14 of the game. Carl Boomhower got the puck and passed out front. Lang rapped it home as he fell to the ice. Gananoque got the goal in the penalty box at the time.

Lang combined with Grant Hagerman and Bob Chance to beat Brian Jamieson on a screened play late in the period.

The Islanders tied it by 5:01 of the second as they checked hard and pressed consistently in the period's early minutes. Doug Higgins got both goals, the first on a high slapshot at 1:31, with Murray Rountree assisting.

He fought his way through several Belleville players on sheer determination, unassisted, for the tying goal.

Lang regained the "B's" lead after watching Larry Sowden's close-in pass at 8:10. Less than three minutes later, with Belleville short a man, Dwight Hall finished off a three-way passing play with Peter Small and Andy Watson to make it 3-2.

Both goalies came up with big saves from then out but at 10:19 of the third Lang led a three-man wave of Belleville attackers on the Gan net and sunk the winner. Jim Rutherford and Boomhower got the helpers. Higgins was off for the loser's at the time. Moon was back in from there with his key saves.

There were 13 minor penalties called in a well-officiated game. Belleville drew seven of that total.

Sport Shorts

A Toronto-originated story says that both the Maple Leafs and the Boston Bruins put in claims for Dennis Hull after Chicago Black Hawks sent him to their CPL St. Louis club earlier this week. Hawks promptly withdrew waivers on the rookie left-winger rather than lose him to an opposing NHL club.

The beautiful pony, won by a Belleville youngster at last night's junior hockey game here, proved a popular drawing room mascot to the "B's" prior to the game. And the way forward Bill Lang galloped to a four-goal performance, there was more than the pony feeling like a colt before the night was over.

Playing dates for Bay of Quinte Basketball League games have been conspicuous by their absence to date around. The league has not released a schedule here and Belleville Lightning, in their scheduled dates one or two at a time. Their game against Picton was cancelled here this week and no reason was given.

CZECH TEAM TO VISIT

Hobbling Wings Get Little Sympathy

Meet Leafs, Habs

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Detroit Red Wings are on the limp again. But they spent most of last season juggling an injury - punctured lineup and wound up hobbling into the Stanley Cup finals. They're not as crippled this year but they'll not get much sympathy from their National Hockey League rivals.

First-place teams seldom do. "I think I'm the only healthy guy," coach Sid Abel said recently, "and I'm not going to make a comeback—I want to stay healthy."

While the Red Wings play their home games at the Olympia, they spend much of their time at Detroit's Osteopathic Hospital. After a recent road trip, half the team headed there for treatment and x-rays.

"Three regulars are currently out of action while several others are toiling at less than full efficiency. Defencemen Marcel Pronovost, centre Eddie Joyal and left winger Bruce Murphy will miss both Detroit games this weekend.

But Detroit's opponents aren't in the market for hard luck stories. Their now-sympathizers this weekend, Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens, are more interested in overtaking the front-running Wings. And the easier, the better.

Pronovost has a broken bone in his left foot, an injury suffered when he slopped Reggie Fleming's shot in Detroit's 4-2 victory over Boston Thursday night. Both Murphy and Joyal are nursing shoulder injuries.

Abel said rookie centre Butch Paul, who made his NHL debut Thursday, will play against the Leafs in Toronto tonight and against the Canadiens at Detroit Sunday night.

While Detroit visits Toronto, the Canadiens take on Chicago Black Hawks at Montreal and New York Rangers play at Boston. Sunday's only games send Montreal to Detroit and New York to Chicago.

Montreal and Toronto, tied for second place at 2 points, trail first-place Detroit by three points. The Canadiens have two games in hand over Toronto and one over Detroit.

Cornwall Moves In On Hawks

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cornwall Royals moved to within four points of the league-leading Hull Hawks in Central Junior A Hockey League action Friday night.

The Royals built their point total to 21 with an 8-4 victory over Arnprior Kenwoods at Arnprior.

Smiths Falls Bears moved into a third-place tie with Buckingham Beavers by trouncing the Hawkesbury Lions 8-1 at Smiths Falls.

Ottawa Primroses and the Pembroke Little Lumber Kings moved into a fourth-place tie by following a 5-3 tie at Ottawa.

Ottawa scorers were Billy Dutcher with two, Paddy Driscoll, Ed Hebert and Bob Cameron. Terry Wendt, Tom Mohns, Bob Wardlaw, Larry Mick and Roy Lewis scored for Pembroke.

Ottawa Capitals moved out of the cellar into sixth place behind Brockville Braves with a 4-3 win over the Braves at Ottawa.

Frank Johnston scored twice for the Capitals, with Wayne Nedeglia and Carl Blage scoring the others. Brockville scorers were Dave Laforty and Frank Pryer.

In their scramble to stay one jump ahead of Peterborough Petes in the Jutario Hockey Association Jember A race, Nepean Flyers ended Toronto Marlboros' 10-game unbeaten streak by dumping the first-place club 3-1 Friday night.

The win gives the Flyers 27 points, a comfortable three ahead of Mis Peterborough anchor behind Toronto.

In other action, Kitchener Rangers had to fight back for a 6-6 tie with Montreal Junior Canadiens after blowing a 4-0 first-period lead. The tie moved Rangers into sole possession of fifth place while Montreal moved into a tie for sixth with Hamilton Red Wings.

Brian Bradley fired two goals for Niagara Falls while John Arbour provided the winning marker, his first of the sea.on. Mike Byers dumped the host Toronto goal behind Flyer netminder Bernie Parent.

SCORE THREE

Bill Hay paced Rangers with three goals. Tom Miller, Jack Norris and Bob Jones scored one apiece with Jones' marker tying the score 6-6 three minutes before the final whistle.

Montreal goals went to Lucien Grenier, Don Lemaser, Bob Lemieux, Serge Savard, Guy Dufour and Rene Drolet.

Oshawa Generals and Niagara Falls Flyers travel to Boston Gardens this afternoon for a televised game. The game was rescheduled there when Oshawa's new arena was not finished in time. Both teams are Boston Bruin farm clubs.

Describes Shooting

Williams Says "I Can Still Win Title"

HOUSTON (AP) — Cleveland Williams, recovering from a bullet wound in the stomach, said Friday he still can win the heavyweight boxing championship of the world.

Williams was shot last Saturday in a scuffle with a highway patrolman. Charges of driving while intoxicated and aggravated assault on a police officer were filed against him.

In a copyrighted interview with Dick Peddie, sports editor of the Houston Chronicle, Williams described the incident.

"He pulled his gun from his left side and when I saw it, I thought he was going to shoot me and I reached for it," Williams said. "I grabbed his arm and we rolled out the door and onto the gravel beside the road. I don't remember hitting that officer and I don't believe I did. He was a little man and if I had bit him I would have knocked him out.

"Then the gun went off and I went numb all over. That's all I remember."

Williams was in surgery 3½ hours Sunday and part of his intestines were removed.

"I still think I can win the title though," he said.

Willow Brook Happy turned the 1:5-6 miles in a speedy 2:59 3-5 on a track rated good but made treacherous by swirling snow. Mutuel prices were $7.30, 3.20 and $2.10.

Barons End Loss String

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rookies supplied the thrills in the American Hockey League Friday night as Pete Stemkowski continued his blistering scoring pace for Rochester Americans and Gordon Wilkie sparked Cleveland Barons to their first win in eight starts. Stemkowski's hat trick goal in four games gave Rochester a 6-3 sudden-death overtime win over Providence Reds. Wilkie's two-goal effort provided the margin in Cleveland's 5-3 victory over Pittsburgh Hornets.

Rochester moved eight points in front of second-place Buffalo Bisons in the western division while Cleveland remained at the bottom in the west with only four wins this season.

Baltimore Clippers downed Springfield Indians 7-4 in the other Friday game.

HORVATH SCORES

Stan Smrke, Franco Horvath and Wally Boyer scored the other Rochester goals. Scoring for Providence were Len Ron-son with two and Jeannot Gilbert.

Doug Senior, Fred Glover and Wayne Fleitage added to the Cleveland total while Irv Spencer, Claude Laforge and Murray Hall hit for Pittsburgh.

Right - winger Sandy McGregor spearheaded the Baltimore attack with three goals while Dick McIlmoyl, Dave Creighton, Bryan Hextall and Ted Taylor had one apiece.

Defencemen Dave Amadio netted a pair for Springfield and Mike Labadie and Gerry Foley tallied the others.

Totems Fatten Lead

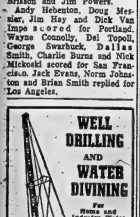
By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When Keith Allen, coach of Seattle Totems, talks of Gordy Sinclair, he tends to wax lyrical.

"If he'd been bigger he would have been a cinch to go up to the National Hockey League," he says. "He's gutty, he's smooth and he's the best defenceman we've ever had."

All of which made Friday nights 6-4 Western Hockey League victory over Portland at Seattle—the 700th game of the Vancouver-born player's WHL career—a pretty satisfactory affair.

Sinclair scored the opening and closing goals as Seattle climbed higher on top of the standings.



In the other game of the night San Francisco Seals moved into a fifth-place tie with Victoria Maple Leafs by defeating Los Angeles Blades 6-3.

BOOSTS TOTAL

Victory boosted Seattle's point total to 58, with Portland and Vancouver Canucks tied for second seven points off the pace. Victoria and San Francisco have 14 points, seven points behind Los Angeles.

The only other two-goal effort of the night came from Seattle captain Bill MacFarland. Other Seattle goals came from Gerry Brisson and Jim Powers.

Andy Hebenton, Doug Messier, Jim Hay and Dick Van Impe scored for Portland. Wayne Connolly, Del Topoll, George Swarbuck, Dallas Smith, Charlie Burns and Nick Mickoski scored for San Francisco. Jack Evans, Norm Johnston and Brian Smith replied for Los Angeles.

Forward Is Brother's Keeper

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Barry Zimmerman became his brother's keeper Friday night. Goalkeeper, that is.

Normally, Lynn Zimmerman wears the outsize pads and carries the big stick for Welland's Blackhawks, but tried occupants of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A cellar, Barry operates as a forward.

But things weren't exactly normal at the 14-minute mark in the third period of Welland's meeting with Oakville Oaks Friday. For one thing, the Blacks had a 6-1 lead. For another, they had run out of goalkeepers.

Lynn had departed by official request after collecting a major penalty for leaving his crease and another major and misconduct for fighting with Oakville's Carl Hymers. Barry was elected to see what he could do about protecting Welland's lead.

He kicked out everything the Oaks threw at him in the last six minutes and the Blacks preserved their 6-1 margin to move within four points of the fourth-place Oaks.

Meanwhile, Guelph Regals broke their first-place tie with the idle Galt Hornets by scoring a 3-1 comeback victory over Woodstock Athletics in the home rink of the defending league champions.

OPEN UP LEAD

Guelph scored all their goals in the second period, after the Athletics had opened up a 1-0 first-period lead on a goal by captain Gerry Stringle. Don MacGregor, Bob Pole and Joe Malo with his 15th of the season got the Guelph goals.

The Regals had to play two men short for a minute and eight seconds in the third period to preserve the victory when they picked up two quick penalties.

At Welland, Vance Millar, Bob Judge, Terry McGuire, Murray Davidson, George Sanham and Mike Lathovich scored for the Blacks while Moe Galand averted the shutout for Oakville.

Minor Hockey

Following are results of games played in the Belleville Minor Hockey Association's novice and tyke divisions last night.

NOVICE

Leafs and Wings battled to a 1-1 deadlock. Dave Sullivan scored for the Wings, Thomas Rogers was the Leaf marksman.

Rangers whitewashed the Canadiens 5-0, paced by Andy Ricketts. He scored his clubs' final three goals. Robert Graham and Mike Burley triggered the earlier goals.

TYKE

Canadiens scored a 4-1 decision over the Rangers. Bruce Sutherland collected two goals with one each for Tim Barbour and Mike MacDonald. Larry Waits had the lone Ranger goal.

Bruins copped a 1-0 clinkabange against the Hawks. Don Ashley scored the game's only goal.

Wings defeated the Leafs 5-1. Claude Landry potted two Wing markers with one apiece by Howie Meens, John Rose and Michael Hebden. Peter Crawford was the Leaf marksman.

Coliseum On Or Off ?

'No Restrictions,' Smythe Insists

VANCOUVER (CP)—Stafford Smythe, president of Toronto Maple Leafs, was quoted Friday as saying that his proposal to build an $8,000,000 sports coliseum is withdrawn if city council insists on restrictions.

"The deal is off" if council insists he cannot build a hotel or other facilities within seating regulations, Smythe was quoted by radio station CKNW New Westminste as saying in a telephone interview from Delray Beach, Fla.

"We wouldn't even bother negotiating on those terms."

A few hours later, however, Mayor Bill Rathie issued a statement saying he had also talked with Smythe by telephone Friday and that "Smythe had said the coliseum deal stands."

Smythe offered earlier this year to build the coliseum if the city would make a gift of a $2,000,000 piece of downtown property. The city agreed and the deal was to be voted on by city ratepayers during civic elections Dec. 9.

However, earlier this week, council passed a resolution amending the coliseum bylaw to prohibit construction of anything on the property but a coliseum and "related facilities."

Owners' Joint Meeting

Commissioner Regains Power

HOUSTON (AP)—The major league club owners, at their joint meeting Friday, formally amended the major league agreement to restore to the baseball commissioner the full authority which that office had enjoyed prior to 1945. The commissioner's new powers will go into effect immediately.

By a vote of 18 to 2, the club owners agreed to the following:

1. Restore the paragraph in the major league agreement which states the major league clubs waive the right of recourse to the courts.

2. Eliminate the clause which states that no act or procedure taken in good faith by the leagues can be construed as detrimental to baseball.

These two changes, in effect, give the commissioner the power to veto action taken by the owners if he feels such action is not in the game's best interest.

VOTE FOR DRAFT

The owners also voted to adopt the football-type free agent draft in conjunction with an unrestricted draft of minor league players.

Only two drafts will be held next year, in June and December. Thereafter, there will be three drafts, the other in January.

The added powers give the commissioner the same authority enjoyed by baseball's first czar, Kenesaw Mountain Landis. These powers had been taken away from Landis' successors, A. B. (Happy) Chandler and Frick.

The phrase "detrimental to baseball", in the major league agreement was deleted and replaced by another which will read "not in the best interest of baseball."

"The new term . . . gives the commissioner more leeway to step in," Frick said.

Bad Night For Goalies

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was a great night for everybody except goalkeepers.

The harried helminders in the Senior Intercollegiate Hockey League watched 39 pucks slip past them in three games Friday night as every one of the six teams involved was in the thick of things almost up to the final whistle.

The league-leading University of Toronto Blues never led Until varsity of Montreal Carabins until the 12-minute mark of the third period before pulling out an 8-7 victory. Their chief in at many starts, wil. It of the goals coming in the second frame.

McGill Redmen needed a four-goal performance by Rick Moore to stave off a spirited rally by Waterloo Golden Hawks for a 7-6 victory and University of Western Ontario cut an early deficit to a single goal before Laval Rouge et Or put the Mustangs away with two late goals to defeat them 7-4.

LEAD McMASTER

The results left Toronto three points ahead of Idle McMaster University with Montreal, Laval, Western and McGill jammed in a four-way tie a single point behind the Marlins with 1-1 records.

Queen's, Waterloo and Guelph, still winless, are at the bottom of the nine-team league with the Tricolor holding seventh place by virtue of a tie.

"Easy Credit" In Canada Will Continue

OTTAWA (CP)— All visible signs here point to continued "easy credit" in Canada.

Official language for it in Ottawa is a "monetary policy appropriate to the times."

Translated, that means the government and the Bank of Canada, though watchful, see no reason to upset the recent broad trend in cost and availability of credit unless they detect some storm signals.

Among the signals would be a strong upward pressure on consumer prices, full capacity in the economy or major sections of it and insufficient imports of foreign capital needed to balance Canada's deficit on world trade in goods and services.

But the signal-watchers here are quiet.

Only recent departure was last week's economic report by the agriculture department saying, in part, that "some key industries are close to capacity levels of output." They were not named.

CHARGES UP

Meanwhile, since the bank rate was moved up a quarter-point Nov. 26 in response to larger British and American increases, there has been a slight increase in borrowing charges in the money market.

P. M. in Letter Sets Out Code of Ethics and Morality For All Cabinet Colleagues

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson has written a letter to his cabinet colleagues setting forth a code of ethics and morality that should be followed by them and their staffs in the performance of their public responsibilities.

The letter represents the prime minister's reaction to recent charges in the Commons of bribery and coercion in high places in connection with a Montreal extradition case.

A spokesman in Mr. Pearson's office said Friday that the letter was sent to all members of the cabinet Tuesday.

"The theme of the letter is ethics and morality in public life," he said.

Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) has charged — and the government has neither denied nor confirmed—that a ministerial aide tried to bribe a Montreal lawyer to drop opposition to bail for Lucien Rivard whom the United States wants extradited to the U.S. on a charge of heroin smuggling.

CHARGED BRIBE OFFER

Mr. Nielsen said that Raymond Spencer, executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay, offered a bribe of $50,000 to Pierre Lamontagne, counsel for the U.S. government in the extradition case. He said the offer was refused.

As a result of the charges Mr. Justice Frederic Dorion, chief justice of the eastern division of the Quebec Superior Court, was appointed to make an inquiry.

The spokesman said that the prime minister states in the letter that he is not prejudging the inquiry and that he still believes there should be a moratorium on comment on the case.

However, the letter states there could be no moratorium on whether there are attitudes of mind and standards of conduct within the public service that could affect the confidence of the people of Canada and a proper discharge of public affairs.

The spokesman said that the letter states "there is an obligation not simply to observe the law but to act in a manner so scrupulous that it will bear the closest scrutiny." It adds that the conduct of public business must be beyond question in terms of moral standards, objectivity and equality of treatment."

In the letter Mr. Pearson said that no member of the staff of any cabinet minister should seek to obtain treatment that would not be accorded to any other Canadian.

The spokesman said that the prime minister suggested to his colleagues that they discuss the theme of the letter with members of their staffs. He said these public officials must realize that they are subject to the same moral code recognized by cabinet ministers.

Five in Race For Mayor's Seat in Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—The capital's 160,000 eligible voters give their verdict Monday on one of the most bitter civic election campaigns ever carried on in Ottawa.

Centre of interest is the wild and woolly mayoralty fight in which the indomitable Charlotte Whitton, mayor for nine of the last 13 years, is being opposed by four men, one of them her brother-in-law.

Two of the four are rated a fair chance of succeeding. If they don't succeed, they merely to split the anti-Whitton vote.

They are Controller Don Reid, 38, a 10-year veteran of city council who runs a furniture business, and Frank Ryan, 62, owner of radio station CFRA and a newcomer to civic politics. Mr. Ryan is married to the mayor's younger sister.

Says Ontario Interested in Stalling Plan

By BOB EXELL

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government is more interested in stalling the implementation of the Canada Pension Plan than in opting out of the plan, it was suggested Friday.

This was the opinion of a person closely acquainted with some of the whole of the pension dialogue between the province and the federal government. He asked not to be identified.

The source said he doubts any real reconsideration is being given by the government to the operation of its own public pension scheme with benefits comparable to those of the Canada Pension Plan.

charges were "numerous, violent and venomous abuses" aimed at certain Quebec government political, legal and police figures "without any justification or excuse, and completely unprovoked." The conduct of Coffin's defence lawyers was also severely criticized.

SEES CONFIRMATION

New evidence that Coffin did not testify at his trial for fear of cross-examination, gave confirmatory testimony about a vehicle he claimed he saw at the scene of the crime and ordered the disappearance of a file he borrowed "tend to confirm and not contradict" his guilt, the judge said.

While the report concludes that author Hebert's book contained a few important facts, it says these were "drowned in a sea of falsehoods, inaccuracies, half-truths and slanders" without which the inquiry might never have been held.

He criticized the press for the publicity given charges in the book and suggested stiffer libel laws and self-policing by journalists to protect individual rights.

The 70 days of inquiry hearings were held in Quebec City, Montreal and Perce. The 214 witnesses gave testimony filling up 16,041 pages of text.

The judge said the prosecution and police generally did a conscientious job in the Coffin case, despite some mistakes.

The only fault he found with politicians was the use made of the case by Quebec's late premier Maurice Duplessis as an argument for provincial autonomy.

CONFERENCE 'POLITICAL'

Mr. Justice Brossard said a press conference held by Mr. Duplessis and Antoine Rivard, then solicitor-general, in 1955 while the case was still before the courts, had a "strongly political character." The conference dwelt on the federal cabinet's decision to turn the case over to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Words fail to express my revulsion," the judge said, at claims Mr. Duplessis and Mr. Rivard had bowed to United States pressure for a conviction in the slaying of the hunters.

Eugene Lindsay, 47, his son Richard, 17, and Frederic Clear, 19, all of Holidaysburg, Pa., the victims, were found badly mangled near their hunting camp.

The report asked the Quebec Bar Association to study the behavior of defence lawyers Raymond Maher, 44, and Francois Gravel, 39, during the case.

It said, however, that their actions in no way hindered Coffin's chance for acquittal and that their mistakes were those of overzealousness.

Mr. Justice Brossard said evidence before his inquiry led him to believe, despite Mr. Maher's denials, that the lawyer had taken a rifle from Coffin's camp Aug. 27, 1953, on Coffin's instructions.

WEAPON NOT FOUND

The weapon used to kill the hunters was never found. The report said Mr. Gravel must also have known of the "clandestine" disposal of Coffin's rifle and that it was his "moral duty" to withdraw from the case.

The report also criticized Mr. Gravel for taking a "last will and testament" to Coffin and for turning it over exclusively to the Toronto Star Feb. 10, 1966, just after the execution, and receiving $3,000 from the newspaper.

The judge said a 1958 Miami confession to the murders of the bear hunters by Francis Thompson was "a well-rehearsed smokescreen" and that Thompson had nothing to do with the killings.

The report said author Hebert was "irresponsible" in his extensive use of his confession in his book and said his charges that authorities used threats and brutality to get Coffin case "are also without foundation."

Mr. Justice Brossard proposed clarification in Criminal Code articles dealing with defamatory and seditious libel on the grounds that was needed to curb a growing tendency to commit abuses of freedom of information.

NOT ALLOWED TO DIE

The report said some reporters and their agencies never let the Coffin issue die after justice had taken its course and suggested abuses committed by a small, active minority of journalists would be largely responsible for any coming its power of dictatorship.

Mr. Justice Brossard, terming these reporters "a sort of intellectual Mafia," called for stiffer self-policing of Journalism to prevent them causing "irreparable harm" to individuals, groups or even nations. One should be said, would be the banding together of journalists under a Quebec Press Act to exercise self-control.

In another recommendation, he said publication of proceedings before a coroner's jury should be prohibited to make it easier to find impartial jurymen for subsequent trials. The Coffin case also showed there are dangers in executing coroner proceedings before untrained coroners.

TO HOLD MEETING

TORONTO (CP)—A federal-provincial meeting on farm labor problems will be held in Ottawa Dec. 18, Agriculture Minister William Stewart of Ontario announced Friday. Agriculture ministers and deputy ministers from the provinces will meet with federal labor department officials, Mr. Stewart said. The meeting sought by Ontario will discuss the shortage of qualified farm workers.

Only Karen Will Remain When Bristol Court Closes

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Late this month 90 Bristol Court will close its doors for the last time, ending NBCs experiment with a 90-minute, vaguely interconnected situation comedy.

One - third of the series will remain in the form of Karen. A major reason for its survival is Karen herself — vivacious, gold-haired Debbie Watson.

"Gee, its real sad to see the others go," she said. " I can't really say why we succeeded while the other two (Harris Against the World, Tom, Dick and Mary) are going off the air. The only thing I can guess is that maybe we have more of a teen-age appeal, and there are just lots and lots of teen-agers."

TEENAGERS INTRIGUED

The teen-agers as well as old fogies are intrigued with Karen, the ingenuous daughter of Richard Denning and Mary La Roche on the show. Even though Debbie appears set for at least a season and perhaps a lengthy career, she continues to live rather with her parents in La Mirada, 30 miles south of Universal City.

That means a one-hour drive through rush-hour traffic twice a day, but she doesn't mind. Not much does bother her—except being 15.

Curiously Karen is Debbie's first big job in show business.

Leading off the three-part series, Karen scored best in the ratings and was chosen as the survivor.

All Quebec Liquor Stores Shut

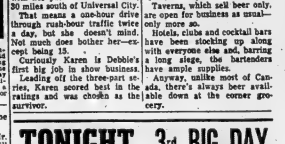
MONTREAL (CP) — Striking provincial government employees started plugging up Quebec liquor outlets today just in time to interfere with Christmas cheer.

The strike was called Friday night by a vote of employees of the Quebec Liquor Board who are seeking better pay and improved working conditions.

Their union leadership proclaimed an immediate start to the walkout, meaning that stores did not open today.

Some 3,000 liquor board employees are involved.

They are members of unions affiliated with the Quebec-based Confederation of National Trade Unions (CNTU) and are seeking their first agreement with the provincial monopoly agency.



Strike rumors have been current for some time, and the possibility of a walkout sent liquor stores scurrying well in advance of the holiday season.

Taverns, which sell beer only, are open for business as usual—only more so.

Hotels, clubs and cocktail bars have been stocking up along with everyone else and, barring a long siege, the bartenders have ample supplies.

Anyway, unlike most of Canada, there's always beer available down at the corner grocery.

Ex-Dictator May Abandon Bid to Return

MADRID (AP) — Juan D. Peron's return in defeat from a transatlantic mission stirred talk here Thursday night that the ex-dictator now will abandon the idea of ever going back to Argentina.

There was even speculation that Peron, 69 and not in the best of health, would be pleased to drop out of the arena and cancel the promise to his Argentine followers that "I will return."

The former Argentine strongman resumed his exile in Spain after returning on the same Iberia DC-8 jet airliner that carried him from Rio de Janeiro Wednesday for a campaign to re-establish himself in South America.

Acting on a request of Argentina's government, Brazil blocked his plans and shipped him back to Spain for violation of a standing Brazilian order declaring him unwelcome.

Peron's back-to-Argentina campaign violated conditions under which he was granted residence in Spain. A major condition was that he should not engage publicly in politics and his trip may have strained his welcome in Spain.

Have Some Retirement Woes? You've Got Plenty of Company

By THOMAS COLLINS

"I think I have cracked what is probably the greatest curse of retirement," says Walter J. Olmstead, a 68-year-old retired man.

The curse lies not in what a man isn't, or what he hasn't got, Mr. Olmstead believes, but in what he thinks. "And nearly everything he thinks is negative."

Mr. Olmstead says he used his religious training "and some persistent spying" to get his own thinking straight after he retired. He thinks he learned a formula that can help others.

"I had occasion to go back to my company several times after I retired," he explains. "I was at first surprised, and then humiliated, to discover how unwanted I was. This was an awful thing — I had spent 30 years of my life here. Nobody wanted to talk to me. Nobody gave me better than a superficial welcome. Some of the people actually resented seeing me.

"This can wound you for life. Make you think your career was a farce. Give you an inferiority complex you can't shake. . ."

Mr. Olmstead's faith in mankind led him to question what, during his rejection was as meaningful as it seemed, and some spying among other retired employees showed him it wasn't.

EQUAL TREATMENT

"Every company treats every retired employee just about the same," he says. "It doesn't love you or hate you. It has just placed you outside the world — in retirement — and you don't matter any more. That's all. And all retired men get equal treatment.

"The retired man who lets his old employer's attitude toward him darken his thinking about retirement is really confused.

Mr. Olmstead proceeded from a man's thinking about his company to his thinking about the unresponsive community he lives in. "Here again a retired man learns pretty soon he isn't wanted very much. From feeling unwanted he feels inadequate, and after that he can think dark thoughts for the rest of his life.

"But once more he's not a special case. Every other retired man in the community has about the same experience. We live in a work world. Work is the only true magic in other work people than in non-work people. More friends their own age. More profitable contacts. More fun. They, too, place retired people outside their world, and they don't treat any one retired man with any more disdain than they treat them all. . ."

Mr. Olmstead emphasizes the point he is trying to make is that retired men have a lot of company, no matter what their problems.

TRY ANOTHER JOB

"You try to get another job. Employers think you're too set in your ways. Not just you; all retired people.

"You move into a new town, try to get into the leadership of things, and get rebuffed because townspeople don't like a newcomers to be telling them how to do things. Not just you; all newcomers.

"You try to maintain your social and civic contacts and you find old friends passing you up for working people who can be more valuable to them. Not just you; all retired people. . ."

It is Mr. Olmstead's belief that a retired man would greatly help his attitudes toward life if he regarded retirement much as he would regard entry into a foreign country. "Almost all the rules you have lived by change" he says. "You become a totally different person on the landscape. With different weaknesses. Different values. But it's you and everybody else who has retired. Not just you.

"Obviously the answer is for retired people to get over the traditions retirement has given them, to break down the barriers their timidity has built, and get with each other to pattern new lives for themselves."

Gore

THE GORE — Some from here attended the funeral of Mrs. Pymer on Monday at the Bush Funeral Home. Mrs. Pymer, the former Ormints Fox, spent her girlhood at The Gore.

Mr. Burton Fox, Wellington, and sons Arnold of Peterborough and Winfield of Toronto were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. Fox.

Mrs. Winston Pulver was hostess for the Centre UCW's December meeting on Wednesday afternoon. Rev. and Mrs. Townsend of Belleville, were present and showed pictures of Mr. Townsend's visit to the Holy Land during the past summer. These were enjoyed by everyone present. Some Victoria UCW members were guests.

A shower was held recently for Victoria's Sunday school room for Mr. and Mrs. David Taft (nee Sharon Eves). A good crowd was present and the bride and bridegroom were the recipients of many useful gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Taft are residing in Deseronto.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Fox are spending a few days in Foxboro at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Burr.

Your Car

Add Life, Efficiency Via Tonic

By EUGENE B. MILNOE

Feeding your car an occasional tonic can keep it healthy and add years to engine life. A carburetor cleaner, for example, is always a valuable investment and couldn't be easier to use. Just pour it in your gas tank and it goes to work as you drive to clean away dirt, moisture and gummy deposits which can handicap the fuel system.

There are also gas tank additives which help the engine itself by reducing carbon formation and releasing sticky valves. At this time of year, when efficient automatic choke and manifold heat valve operation is vital to cold engine starting, be sure they are clean and lubricated to work freely.

Your service station or auto supply dealer can sell you a very convenient spray cleaner to do the job nicely. Upper cylinder lubricants, and other oil additives — cooling system cleaners — engine degreasers — water absorbents. . .are also products which can help your car retain its youth.

From J. B.: "What is wrong when the brake pedal gradually sinks when I have to hold it down at a stop light?

You missed a recent answer to the same problem. Either fluid is leaking out or air is leaking into the hydraulic system.

S. W. writes: "Someone told me there's a heat blower which can be plugged into the cigarette lighter connection of any car to de-ice the windshield immediately. What does it cost and where can I buy it?

There's a de-icer or de-froster unit such as this which sells for approximately $6. If your service station or auto supply store doesn't have it, they can get it for you.

T. G. asks: "No matter how cold it is, my engine starts up right away. But lately, it runs very rough for the first 10 or 15 minutes and sometimes stalls before it finally runs smoothly. What would be wrong here? This sounds very much like the troubles which are brought on by a sticking manifold heat warm-up.

From W. L.: "What's the best way to drive on an icy road — with chains or snow-tires?

The best way to drive is very slowly. Chains are better on ice and very slick surfaces. . .but whether you have chains or snow tires, you can skid and quick stopping is impossible.

NEGROES FIGHT ARABS IN KHARTOUM

Wilson, Johnson In Crucial Talks At Washington

Nuclear-Fleet Plan To Be Main Topic

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP)—President Johnson and Prime Minister Wilson of Britain today began discussions crucial to the future of the Atlantic Alliance.

But their talks are regarded as just the first in a series involving western leaders. To that extent, their importance and their conclusions will be limited.

Both leaders, moreover, have compelling domestic and international reasons for caution and flexibility.

The degree of harmony achieved in four working sessions today and Tuesday by the two leaders is vital to the next stage in the evolution of the Atlantic bloc wherein the winds of change are blowing strongly.

Wilson arrived in Washington Sunday night with an alternative to the long-standing plan of the U.S. and West Germany for a fleet of 25 surface ships to be equipped with Polaris nuclear missiles and manned by mixed NATO crews.

The concept was to provide West Germany with a nuclear role without nuclear arms of its own. President de Gaulle of France has turned solidly against it and Wilson's Labor Party has been distinctly cool.

VARIATION EXECTED

Wilson's alternative is expected to be a variation of the nuclear-fleet idea for NATO including British bombers, the three Polaris submarines Britain is building and a reduced surface fleet of 10 vessels.

There would be a NATO nuclear command in which all countries would have a voice in decisions if they contribute men and money.

Wilson will talk matters over with Prime Minister Pearson in Ottawa Wednesday after flying to the Canadian capital from New York, where he will visit United Nations headquarters.

What he can say will depend a lot on major forces playing on both himself and Johnson. Wilson has to practise diplomacy here and back home, where his Labor majority in Parliament includes 50 left-wing members vehemently opposed to the NATO nuclear fleet and much more eager to start working on reduction of East-West tensions.

Johnson faces growing signs of dissatisfaction with the nuclear fleet idea. On the basis of a recent foreign-policy speech here last Thursday, he is anxious to avoid any impression of dissension that might weaken NATO unity and give his international opponents a bad tarnish from the start.

Pope Faces Big Tasks At Home

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul VI, back from his momentous trip to India, returned today to a work schedule made heavier by the approach of Christmas.

With his gruelling four-day Indian voyage, the longest papal trip in history, now over, the Pontiff faced preparation of his Christmas speech, a major address to all the world.

At the same time rumors spread in Vatican circles that the Pope may now also start on another encyclical and prepare for a consistory to create more cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church.

The Pope has not called a consistory since his election in June, 1963. Membership of the College of Cardinals is currently down to 77. Under Paul's predecessor, Pope John XXIII, it rose to 87, the highest in history.

Pope Paul has written one encyclical so far, / Ecclesiam Suam (His church), issued last Aug. 15.

GETS FESTIVE WELCOME

Pope Paul came home from India to a tricontinent Roman welcome as festive and moving as his return last January from his pilgrimage to the Holy Land.

In India he mingled with impoverished masses, wept at the sight of their misery, sat down to eat with orphans and appealed to the governments of the world to turn some of their arms budget into an international aid fund.

He said he hopes the trip will have "historic spiritual consequences" and indicated that more papal travels lie ahead.

Among the Vatican specialties today was that, in addition to all his other work, the Pope may already be specifically considering where he will carry his peace pilgrimage next.

BOMBAY (AP) — Tens of thousands of Roman Catholics from around the world stood beside the Arabian Sea Sunday as it closed the 3-week church's 38th International Eucharistic Congress with hymns.

"Holy God, we praise Thy name," the vast gathering sang not over the still dark waters, flecked with blinking ship lights.

President Of Italy Resigns

ROME (AP)—President Antonio Segni resigned for reasons of health Sunday night and Italy's political parties are searching for a fifth president for the Italian republic.

The Senate and Chamber of Deputies will meet in joint session Dec. 16 to elect a new chief of state. It could mean a new crisis for Premier Aldo Moro's centre-left coalition.

Segni, 73, like Moro a Christian Democrat, said that, because of the effects of the cerebral stroke he suffered Aug. 7, he could not fulfill his presidential duties. The stroke had left his right side paralyzed and with impeded speech.

Segni was the first Italian president to resign and the first not to complete the normal seven-year term. He relinquished his mandate 27 months after he was elected chief of state.

A medical report said Segni could expect further improvement from his illness with continued therapy and a long period of convalescence.

Segni automatically becomes a lifetime senator but, in effect, his resignation brings to a close his active political career. He had served in more than a dozen post-war cabinets, twice as premier, before his election as chief of state in May, 1962.

SEEK SUPPORT

All the parties are preparing feverishly to line up support for their candidates in the presidential election.

The contest threatened to widen dangerous cracks in Moro's coalition, with Christian Democrats are so badly divided on a successor there is speculation they may go into the vote with Moro unable to impose party discipline.

A number opposed to Moro were favoring former premier Amintore Fanfani. He pioneered the left-centre concept of working with Socialists but is against Moro.

Others in the party were speaking up for Interior Minister Paolo Emilio Taviani and still others for former premier Giovanni Leone, for many years secretary of the Christian Democrats.

The other coalition partners, the Socialists, Democratic Socialists and Republicans, were reported convinced there must be a Christian Democrat president. They want Foreign Minister Giuseppe Saragat, leader of the Democratic Socialists. If elected, he would be Italy's first socialist president.

The outcome holds important implications for this NATO nation. Moro's presidency is largely a ceremonial office but, in times of government crisis, it is the president who designates premiers.

Little Danger Most Separatists Will Advocate Quebec Violence

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—The flag issue appears ready to come to a final vote in the Commons this week.

A Conservative party source said the string of Conservative MPs speaking in favor of a national plebiscite on the choice of a flag for Canada may run out late today or Tuesday.

After a few more speeches in support of the Red Ensign, Parliament Hill observers expect the debate to end with broad majority support for the red and white maple leaf flag suggested by a Commons committee.

A concurrent resolution then will be introduced in the Senate. But the Senate currently stands adjourned until next Monday, Dec. 14, for lack of other business.

Flag Debate Near End

TORONTO (CP) — Rene Levesque, Quebec resources minister, said Sunday night that in the democratic atmosphere that prevails today there is little danger of moderate separatists resorting to violence.

However, Mr. Levesque told interviewers on the CBC television news commentary program This Hour Has Seven Days, violence could become justified if the separatists' right to express themselves was denied.

He said the separatist who tries to prove his ideas are correct for French Canada should have the right to do so.

The minister said he has not become a separatist because he does not feel at present that it is the right solution. However, he said he could be convinced under different circumstances.

He condemned the actions of some English - Canadian commentators who try to link the extremists and the moderate separatists into one body.

Voicing concern about the possibility of an English-Canadian "backlash" to the separatist movement in Quebec, Mr. Levesque said the work of the commentators has made it more difficult for the English-Canadian mind to separate the extremists from the moderate in the movement.

Ask Arms Summit Parley

The Soviet proposal was made before the United Nations general assembly in the first major policy declaration of the new Soviet leadership.

Gromyko also submitted a detailed memorandum on disarmament, outlining measures to be considered at the proposed conference.

The Soviet foreign minister declared that the present international situation was ripe for progress on such measures as a complete ban on nuclear weapons, the liquidation of foreign bases and the reduction of military budgets.

Posh Wedding Reception Proves to Be Just Rehearsal

LONDON (AP) — Horace Davison and Jean Dixon dropped in on the local vicar in Nedworth, County Durham, again today in a new effort to get married.

Their first one didn't work but they had a whale of a wedding reception for 80 guests.

Davison, 32, and Miss Dixon, 28, showed up Saturday at St. Nicholas Church, he in his best bib and tucker, she in a lacy bridal gown.

Vicar James Beattie said he was sorry but he had forgotten to put the thing down in his book and the banns had not been announced, so no wedding.

Halfway between embarrassment and anger, the bridal couple trooped out followed by their guests. They all repaired to Jean's home.

Said her father: "There should have been a wedding, everybody is dressed up for it and what's more important the wine is chilled.

So the party went on.

The vicar meantime got busy on the banns and a special licence. At today's parley it was arranged to conduct the ceremony next Saturday.

The reception was just a rehearsal, the couple said.

Racial Warfare Is Continuing In Sudan Capital

China Embassy Stoned; Whites Beaten in Error

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

KHARTOUM (AP) — Arabs and Negroes battled through the night in Khartoum, the capital of the Sudan, and fighting continued today. An estimated 16 persons were reported killed, and scores were injured.

(Reuters news agency said at least 250 persons were injured, some of them women and children.)

The racial warfare broke out when thousands of Negroes from South Sudan massed at the Khartoum Airport to protest domination by the east African nation's Arab majority. Then they invaded the city, smashing windows and attacking Europeans and Americans as well as Arabs.

Apparently the Europeans and Americans were mistaken in the dark for Arabs. "This is not against you," a leader of the mob told an English family and two Americans at the airport.

HIT CHINESE EMBASSY

The rioters smashed windows at Communist China's Embassy.

Iron shutters were lowered over the windows of the U.S. Embassy, and a marine guard was on the alert. A mob stormed the American Embassy Oct. 24 during riots which culminated in the overthrow of President Ibrahimin Abboud's military government.

Stael - helmeted police and troops with bayonets dispersed the Negro mob. An hour later thousands of Arabs armed with sticks invaded the Negro quarter adjoining the airport. Bloody clashes were reported through the night.

The group of Negroes took refuge in the Roman Catholic Church publications office, then began throwing rocks at Arabs outside. The Arabs burned the office.

The rioting resumed this morning in the heart of Khartoum's shopping section and spread into El Kasr Street outside the British Embassy and a block away from the U.S. Embassy.

A Sudanese policeman on guard outside the British Embassy fired five pistol shots into a crowd of rock-hurling Negroes attacking Coptic church construction site. Apparently all the shots missed.

FLEE TO BRITISH

Hundreds of Negroes fled refuge in the British Embassy building.

Within minutes the broad street, which leads to the white-walled presidential palace was covered with glass and bricks.

Roofs were jammed with onlookers, and the sounds of pistol shots came from a nearby area of Arab shops and cafes involved in the rioting Sunday night.

U.K. Ready To Abolish Hangings

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP) — Britain, home of some of the most bizarre murders, is apparently ready to abolish hanging.

The main argument this time, though, seems centred around the meaning of "life," or just how long a so-called life sentence should run.

A private member's bill to end hanging, published Saturday with all-party support in the House of Commons, does not tackle this issue in a specific way but merely states that all murderers should get life imprisonment.

Although the anti - hanging measure is virtually certain of approval, controversy swirls around the present system of deeming "life" to be a matter of 15 years, with killers often obtaining freedom in nine or 10 years.

Anti-abolitionists have also noted that Canada is among the countries still retaining the death penalty for capital murder but newspapers have also reported that the Canadian House of Commons, like the British is planning a "free" vote on the issue.

The political correspondent for the Sunday Times predicts a strenuous Commons campaign to strengthen the British bill in the definition of life imprisonment to replace hanging.

LIFE WILL BE LIFE

The Sunday Express, in an anti-abolition article, says Sydney Silverman, the Labor member who introduced the bill, and other backers will give every assurance that life imprisonment will, in fact, be a lifetime thing.

"But, however sincere at the time, how much will such assurances be worth once abolition becomes law?" the newspaper asks.

There is considerable argument about how much of a deterrent the death penalty really is. One commentator makes the point that its certainty is a deterrent for the man who is hanged—he cannot commit new murders.

The case is recalled of Christopher Simcox, whose death sentence for killing his wife was commuted to life in 1948. He was released 10 years later, married and had a sister-in-law live years after that.

The new measure is intended to replace the compromise 1957 Homicide Act, which retained the death penalty for murders committed with guns, explosives, or in the course of theft, or for murder of policemen.

He Looks at Aleutian Glaciers And Sees Booming Sheep Ranch

DUTCH HARBOR, Unalaska Island (AP)—Rufus Choate at 52 is a man who can look at the flanks of glacier-clad mountains on this bleak Aleutian island and see a booming sheep and cattle ranch.

He can peer at an abandoned pontoffice, which once served a Second World War U.S. Army outpost, and envision a rambling, comfortable home.

A leaky barracks is to him a henhouse; a prisoner-of-war stockade, a horse corral; warehouses, shearing sheds for his sheep; an old ammunition dump, buried in the side of a mountain, a walk-in food cellar.

Last spring, Choate sold his 6,000-acre cattle ranch in the Big Horn foothills near Miles City, Mont., and set out with his family for what he considers to be "the last great open range left in the United States."

Today he and his wife, Alice; a daughter, Sue, 21, and son Jim, 20, and Ted, 18, are there.

The Choates bought a converted 74-year-old fireboat, the Robert Eugene, in Seattle.

They crammed it full of provisions and livestock and sailed the 2,035 miles to this dot of land in the Aleutian chain, learning navigation on the way.

Awaiting the family was the entire northeastern corner of Unalaska—268,000 acres—on a 20-year lease from the bureau of land management. It included an abandoned army camp.

They are still living on the Robert Eugene, tied up at the old Dutch Harbor submarine base pier. Japanese drive bombers killed 43 in June, 1942.

The ranch population has grown to 500 Columbia sheep, 52 Hereford cattle, 30 chickens, four sows, a boar, three geese, five saddle horses, a heifer and a milk cow.

They're thinking of naming the spread the Bar Nothing.

Choate, who has built two ranches, feels the third will be the luckiest.

"We'll make out fine," he said, pointing to the grassy lowlands where his sheep gra

Ice Storm Cripples Scores Of N. Y. State Communities

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) Relentless cold and hardship persisted today for thousands of families in an ice-crippled eastern portion of New York state as power crews sought to restore heat and light for nearly 40,000 customers.

While the sun glistened this morning on a winter wonderland created by freeden trees and power lines, temperatures ranged down to 10 below zero in the wake of one of the state's worst storms.

The bitter cold added the threat of frozen water pipes for stricken residents in the areas whom were in an area bounded generally by Albany on the south, Little Falls on the west and Amsterdam-Gloversville on the north.

Three deaths were attributed to the weekend onslaught of snow, sleet and freezing rain.

Many schools closed Friday remained closed today, while Red Cross officials opened relief centres for those driven from their homes. Churches, fire houses and other public places also were opened for emergency use, and cooking facilities were provided.

In addition to the 10 below at Owls Head, in the northern Adirondacks, overnight low temperatures included: Watertown seven below, Massena and Plattsburgh five below, Glens Falls zero, Rochester five, Buffalo six.

In New England, up to 10 inches of snow fell Sunday, bringing the accumulation up to 21 inches in Old Town, Me.

Temperatures dropped below freezing across most of the United States. Only southern Florida and parts of the gulf coast and the Pacific Coast escaped the freezing weather.

Forecaster Ralph E. Bockfeller, touring evacuation centres in the Schenectady area Sunday said: "It's been about a combination of freezing rain, snow and ice accumulation that began Friday and the, by late Sunday night, froze community activities — from high school basketball games to worship services—to a stop.

At its peak, the storm had darkened the homes and business of more than 75,000 of the 338,900 customers of the Niagara Mohawk Power Corporation

THE WEATHER

Synopsis—Mainly cloudy weather is expected for most of the province today and Tuesday with occasional periods of very light snow. Tempera tures will be a little milder than they have been and there are indications that the gradual warming trend will continue.

Around the Tee

Members of the Quinte Curling Club were active at curtside hospitals during the week-end and brought new laurels to the club.

Four rinks journeyed to Picton on Saturday to play in the Men's Invitational Spiel and two came home with prizes, one winning a trophy in the bargain.

The Picton 'spiel was a well-organized, efficiently run affair and was topped by a delicious roast beef dinner, "prepared" by the women members of the club. The hospitality, for which the county is noted, was seen on all sides. The new rink is well appointed and the club members are most enthusiastic.

There is no doubt this club will prosper and will have no trouble filling the entry list each year. Sam Gentile, president of the club, welcomed the curlers.

A rink of Bill Gault, Fred Maund, Wayne Wilkinson with Ernie Wilkinson as skip, won the second trophy, while a rink of Harold Bob Alexander, Ron Benn with Claude Tice leading and then holding the broom, were runners-up in the two-game high. This ring lost the McFarland trophy, won by Dennis O'Connor and his rink from Kingston, by one shot.

Other Belleville rinks to compete were Joe Woodcroft, Jack Lomas, Al McCullum and Mac White, skip, and Ken Monnon, Bill Henderson, Jack Preston, with Dawson Boyd as skip.

A mixed rink of Mac and Helen Binning with Lloyd and Jane Sheppard, journeyed to Brantford to the "Ball and Chain" mixed 'spiel, sponsored by the Brantford Curling Club. Thirty-two rinks competed from all parts of the province, with a couple of rinks from the United States. The Quinte group secured second prize in the Welsh Fuels trophy, the main event of the 'spiel, losing one game and that to George Salmon of Brantford, who captured the trophy. The local entry received beautiful china as a prize.

Crisp Winter Weather Greets Voters Today

An early morning fall of snow with crisp winter weather promised for the remainder of the day, greeted voters this morning as the polls opened for the annual municipal elections.

The polls opened at nine o'clock and will be open until seven this evening.

The clerk's office at city hall reported that 46 voters took advantage of the advance poll on Friday and Saturday. The advance poll is for the convalescence of eligible voters who expected to be out of the city on Monday.

Y's Activities

The month of November may not have seen too many girls pass swimming cards but perhaps the time was well spent in learning and practising new skills.

Only three girls passed their beginner exams this month. They were Evelyn Eagle, Deanna Jones and Sheila McEwen.

Five girls were successful in passing their first star card. They were Barbara McIntyre, Connie Ayres, Diana Lodge, Lynn Williamson and Marie Joyce.

The first star card consists of treading water for 45 seconds, bobbing twenty times rhythmically, performing a back flutter, kick 20 feet in good form and a standing plain front dive from the edge of the pool in good form and lastly, swimming 40 yards.

Discovery Of King Tut Caused Stir

LUXOR, Egypt (AP) — King Tut is resting comfortably.

That may not sound like hot news, since the old boy has only turned over once in 3,300 years.

But that one flip-flop sure caused a stir in daddy's day and the excitement hasn't died down.

The tomb of King Tut was found here in 1922. It was the first tomb of a pharaoh ever found intact.

That fact, plus the discovery that everything in the tomb, including Tut himself, was solid gold hit the headlines. 33 centuries after the funeral.

The discovery of old Tut produced an Egyptian rage in architecture, furniture, books and sovereign-like displacements.

There also was much talk about an ancient curse on the man who opened Tut's bones.

The area around Luxor boasts the largest and best preserved temples and rock tombs in Egypt. They were tourist attractions before Tut was found.

For centuries people walked right by Tut's tomb without knowing it was there.

FOUND IN 1922

Archeologists realized it had to be somewhere in the area. In 1922 Howard Carter, an Englishman, started a five-year search.

Tut was not one of Egypt's more memorable kings—a fact that was to make him more famous than all the rest, in the end.

During the period that he ruled over Egypt it was the custom for kings to begin work on their tombs as soon as they took over the throne. When they died, work stopped.

Tut was only nine years old when he became pharaoh and 18 when he died. As a result, his tomb is a pitiful little thing compared with the 71 other tombs of the kings of Luxor.

Yet, when it was opened, it poured enough golden chairs, chariots, bracelets, and statues to fill most of the upper floor of big Cairo museum.

That gives an idea of what the other tombs once contained. They were all stripped many hundreds of years ago.

That ancient curse?

Apparently there was nothing to it. Carter died in bed and the tourists who visit the place never come down with anything worse than sunburn or upset stomach.

Housewife Finds Trenton Paper Dated 1837

TRENTON — A housewife, cleaning out her attic to search for last year's Christmas decorations, unearthed several copies of Trenton papers . . . and when we say "back," we mean back to 1837.

The local paper in those days was the Trenton Advocate, and the issue was Dec. 8. Readers were told they could pick up ladies' dress goods at eight to 20 cents a yard and that dress length would make a fine Christmas present. The three-quarter page Front Page advertisement was put in by the R. A. Barber Company.

In the meantime, the students of Professor Canfield had put on a Christmas Cantata, "Esther" and this had been well received by an enthusiastic audience in Purdy Hall.

Back with the advertisers again, the Haines and Lockett shoe and boot store was offering a special on moose and deer moccasins; men's frost proof boots in fine leather; heavy boots, with red and grey stockings to fit and a full stock of "new socklets."

Trenton council met that week to pass bills, allowing for the Decorator and Police expenditures of $1,000 on the town's public schools, a town architect's letter to fix up Nicholas Street for $16 was accepted.

Advance Poll Was Biggest In History

TRENTON — Trenton's largest advance poll in history was recorded on Saturday when 26 persons cast their ballots. In recent years, eight was the largest advance vote, with the average running at five persons.

Heavy Vote Urged

TRENTON — With the permission of the Trenton school board, letters were sent home Friday with public, high and separate school children, and students from Calvin Christian School, urging parents to get out to vote. The letters were written and sent out by the Trenton Chamber of Commerce personnel.

Object was to improve the vote and also to teach the children the fundamental basics of democracy.

Britain's Witches Split up With Internal Affairs

LONDON (Reuters) — Britains witches now are hitting the skids with broomsticks instead of riding them.

The centuries - old cult of witchcraft, apparently enjoying some revival in Britain, is split with internal troubles.

No one, however, can agree who is the biggest witch of all.

Some think that some British witches are in league with Communists, and others are embroiled in an ideological dispute.

No one knows exactly how many persons practise witchcraft in Britain. Some put it at 600, others at 6,000. It is known that many covens —a witch word for groups — meet regularly throughout the country.

Witches are often reputed to hold covert meetings naked in a magic circle worshipping the goddess of fertility, believing in reincarnation, and following the precepts of the Book of Shadows, a witchcraft bible, while performing secret rituals and using secret symbols.

All believe in the witchcraft creed which enjoins perfect love, perfect trust and no harm to anyone.

IT USED'N THEM

Witches are upset when people compare their craft with black magic. Witchcraft, they insist, stands over the leadership began earlier this year with the death of white-bearded Gerald Brousseau Gardner at the age of 80. He was recognized by many as Britains leading witch.

Dr. Gardner left the bulk of his large estate, including ownership of the Isle of Man witchcraft museum, to two Scottish witches, Mrs. Monique Wilson and her 41-year-old husband, Campbell.

The couple now regard themselves as heirs to the witchcraft throne.

Other witches violently disagree.

Crippled, Retarded Children Enjoy Fine Christmas Party As Guests of Shrine Club

City and district Shrinedom solidly dedicated to the betterment of the lots of crippled and other less fortunate children, received a large measure of firsthand appreciation here yesterday.

For nearly three decades the Belleville Shrine Club has been exemplifying the Christmas spirit in its annual entertainment for its young proteges.

It has brought a true holiday atmosphere with its traditional gifts, entertainment, the Yuletide tree and Santa Claus, (live) to the youngsters facing life under physical handicaps.

Yesterday's annual Christmas Party held in the Highland Avenue club, was adjudged the best in the long unbroken string of Yuletide entertainments for the children.

Some 85 youngsters, including 23 retarded children, enjoyed an outstanding party. Their number was swelled to some 160 by parents, families and Shriners.

The D. L. Storey Memorial Room of the club was enfete for the occasion. An illuminated Christmas Tree, in colorful Yuletide garb was the decorative piece-de-resistance.

Tables set in U-shape arrangement were prettily decorated with holiday nappery. Mrs. (Noble) Len Martin and her associates were highly commended on their excellent efforts in readying the party set-up.

SHRINERS HELP

Fezzed Shriners, adding their own touch of color, lent willing hands in transporting their young guests to and from their homes in the city, Picton, Trenton, Tweed and Wellington.

The Crippled Children Committee, under chairman Noble Stu Hibbard, aided and abetted by fellow shriners, saw to it that their guests lacked nothing.

Assistant chairman Noble Tom Lewis, the "work-horse" of the party, rendered yeoman service in his capacity of master of ceremonies and general supervisor of the entertainment.

He paid special tribute to the members of the St. John Ambulance Brigade and others who aided in the success of the party.

The big moment for the kiddies came when Santa Claus himself bounded through a door, his jolly "Ho-Ho" and "Merry Christmas to all" echoing in the room while wide-eyed youngsters clapped and cheered.

He distributed a present to every child in the room. Shriners assisted in carrying the gifts to those kiddies unable to walk or otherwise make their way to the raised dais. He had a merry word for all and visited some of the kiddies at the tables.

Following the opening of presents activities, the young guests were treated to sandwiches, ice cream, cake, cookies, white and chocolate milk, soft drinks and candies.

The Shriners took excellent care of their young guests with Al Parkhurst and Mrs. Audrey Parkhurst looking after their entertained children proteges.

FINE ENTERTAINMENT

Entertainment for the children was clever and varied. The city's brilliant young dancer, Judy McKnight, presented 22 of her talented proteges, ranging in age from five to eleven, in a colorful program, climaxed by a clever special "Alley Cat" number by the attractive Judy.

Taking part were: Chris Bannon, Gail Reid, Drew and Cathy Dunbabin, Kathleen Lynch, Barbara Gunsolus, Judy Hums, Debbie Thrasher, Karen Thrasher, Sandra Page Allison, Joyce Kelleher, Eva Liberos, Susan Dolgosh, Sheila Ritchie, Mary Jane Nixon, Judy Neville, Anne Sisson, Patricia Baird, Julie Lewis and Linda White.

PC Annual Meet Put Over Until October

OTTAWA (CP)—Believing a spring election may be held, the national executive of the Conservative party decided Saturday to put off its 1965 annual meeting until possibly October and concentrate on party organization and publicity.

Dalton K. Camp of Toronto, national president, announced after day-long closed meetings of the executive that the decision on a date for the annual meeting, which draws approximately 3,000 delegates, was left in the hands of the executive officers.

The delegates also went to Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's residence, where he was confined with a cold. Mr. Diefenbaker urged the delegates to tighten up their local and district organizations in the face of organizational activity by the New Democratic Party.

APPOINTS COMMITTEES

Mr. Camp announced the appointment of three new committees.

One, to be headed by Donald Carlaw of Toronto, secretary and director of public relations of the Ford Motor Company in Canada, will investigate the party's publicity and public relations procedures.

Mr. Carlaw is a Conservative and his experience and travels in Canada in conjunction with Ford's huge dealership organization should be helpful for the party, Mr. Camp said. It was a mark of the Ford company's new directive to senior executives to become active in national political affairs for the party of their choice.

Cold War For Moment Melted as Russian and U. S. Children Have Party

By ROBERT HOLTON

MERRICK, N.Y. (AP)—Two Russian and three American youngsters clasped hands across the threshold of an American home the other day and the cold war, for the moment, melted.

The pair of Moscow teenagers and my three oldest children conducted in our home last Tuesday the first small fry east-west summit conference in history.

The experiment was a smashing success.

Timothy Holton, 7, and Yuri Popov, 14, agreed to exchange backyard fort-building plans.

Peg Holton, 6, and Irene Tolstikova, 13, pledged to keep each other abreast of youthful fads in their respective countries.

And Jane Holton, 3, fell in love with Yuri.

Irena and Peg hit it off beautifully from the moment they met until they kissed goodbye.

"I have enjoyed myself in your home Peggy, only I wish I had enough time to teach you to say 'I like you very much in Russian," Irena said.

The two Russian youngsters spent the day in our suburban home during a two-week stay in the United States as guests of the American Broadcasting Company during which they were filmed for a recorded television program for showing next month.

"It has been a wonderful experience to come into your home and see how you live," Yuri said. "I enjoyed it very much. I particularly liked the pretzels and the strawberry shortcake. Those I never had before."

The day's activities included a tour of a junior high school where they stood in line to have their trays filled in the cafeteria, a quick trip to a supermarket, a peek into a pet shop and a visit to a large toy store.

There were a few tense moments brought about by unsiphisticated utterances of the Holton children.

"Is Mr. Khrushchev really still alive or did they kill him?" Timothy asked at a dinner table.

"He is living in a nice apartment in Moscow," Yuri replied with a look of encouragement. "He was just too old and too sick to rule. So he resigned."

TIM FUZZLED

At the dinner table, the children began to say grace.

The two Russian children and their chaperone, Miss Zena Evgenart, just looked in.

Puzzled Timothy asked: "Why don't you pray? Don't you think there's a god?"

His mother quickly turned the conversation to another subject.

The electric refrigerator, automatic washer and drier and the deep freeze appeared to hold little interest for Yuri and Irena.

Yuri was the more inquisitive of the two, asking how much American journalists earn, why they don't live in a city apartment, how much a compact car costs and why American children go to school six days a week as they do in Russia.

It was on a walking tour of the village that Yuri probably began to take a deep liking for Yuri. She had tripped and fallen on the road and began to cry.

Yuri lifted her into his arms and in Russian whispered soft words of comfort. Soon she stopped crying.

"Just like my little sister," Yuri explained. "You know children are children, no matter where they live."

After dinner, when a picture of Soviet Premier Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk came onto the screen, Yuri's eyes lighted up.

"Look how friendly they are," he said. "It is not only dead president Kennedy who brought that friendliness. He is the most liked American among Russian children."

As their two guests drove away in a car toward their hotel Jane turned to her mother and said:

"Pray that they come back again Mommy. I love Yuri."

Veterans Will Receive Cheques Before Holiday

OTTAWA (CP) — Recipients of veterans disability pensions and widows and war veterans allowances will receive cheques before Christmas containing increases approved recently by Parliament, it was announced Friday.

Veterans Affairs Minister Talbot said the cheques will cover the amount of the increase for September, October and November. The increases have been made retroactive to Sept. 1, 1964.

A statement from the ministers office said the adjusted cheques would provide: $80 for a single pensioner with 100 per cent disability, $72 for a married pensioner with 100 per cent disability and no children, $42 for a pensioned widow with no dependents, $30 for a single war veterans allowance recipient and $50 if married.

The cheques are to be mailed from Ottawa Dec. 10 and will be dated Dec. 15, the announcement said.

Full parliamentary authority for the increases was provided in a $19,000,000 supplementary estimate approved a week ago along with other governmental spending estimates for the fiscal year 1964-65.

The Canadian Press erroneously reported Friday that Parliament still had to pass a bill covering the increases. It was learned that the supplementary estimate had the effect of amending the acts concerned as well as providing the spending authority.

SWEDES

NICOSIA (AP)—An armored personnel carrier of the Swedish contingent of the United Nations peace force in Cyprus was under fire Saturday as it crashed through a roadblock manned by Greek - Cypriot national guard soldiers. The block was near the village of Paby Amiss, 35 miles west of here.

A U.N. spokesman said about 15 bullets hit the sides of the white - painted armored car, but none of the 12 Swedes aboard was hit.

What's your stand on registering life insurance policies to claim certain income tax deductions?

Mr. Campbell
If it's possible, I'm all for it!

Interviewer
You'll be pleased to know you may register any Mutual Life policy, except Term, under the Income Tax Act. Subject to certain limitations, the savings portion of your premium can then be deducted from your taxable income each year.

Mr. Campbell
It seems to me that everybody should know about this!

Interviewer
You're right! Particularly people who are building a pension for themselves. Even people now contributing to a company pension plan may qualify for further tax relief.

Mr. Campbell
Look, I'd like to check into this before I file my 1964 return. Where can I get complete information?

A Ticklish Problem

Talks, described by U.S. Ambassador to the UN Adlai Stevenson as "good" and "useful," have been held in an effort to end the deadlock respecting the refusal of Russia to pay its share of the costs of peace-keeping efforts.

If Russia and France were merely endeavoring to avoid paying their share of the cost of operating the UN, a change in heart might be forthcoming. But both these countries, permanent members of the Security Council, argue that the UN charter reserves for the Council the responsibility for keeping the peace. It was the Assembly which ordered the peace-keeping missions for whose costs both Russia and France refuse to pay.

An Afro-Asian bloc has proposed a compromise which would set up a peace fund and would permit nations to pay voluntarily into this fund. Russia, apparently, has shown some interest in the plan—evidence that, her refusal to pay to date is solely penny-pinching. But she is likely to hedge any acceptance of the plan with conditions which would virtually mean acceptance by other nations of her view that the Assembly has no authority to order peace-keeping missions. This the U.S. and her supporters will never accept, because it would mean that any future peace-keeping mission could be subject to Russia's Security Council veto.

This is a case in which both sides have valid points. It would be intolerable if Russia, or any of the other permanent members of the Security Council, were free to block enterprises which the majority of the responsible nations believed were essential to the preservation of peace.

But Russia and France also have a valid argument. The Assembly's large membership, and the fact that all the member nations, regardless of size, wealth, military power and prestige, have an equal voice means that a peace-keeping mission could be ordered by nations representing only a minority of the world's inhabitants, with no significant military power, little wealth and virtually no prestige.

Security Council is a much more representative body. Except for Communist China, it includes virtually all the nations which are truly powerful. There is only one change needed to make the Security Council the better body to reach decisions on peace-keeping missions. That is the abolition of the veto, at least as far as it relates to peace-keeping projects.

Is This Rivalry Unfortunate?

Saturday the United States despatched Mariner IV to Mars.

Monday the Soviet Union sent Zond II heading for the same planet.

U.S. scientists are inclined to doubt that the Russians' space probe was launched in an effort to catch and pass Mariner. What at first looks like an attempt to match the U.S. exploit is easily explained; the position of Mars in relation to the earth is now most favorable for such exploratory attempts and the Russians must have been planning their project for a long time.

This, though, may lead us to ponder on the circumstances which see two independent efforts made and to wonder whether there would have not been a greater chance for success had the talents of the Russian and U.S. scientists been combined. Something is wrong with Zond II; its power supply is working at only half-strength. On the other hand, U.S. scientists say the Russians could have devised Zond II to catch up with and pass Mariner IV. Their rockets are more powerful and it all depends upon whether they utilized this power to provide a bigger payload of instruments or to increase the speed of the space probe.

Using the Russians' bigger rockets and the apparently more reliable U.S. power source, the possibilities for success in this fact-finding penetration of space might have been enhanced. On the other hand, we should not overlook the value of competition. If not in this experiment, then in others which will follow, there will almost certainly be alternate methods which appear feasible. If two different teams are working on the project, the chances that one of them will hit on the better method appear to be enhanced.

One hears some parents say that their only concern is for their children's happiness. They don't want their children to have trouble. To me this seems to imply that, though misery exists, it is only for others. It also implies, indirectly, that their children should be so lacking in compassion that they never feel distressed about the suffering of others.—Mr. Freddy Bloom on BBC "Woman's Hour."

Drug and Diet Combination Best Cure for Gout

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Recently my swollen, sore big toe was diagnosed as gout. My physician prescribed drugs and put me on a diet. He also strongly urged me to lose weight — I'm 300 and should be about 170.

I've heard different schools of thought on gout, one being that diet has nothing to do with it, and another that diet plays an all-important role.

What diet have any effect on gout? Can gout be cured or controlled by losing weight and careful diet. Does this condition worsen with advancing age? — J. C.

With the advent of drugs of the probenecid type, there has been far less emphasis on diet to control gout. That doesn't mean, however, that diet has no value.

Let's see why. Gout is a disorder in which the body has less than normal ability to dispose of uric acid.

Uric acid products then accumulate in various parts of the body. The big toe is the classical site, but it can accumulate in many parts of the body. At times it may miss the vulnerable big toe altogether.

The amount of pain depends on the location and extensiveness of these deposits.

The probenecid drugs help the body to get rid of uric acid, and they do so very effectively. But if you can limit the foods leading to formation of uric acid, there is that much more benefit to the patient.

Thus it's wise to eat sparingly of the purine foods, which produce uric acid. Those very high in purine are the organ meats (liver, sweetbreads, kidney, tongue), "red" meats in general; gravies, sardines; and vegetables of the pea-bean-lentil family.

Avoid these entirely during an acute attack. Between attacks they may be eaten occasionally and sparingly. This, in addition to regular (and often daily) use of medications, can keep gout attacks at a minimum. There are patients who, by so doing, have gone for several years without any trouble.

I know of no way to "cure" gout, since that implies finding a way to alter the body's ability to dispose of uric acid. The goal is to control it, to prevent it making your life miserable.

(You might keep in mind that attacks are sometimes touched off by other medications, including liver extract, Vitamin B injections, the thiazides, sulfa drugs and sometimes aspirin.)

If one does not take precautions, as outlined above, the condition is likely to become worse, but this apparently is not solely because of age. There's a tendency to eat less as one gets on in years, and that helps. That's by the way, answers the question about losing weight. Yes, do so. But don't expect that alone to accomplish the whole job.

Dear Dr. Molner: Why couldn't nerves from a deceased person be transplanted to a multiple sclerosis patient, to replace the damaged nerves. — E. M. H.

First, transplantation of tissues from one person to another remains a most difficult procedure because the body, with few exceptions, rejects it. Second, in multiple sclerosis, the fundamental disorder is in the spinal cord, and the other nerves are only secondarily involved.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: Please explain Morton's neuroma. I have been having foot pain for years and surgery seems to be the only solution. Is there any other treatment? — Mrs. R. C.

Surgery is the only way. This is a defect (usually a tumor) affecting nerve tissues in the foot.

Makeup Not Key to Sexy Appearance

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

If a thing is pushed far enough it turns into its opposite — a law that extremists of all sorts apparently are not acquainted with. Not to ruffle any political feelings today, let's consider the matter of sex.

There are two women I have observed from time to time, in a vague social way. I don't even know their names. One is a young blonde, the other a middle-aged brunette. Both are quite pretty — they would be, if they let themselves alone.

But both of them dress in a ridiculously sexy way. From head to foot, they are clad and adorned like sex machines: precise porcelain figures, insanely narrowed at the waist and bulging in the bosom, their eyelashes fluttering, sculptured hair, tight skirts worn high, and deeply scalloped decolletage. The works.

The net effect — or perhaps I should say the gross effect — these women give is one of comedy, not of eroticism. They look like clowns, made up for some absurd sexual charade. What is supposed to stimulate and attract merely arouses derision and laughter.

There is something profoundly anti-sexual about this sort of get-up. It is calculated, geometrical, utterly artificial and painstakingly contrived—whereas real sex is artless, instinctive, free and deeply un-self-conscious.

Moreover, it is a paradox of sexuality that known to all students of the male animal that modesty and drapery are more appealing to the man's imagination than boldness and nudity. For it is in the imagination, as much as in the body, that sex resides.

There is an optimum point beyond which the display of physical charms becomes the very opposite of its intent — where the provocative turns into the preposterous and the attractive turns into the repulsive. And this is not at all on the level of taste, but on the esthetic level.

For in no other area of life does such a thin line separate the ridiculous from the sublime as in the area of sex. There is in it an element of grotesquerie and absurdity that can be redeemed only when sex is compounded with affection, respect, modesty and moderation. These are psychological needs fully as important as physiological ones.

The two women I have in mind fail utterly to understand the subtle psychological components of sex; they look upon it as something displayed in a show window, glittering and spot-lighted. They mistake it for a physical commodity, when actually it is a highly personalized transaction. What they consider their "sexy" appearance seems to others a parody of itself, a comical and pathetic crossing of that thin, thin line.

Great Debate

Calgary Herald

In the future, it may be said of the Great Flag Debate that seldom before have so few paid so little attention to so much said by so many.

The Press And Events

Montreal Gazette

The Warren Report on the assassination of President Kennedy raises quite sharply a new problem in reporting: the problem of "mass reporting." The Warren Commission describes the crowd of reporters that descended on Dallas after the assassination. It pressed into the headquarters of the Police and whole third floor of the station post Lee Harvey Oswald was being held.

"The milling mass of insistent newsmen" could scarcely be identified, particularly as many were from out-of-town with unfamiliar credentials. They "spilled over into areas where they interfered with transaction of police business and the maintenance of security." Oswald could not be moved except through this crowd.

When, two days later, Oswald was transferred from the building, the crowd of reporters was not kept at a distance, and in the blinding flash-bulb and camera lights the party escorting Oswald could not see clearly what was taking place. In the crowd, and under such lights, Ruby found it quite easy to approach Oswald and shoot him before his presence was even noticed.

Fault may well be found with the way the police managed the whole affair. But the report stresses that it was the reporters becomes a hard thing for the police to manage and to under its best conditions. "The crowd of newsmen," the report says, "failed to respond properly to demands of police. Frequently without permission, the news representatives moved in police offices on the third floor, trying up facilities and interfering with normal police operations. Police efforts to preserve order and clear passageways in the corridor were usually unsuccessful."

And the report concludes: "The Commission feels that the Police and Courts building during November 22-24 reveals a regrettable lack of self-discipline by the newsmen."

The assassination of a president, or anyone, is an unusual an event that the clamor of the world for news heightened the insistence of reporters to find out what happened and how it happened. Yet it remains true that a "regrettable lack of self discipline" is creating serious problems. The problems of mass reporting have grown with the representation of radio and television have added their members to the ranks of reporters. The multiplication of the mass media, and the urgency of certain news events, is producing a disorderly crowding on the scene that may well be or later have to undergo some sort of regulation.

The reaction among the news media to the Warren report has differed. Some say that it remains the duty of the press to bring the news to find the news in any way they wish or can. But, for the most part, the Warren Report is being taken seriously.

The Associated Press Managing Editors Association has appointed a committee to "give thought and study to the question that the news media try to work out a code of "ethical standards," with the law enforcement authorities. "Newspapers in America," says Mr. Eugene Patterson, president of the Associated Press, "have been deeply conscious of problems arising from the coverage of major news events."

Since a very real problem is admitted to exist, the news media are deeply concerned as to how they may best solve it by their own efforts. The law would it if such regulation is agreed to by the news media themselves, rather than to wait till it is imposed upon them.

The need — and it is by no means impossible — is to find a middle way between the sort of crowded disorder that happened at Dallas, and a situation in which news will be handed out by the authorities only when and how they may see fit. The difficulties are many, but the news media, through self-discipline, are the most capable of working out a solution.

Not So Dreadful

Peterborough Examiner

Is "our dangerous exposure" to U.S. culture so dreadful? Would we not produce our own rubbish if the U.S. did not do it for us? And do we not already do this in a minor way?

Perhaps if we were less concerned with Canadian content and more with what is good, we would better develop our taste and our value for what is good, so serving to create a climate in which worthwhile Canadian works can flourish.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dec. 7, 1964 . . .

The ecdres of the Second World War was dramatically changed by the sudden attack of the Japanese on the U.S. naval base at Pearl Harbor 23 years ago today — in 1941. Some 200 Japanese aircraft from several aircraft carriers attacked in waves during the morning striking predetermined objectives. Almost every U.S. plane at the base was disabled or destroyed on the ground, loss of life was heavy, and many ships, including the battleships Oklahoma and Arizona, were sunk. The U.S. declared war on Japan the following day.

1917 — Halifax took account of the destruction that left 10,000 homeless following the explosion the day before when two vessels collided in the harbor.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1914—the second battle of Warsaw began; bitter fighting took place on the Western Front in the Argonne forest; Gen. Christian F. Beyers, South African rebel, was killed near Greylingi.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1939—Germany and Russia began an exchange of populations involving 100,000 Germans and 500,000 Ukrainians; Finnish troops counter - attacked against Russian troops in the Karelian isthmus; German patrols along the Western Front were repulsed.

Life Is Back On Bikini

Saint John Telegraph-Journal

Remember Bikini and Eniwetok? These were the atolls in the Western Pacific that the United States did its best to obliterate with nuclear blasts during the 12 years from 1946 to 1958.

One would conclude after the beatings these atolls took from frequent nuclear bombardments that they would be unfit for human or vegetable life.

Well, members of a 1964 expedition to the atolls were pleasantly surprised to find that on the islands has pretty well returned to normal. Vegetable growth is thicker than ever, radioactivity — while higher than normal — is considerably below levels which are dangerous to human life, and animal life has returned to the atolls.

Plants are bearing healthy fruits and flowers, heavily denuded coconut palms are producing again. The lagoons are filled with healthy fish. Regrowing algae and coral, and birds have returned to a long interrupted life.

Human inhabitants who were removed from the atolls before the tests began have not been permitted to return, but the expedition found that all but three small islands in the Bikini group are again safe for human habitation.

At the time of the Pacific tests, predictions were rampant that life on the atolls would be extinguished for centuries, perhaps thousands of years. Now we know it is not so. Nature can recover rapidly and fully from even the most destructive force in the power of man.

The significance of this may be paled somewhat by the still more powerful force of the atom, but it is of some reassurance to know the end of the earth as we know it is not yet among human capabilities.

Pets Fine, Owners - Ugh!

Hamilton Spectator

A dog food company has come out with the startling information that the number of pet dogs in the country is unlikely equal to about one-seventh of population. This is dogs; it doesn't take into account cats, birds, monkeys, goldfish, hamsters and the rest of the pets Canadians love.

The amount of money spent to feed these pets yearly is as staggering as the amount spent on medical attention and kennel charges. In many cases the price of animal vaccine is far above the price charged for human.

Pets are wonderful.

It is usually the people who have them that make them seem silly.

We know a lady who placed her dog in a kennel and went to Florida. Every day of her stay she sent the dog a post card.

And it is possible to buy a costume for your pooch for Hallowe'en. We suppose this is to prevent him from being mistreated during the trick-or-treat rounds.

Worst of all is the fact we encountered a spray dentrifice for dogs called "Happy Breath" and if was impossible to buy eleven shades of doggy nail polish, including lavender and green.

It is difficult to imagine how we would feel on Christmas morning encountering a sweet-smelling dog with green nail polish and dressed in a Santa Claus suit.

Said to constitute a record since Belleville became a "big town" city, taxes amounting to $63.00 on the grand total were paid by November final instalment payment date for the current year. Arrears are said to be the lowest in the history of the city.

A large percentage of taxes were paid in these days when the date of the first instalment fell due early in the year. Availability of ready money is said to be partly the reason for the large returns received this year by the city tax collectors.

New tax accounting and book-keeping machines installed some time ago in the city treasurer's office have greatly facilitated the large amount of clerical work involved in the collection of taxes.

In speculatives, McWatters dropped eight cents to $1.32 and Texas Gulf and Quebec Manitou a penny each to 68 cents and 53 cents. Canadian Keeley traded more than 80,000 shares in the first hour and added six cents to 37 cents.

Hudson Bay fell ½ to 69 in senior base metals.

Golds and oils were dull.

On index, industrials fell .29 to 163.99, the TSE index .29 to 139.25, golds .04 to 153.35 and base metals .38 to 70.53. Western oils rose .36 to 94.22 and volume at 11 a.m. was 1,044,000 shares compared with 1,347,000 shares traded at the same time Friday.

French Refuse To Confirm Bomb Exploded

From AP-Reuters

PARIS (CP)—French defence ministry officials refused today to confirm or deny a report that France had exploded an atomic device underground at the Sahara testing ground last month.

But there was general belief that such an experiment was made as part of France's development of nuclear weapons.

"I can neither confirm nor deny that a test was made," said one defence official. "Our policy is to maintain silence in these matters."

Other sources indicated that an underground test was made late in November. There was no indication what type of device was exploded.

The reports came in the newspaper Combat, which said France exploded an atomic device underground in the Sahara about last Nov. 19.

Quoting informed sources, the newspaper said the bomb was exploded underground and was not of great power. It was probably a tactical weapon, the newspaper added.

(In London, The Daily Express reported France exploded its biggest bomb so far —100 kilotons or 10 times more powerful than the Hiroshima bomb. This would be twice as large as France's previous biggest.)

Taylor Opens Planning Talks In Viet Nam

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor and South Vietnamese Premier Tran Van Huong today opened planning talks expected to lead to bombing of Viet Cong supply lines in Laos.

Taylor returned to Saigon Sunday from Washington amid increasing speculation that the war against the Communists would be broadened. It was believed that President Johnson had ruled out attacks against North Viet Nam, but the red supply routes through southern Laos were considered likely targets.

Taylor on his return said new measures by both the United States and the South Vietnamese would be discussed. He refused to say what they were.

Lonely Taxi Driver Charged With Theft

TORONTO (CP)—Mary Hone, 17, of Toronto got back the three suitcases she packed Sunday for a trip home to Brockville and a lonely taxi driver was charged with theft.

Miss Hone and a friend were talking in her apartment when the friend and an unknown man left, leaving the man alone in the apartment.

When they returned, the suitcases were gone.

Two hours later, a policeman stopped a car and found Miss Hone's suitcases in the back seat.

Robert G. Barry, 40, of Toronto was charged with theft, possession of stolen goods and impaired driving.

SHASTRI GOES HOME

LONDON (Reuters) — Indian Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri left London by air for home Sunday after a three-day visit which he had talks with British Prime Minister Harold Wilson. Shastri told reporters that although his visit was short he "benefited a great deal." He said "we had exchanges of views among ourselves and it gave us a good opportunity to understand each other."

OFF THE RECORD — By Ed Reed

14 Ocean-Going Ships Remain In Seaway

MONTREAL (CP) — Only 14 ocean-going ships remained in the St. Lawrence Seaway Sunday with vessels escaping slowly but steadily through the lower end of the system at the St. Lambert lock across the St. Lawrence River from Montreal.

A seaway official said 10 of the vessels were in the 15-mile section between St. Lambert and Lake St. Louis with four more above that point.

Some two inches of surface ice is slowing progress of the fleeting ships. The seaway officially closed Nov. 30.

PORT COLBORNE, Ont. (CP)—The last four salt water vessels racing to Montreal and open water before the freeze-up passed through Port Colborne Sunday.

The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority announced Saturday night that heavy ice formations had forced the closing of the lower system of the seaway from the Iroquois lock eastward to Montreal.

The action left inland the Olavgorma, registered in Denmark; the Vaidu, Nationalist China; the Flying Independence, a U.S. - registered ship, and the Orient Merchant, a Greek vessel.

Robert Burnside, a spokesman for the Canadian authority, said this is the first time ocean-going ships have been locked in the seaway system since it was opened in 1958.

LAUNCHES FUND

LONDON (AP)—Earl Mountbatten, Britain's last viceroy and first governor-general of India, has initiated a campaign to raise £100,000 as a memorial fund to the late Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru. Mountbatten said the money will be used for an annual lecture series at Trinity College, Nehru's alma mater, and for six scholarships at British schools for Indian students.

Bribery Charge Laid Against Retired Brig.

OTTAWA (CP)—Brig. J. B. Allan, 50, recently retired vice-quarter-master-general of the Canadian Army, today was charged with bribery and conspiracy in the alleged acceptance of benefits totalling more than $8,000 between 1957 and 1963.

The charge was laid by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police in city magistrate's court. Brig. Allan is free on $4,000 cash bail.

The charge specifies that Brig. Allan, compulsorily retired in October, accepted "an advantage or benefit to the value in excess of $5,000 arising from the payment of hotel bills and transfer of preferred and common shares of Levy Industries Limited."

REFUSE PERMISSION

TORONTO (CP)—Portuguese officials have refused permission for two top United Church clergymen to visit Angola, church headquarters announced Friday. Rev. Ernest E. Long, secretary of General Council, and Rev. T. Z. F. Honey, secretary of the church's Board of World Mission, were told Thursday of the Portuguese authorities' decision through the consular office in Toronto.

Fact 1: Fire insurance alone on home and contents is not enough. Your home could be destroyed by windstorm, explosion or other hazard.

Fact 2: Theft coverage of your possessions, at home and away, should be included.

Outdoor Rinks Already in Use In Two Areas

With the arrival of winter weather and good ice-making conditions, the city recreational committee has started its annual open air rink program, with rinks on both East and West Hills now in operation.

Rinks have already been installed at Parkdale and at Stanley Parkette and others, including rinks at the Belleville Harbor, are planned.

But many youngsters in Belleville and immediate area are not waiting for rinks to be provided for them—they are making their own.

In West Belleville, in the cove between Zwicht's Island and the filtration plant a group of youngsters were seen skating on an area shovelled free of ice, while the same was true west of the bay bridge on the Rosamore side of the bay.

Fatima Jinnah Symbol Of Growing Influence Of Women in Affairs

By CAROL KENNEDY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Fatima Jinnah, a 72-year-old spinster, stands as a symbol of the growing influence of women in world affairs, a trend that was most evident in 1964 and may be even more apparent in 1965.

Miss Jinnah, sister of Pakistan's founder and first governor-general, is running against Ayub Khan, up for re-election in the February general election in the Asian Commonwealth country.

Claiming that President Ayub's autocratic policies are a "betrayal" of her late brother's democratic principles, Miss Jinnah wants a federal structure for Pakistan with full provincial autonomy, something along Canadian lines.

Her campaign has drawn huge crowds, including for the first time in Pakistani policies many veiled women, and she has narrowed the president's initial wide lead.

If elected, Miss Jinnah would take precedence over that other distinguished woman politician of the Commonwealth — Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike of Ceylon.

WOMEN RECOGNIZED

But win or lose, the fact that she was even nominated is a reflection of the growing recognition being accorded women in fields of action once the almost exclusive preserve of the male.

Britain's new Labor government followed the trend by naming seven women to important positions, and, for the first time, the wife of a U.S. presidential candidate went out campaigning on her own.

Accomplishment in the sphere of science was also recognized, with the Nobel prize for chemistry being awarded to a British woman.

Probably if a poll were taken on the subject, Queen Elizabeth and Jacqueline Kennedy would hold a commanding lead among the world's most admired women. The Queen's dignity and calm in the face of Quebec terrorist threats gave a new dimension to the image of the British monarchy, especially with President John F. Kennedy's assassination still raw in public memory.

Throughout the year, as the world's press continued to analyse the Dallas crime, the eyes of the world were never far from the slight, courageous figure of the president's 35-year-old widow.

Rumors tipped her for various diplomatic posts in the Johnson administration, but all were demolished as Mrs. Kennedy declared she would devote herself to raising her two children, Caroline, 7, and John Jr., 4. The family moved from Washington to New York in September to seek privacy from curious tourists.

Attention also focused on the bubbling Lady Bird Johnson, whose Southern-folksy style was so different from the contrasting elegance of her predecessor, but who displayed a political flair to match her husband's in the U.S. presidential election.

FACED HOSTILE CROWDS

Mrs. Johnson's whistlestop swing through the Deep South, facing often-hostile crowds, was an act of considerable courage.

Another U.S. woman in the news was Marietta Tree, the beautiful, chic wife of a former English Conservative member of Parliament. She was named U.S. representative to the United Nations Trusteeship Council with the rank of ambassador, a post formerly held by Congressmen.

In Britain, the Labor government boosted the cause of brainy women by raising red-headed Barbara Castle, 53, to the cabinet as minister for overseas development—the fourth woman in British history to hold cabinet rank.

Six other women obtained ministerial or high parliamentary posts, including Jennie Lee, the vigorous, 60-year-old widow of left-wing firebrand Aneurin Bevan. Miss Lee became minister of public buildings and works, with a watching brief over the arts that made her appointment the nearest British approach to France's ministry of culture, presided over by Andre Malraux.

TAKES OVER KITCHEN

Meanwhile, the wife of Britain's new prime minister, Mary Wilson, broke with tradition and brought a whiff of suburbia to 10 Downing Street by dismissing the cook and announcing she would whip up breakfast and dinner for Harold Wilson.

A quiet Oxford housewife, Dorothy Hodgkin, 54, inscribed her name alongside Eve Curie by becoming the third woman to win the Nobel prize for chemistry, for her work in analysing the structure of penicillin and Vitamin B-12.

Public life in the Soviet Union lost grandmotherly Nina Khrushchev when the party axe fell on her husband in October. In six years she had made her own contribution to the easing of cold war tensions when she accompanied Nikita Khrushchev on foreign tours.

In Greece the enigmatic and controversial Queen Frederika continued to hold attention after the death of her husband King Paul. Greeks wondered whether this vital, intensely political woman would long be content with the undemanding role of queen mother now that her son Constantine is king.

LEAVES FOR BRITAIN — Mrs. Andrew Rose, wife of Trinidad and Tobago's newly appointed high commissioner to Britain, says goodbye to her dog Fiesta as she prepares to leave Ottawa. Mr. Rose has been his country's high commissioner to Canada for the past two years. Mrs. Rose will leave her son in Canada to finish his term in school and the dog will have to spend six months in quarantine in a London kennel before she can join her mistress. (CP Photo)

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Word has been received of the death on November 24th, of Mr. David Rose Dunham, of St. Augustine, Florida, a prominent lawyer and husband of the former Miss Georgia Springer of this city. Besides his wife, he leaves two daughters, Mrs. Charles Olson and Mrs. Alvin Land of St. Augustine, and a son, Ross, in Texas.

Gerald Hyde and Bill Slade, president and first vice president respectively of the Belleville Sales and Advertising Club, with their wives, were in Kingston on Saturday evening to attend the 17th annual Christmas party of the Kingston Ad-Sales Club held in the LaSalle Hotel. During the evening, several draws were made for hoped-for awards and Mrs. Slade was the lucky winner of one of the many beautiful special gifts.

In Diplomatic Posting
1 Boy, 1 Dog Missing From Family

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — When Mrs. Andrew Rose, wife of Trinidad and Tobago high commissioner to Britain, arrives in London early in January, she'll be missing two important parts of her life.

Mrs. Rose and her husband, who has just completed a two-year posting in Canada, are leaving their seven-year-old son Peter behind in Ottawa. He will finish his term at Ashbury School for Boys before joining his parents in London.

The other missing person in the Rose family will be their golden-haired dog Fiesta, who has to spend six months in a London kennel until her legal quarantine period is over.

"I shall miss them both of course," said Mrs. Rose shortly before she left Canada.

"But I think it will be good for both of them. Fiesta will lose some of her extra weight in the kennel where she'll have to eat dog food instead of human fare—and Peter will be glad to finish out his school year with his Ottawa friends."

Mrs. Rose knows her son will be in capable hands. He is staying with Sir Henry Lintott, the British high commissioner to Canada, and his wife, at Earnscliffe, their residence on the shore of the Ottawa River.

The vivacious Trinidadian said she is looking forward to living in London again after an 11 - year absence. "We lived there from 1951 to 1953 while my husband was attending university."

"But we've been very happy in Canada. The people here are warm and hospitable. My husband has promised to give me a two - month holiday in your country soon."

Mrs. Rose enjoys travelling—and as a diplomat's wife she hasn't much choice about the matter.

The Roses were interested spectators at the independence ceremonies of the new African country Zambia (the former Northern Rhodesia) this fall.

"I didn't know what to expect, but I went to Africa with an open mind. We found the African has dignity and purpose. They are green at governing, it's true. But we were pleased to find that senior civil servants from Britain have gone all out to be of assistance to them."

Mr. and Mrs. Rose are spending a month in their native Trinidad before moving to London. While at home, they will be keeping a close eye on the current political situation in the West Indies.

She said both she and her husband, who was minister of communications in the now-disbanded West Indies Federation, are both hoping that the group of seven smaller islands will be successful in their attempts to form another West Indies Ferration even though Trinidad and Tobago are not involved.

"We're keeping our fingers crossed because we think it would be a good thing for the islands."

Religious Interests Create Problem

DEAR DORIS — I am 13 years old. My two best friends are two ministers and thus I have become quite informed in Christian ways. But Mum and Dad press me to go with the 12-year-old girl next door. She's nice but she plays dolls, etc. and I want to discuss world problems, vocations, the Bible, and similar topics.

They also start an argument every morning saying I should wear nylons instead of knee socks — ugh, nylons are not my line.

And, Miss Clark, I want to be alone. People are nice at times but I want time to ponder.

Please inform me as to the proper solution for these "misadventures." — FUTURE MISSIONARY.

DORIS CLARE

* * *

DEAR F.M. — Dolls and destinies do seem worlds apart! But we need friends as well as philosophy. For a while I'd say ponder a little and socialize a lot; perhaps often with girls your age and older who'll share your ideas.

But about those knee socks. I know a fine missionary who looks very smart in her nylons; which are not frivolous but regular adult wear. Were you planning on wearing bare knees to India?

Best wishes in your chosen field.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — Would you please answer a question that is causing some hard feelings?

At a recent wedding where a friend of mine was ushering, he and the other attendants paid the rental on their tuxedos. Is this customary?

Seems to me people putting on a big spread should pay for their own props. — JUST CURIOUS.

* * *

DEAR JUST CURIOUS — When your friend accepted the invitation to usher, he took on the obligation to present himself dressed as required. So do bridesmaids, best man, ring bearer and so on.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I am married to the biggest show-off and coward in the world. His one aim when out in company is to impress people. The children and I are completely left out. I have actually seen people laugh in his face. He laughs with them.

He is cowardly. When a particular relative visits, whose manners are nil and insults many, he disregards everything that is said, explaining that he doesn't like losing friends. — WEARY WIFE.

* * *

DEAR WEARY — If you care about this show-off, you can reduce the encores. Not by disparagement, but encouragement — when he does things you approve! Somewhere along the line he lost his feeling of self-worth because someone didn't love him or boost him enough.

He'll get the courage to stick up for you if you can be mature enough to stick up for him — to himself.

* * *

NOT ENFORCED

WINNIPEG (CP)—The law in respect to human rights is not being enforced in most Canadian provinces, Alan Borovoy, director of the Ontario Labor Committee for Human Rights, said Saturday. There is great difficulty experienced by Negroe, in finding accommodation in Ontario in certain blocks of flats, Mr. Borovoy told 75 delegates at a human rights education conference.

Rifle for Nancy Crowther Just Household Appliance

By GERRY GRAY

OKEOVER ARM, B.C. (CP) — For Nancy Crowther, "the Cougar Queen of Okeover Arm," her rifle is just another household appliance.

"Living in the bush like I do, a gun is as much a part of my household tools as a vacuum cleaner is in the city."

Nancy is a quiet, 41-year-old maternity woman. A divorcee, she has reverted to her maiden name.

She disapproves of the "Cougar Queen" title, bestowed upon her by friends.

"Every woman living in the bush alone has to protect herself. But it's not for self-protection that we shoot these animals, it's to protect our livestock."

The bush, Nancy Crowther lives in is about 120 miles northwest of Vancouver, not far from the pulp town of Powell River. Her home is a log cabin set in a clearing on a bay.

In the front yard roam her goats and chickens and two terrier dogs.

Her only companion is her aged mother.

"I shot my first cougar when I was 13," she says.

"I had to. My father, who was going blind, was coming back from the store in Lund. I met him and we walked down the trail together. We came across a fresh cougar kill and my father told me we must shoot the animal or it would get to our goats."

She waited by the cougar's victim for two hours. When the big cat came back to feed, she shot it with a .22-calibre rifle.

BEST TARGET IS NECK

"It was a lucky shot. You can shoot a .22 at close range into a cougar's head and the slug won't even penetrate the skull."

She doesn't shoot for the skull any more.

"About the only place to shoot a cougar for a sure kill is right in the centre of the neck. It snaps the spine and kills instantly."

Since that first kill with a .22, Nancy has added 11 notches to her gun and replaced the small-bore firearm with a .303-calibre carbine.

"The bigger gun gives me more confidence in the bush."

Nancy's father died a few years ago and she was left alone with her mother.

"Not only did we have our regular household chores, but we had to keep a sharp eye on the livestock. The area teems with predatory animals.

"A neighbor, Axel Hansen, lost 30 goats to cougars in one night."

The Cougar Queen has made a study of the big cats.

"Every 28 days a cougar will retrace a pattern" she says.

"If, for instance, you see one of the animals cross your property, you can be pretty sure that within a month that same cougar will again come into your area. It's a kind of cycle."

Reports Given At Medical Society W. A.

The final yearly meeting of the W.A. to the Hastings and Prince Edward Medical Society was held at the home of Mrs. Russell Bateman with Mrs. Alex Rota presiding.

During the business meeting, a letter of thanks from the Hastings County Memorial Society for a monetary donation was read by Mrs. Neal Reid. An interesting tour of the museum had been enjoyed by the W.A. in the previous month.

A second letter was received from the Evangelical Medical Missionary Aid Society in appreciation of professional samples of drugs collected by the doctors' wives at a tea at the home of Dr. L. B. Mathieson. This society has recently sponsored and sent a Canadian doctor to India.

Mrs. J. Empson gave a brief report on a membership and organization meeting held in Toronto by the W.A. to the Ontario Medical Society. Local representatives were Mrs. Empson and Mrs. J. Hartt.

Progress reports on the annual fashion show, "Fantasy in Fashion," to be held at B.C.I. in the spring, were given by the convener, Mrs. J. Nelles. Committee heads were named and further plans were discussed.

At the close of the meeting, a gift was given by each member for female patients at the Ontario Hospital, Cobourg.

WOMEN'S NEW IMAGE

MONTREAL (CP)—The carnomist's conception of the club-woman as fat, flatulent and fractious has passed from the contemporary scene, says Mrs. A. W. D. Swan, president of the Montreal Council of Women. She attributes the more respectable reputation of today's club-woman to the Second World War and its aftermath and to better education of women.

Jack Murray, teacher, got a Scotia Plan Loan -$1800-in 35 minutes

Jack Murray had what he thought was the world's biggest pile of unpaid medical bills. Mr. Murray needed financial help in a hurry.

Jack talked his problem over with his brother and he suggested that Jack investigate the advantages of a Scotia Plan Loan. Jack dropped in on his noon hour to a Scotiabranch close to his school.

He talked his money problems over with one of the helpful Scotiabank people. After a few simple questions about his job, income, and how much money he needed Jack Murray started to see his medical bill problem melting away.

35 minutes later Jack Murray had all the money he so desperately needed. Of course, this actual customer was not named Jack Murray—and not all Scotia Plan Loans take 35 minutes—the time varies with the circumstances. But there are more and more people with all kinds of names and jobs coming to The Bank of Nova Scotia to have their money problems solved—quickly. Why don't you?

How much money do you need? We strongly suggest that a Scotia Plan Loan is one of the best—most practical ways for you to consolidate your debts. With a Scotia Plan Loan the cost is low. Your loan is life-insured at no extra cost. You get the other advantage of dealing with the interested Scotiabank people. So talk over your money problem—whatever it is—debt consolidation—a new car—with the people at your nearest Scotiabranch. They're ready and waiting to help you.

Feigning Illness Is Common Attention-Getter

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I doubt that you have ever received a letter as nutty as this one. Please print your answer because I've got to understand what's going on.

I am a 18-year-old girl. My best friend is 16 also. I will call her Wendy. Last night Wendy was at my house and we were talking — just the two of us.

ANN LANDERS

Suddenly she said, "How can I get bronchial pneumonia?" I asked her what in the world she wanted to get bronchial pneumonia for. She answered, "Oh I don't want to die or anything like that. I'd just like to get sick enough to go to the hospital so people will send me cards and flowers and the fellows will visit me and see me in my nightgown with my hair loose."

I was shocked at her idea of fun. Have you ever heard of anything so far out? Is Wendy crazy or what? Thanks for your help. — CAN'T DIG IT.

* * *

DEAR CAN'T DIG — Anyone who has had bronchial pneumonia will tell you it's no fun. But of course Wendy doesn't really want to be sick, she just wants the fringe benefits.

Illness is a sure-fire attention-getter. Moreover it provides a respectable excuse for not going to school or to work. Some people who fail to get attention from their day-to-day achievements conveniently get sick. You'd be surprised at the number of so-called adults who resort to this technique — often without realizing it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband and I own a small novelty shop. We have rented the apartment above our shop to some friends.

Last week we learned that their teen-age son has been stealing merchandise. My husband and I are upset and don't know what to do. We are reluctant to tell the boy's parents because it might end a longtime friendship.

Your counsel is badly needed. — TORN.

* * *

DEAR TORN — Don't talk to the parents. Talk to the boy. Avoid preaching or threatening. Explain that you are deeply disappointed in him but you are confident he can straighten around and you are willing to let him prove it.

If he continues to steal after you've had the talk, then you must tell his parents.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — For years I've been reading your column and hating you for your stand against divorce. More than once as I read your smug replies I shouted aloud, "What does she know about the feelings of the tortured people involved! How can she give such pat answers on the basis of a single letter?"

Today I am singing a different tune. You were right all along.

Shad and I didn't care who we hurt. We couldn't live without each other. I thought Shad had more class than any man I'd ever known. He thought the same about me. Living together has shown us we were both wrong.

After six months we are calling it quits. Shad is going back to his former wife. She is willing to take him back because of the children. I am not so fortunate. My husband doesn't want me back. My teen-age children will have nothing to do with me because I humiliated their father and broke up two homes. All I have is my job — for as long as my health holds up.

My life is a shambles and I deserve what I'm getting. Please keep telling people they can't build a future on the ashes of destroyed marriages and broken hearts. We tried and it didn't work. — GUILTY AS CHARGED.

* * *

DEAR GUILTY — I plan to keep telling 'em — so long as my type-writer holds together. Now quit beating yourself and try to build a new life — somehow.

* * *

Liquor can ruin your mind, your body and your life. To learn the booby-traps of teen-age drinking, write for Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-Age Drinking," enclosing with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Variations of Thumbprint Cookies

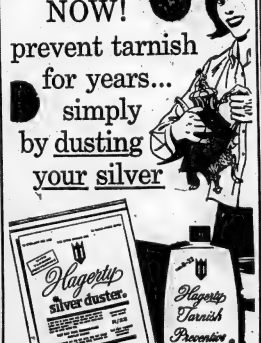
By MARY MOORE

The dough for thumbprint cookies is dependable and readily shaped. It competes with shortbread in popularity and keeping qualities. You may make thumbprint cookies this week and store them in tightly-covered containers. When holiday guests arrive you simply fill a pretty plate with them, then fill their little depressions with bright jam or jelly—raspberry, apricot and mint being pretty Christmas variations.

The quantities I am giving here will yield 70 cookies but if you want to make half of your batch into cutsize thumbprint cookies do so, and fill a bigger depression with twice as much jam or jelly.

THUMBPRINT OR THIMBLE COOKIES (70)

1 cup butter (room temperature), ½ cup granulated sugar, 2 eggs, yolks and whites separated, 2 teaspoons almond extract, 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, finely chopped nuts (walnuts or almonds or filberts or Brazils), or crushed corn flakes or other similar packaged cereal, colorful jam or jelly (such as raspberry, mint, apricot).



In beater bowl cream together the butter and sugar until pale and airy. Separate egg yolks from whites of eggs, putting whites in shallow bowl for future step. Add egg yolks to butter-sugar mixture and beat well, then add almond extract, beat, then add flour and beat until dough is smooth. Have finely chopped nuts or crushed corn flakes on shallow plate or surface. By hand shape dough into uniform one-inch balls. Drop about six in the egg whites. With fork turn balls over, lift carefully with fork and drop into chopped nuts. (Keep one fork for turning balls in whites and one fork for turning balls in nuts and one coating balls with nuts or crumbs.) Working with about six at a time, transfer coated balls to buttered cookie sheet, placing them 2 inches apart. Make depression in the centre of each with your thumb (or floured thimble on your middle finger). When cookie sheet is full bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 18 to 22 minutes. But after five minutes baking, carefully dent them at centre again. You may want to ever so carefully dent the cookies once more after they are taken from oven. Cool on cake racks.

Store in tightly covered containers, each layer being between sheets of wax paper.

When you serve these cookies fill centre of each with ¼ or ½ teaspoon of red or green jelly or jam. Apricot jam is a great favorite too.

SIDNEY SOUTH 4-H CLUB

The fourth meeting of Sidney South 4-H Homemaking Club was held at the home of Mrs. Fred Meens. A demonstration was given on the method of making a cheese fondu and a baked rice and cheese casserole. In planning good meals it was stressed to have eye appeal as well as contrast in temperature, flavor and texture along with variety in foods and fruit. A discussion followed on making leftovers into attractive dishes. The two casseroles were sampled before the meeting closed.

COLLEGE HILL U.C.W.

"O Worship the King" was the theme for the Christmas meeting of College Hill U.C.W., held in the church hall Tuesday evening with a good attendance. The traditional lighted candles, green boughs and poinsettias displayed a pleasing effect.

Mrs. D. Watson presided for the business meeting, and expressed thanks to the members for their help in 1964. Mrs. A. Greenwood read a successful financial report.

Devotions were in charge of Mrs. Wm. McLaughlin assisted by Mrs. Watson and Mrs. R. Byrd which consisted of Bible verses and readings alternated with carols by the entire group.

Mrs. D. Elias contributed two solos which were enjoyed by all. Carol singing was led by Mrs. L. Blakely and Mrs. D. Elias.

A social hour of contests followed by a delicious lunch of Christmas goodies served by the Evening Group brought a pleasant evening to a close.

Susanna's Family Fare

HANDY FORMULA

Dear Susanna: Ever found yourself in the annoying predicament of preparing a delicious breakfast of sausages and hot biscuits only to discover you are fresh out of baking powder? And what are breakfast sausages without hot baking powder biscuits, anyway!

Don't despair, just cross your fingers and hope you have a little baking soda and cream of tartar on the shelf. If you do, your problem is solved with this interesting equation: ½ teaspoon baking soda, plus ½ teaspoon cream of tartar, equals 1 teaspoon of baking powder.

Don't you think this is a handy little formula to have on hand?
— MURIEL SMITH

It certainly is, Muriel, and don't worry, girls, if our addition seems a little shaky, in this case a quarter and a half really do equal one. — SUSANNA

Dear Susanna: Every year when it is time to store tricycles and bikes in the basement for the winter months, we in ist that our boys give these vehicles a thorough cleaning and polishing and that there mustn't be a spot of rust left on them.

They also take care of the family car and we have discovered that crumpled foil and water don't seem to work too well on the bumpers, etc. of the car, but do a marvellous job of removing rust, and brightening up the chrome on bicycles.

One day, after great effort and intense struggling, our young est, Billie, was heard to mutter — "Maybe Susanna knows do-it-yourself kits."

NO PAYS

if you are responsible for an automobile accident after your insurance policy has lapsed?

You do!

When you allow your insurance policy to lapse you immediately become an uninsured motor vehicle owner. Before you drive, you must either pay the $20 uninsured motor vehicle fee at a Department of Transport licence agency office or renew your insurance, or you will be liable to a fine of up to $500.

The $20 fee gives you NO protection whatever. If there is a claim against you as an uninsured motor vehicle owner for which you are liable, it will be paid by the Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Fund, but you must repay the fund. You will not be allowed to own or operate a motor vehicle until you make arrangements to do so. Judgments up to $25,000 are not uncommon. A debt of this size could seriously hamper your family's future. Protect your future. The wisest course is to buy automobile liability insurance and keep it in force. Always carry your insurance card in your automobile.

Pres. Tito Attacks China For Trying to Impose Power Politics on World

By JOHN EARLE

BELGRADE (Reuters)—President Tito today attacked China for trying "to impose power politics on the world" and praised Nikita Khrushchev for destalinization, promoting freedom of expression, and safeguarding world peace.

Speaking as secretary - general of the 1,000,000 - member Yugoslav Communist party at the opening of a party congress, Tito said Yugoslavia had always opposed denying China its lerilimate rights.

But the Chinese leadership "is in essence inspired with the desire to impose power politics upon the world with the prospect of ultimately assuming a decisive role in the international workers movement and in the world," he said.

The Chinese atomic explosion alarmed the world, not only because China thus joined the nuclear arms race but primarily because it is not prepared to co-operate constructively in disarmament efforts and instead tries to bring influence, to bear on international politics, he said.

READY TO TALK

Nevertheless, the Yugoslavs would always be ready to answer and discuss Chinese criticisms with the Chinese leaders, Tito said.

Tito criticized the big Western powers for "still not demonstrating a sufficient measure of readiness for substantial agreements. . ." on disarmament.

Calling for the liquidation of foreign military bases, he said these were "a source of constant insecurity in the world and represent not only a permanent element of cold war but brutally violate the independence of the country in which they are situated."

Ice Storm

in eastern-central New York.

A power company spokesman said Sunday night that the number of homes and businesses without electricity and heat was down to about 40,000.

But, a Schenectady County civil defence official said, it will be a few days before thousands of broken tree limbs and snapped power lines can be cleared from city streets and yards. Until then, many families will remain in evacuation centres.

Four cities remained under the emergency status declared by their officials Friday or Saturday to broaden city powers in the fight against nature.

The cities and their situations early today:

Schenectady: Power failures continued to darken much of this city of 80,000. Bursting of major water mains in the downtown area resulted in the flooding of cellars of several stores. Several fires were set off by live power lines. Hundreds of splintered tree limbs blocked streets.

Troy: The city of about 65,000 makes up the New York capital district with Schenectady and Albany. Police here said the major problem was lack of electric power.

Saratoga Springs: Half of this city of 16,000 remained in darkness. A threat of fires from downed power lines continued.

Gloversville: At the peak of the storm, two-thirds of the streets in the city of 24,000 were blocked by fallen tree limbs.

house is expected which may delay adoption of a new flag by Christmas, the hope expressed last month by Prime Minister Pearson.

Once the Commons and Senate have declared themselves, it is expected the design of the flag will be embodied in a proclamation by the Queen, made on the advice of her Canadian advisers—the cabinet.

DEBATE AMENDMENT

The Commons spent all the last week "debating" an amendment to the flag committee report, moved by J. Waldo Monteith (PC—Perth) and calling for a national plebiscite on the flag design at the next election.

During the week, there were 30 Conservative speeches. Participation by the other parties was: Liberal four; New Democratic three; Creditiste two; and Social Credit one.

In the 22 - day debate on Prime Minister Pearsons' original proposal for a flag showing three red maple leaves on a white field with blue borders at either side, there were 117 Conservative speeches. In the other parties there were 23 Liberal, 10 NDP, eight Social Crediists and seven Creditiste speeches.

Until the Conservative proposal for a plebiscite is dealt with, or some other action intervenes in the flag debate, it cannot be adjourned. An attempt by the Conservatives to adjourn the debate Thursday was defeated, 129 to 55, and having made a decision not to adjourn the debate another such motion will not be in order.

While the debate lasts, the daily question period at the start of each sitting is bypassed. The flag committee report takes precedence. Normal supper and overnight recess hours are being observed.

SAYS PLANS MADE

QUEBEC (CP) — Separatist spokesman Rene Jutras said Sunday that experts, including a number of federal civil servants, are preparing plans to negotiate the separation of Quebec from Canada. The head of Le Regroupement National, a partly made up of former Rassemblement pour l'Independance Nationale members, told a press conference Quebec independence will be gained through negotiations following election of a separatist Quebec government.

Two Provinces Free of Traffic Deaths in Week

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 53 persons have died in traffic accidents across Canada during the first six days of Safe Driving Week, five short of the total for the week last year. Today is the final day of Safe-Driving Week.

A survey by The Canadian Press from midnight Monday to midnight Sunday shows that only two provinces, Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick, have been free of traffic deaths.

There were 58 persons killed in highway accidents during the Dec. 1-7 period last year, and P.E.I. was the only province with a fatality-free record.

This year, there were three highways deaths Tuesday, six Wednesday, 10 Thursday, 15 Friday, seven Saturday and 12 Sunday.

Ontario heads the death toll with 21, compared with 17 last year, followed by Quebec with 20 compared with 18 last year.

HAVE HIGHEST TOLLS

Ontario recorded its highest one-day total Friday when seven died and Quebec's high for the week, also seven, was registered Sunday.

Alberta has five deaths and British Columbia three. Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, Manitoba and Saskatchewan have one each.

During Safe Driving Week in 1962 there were 70 persons killed. There were 57 deaths in 1960 and 49 in 1961.

Following is the day-to-day record this year with last year's totals:

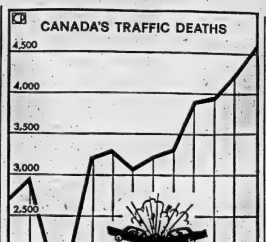
peared to be reaching a new and bloody climax.

The demonstration started at Khartoum Airport when a crowd of about 5,000 Negroes assembled to greet Interior Minister Clement Mboro, Mbor, a Negro, had been touring south Sudan, where Negro tribes are rebelling against the Arabs of the northern Sudan who dominate the government and the army.

The crowd hoisted banners proclaiming "Down with the Arabs," and "Down with Arab Merchants."

ARE SEPARATISTS

At first held in check by the organizers, the crowd chanted slogans calling for the separation of the southern provinces from the rest of the country. Then the mob broke through the thin cordon of organizers and stormed the airport building, smashing doors and glass.



The crowd had grown to about 10,000 as it spilled out into an adjacent residential section.

The rioting in October grew out of police suppression of a student meeting to discuss the revolt in the south Sudan. The new civilian government has pledged to deal with the revolt.

South Sudan has a population of about 4,000,000 Negroes. There are about 10,000,000 Arabs in the north.

PLANS GO AHEAD

LONDON (Reuters) — Plans for the state visit of Queen Elizabeth to Sudan in February are going ahead despite last month's disturbances in Khartoum and a change in the government, British officials said Friday. The Queen is due to fly to the Sudan Feb. 8 for a five-day visit immediately after a state visit to Ethiopia.

TRAFFIC DEATHS INCREASE — Canada's traffic deaths are estimated by the highway Safety Council to reach the 4,600 mark in 1964 compared to 4,200 last year. Traffic deaths in 1963 resulted in an economic loss of more than $400,000,000. In 1965 the council hopes the deaths can be lowered to 4,100 through an intensive safety campaign. CP Newsmap)

34 Fatalities During Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Traffic mishaps were blamed for at least 23 of 34 accidental deaths reported across Canada during the weekend.

A survey by The Canadian Press from 1 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday also included one fire death, one hunting fatality, a death in a plane crash, a shooting and seven deaths caused by a variety of other accidents.

Quebec's total of 19 included 13 on the roads, one in a hunting accident, one boy crushed by an elevator and one baby that smothered in its crib. Four persons were found dead of carbon monoxide poisoning in a car near Kingsey, Que., 75 miles east of Montreal.

Ontario reported eight traffic fatalities, one death by fire and a seven-year-old boy who died after he was struck in the throat by the blade of a fan that flew loose while his father was repairing it.

The Atlantic provinces reported two accidental deaths, including one in traffic in Newfoundland and one shooting in Nova Scotia. New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island were fatality-free.

British Columbia had one road death and one man who died when his rented plane crashed. Saskatchewan reported one traffic fatality. Manitoba and Alberta had no accidental deaths.

No Evidence to Show Subs Played an Important Role

By KAY TATESHI

TOKYO (AP)—At dawn 22 years ago today five Japanese midget submarines, strapped to their mother craft papoose-style, were ready for launching 10 miles from the mouth of Pearl Harbor.

Each midget sub carried two young naval officers and two 18-inch torpedoes. A few hours later, nine of the 10 young men were dead.

From Japan's viewpoint at that time, the surprise aerial attack on Pearl Harbor, which practically the entire U.S. Pacific Fleet had been moored, was a success. But there is no evidence to show the subs played an important role in the attack. The heavy damage was inflicted by torpedo bombers, dive-bombers and fighter planes.

The subs, Japan's 46-ton, 79-foot secret weapons, were released at 30-minute intervals as the attack began. Operating on strange battery power, none of them reached the attack area.

The fifth, skippered by Ensign Kazuo Sakamaki, broke up and a reef. Sakamaki washed ashore 48 hours later to become the first American prisoner of war taken by U.S. forces.

PLAYED KEY ROLE

One fact who played a key role in the preparations for the attack, including the plan for using the midget subs, recalled his reactions to what happened that day.

Known then as Vice-Consul Tadashi Morimura, he explained was Ensign Takeo Yoshikawa of the Imperial Navy. He had spent nine months in Honolulu sending Tokyo vital information on Pearl Harbor, Hickam Field and related military facilities.

Yoshikawa said his espionage assignment came toward the end of October, when he was told to find out whether there was an anti - submarine net across the entrance to Pearl Harbor.

"The Pearl Harbor area was restricted," Yoshikawa said, "so I went to Honolulu and made a study of underwater obstacles, the tide and beach gradients. I scattered moss above the water to camouflage my activities while I was submerged and breathing through a reed."

He learned there was no anti-sub net.

When Yoshikawa heard that the attack had begun, he broke into tears.

"It was a mixed feeling," he said, "joy, fear, gratitude, excitement. I was suddenly joy that my mission had been fulfilled."

Some Progress Being Made In Negotiations

TORONTO (CP)—Some progress was reported during the weekend in local negotiations between General Motors of Canada Limited and the United Auto Workers (CLC), representing 23,575 striking General Motors workers, a union spokesman said Sunday.

A General Motors spokesman agreed that progress had been made, but was unwilling to predict when local issues will be settled. The bargaining sessions are being held in Toronto for all General Motors plants.

Local issues to be settled before the master agreement can be negotiated. Originally a spokesman for the company and the union had hoped to settle local issues during the weekend so they could bargain for the master contract today.

The walkout came last Thursday at General Motors' plants in Toronto, Windsor, St. Catharines and London, Ont., after 14,000 workers in Oshawa jumped the gun by walking out Tuesday.

Under negotiation are working conditions, seniority and a union clause for wage parity with General Motors' American employees which, opponents bring benefits, would give Canadian workers an average of $1 more an hour, according to the union.

Layoffs resulting from the strike have already occurred at three subcontracting firms in Oshawa.

CITY'S CONVERSION

LEICESTER, England (CP) — A £135,000,000 plan to convert this centre into a "motor age" city by 1985 has been announced by the city's planning officer. W. K. Smigielski said the plan will preserve the central area of the city and will leave historic buildings intact.

Joe Smallwood Can't Name Date For Retirement

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland says he will not resign his post until completion of provincial power, fisheries and pulp and paper development programs.

The 64-year-old premier said "I have been thinking actively of retirement, but I can't name a date."

He told a reporter Wednesday: "If you will tell me when I'll have the Hamilton Falls project going, the power developed on the island, a third pulp mill started and the fisheries program launched, then I'll tell the date of my retirement."

The premier recently received a report on the feasibility of transporting power from Hamilton Falls in Labrador through the Atlantic provinces to New England, and Friday announced the appointment of a 12-man royal commission to study the whole question of power in the province.

Rumors of his retirement sprang up this week after Mr. Smallwood conferred with several cabinet changes. At that time, he said former highways minister Fred Rowe was given the post of finance minister "to prepare him to succeed me if and when I want to take a greater role in the affairs of Newfoundland."

But Mr. Smallwood also said with a smile that "I didn't say anything but about him becoming the next premier."

Isaac Pitblado, Famed Winnipeg Lawyer, Dies

WINNIPEG (CP)—Isaac Pitblado, 87, a Winnipeg lawyer who called work a remedy and stayed in the legal harness for 64 years, died in hospital here Sunday.

"I attribute my long life to hard work," he once said. "That's a good policy for any man—to work as hard as he can at something that gives him satisfaction."

Mr. Pitblado's career came to a halt six months ago when he retired as senior partner of Pitblado, Hoskin and Company. He was active within his own home during the last two months but was taken ill Saturday.

At age 80 he handled and won an $80,000,000 bid by the railways for an increase in freight rates by 21 per cent. It was one of the biggest cases with hearings that took 1½ years and covered 30,000 pages of evidence.

Outside economics, Mr. Pitblado scored two notable legal successes in investigations by royal commissions into political corruption in Manitoba.

DEFENDS PREMIERS

He successfully defended two premiers, T. C. Norris, who held office from May 12, 1915 to Aug. 8, 1922, and John Bracken, premier from Aug. 8, 1922, to Jan. 8, 1943.

The brilliant scholar from Nova Scotia's Guysborough County, he was studying at Dalhousie University, Halifax, at the age of 13. His family moved west before he could graduate, but Dalhousie rendered unto him an honorary doctorate of laws in later years.

He completed his education at Manitoba College, now the University of Manitoba, and entered the law office of Sir James Aikins at the age of 19.

In one of Sir James' criminal cases, Mr. Pitblado was a lawyer for the Crown in the prosecution of 18 leaders of the 1919 Winnipeg General Strike.

Once he appeared in court as a witness instead of as counsel. That was in a case of criminal libel against the late John W. Dafoe, editor of the Manitoba (later Winnipeg) Free Press, arising from a report of a 1908 political meeting. The case was thrown out.

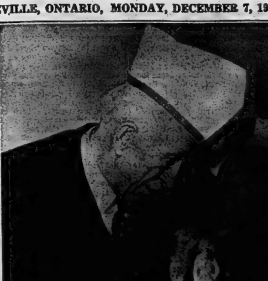
In 1952, the Big Grass Marsh, a 50,000-acre waterfowl sanctuary about 90 miles northwest of Winnipeg, was renamed Pitblado Lake in his honor.

Mr. Pitblado was born in Glenelg, N.S., in the year of Canadian Confederation, and came to Winnipeg in 1882.

Ringo May Also Lose Home as Well as Tonsils

LONDON (AP) — Ringo Starr, the Beatles drummer who lost his tonsils last week, may also lose his home.

His neighbors have petitioned his landlord to move him out of his $125-a-week apartment in Westminster. Eight teen-age fans are driving them crazy.



"Ringo's tonsil operation has given us our first peace for months," said Lathom Gedge, one of the neighbors.

"Every day girls scream and shriek all day long," said his wife. "They get hysterical, fight and kick each other and chase every car that arrives in case Ringo is inside."

The Beatles said Ringo, due out of University College Hospital Thursday.

"It's a pity I could so something about it—but I can't control the fans."

Ringo was reported coming along well despite a slight cold—and his voice retains its Liverpool crash.

Denies Socreds Planning Union With Tories

OTTAWA (CP)—Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson said today he knows of no talks reported to have been held here during the weekend between representatives of his party and the Conservatives about formation of a new party uniting the two.

"I can't understand the basis for such reports," he said in an interview following a report in the Montreal Gazette that tentative talks on merging the two parties were held.

"I have not held any high-level meeting with any executive of the Conservative party and I am not pushing anything. I just don't know what story as such."

Mr. Thompson said he believed the suggestion arose from talk within the Conservative party and among Mrs. Greenhill about the present political situation in the country.

"In the present situation, the public is doubtful about and fairly well fed up with the Liberals and there is a growing discontent inside the Tory party, and so we have a vacuum developing. There are a lot of people too who don't want the socialist party so they are looking for somewhere else to go."

Mr. Thompson said this kind of discussion has been general in political circles, but "there is nothing more to it" weekend that I know about that there wasn't the week before."

$20,000 Bail Granted But Man Not Freed

MONTREAL (CP) — Robert Gignac, 35, who was mentioned in bribery allegations made against former officials of the federal government, has been released on $20,000 bail as a witness in a murder trial but will not necessarily have his bail.

Gignac himself is being held pending a preliminary hearing on a charge of shooting Aime (Rocky) Brunette, a nightclub doorman.

He was granted the bail Friday later swearing he would testify at the trial of Maurice Poirier, accused of murder in the same case.

Mr. and Mrs. Gignac's suburban Chomedey home, also appeared Friday for the scheduled preliminary hearing in the capital murder charge.

The case was referred by Judge Peter Shorteno to Chief Justice Jacob Ormand Coulter of Quebec Superior court, a special judge to hear the case Thursday.

Gignac was mentioned in the Commons by Eric Nielsen (PC-Yukon) who asked Justice Minister Favreau what the connection" Gignac might have with allegations that a bribery attempt was made by a former federal official to obtain bail for a man involved in a narcotic case.

A court official said the bail was sought in case Gignac is freed of the charge of his preliminary hearing or acquitted at the trial.

'Must Root up Exception' To High Political Standards Says Pearson at Waterloo

By TOM MITCHELL

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said Saturday it is necessary "to root out the exception" to high political standards in Canada.

Speaking at a banquet marking the installation of a new chancellor at Waterloo Lutheran University, Mr. Pearson, speaking without a prepared text, said it is the "very few" persons in Canadian political life who do not live up to the highest standards of political life.

"Even a few departures from these high standards can create doubt and suspition," he said, leaving politicians open to guilt by association.

"It is necessary to root out the exception who doesn't live up to these standards."

Mr. Pearson's party has been under opposition fire in the Commons over allegations that two executive assistants to cabinet ministers attempted to bribe and coerce a Montreal lawyer in connection with bail for a man involved in a narcotics case. The government has appointed a judge to head an inquiry.

BECOMES CHANCELLOR

Mr. Pearson spoke at the banquet in the evening following afternoon ceremonies installing Senator the Rom Macdonald as chancellor of the liberal arts university. The prime minister was awarded an honorary doctor of laws degree during the special convocation.

He told his audience of educationists at the banquet that "Canadian standards of political service are high and good and I think we can be proud of them."

But politicians were elected to serve the people, to intervene on their behalf in the very nature of the politician's duties, he was open to pressure—perhaps more open to pressure than anyone in any other occupation." There is a temptation to yield to this pressure, he said.

This made the necessity to adhere to strict standards even more important.

"Those that don't live up to these standards, and they are very few, are to be rejected," Mr. Pearson said.

This means "is more than just acting within the law," the prime minister said. The price of maintaining high standards in politics "is the same as the price of maintaining liberty—eternal vigilance."

More Papal Trips Forecast Result of Success in India

By EUGENE LEVIN

BOMBAY (AP)—The warm reception Pope Paul received in India has raised possibilities of further travels for the head of the Roman Catholic Church.

Members of his party took it for granted the pontiff would journey out of Italy again, but none would speculate where he would go next.

"But he will go," said one source. "Travel has become an instrument of his pontificate and his desire to make the search for spiritual values and just Roman Catholic."

He has invitations to visit the Philippines, Brazil, the Dominican Republic and other places.

Vatican officials at first feared the Pope's trip to India might limit further journeys. But the reception he received in the country where Christianity is in a minority evidently has calmed their fears.

REACTION WAS SHARP

When the trip was first announced in October there were sharp reaction from Hindu extremists who oppose Christian missionary activity and from Sikh Sardis who see a government still angered over the Indian occupation of Goa.

The Vatican emphasized repeatedly that the Pope's trip was strictly religious. The Pope began to speak of himself as a pilgrim rather than a missionary.

Although his speeches appeared to be a studied effort to avoid any action with political overtones, in Friday night's peace appeal addressed to "all the governments of the world" in a brief statement with obvious political significance.

In India he saw Asian poverty first hand, and he wept. He left behind the great Oriental religions of Hinduism, Buddhism and Islam.

"The Pope feels he is doing what he should do," said an aide. "This is his mission."

Santa Stays To Telephone His Admirers

Officially Santa Claus came to Belleville on Saturday as the grand finale of the annual Santa Claus parade.

And for the better part of this week he is going to receive in telephone communication with Belleville kiddies.

Commencing this evening and continuing until Thursday, Santa will be calling local youngsters by telephone between 6.00 and 8.00 p.m. In the four evenings Santa hopes to get in approximately 3,000 personal calls.

Dog Taggery In Abundance This Christmas

NEW YORK (AP)— Don't tell Fido, but it keep up with the real top dogs this Christmas, he must have flannel pyjamas, heated sleeping pad and a self-service biscuit dispenser.

At least, that's the word from the pooch fashion front.

For the dog of real distinction, these other items are being shown in the doggy department store:

A striped Arabian tent, complete with mattress, where the dog tired-of-it-all can rest in privacy, $14.93 up.

A nylon ski jacket with zip, for the outdoor dog who likes to hear the whistle of the wind in his ears, a nifty outfit, $7.95.

Ear muffs with attached tinkel-bell to keep them on, for the indoor dog who still must go outdoors occasionally, $2.98.

The dog biscuit dispenser, like a coin machine, is for the dog who likes to eat between meals. One paw push and a biscuit falls out, $6.95.

Does a dog really need pyjamas ($2.49), to sleep in, one store official was asked.

"It's not quite a fit of pyjamas," he replied. "When the heat dies down the air at night a dog gets cold. He can't wrap up in a blanket like a human, you know."

Metro Toronto Expects Forty PC of Vote Out

TORONTO (AP) — About 40 per cent of eligible voters in Toronto's 1,056,106 eligible voters are expected to turn out in the civic polling booths to cast their ballots in 13 municipalities today.

They will decide the fates of 385 candidates who are seeking 153 seats on city and suburban councils, school boards and hydro commissions in the 240-square-mile area.

The Toronto mayoralty race has created the most interest with Mayor Philip Givens, who succeeded to the post after the death of Donald Summerville in November, 1963, defending his seat for the first time.

His main challenger is Controller Allan Lamport, a former Toronto mayor. There are two other contenders as well.

Three sitting controllers—William Dennison, Herbert Orliffe and William Archer—are among 10 candidates for the two seats in the board of control race in Toronto, and there are 37 candidates for 16 aldermanic vacancies.

23 Years Ago Today Hell Broke Loose at Pearl Harbor

By MALCOLM BARR

PEARL HARBOR (AP)—An oil still catches the rays of the sub-tropical sun, expanding in a rainbow of color on the water's surface.

A garland of brilliant flowers joins the widening kaleidoscope.

A grey United States destroyer moves quietly through the water, its crew lining the rails, starting at Ford Island on this quiet morning in December.

The place is Pearl Harbor; the time, the present.

The oil slick is from a sunken battleship; the flowers from an anonymous mourner who makes an annual pilgrimage to Pearl Harbor at this time each year.

The harbor is a serene scene, with the mountains of Oahu a backdrop for the blue water.

HELL BROKE LOOSE

But 23 years ago today, a few minutes before 8 a.m., hell broke loose at Pearl and in 110 minutes, more than 2,000 Americans were dead or dying; another 1,700 were injured; eight battleships were sunk or disabled; and other smaller vessels were damaged, sunk or stinking.

Today is "Pearl Harbor Day."

Members of veterans organizations visit the white memorial which straddles the sunken battleship Arizona. Wreaths are placed in the chapel, prayers said.

Arriving quietly in ones and twos by privately-owned shuttleboat are some whose sons or husbands were among the 1,102 men still entombed in the Arizona.

You can still see parts of the mighty superstructure jutting from the water. Occasionally, oil still bubbles to the surface from the old ship.

The United States flag flies over her, signifying she remains a commissioned vessel of the fleet, 35 years after the U.S. was pushed into the Second World War.

One-Man Rule In Soviet Union Now Ruled Out

By GEORGE SEVERTSEEN

MOSCOW (AP) — Nikita Khrushchev's successors disclosed Sunday they have set up "additional guarantees" against a revival of one-man rule in the Soviet Union.

Without saying what these were, Pravda charged it was the Chinese who thought dictatorship essential to communism and claimed Russia had passed beyond such a primitive stage.

An editorial in the organ of the Communist leadership said it affirmed the new regime's support of Khrushchev's concept of the transition of Soviet rule from harsh Stalinist "dictatorship of the proletariat" to the more sophisticated "state of the whole people."

The new Kremlin leaders also defended the idea against an relenting Communist Chinese criticism—a renewal of public polemics with Peking. Their statement also appeared to be a warning to Russian conservatives that Khrushchev's ouster was not the signal for restoring tighter party controls.

The editorial said the party leaders' meeting that toppled Khrushchev October also was concerned itself with the creation of additional guarantees against arbitrariness in the formation of power in the hands of individual persons and against violations of party and state norms.

Although these were not given, the disclosure seemed to confirm reports of efforts to prevent prohibiting one man from taking over both top Communist party and government posts as Khrushchev and Stalin had done.

The new are split between Leonid Brezhnev as party first secretary and Alexei Kosygin as premier.

The Pravda editorial suggested that Mao Tse-tung's personality cult is blocking the achievement of complete communism in China. It also indicated a new, more uncompromising, hardening of positions in the Moscow-Peking dispute.

Peace Prize Winner Speaks In Cathedral

He was the first Baptist ever to mount the historic cathedral pulpit under St. Christopher Wren's mighty dome. Some 4,000 persons in all ranks crowded the nave for evensong. Many had to stand in the aisles.

King's voice rang out sharply as he said that a doctrine of black supremacy is as dangerous as one of white supremacy. Unless men and nations learn to live together, they will perish together, he said.

"Too many of our white brothers are unduly concerned with their economic problems, their social status, their political power and their so-called way of life."

Of his own people, the U.S. Negro, he said:

"We must not seek to rise from a position of disadvantage to one of advantage, substituting injustice of one type for that of another.

"God is not interested in the freedom of white, black or yellow man, but in the freedom of the whole human race. All over the world, as we struggle for justice and freedom, we must never use second - class methods to gain it."

King, whose plain black gown contrasted sharply with the colorful robes of the Anglican clergy, called on the richer nations to think more of the poorer ones or pay the price by eventually perishing with them.

The American preacher, who had breakfast with visiting Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri of India, said the U.S. spends millions of dollars on storing surplus foods. It could be stored free of charge, he suggested, in the wrinkled bellies of India's hungry.

Premier Lesage Raps Youth Of Province

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage lashed out Sunday at some of Quebec's young people, describing as regrettable "the social phenomenon of regressive evolution."

He said some of Quebec's students are an "unthinking mass, sheep - like, unjustly emotive, hatefully prejudiced." Some people whom education has led only to agnosticism.

He was speaking at the official opening of St. Lawrence College, a Lasalle junior college for English - speaking Roman Catholics.

Mr. Lesage said people outside Quebec often ask what Quebec wants.

"Well, I think that St. Lawrence College is an example of what we would like to see in other provinces. We hope that they will give the French-Canadian minorities institutions such as this in Quebec and of which St. Lawrence College is one of the best models."

Mr. Lesage said some of the province's young people are "unthinking conformists" and a "beardless youths."

"No one is more comically arrogant than a bearded youth who finds an idea and imagines he is its author.

"In history the wrong way, these retarded adolescents forget that we were at that stage only a few years ago while they rocked in their cradles with their eyes closed."

He mentioned the Royal Visit to Quebec last October, and said:

"Is it not deliberately cultivating a symbolism to use arguments against the constitutional monarchy that are valid only against an absolute monarchy? how many times in many things to remain as they were in 1867 should we have demonstrated against the Queen of Canada.

"Her title itself implies that our country is master of its destinies and that it has been decided that a symbol of all the loud voices it was not easy to understand the profound meaning of a message spoken by the Queen in Quebec: The role of the monarchy is to guarantee the existence of the popular will."

"It seems to me," Mr. Lesage said, "that failing to understand such a clear message implies that one wants stubbornly to close the mind so as to put the question aside."

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARTER, Sports Editor

One of St. Michael's best-known graduates came back to the seat of learning that launched him on illustrious academic and athletics careers the other night.

Gary Schreiber, a rising young Ottawa lawyer, better known, perhaps, as a defensive halfback star of the Ottawa Rough Riders, returned to the scene of teen-age clean-cram and gridiron triumphs in the role of guest speaker.

He spoke to the large graduating class of the Academy, armed parents, friends, the clergy and sisters. He gave a fine address to his "fellow graduates" as he termed them, urging them to adhere closely to three important phases of graduation life, study, sports and the social aspect.

And in nostalgic moments he recalled many incidents, serious and humorous, that occurred during his student life at St. Michael's.

And I'm sure that in the telling, nostalgia flooded the minds of those two gracious gentle women, Sister Mary Andrew, St. Michael's principal, and Sister Mary Avita, Gary's special teacher during his student sojourn.

Gary has never been farther away than television or newspaper from the sisters during his successful climb through the halls of learning and on the football gridiron. They are, if I may use the expression, two of his "greatest fans."

I did get Gary's ear for a minute or two after the exercises were over. There was some hesitation about asking his opinion of the Grey Cup final for, after all, he has played for the B. C. Lions, the Hamilton Tiger Cats and the Ottawa Rough Riders, the three clubs directly involved in the eastern finals and the cup epic itself.

However, I got the impression the Rough Riders are his first and last professional football love. He was of the impression the better club won the Cup on the day's play, but when some one asked about the disastrous second Tigers-Riders eastern final game, Gary shook his head. "We should have taken that one."

Gary's father, one of this city's finer quarterbacks in the days of amateur football, and later a topnotch baseball umpire, was down from Toronto for the occasion.

Ed told me with a knowing shake of that grey-frecked, crew-cut head that the Grey Cup struggle was "Lions all the way and their secret lay in their short-passing game."

But the younger Schreiber's football future remains in the hands of Mother Nature and medical science. Gary has been a special target for the injury jinx.

A year ago he suffered a novel setback in that a part of a shoulder muscle was torn away in the heat of battle. At first it was believed to be a fractured collarbone but X-rays revealed the strange injury. The torn muscle was replaced by the wonder of modern surgery—and Gary was ready for the 1964 season.

Then the injury gremlin again rode herd on the Ottawa star. He played four games this year and in the fifth found it folly to roll away when an opponent's foot had a knee locked firmly to the ground.

The result, a torn cartilage which in turn resulted in the surgical removing the cartilage. But all is not hopeless. Gary's doctor has high hopes that with proper attention, exercise and care the knee will round into playing shape in time for next season.

Was it the Argos' rejection of Coach Frank Claire's request for player control that ended with "no deal?"

"Partly so," said Gary. "But I think Clair felt he was honor bound to investigate the Argos' offer. He found out what it was and you know the rest. I don't think he was too serious about it—but at least he knows what it was all about."

What about new management taking over the Riders?"

Gary smiled. "I don't know what will happen — but I hope things stay as they are."

Hawks Drop Pair As Hull Scores 3

By TED BLACKMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Despite sore bones and hurt feelings Detroit Red Wings patched themselves together Sunday night to score their "biggest" victory of the season, a 4-1 triumph over Montreal Canadiens.

The win, less than 25 hours after the injury-racked Wings were scuttled 10-2 by Toronto Maple Leafs, enabled Detroit to regain its three-point lead over Toronto and Montreal atop the National Hockey League standings.

New York Rangers climbed nearer the leaders with a 3-3 tie in Boston Saturday night and a 4-1 victory over the Black Hawks in Chicago Sunday night. The Hawks dropped both weekend games, losing 5-3 in Montreal Saturday night and then to New York.

The Rangers moved to within one point of Montreal and Toronto while leaving the Hawks six points behind in fifth. Chicago's only advance was by Bobby Hull, who scored three times to run his record to 20 goals in 21 games.

With two regulars out with injuries, three players wearing protective helmets and two more playing with broken fingers, the Wings surprised Montreal with 43 shots and were ahead 4-0 before the Canadiens awakened.

Detroit's third line performed the heroics in place of the hobbling first stringers. Linemates Bruce MacGregor, Paul Henderson and Pit Martin each scored once while Alex Delvecchio added the fourth.

RUINED SHUTOUT

Ralph Backstrom ruined Roger Crozier's shutout for a shot out with his seventh goal of the season, the only one of 33 Montreal shots that fooled the rookie goalie.

Earl Ingarfield and Phil Goyette sent the Rangers ahead 2-0 before Hull closed the gap on a Chicago power play late in the second period. But two goals by Ron Gilbert in the final, sewed up Chicago's fourth loss in five games.

Paille was nearly a hero in Boston, too, but the Bruins scored on two of 18 shots in the final period and earned the win with Ross Kennedy's goal in the 18th minute.

Vic Hadfield, Gilbert and Dick Duff scored for New York while Wayne Maxner and Tom Williams got Boston's first two goals.

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The high-flying hands erect amid the rubble of Chicago Black Hawks' collapse.

While the floundering Hawks lost two weekend games, Hull scored three times. He now has 20 goals in 21 games, a pace that would carry him to 66 markers in the 70-game schedule.

Hull's production gave him 36 points, three more than runner-up Norm Ullman of Detroit Red Wings in the National Hockey League's individual scoring race. Chicago's Stan Mikita is third with 27.

Camille Henry of New York Rangers moved into fourth place at 20 points after a three-point weekend. Tied for fifth are New York's Phil Goyette, who had two goals and four assists, and Claude Provost of Montreal Canadiens, who earned three assists.

The leaders:

	G	A	PTS.
Hull, Chicago	20	6	26
Ullman, Detroit	11	14	25
Mikita, Chicago	10	23
Henry, New York	10	10	20
Provost, Montreal	8	11	19
Goyette, New York	6	13	19
Bathgate, Toronto	9	9	18

It's also been a long time since Detroit coach Sid Abel has seen a run of goals such as 14,185 Toronto fans witnessed Saturday night. Dave Keon, Ron Ellis and Red Kelly led the scoring parade with two goals each while Bathgate, George Armstrong, Ron Stewart and Jim Pappin added singles. Crozier stopped Toronto's other 31 shots.

Norm Ullman, playing with a broken finger, scored his 11th of the season for the Wings and Martin also tallied to stave off complete embarrassment. Ex-Wing Terry Sawchuk stopped 34 shots in the Toronto goal.

Ullman's point gave him 25 so far this season, one less than Hull in the individual scoring race.

Hull shored twice against the Canadiens, both on blistering shots, but the rest of the game belonged to Montreal. Henri Richard scored twice for the Habs, his second putting Montreal ahead for keeps 21 seconds after Hull had pulled the Hawks into a 2-2 tie at 7:10 of the third period.

Gilles Tremblay, Jacques Laperriere and Ted Harris also counted for Montreal while Phil Esposito got Chicago's other goal.

Hull notched No. 20 against the Rangers, the only shot to beat Marcel Paille of the 41 he handled. Paille filled the Rangers cage while Jacques Plante rested during the weekend.

Chuvalo Will KO Patterson - - Rocky

Three Or Four Rounds

By JERRY GLADMAN

TORONTO (CP)—Rocky Marciano, former undefeated heavyweight boxing champion, calls George Chuvalo to knock out another former champion, Floyd Patterson, in three or four rounds when they meet in New York Jan. 22.

The Toronto fighter signed last Monday to meet Patterson of Scarsdale, N.Y., to decide who will qualify for a crack at the championship, left vacant when the World Boxing Association stripped Cassius Clay of the title for signing to meet ex-champion Sonny Liston in a return match.

Some might suggest prejudice overshadows logic in Rocky's prediction—the former Brockton, Mass. Blockbuster is an adviser in the Chuvalo camp—but he presents strong arguments to back up his confidence.

What Marciano particularly likes about Chuvalo is the likeness between George and the Rocky Marciano of the early 1950s. He appears to have the basic ingredient that went into making Rocky the great champion he was—top physical conditioning.

Chuvalo, like Marciano, who was knocked down only twice in a 43-bout career, has a granite jaw. The Toronto fighter has never been seriously hurt, let alone knocked off his feet.

HAS NEW MANAGER

Now under new management —prominent Toronto businessmen, Irv Underman, and associates, and with veteran trainer Theodore McWhorter—the 210-pound Chuvalo no longer stands flat-footed, his hands by his sides, leaving himself open for counter punches. He now keeps his hands high, employs a crisp left jab and throws many combinations.

Chuvalo displayed his new skills in October when he stopped highly ranked Doug Jones in 11 rounds in New York to step into the title picture.

Marciano, at the Chuvalo training camp near here Saturday, was asked how he thought George would make out with either Clay or Liston he said:

"Both by knockout, especially Liston.

"That fight with Doug Jones showed George what he can do. Patterson is a great boxer but I think he's lost interest in the game and is taking this fight only because he wants to go out a winner. I hate to make predictions, but Chuvalo is too strong and will get Floyd early."

The WBA originally arranged an elimination tournament with Chuvalo suffering a gunshot wound in the stomach. He is confined to a hospital bed for a few months and his bout with Terrell is unlikely to come off before April.

Bears Hot, Unbeaten In 13 Starts

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Neither unlucky 13 nor unfriendly surroundings stayed Hershey Bears from their appointed rounds.

The Bears came into Providence Sunday night trying to get together a 13-game unbeaten streak in their American Hockey League campaign and shaved off with a 1-0 victory over the Reds.

Coming on the heels of a 4-1 victory over the Indians at Springfield Saturday night, the squeaker helped the Bears cut a thin slice off Quebec's lead in the AHL's Eastern Division. The Aces, also thriving on road work, whipped Baltimore Clippers 5-3 but had to settle for a 3-3 tie with the Hornets at Pittsburgh Sunday night to stay seven points ahead.

Rochester Americans, the western leaders, breezed to a 7-1 victory over Cleveland Barons and Buffalo Bisons beat Springfield 3-2 in other Sunday night games. Cleveland edged Providence 4-3 Saturday.

Hawks Clobber Generals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oshawa Generals did all right on their trip to Boston Saturday but they didn't seem to have anything left when they faced St. Catharines Black Hawks Sunday in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A action.

The Generals nipped Niagara Flyers 5-1 in a game played at Boston, home of the National Hockey League Bruins, sponsors of both junior clubs, because a new arena in Oshawa was not finished in time.

But the Generals no sooner set foot back in the country than they were clobbered 8-1 by St. Catharines in a game in which Ken Hodge scored four goals. The win carried St. Catharines out of the cellar and into sixth place in the eight-team league.

In other action Sunday, the league - leading Toronto Marlboros had a 4-3 victory over Montreal Canadiens and Peterborough Petes downed Kitchener Rangers 2-1.

Hodge picked up the first three goals for St. Catharines and the fourth with less than half a minute to play. Other Hawk tallies were by Mickey Chervatiy, Brian McDonald, Doug Shelton and Wayne Makl. Bobby Orr scored for the Generals.

In Montreal, Roy Winterstein, Paul Laurent, Al Osborne and Mike Corrigan were the Marlboro marksmen. Montreal scorers. were Rene Drolet and Jacques Lemaire.

In Kitchener, Leo Thiffault netted two and Dan Grant one for the Petes. Sandy Pittpatrick scored the Rangers' lone goal.

Saturday, in Boston, Oshawa's Wayne Cashman counted twice and Bill Little, once. Jean Pronovost got the Niagara Falls goal. The game is believed to be the first that two OHA junior teams have played outside Canada.

U.S. Team Wins Canada Cup

By ROB MYERS

KAANAPALI, Hawaii (AP)—The Canada Cup, emblematic of world supremacy of professional golf, will remain in the fifth straight year in the United States.

And the international Trophy belongs for the second successive year to Jack Nicklaus.

Nicklaus staged the kind of rally made famous by Arnold Palmer, coming from six strokes back of Arnie starting the final 18 holes.

At the finish it was Nicklaus, 276, and Palmer, 278.

The American two-man team compiled 554 strokes with Argentina next at 565 and South Africa third with 568.

The Canadian pair, Al Balding of Markham, Ont., and George Knudson of Toronto, was never in the hunt for team or individual honors. Their 284 total, composed of identical 292s, was good for seventh place among the teams and left them in a three-way tie for 17th place in medal play.

BREAKS PAR ONCE

Knudson broke par once with a third-round 71 after a pair of 74s had put him out of the running at the halfway mark. Balding alternated between par 72 and 74 in his four rounds.

Palmer led South Africa's Gary Player by three and back by six setting forth under the bright blue sky. Player caught Palmer at the 10th and Nicklaus joined the group at the 11th.

Player's game fell apart soon after. The South African went over par on four straight holes, starting with the 13th. He finished with 279 and a tie for third with Hawaii's Ted Makalena.

Other team scores: Spain, 572; England, 578; Hawaii 579; Japan, 585; Brazil, 587; Belgium, 588; China, 590, and Wales, 591.

Kingston Defeats Trenton

TRENTON (Special) — Kingston midgets and juveniles chalked up victories over their Trenton counterparts in a rough and rugged exhibition twin-bill before a large crowd here Sunday evening.

Kingston midgets thumped Trenton Lions 7-2 and Kingston juveniles dumped Trenton Legion by a 5-3 score.

The midget game saw no less than 44 penalties dished out to the two clubs with 26 of that total coming in the third period.

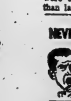
Penalties were less in number in the juvenile tilt but included in the total was a misconduct to Trenton's Art Hampson for being third man in a fight.

The Lions led Kingston 1-0 at the end of the first period but it was 4-1 after two periods and the visitors held a 3-1 margin in the penalty-riddled third stanza.

Jim Bigwood potted Trenton's lead goal but it was 7-1 before Rick Mounce got his club's second marker.

Kingston goals were shared by Gavel, Feeley, Nicholson, Sprout, Best, Hare and Galt.

In the juvenile action, the teams were deadlocked 1-1 after one heat and it was still a tight 2-1 contest, in favor of Kingston, entering the final period.



Dennis McCulloch paced the Kingston scorers with three goals. Terry Landon and Mario Crevier banged the others.

The marbles have been won and lost in the West. But the title races will go down to the wire in the eastern divisions of both major United States professional football leagues.

Two league finalists are home and dry. Baltimore Colts, the National League champion title-holders, could even afford the luxury of a 31-14 defeat at the hands of Detroit Lions Sunday while San Diego Chargers made it official for the fourth time in five years in the American League's western section by pasting New York Jets 38-3.

But it was another story in the East. St. Louis Cardinals who had to beat Cleveland Browns to retain a chance of catching them in the NFL, did just that, 28-19, reducing the gap to half a game with one to play.

Oakland Raiders were the spoilers in the AFL as Tom Flores tossed a three - yard touchdown pass to Art Powell, a former Toronto Argonaut, to give them a 16-13 victory over Buffalo Bills. The loss dropped them into a deadlock with Boston Patriots, 24-21 victors over Kansas City Chiefs.

That left Buffalo with a 10-2 record and Boston at 10-3. The Patriots are idle this week while Buffalo has a game with Denver Broncos. Regardless of the outcome of the Bills' game with Denver, the eastern title goes on the line in the final game of the regular season, Boston at Buffalo.

VISIT NEW YORK

In the NFL battle, Cleveland visits New York Saturday and the Giants, struggling through a dismal season after three straight eastern crowns, once again are a vital factor in the eastern race.

Should the Browns win Saturday, Sunday's game between Philadelphia Eagles and St. Louis won't mean a thing. But a Giant victory could give the Cards the crown if St. Louis gets by the Eagles.

The Giants lost their ninth in 13 games Sunday, bowing to Minnesota Twins 30-21. In other NFL games, Pittsburgh Steelers topped Washington Redskins 14-7, Philadelphia downed Dallas Cowboys 34-14, and San Francisco 49ers defeated Los Angeles Rams 38-7. Saturday it was Green Bay Packers 17, Chicago Bears 3.

Charley Johnson keyed the Cardinal triumph, pitching two touchdown passes and running short yardage for two more scores as St. Louis stalled Cleveland's title drive. Johnson completed 15 of 22 for 167 yards.

Lou Groza kept the Browns in the game, booting four field goals.

Clay, Liston Rematch
Claim Date Is Not Set

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Gordon Davidson, a spokesman for the group which sponsors heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay, Saturday denied a published report that a date has been set for a rematch between Clay and former heavyweight champion Sonny Liston.

Edward J. Powers, president of Boston Garden, said he had been contacted by Bob Nilon, president of Intercontinental Promotions Incorporated, to set aside April 19, as a tentative date for the bout.

The fight originally was scheduled in Boston Nov. 16 but was postponed when Clay under went a hernia operation Nov. 13.

Davidson said Intercontinental Promotions and the Louisville sponsoring organization have not agreed to any date.

He added that neither the Louisville group nor Clay can consider any date until Clay is examined by doctors to determine his condition after recovering from the operation.

McMASTER BEATEN

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Frank Carter produced 40 points to pace Roberts Wesleyan to a 105-93 basketball victory over McMaster University of Hamilton, Saturday night. Carter also helped Bill Bachman of the backboards. Carter pulled down 17 rebounds and Bachman 23, despite the Canadian team's height advantage. Vince Drake and Paul Allingham scored 18 points each for McMaster.

New Church Is Dedicated By Lutherans at Bancroft

BANCROFT — Sixty-five years ago a group of north European immigrants dedicated the first Christ Lutheran Church at Bancroft, then only a settlement about fifteen miles north of Bancroft.

On Sunday at 3.00 p.m., their descendants and many newcomers, perhaps even some of the original congregation will be attending the dedication of a new church, much larger, and built of brick.

Conducting the dedication service will be the Rev. Dr. A. W. Lotz, the first resident pastor of the church, serving from 1930-1934 and now president of the Eastern Canada Synod of the Lutheran Church in America.

At the Dedication Vespers at 7.30 on Sunday evening, Rev. Godfrey Oelsner, pastor from 1954 to 1958 and now pastor of Redeemer Lutheran Church, in London, will be the guest speaker. Celebrations will continue during the week. On Tuesday, December 8th, at 7.30 p.m. the Rev. Herbert Gastpastor from 1950 to 1954 and now pastor of Zion Lutheran Church, Stratford, will speak at a special community service. Also taking part will be the Rev. V. MacPearson of Holy Trinity Anglican Church, Maynooth.

The building of the new church was begun in May, 1964, when the congregation did not have the services of a resident pastor. At that time the congregation was being supplied, by Dr. Meissner of St. Timothy's Lutheran Church, Pembroke. On July 1st, Rev. M. K. Schroeder was called to begin his pastorate when the building project was well underway. The cornerstone for the new church was laid at a special ceremonial service on September 6th, 1964.

TOWNSHIP OFFICERS ELECTED

All nomination meetings have been held in district townships with the municipal officers of the following being returned by acclamation:

Dungannon — Reeve, Calvin White; councillors, James Brown, Allan Hall, Ewart Bupnow and Sandy McGibbon; school board trustees, Gordon Card and Lloyd Jan.

Wollaston — Reeve, William J. O'Brien; councillors, C. H. Gunter, Clarence Batchelor, Gerald Moore and William Crosby; school board trustees, Roy Ingram and Mrs. Jean Moore.

Mazinaigie — Reeve, S. J. Carr; councillors, John Beecham, Joseph Best, Charles McCormick and Henry Neiman; school board trustees, Lawrence Bandy, Harold Douglas, Clifford Hind, Emerson Robinson and John Freymond.

Herschel-Seneca, Frank Pever; councillors, Kenneth Fisher, Joseph Foster, Mrs. Dorothy Summers and John Hughes; school board trustees, Walter McCormick, Harrison Tws, Wilfred Holbrook, Jabez Sutherland and Gordon Bowen.

Carlow-Mayo, Gerald Caldwell; councillors, Mac Douglas, Gordon Mayhew, Gilbert Mackay and Thomas Fulton; school board trustees, Frances Mackay, Mackey Wryte and John Whyte.

Several other townships are holding elections either today or Monday, December 14th.

The townships of Bangor, Wicklow and McClure have elected a new reeve by acclamation. Delmond Card will replace Elgin Oram who now resides in the village of Bancroft. Councillors elected by acclamation were John Williams, Ernest McManus, Floyd Brethour and John Donaldson.

SCHOOL BOARD TRUSTEES

An election for school board trustees is being held with five to be elected from the following nominees: Noble Baragar, Mrs. Charlotte Brethour, Simon Chapleau, Lloyd Foster, Mrs. Margaret Hinkley, William Murray, Ross Olmstead and George Steele.

Following a second nomination meeting for councillors five candidates' names will appear on the election ballot: Ray Hannah, Arthur McMunn, Mrs. Marguerite Young, Mrs. Myrtle Barber and Harold Manifield. Mr. Hannah is a previous reeve, and Messrs. McMunn and Manifield are Mrs. Barber were members of the 1964 council.

At the first nomination meeting E. W. Cunningham received an acclamation for his second term. School trustees Roy Brown and Herbert White also received an acclamation.

On Monday an election will be held in Limerick township for reeve, council and school board trustees. Reeve George M. Park, who is campaigning for his fifth term, is being opposed by Merton J. Hamm.

DISCARD PLANS

Plans to inaugurate a local chapter of the Ontario Heart Fund in Bancroft were discarded when only three persons from a special meeting held on Wednesday in an attempt to gain support from local residents.

The Rev. Henry G. Funge, local organizer, expressed disappointment at the lack of interest shown in the endeavor. However, donations to the work of the foundation will be accepted by himself or by the Hastin Funeral Home to aid in the research being carried on in many universities and hospitals.

REORGANIZE SCOUTS

Following the closure of Faraday Mine and the transfer of several key members the Madawaska District Boy Scout Council is facing a sharp decline in membership, both Scouters and non-uniform volunteers.

In an effort to save the district from becoming totally unorganized Walter J. Harpur, Cobourg, Provincial Field Executive will be attending a meeting of the council to be held in the Hotel Bancroft on Thursday, December 8th, to meet with the Entire District Council and members of all group committees.

Registered to date in five troops and two packs are 55 Boy Scouts and 34 Wolf Cubs with 13 Scouters. This is a large reduction from previous years when six troops and five packs were in operation.

The district covers a large territory from Combermere in the north to Coe Hill in the south and this presents many unique administrative problems, said Donald Littlepropd. Many miles have to be travelled each month by the District Commissioner and this probably contributes to the fact that it has been impossible to replace H. W. Brown who was transferred to Perth last April.

EXCHANGE MINERAL SAMPLES

A special meeting of the Bancroft Mineral Society will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Pitts on Tuesday, December 8th when gifts of rock and mineral samples will be exchanged by the members.

The president, Harold Petch, reports that several groups of geologists have conducted field trips in the area during the fall months. Queen's University, University of Western Ontario, University of Toronto and the University of Pennsylvania.

Several of Bancroft's young people are making a name for themselves in the field of geology. One of these is Dr. Kenneth Card who received his education in Lake St. Peter, at North Hastings High School and Queen's University and is now resident geologist in Sudbury for the Ontario Department of Mines. He recently led Professor J. R. Kramer of Syracuse University and Dr. E. Picor of the U.S. Geological Survey on a field trip to obtain local specimens.

NEW YORK (AP) — Macedonia, claimed last July for $25,000, posted his first stakes success Saturday with a victory in the $58,350 Stuyvesant Handicap before a chilled crowd of 40,296 at Aqueduct.

The four - year - old son of Olympia - Pandora never was headed as he stepped the muddy mile in 1:35 2-5 under 119 pounds. He finished three-quarters of a length in front of Patrice Jacobs Sonbrero.

Favored Third Martini, seeking his 12th victory of the year under top weight of 125 pounds, forced the pace during the early stages, but wound up a well-beaten third.

Macedonia earned $16,622.50 for Sam J. Rubin in the nine starts since being claimed by the New York real estate operator and trainer from Jacobson, the chestnut gelding has recorded three victories, four second and two third.

For his triumph in the Stuyvesant, Macedonia paid $16.70, $8.90 and $5.30. Third Martini turned $8.70 and $5.40 and Place was $3.40 to show.

At 1 1-16 miles, Tom Stone wrapped up the Maryland two-year-old championship Saturday with a 1¼ - length victory in the $22,025 Pimlico Breeders' Stakes.

Actors Enchanting Puppets In NBC Special Sunday

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The NBC special Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer on Sunday's children's hour was a program of sheer delight for young and old.

The writers imaginatively enlarged on the well-known lyrics of the holiday song. Actors were enchanting puppets.

Rudolph, whose nose glowed a glorious crimson, was a sweet little buck reindeer with the charm of Bambi. He suffered horribly from his unusual affliction.

Eventually he met up with Herbie, one of Santa's elves who also was a misfit—Herbie didn't like to make toys, he wanted to be a dentist.

And, along with a silver and gold prospector named Cornelius of the Yukon, they managed to conquer and reform the fearsome abominable monster.

USES NOSE

Eventually, of course, Santa used Rudolph's illuminated nose to guide him through snowy skies.

Burl Ives, the voice of a puppet snowman who looks exactly like Burl Ives, told the tall tale, underlining the gentle moral, with exactly the right inflections.

Jules Bass, ostensibly for children, was full of delightful adult wit and a bit of satire.

Rudolph was the second only once—at the end. NBC should add this one to its growing list of programs to repeat each year.

ABC says that Bing Crosby—who started the White Christmas thing in 1942—will sing his famous number in the Dec. 21 episode of his current comedy series.

Richard T. Ely, a courageous economics professor who defended the right to teach all sides of a question, was the subject of Sunday night's NBC Profilles in Courage.

The 19th century university instructor was not among the heroes included in the John F. Kennedy book, basis of the series, but the selection of Ely and a few others to make 26 shows was approved by the former president. The treatment of the Ely story was dramatic, inspiring and made some contemporary points.

US College Football

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two U.S. college football games, postponed earlier, were cleared off the slate Saturday, with queens crowned at both.

At Oxford, Miss., Mississippi State's injury plagued Maroons used Quarterback Jerry Rushel for the first time in 13 years, 20-17.

And in a night game at Baton Rouge, La., Florida's Gators adapted to near-freezing temperatures faster than did Louisiana State and emerged with a 20-6 upset triumph.

Mississippi, which has a date against Tulsa in the Bluebonnet Bowl Dec. 19, finished the season with a 5-4-1 win-loss-tie record, while Mississippi state was 4-6.

HALF STARS

Halfback Dan Bland starred for the winners in this bruising contest, running to set up the field goal that sent Mississippi State ahead in the dying seconds of the first half and intercepting a pass in the fourth quarter that led to the clinching touchdown.

Florida's victory gave it second place in the Southeastern Conference behind national champion Alabama and knocked Sugar Bowl-bound LSU down to fifth place in the league standings.

In a post - season bowl game Saturday, the rugged Raiders of Florida A and M trounced Grambling 43-15 in the Orange Blossom classic in Miami's Orange Bowl.

Bit of Old Blighty Seen In Valley in California

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—There's a bit of Old Blighty in the nearby Conejo Valley these days.

Listen to the accents on the King Rat set and you might think you're in Piccadilly, that's how British it is. The movie is kind of a reverse affair, being made by a British producer, director - writer and cast, with the exception of New Yorker George Segal as the Rat himself.

The Columbia film is shooting near Thousand Oaks on a ranch owned by the Hawaiian Steamship Company. There studio craftsmen have constructed an amazing replica of Singapore's Changi Prison, where during the war 10,000 Allied prisoners were housed by the Japanese in facilities originally intended for 600.

It's quite a set. The permanent prison towers with harsh reality over clusters of thatched huts designed to house the overflow of prisoners. On the hillsides are scatterings of coconut palms and other portable plants to simulate the tropical foliage. The grass-roofed huts recently got a coat of green paint to add to the effect. Total cost of the set: $275,000.

ACTORS IMPORTED

Fourteen English actors were imported for top roles, and they were augmented by members of the local British colony. Explains the set's producer, They had to be skinny, if not emaciated, and the screen extras guild couldn't supply the hundreds that were needed. Casting agents enlisted others from state unemployment offices.

Producing King Rat is James Woolf (Room at The Top). The director's former actor Bryan Forbes, who scored last year with his direction of The L-shaped Room.

One day after lunch Forbes paused to explain why the film was being made in California:

"Because it would be impossible to make in England. Even in the summer there would be no assurance of good weather and we could run into another Cleopatra type of disaster.

"Yes, we could have shot it in Singapore, but that would have meant transporting a complete cast and crew and finding a thousand Caucasians for prison inmates. And although the prison is still standing, we couldn't shoot outside of it without filming a forest of television aerials."

Madoc

The Madoc Co-operative Association held its 18th annual meeting and banquet in the cafeteria of the Centre Hastings Secondary School on Thursday evening. Rev. James H. Thompson gave the invocation.

Chairman and president of the Madoc branch, Mr. James A. Miller read reports as head table guests. In his remarks he expressed his personal thanks for the assistance during the past directors and officers. The minutes of the last annual meeting were read by the secretary, Mr. Earl. Sager. In the auditor's report, read by Mr. H. Watson, of Lindsay, it showed that the sale figures recorded the highest on record, a total of $332,841.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mr. Harold Harris introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Percy Gardiner, United Co-operatives, from Kemptville. Mr. Gardiner outlined a successful branch as having good management, workable by-laws, a board of directors, good employees and members. With such a report of the high standard of the financial report and officers' remarks, it was evident that the Madoc branch was a thriving co-op. He then explained the functions of the United Co-operatives, outlining the work and projects of the association. He mentioned that in 1965 there will an act will go before parliament to request opening of long-term charters. Mr. Gardiner gave a few interesting predictions of the future in the next fifteen years for the U.C.O.

MAKES PREDICTIONS

He indicated that five feed mills would be in Ontario and perhaps three or four fertilizer plants. He felt in seven years suggested that bulk feed delivery would be done by helicopter. Mr. Gardiner concluded his address in expressing his appreciation and thanks to all members.

Mr. J. Millar introduced Co-op representative for the county agriculturist representative to say a few words, who had come from Foxboro, Peterborough, Campbellford and Tweed.

NEW DIRECTORS

Election of auditors and directors for the ensuing year was conducted, with the result that the present chartered accountants be engaged, along with Mr. Wilfred Wright and Mr. G. Ketcheson as new directors.

Mr. Irwin McCoy on behalf of all present thanked Mrs. Carman Downey and ladies of the Bethesd Mrs. Wilfred Wright Lake for their excellent catering.

Shastri's Gentle Manner Covers Flinty Attitude on World Issues

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Plaid-shirted Lal Bahadur Shastri, surrounded by aides, arrived at the London press conference like a small boy dutifully accompanying his elders.

The frail, 61-year-old prime minister, shuffling shyly over to join the others, was the embodiment of a finely-featured, well-behaved urchin.

As the unseasoned went to work, Shastri gazed serenely about with mild amusement. Then he was asked a question about how glad he was to meet so many nice people. He found he had brought some Indian sunshine to London which he had always heard as a foggy place.

Some correspondents, facing the frail, flinty-eyed statesman premier for the first time, found it difficult to believe they were listening to the leader of the world's most populous country apart from China.

UNITY DETERMINATION

Shastri received each question with the same amiable hint of soon became clear that the gentle exterior covers a flinty determination on such matters as relations with China and its aggression to domestic Indian problems.

Shastri, 60, sounded a bit like an echo of his predecessor, the late premier Nehru, when he spoke of possible new directions on disarmament at the United Nations, and guarantees against attack by nuclear powers.

But then he emphasized that Indian policy must place its defence against an aggressive Communist China in a place equally important with its starvation-scale economic problems.

Asked how particular India could hope to defend itself against China, which itself has developed a nuclear device, Shastri replied:

"We will rely on our own ways and means as to how to defend ourselves."

"This world is big enough, vast enough to tackle this problem. Most of the world is without nuclear devices and weapons, and therefore we should not think purely in selfish terms. . . . I do hope that all the non-nuclear countries will combine in opposing this."

Shastri, however, is mostly concerned at present with economic problems and a flood of civil strife which have shaken India since he took power five months ago. Seventy per cent of outside investment in India now comes from British and Shastri would like to see more.

Admirers hope that Shastri will emerge from the present trip—his first to Britain and Europe as head of world's Indian with added prestige enabling him to give stronger leadership at home.

The Indian government suffered from indecision for a few years during Nehru's decline and it is widely felt that Shastri has not yet completely come out of the shadow of his much-revered former leader.

Bulletins From Birdland

By WINIFRED R. WILSON

WONDERFUL EYESIGHT

Birds have wonderful eyesight. Perhaps they were content because, but they certainly do not seem to require glasses. Although unable to move their eyes as we do, they can rotate their necks in order to see on every side, and their eyesight is so large in proportion to the size of their bodies. Even when they are flying they can see the ground over the exact spot where they want to land. But the eyesight of certain birds is really remarkable.

Think of an osprey, perhaps 200 feet above a lake, looking for a bit of swimming fish. Down it dives, catching the prey in its strong talons. A king fisher waits quietly on a branch overhanging water, watching for a fish to come by — then diver, bringing up the prey in its capacious bill. This bird even fishes at night sometimes. And a gannet may dive from a height of 60 feet above the surface to reach a herring or a mackerel 50 feet under water.

The barred owl's vulture has amazing power of sight. Not equipped with tools for killing prey, it must find a dead animal. Modern highways are now providing it with such victuals, and it is extraordinary how speedily the unfortunate victim can be detected by these scavengers of the south.

Most birds have their eyes so placed that they do not have to focus on the same image; but the eyes of owls are placed like ours, so that like us they have bi-ocular vision. Being able, however, to turn their head in either direction to see behind them they have an advantage over us. Another owl's eye-sight, too, is something like 100 times keener than ours, so that it is extremely dim light they can see a tiny mouse, a grasshopper, or a chicken. In bright light the iris closes around the pupil. Also a very thin membrane, actually a third eyelid, automatically is drawn sideways across the eye. What a boon this would be to motorists driving into the sun! No need for stopping to adjust dark glasses.

Hawks also have this third eyelid and find it particularly useful when looking right into the sun's rays. They probably have the most highly developed vision in the world. A hawk can see as high in the sky that it is almost invisible to us can spot a little field mouse hiding in a grass tuft, and in a few seconds there is no more mouse.

Political Corruption India's Biggest Headache

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Political corruption remains one of India's biggest headaches.

So far, all efforts to curb it have failed.

Allegations of corruption have even been levelled at some ministers and leaders of the ruling Congress party, mostly by their political opponents, the Communists and others.

Some politicians have had their careers cut short as a result.

Public complaints against many others continue to be voiced, but most of them have so far escaped investigation and their apparent affluence and influence remains unimpaired.

Their apparent immunity from prosecution, however, has made many Indians bitter. Some have complained that while minor civil servants without influence have been punished for alleged corrupt practices, the influential ones have escaped.

Mrs. Indira Gandhi, daughter of former Prime Minister Nehru and now minister for information and broadcasting, maintains India is no more corrupt than any other country in the world. She told Congress party leaders that too much talk about corruption has given a wrong impression.

Prime Minister Shastri, too, has denied that India is a country "seething with corruption."

If one Minister "drinks" Nehru, he admits the existence of corruption in the country and has taken upon himself the task of eradicating it in two years. He has vowed to leave nothing undone to provide a clean administration within this period.

The barometer of the extent of corruption is the amount of "black money" in circulation. According to unofficial, but expert, estimates, the amount of money unaccounted for in India is about 10,000,000,000 rupees.

No income tax has been paid on this amount, believed to have been amassed as a result of illegal transactions, smuggling, dishonest commercial deals and other corrupt practices.

Medical Expedition to Island Has Own Distinctive Flag

ABOARD HMCS CAPE SCOTT (CP)—The Medical Expedition to Easter Island had a flag problem just before it began its real discussion and with some fast needlework on the way to the South Seas.

The Canada - based medical task force, sailing to study the Pacific Island's authority as it against the question of a distinctive flag for the expedition as the Canadian Navy ship that headed from Bermuda to San Juan, Puerto Rico.

A design was quickly approved, unanimously. The problem came in getting it sewn. It turned in time to run up for the entrance to San Juan Bay.

The yeoman of signals provided the materials from unused pennants. Cmdr. C. A. (Tony) Lay, the ship's executive and a well-known artist, helped get the design transferred to cloth. The ladies of the company invaded the sailmaker's quarters and put sewing machines to work. Maniacs and scors helped in trimming loose ends.

The flag was flying by the time the American Island was reached. It bears the initials of the expedition's title — METEI (Medical Expedition to Easter Island)—vertically on a white background.

With that hurry-up problem disposed of, the expedition members were free to turn full attention to a demanding occupation of the long voyage—learning Spanish and Polynesian.

These are the languages of the 1,200 natives of Easter Island. Here are to be subjected to an unprecedented integrated medical research program before civilization strikes their output 2,500 miles off the coast of Chile with the construction of a jet plane field.

Two members of the expedition, Anna Kaplan of Halifax and Isobel Griffith of Montreal, are Spanish and are conducting daily lessons in that language.

The researchers are trying to get a grip on the essentials of Polynesian through a lexicon prepared by Father Sebastian, who labored 25 years on Easter Island.

The expedition, which sailed from Halifax Nov. 18, is one of the Canadian Medical Centennial projects and will be done until Feb. 11. The project is sponsored by the World Health Organization and the Medical Research Foundation of Canada. The Canadian government has contributed transportation both ways and $100,000 for the cost of the research team and its stores.

Youth Column

Ottawa Takes New Look At Juvenile Delinquency

OTTAWA (CP)—Tucked in a corner of the Ottawa police station is a new arm of the law in the department's continuing fight against juvenile crime.

The youth liaison section was organized last spring in response to urgings from many social agencies. Its head is Detective Kenneth Spratt, 37-year-old father of four. Eleven of his 18 years on the force have been in the juvenile division, much of the time working with youths.

The new section's aim is to halt potentially criminal youths before they land in court, and if necessary, legal action against parents.

Starting with modest resources and a small staff, the section is already in touch with 300 youths and has referred 450 letters have been mailed to parents.

Staff the letters were answered, with parents in each case thanking police and promising to help keep the youth whose parent replied has appeared in trouble since.

Lieut. Spratt says if a youth's name is recorded three times in connection with a petty act, all is felt this is sufficient evidence on which to lay a parental neglect charge.

Police Chief Reg Axcell said recently that youth crime has jumped 70 per cent in a decade. While Lieut. Spratt feels the problem hasn't reached that proportion, he recognizes the problem as serious. And city residents still remember the killing of two teen-agers in separate youth gang wars six years ago.

The liaison section won't halt the youth destined for a life of crime, Lieut. Spratt says, but it can help those sliding in that direction.

Persons Riding in Small Cars More Prone to Injury Finding of Research Board

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Persons riding in small automobiles involved in accidents are more likely to be injured or killed than occupants of larger cars, a team of researchers concluded Friday.

A spokesman for a foreign-car manufacturer retorted that the researchers' findings were a "statistical mongrasshop."

But the researchers, from Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory, insisted that data gleaned from their two-year study proved, for example, that fatal injuries were about 30 per cent higher among small-car occupants than among large-car occupants.

The study, conducted by the laboratory's automobile crash injury research project, was based on comparable accidents involving 12,853 cars, fluoroscoured in 1956 or later, in which at least one person was injured or killed.

The nearly 13,000 vehicles included 771 foreign-made small cars weighing less than 2,000 pounds, 1,085 foreign or U.S.-made compact cars weighing between 2,000 and 3,000 pounds and 10,979 cars, largely U.S. standard-sized autos, weighing more than 3,000 pounds.

NAME CARS

The small cars included the German-made Volkswagen, a big seller in the U.S., and the Renault, a product of France.

Vincent Grob, president of Renault Inc., the U.S. affiliate of the parent French company, in a statement said the Cornell study "creates ar entirely artificial situation."

"A study of the full report, appendix and true-injury death rates, will prove our conviction that small, economy, import sedans are one of the safest passenger vehicles on the road today," he asserted.

The 59-page report said the rate of severous-to-fatal degree of injury was 19 per cent in small cars, 18 per cent in compacts and 16.1 per cent in standard cars. This, the report said, indicated a spread of nearly 20 per cent higher in small cars than in large cars.

The report also claimed that the rate of persons thrown from automobiles in accidents was 63 per cent more frequent among the smallest than from large autos. Ejection from compacts was 25 per cent more frequent than from the bigger cars, the report said.

Whiz Kids From Kingston Win H. J. McFarland Trophy

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward Curling Club, Picton, held its first annual invitation-al men's bonspiel on Saturday. Curlers from Pembroke, Peterborough, Kingston, Belleville, Marmora, Cobourg and Picton took part in the day's play. During the evening the ladies served a delicious dinner of roast beef and Yorkshire pudding and this with beverages particularly suited to curling, plus selections on the bag pipes made it a day to remember. The ice was good, the competition keen and the standard of curling was higher than has been seen here in some time. Of particular interest was a very young rink from Kingston skipped by Dennis O'Connar. These boys had been school boy curlers and are continuing to play together and will provide competition to many senior rinks.

Two of the best matches of the day's play were between O'Connor of Kingston and Tice of Belleville and another between Wilkinson of Belleville, and Hendry of Peterborough. The first was a battle of youthville against experience and the second just two good rinks. In both cases each were divided and the game decided by one rock.

Winners of the various events were: High 3-game winner for the Harvey J. McFarland trophy which was presented by Harvey McFarland Jr. in his father's absence, was a Kingston rink composed of:

Bill Stephenson, lead; Bob Hickeson, second; King Whitney, vice and Dennis O'Connor, skip.

Runners-up were from Belleville: Bill Gault, lead; Fred Maund, second; Wayne Wilkinson, vice, and Ernie Wilkinson, skip.

Second event high two game winner for the Silver Ribbon trophy. This was presented by Bill Gault, a director of the Ontario Curling Association, in the absence of Donald Baxter of the Baxter Canning Co. Winners were—from Peterborough —and were: R. Russell, lead; D. Smith, second; R. Scott, vice and John Walsh, skip.

Runners-up were from Belleville: Bill Gault, lead; Bob Bennett, second; Don Renn, vice, and Claude Tice, skip. Mr. Tice led for his rink and then took the broom for the other members of the rink.

Third event high one-game winner for the Quinte Milk trophy. This was presented by Jack Hartwick, president and general manager of Quinte Milk Products Ltd. of Wellington. Winners were from Picton and were Fred Welsh, lead; Geo. Powers, second; Ray Lennox, vice, and Art Hamblin, skip.

The runners-up were from Brockville: H. Campbell, lead; Bill Kenney, second; George Belsy, vice, and Bill Adam, skip.

Arrangements for the 'spiel were under the general chairmanship of Dan Keeler, assisted by members of the club.

This 'spiel will be an annual event and it is hoped will attract rinks from all over the surrounding counties.

BLIND RUN RACE

AUCKLAND (CP) — Two blind athletes, three guides and by three feet or rope, competed in the annual race up the side of Mount Wellington here in New Zealand. They finished last, but not far behind the field, in one of the toughest events in the athletic calendar.

Africa Slave Trade Still Exists

By KENNETH L. WHITING

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP)—Slave ships no longer lurk off the Nigerian coast waiting to load human cargoes for the Americas, but slavery still is very much a part of the African scene.

Hardly a week passes without slave dealings being reported in Nigerian newspapers. Some recent examples:

"Police investigating reports of slave dealing raided a house at Shomolu near Lagos where they say a deal was being transacted for the sale of a 25-year old youth for £300 ($800) . . ."

"The Abakaliki police yesterday rescued two teen-age boys . . . from being sold into slavery in Western Nigeria. . ."

The problem is on a much smaller scale than the estimated 84,300 slaves who were shipped from West Africa in 1847. The business of acquiring slaves for the plantations of North and South America was abolished over 100 years ago, though it continued illegally for another half century.

The modern-day problem was considered serious enough in Africa's most populous nation to warrant setting up a missing persons bureau in 1959.

Its principal purpose is to investigate anyone dealing in the disposal of kidnapped children. But police here privately actually are child-stealing.

There were 49 cases of slave-dealing in 1963 and 68 true cases of child-stealing, he said.

"No organized slaving gangs are active in Nigeria. It all is in the hands of small, independent dealers," Lynn said.

"The average price for a grown boy in the Lagos area is £400 to £450.

"The slaves are almost never kept in chains and most could escape if they tried. But they are usually satisfied as well as they would if they were free but unemployed."

Two broad kinds of slavery exist today, according to a United Nations report. One is the slavery found in primitive societies, where it has been part of the social pattern from time immemorial.

In this category are boys about six or seven years old who are personal chattels of the OBA (King) of Benin. These children are messengers and chore boys in the Oba's palace in dusty Benin City, now capital of Nigeria's midwestern region.

They are well fed and seem content.

SELL A COMMODITY

A second type of slavery exists among people who belong to a consciously civilized society and who know they are buying and selling people as a commodity.

One of the great annual religious events provides a setting for some of this human bondage. The Hajj, the holy pilgrimage to Mecca, attracts tens of thousands of Moslems.

African slaves traditionally have been valued in Arab countries to perform menial tasks that Arabs are less inclined to handle.

Some pilgrims make the trip from Black Africa with little money and fall prey to slavers promising work in Arab lands. Others are sold to traders by their parents or tribal chiefs.

One journalist reported that weather pilgrims take a stock of slaves with them to be sold en route to Mecca—something like human traveller cheques.

In 1955, the last year for which reliable figures are available, 23,000 pilgrims from former French West Africa were known to have crossed the Sudan from west to east. Only 11,000 returned. Not all of the remainder became slaves, the migration from poor and heavily populated Black Africa to the comparatively wealthy Middle East helps explain the economic base on which Arab slavery exists.

Nuclear Control Prospects Remote

By REM PRICE

WASHINGTON (AP)—By the early 1970s the nuclear warheads deployed by the United States alone will have an explosive equivalent exceeding 20,000,000,000 tons of TNT (20,000 megatons).

An explosive force of that size is so more comprehensible to the human mind than the concept of infinity.

The Soviet Union's capacity for destruction probably will be no less.

Three other countries—Britain, France and China — are also building nuclear weapons and scientists say 30 other countries have the technical knowledge to build them.

There now is no such thing as national security for any country.

Two eminent scientists—Jerome B. Wiesner and Herbert F. York—believe that a technical solution to the problem of making North America immune to nuclear attack is impossible.

Wiesner was scientific adviser to President Dwight D. Eisenhower and York was head of the defence department's Advanced Research Project Agency when it embarked on the search for an anti-missile missile.

An impressive number of scientists and research analysts are convinced that the only possible solution is some form of worldwide arms reduction and control.

But the prospects for agreement in this field in the near future appear remote.

In the event of a nuclear attack on North America, therefore, the main hope for survival —however forlorn—seems to be to run for the shelters. But as matters now stand, the U.S. shelter program is wholly inadequate.

The shelter program is in the province of the Office of Civilian Defence. OCD ceased existence as an independent agency in 1961 when President John F. Kennedy transferred it to the defence department where it now is under the jurisdiction of the army.

If there is to be any improvement in the shelter program, there will have to be a radical change in the attitude of the U.S. Congress and the public.

The annual appropriation for the OCD has been reduced every year since 1962. In that year, Congress voted $252,300,000. This year OCD asked for $358,000,000 and got $105,000,000. It wanted to spend $175,000,000 on shelters and $40,000,000 to stock them with food, medical supplies, bunks and blankets.

Wiesner and York recently wrote in The Scientific American:

"The steady decrease in national security did not result from any inaction on the part of responsible U.S. military and civilian authorities. It resulted from the systematic exploitation of the products of modern science and technology by the Soviet Union.

"Both sides in the arms race are thus confronted by steadily increasing military strength and steadily decreasing national security.

"It is our considered professional judgment that this dilemma has no technical solution."

What Wiesner and York were saying, in essence, was that regardless of any defence system, enough nuclear warheads would get through to constitute a successful attack.

100,000,000 CASUALTIES

Wiesner and York think a Soviet attack on the U.S. could result in 100,000,000 casualties.

"The only kind of shelter that is being seriously considered these days for other than key military installations is the fallout shelter. . . ."

If people would have to live and work in shelters to protect them against fire, blast and fallout, this could lead to such a regimentation and distortion of civilization, the scientists imply, that the very freedoms the U.S. was trying to protect would be destroyed.

The basic question is whether life in such a society would be worth while and whether survival of an atomic attack really would be desirable.

It is the government's position that it should undertake to guarantee the physical survival of as many people as possible, hence the shelter program.

There are estimates that an all-out nuclear attack by the Soviet Union could destroy 90 per cent of the American population in the absence of a fallout shelter program. By OCD calculations, fallout from such an attack would embrace 75 per cent of the North American landmass.

Studies have shown that radioactive danger does not last as long as at first thought.

In 1954, for example, the U.S. exploded a 15-megaton bomb over Rongelap atoll in the Pacific Ocean. The atoll now is populated again and once more is supporting luxuriant tropical growth.

Another study shows that radioactive materi! does not contaminate the surface of water, but settles to the bottom. Water off the top can be drunk.

The studies indicate that enough food, fuels, rolling stock and heavy equipment would survive an attack in usable condition to enable survivors to begin putting what's left back together again.

OK FLUORIDATION, SMALLER COUNCIL

DEFEATS WHITTON — Don Reid, 38, a 10-year veteran of Ottawa city council, defeated Mayor Charlotte Whitton and three other candidates yesterday. (CP Wirephoto)

Don Reid Scores Big Upset In Ottawa Mayoralty Race Defeating Charlotte Whitton

OTTAWA (CP) — Controller Don Reid, a convincing combination of experience, youth and good looks, scored a smashing victory in Ottawa's mayoralty election Monday to unseat the once-unshakable Charlotte Whitton.

The 38 - year - old furniture dealer astonished the experts by making a clean runaway of a race that was supposed to have been a neck-and-neck affair among himself, Mayor Whitton and Frank Ryan, the mayor's 63-year-old brother-in-law.

Miss Whitton, mayor for nine of the last 13 years and never before beaten in the civic field, finished third behind Mr. Ryan, owner of radio station CFRA.

The final count gave Mr. Reid 43,854 votes; Mr. Ryan 26,961 and Miss Whitton 25,575.

Two other candidates were never rated a chance and wound up far in the rear. Louis Joseph Farsky, a retired boilermaker, drew 704 votes and Alfred Lapointe received 383.

FAVOR FLUORIDATION

Ottawa voters also went heavily in favor of fluoridation of water supplies, 58,234 votes to 36,079, and Sunday sports, 39,897 to 33,375.

Mr. Reid, father of four and a lifelong resident of the capital, is considered one of the

Khartoum Riot Toll Is 38 Dead

KHARTOUM (AP) — Armored cars and truckloads of steel helmeted police today patrolled the streets of Khartoum, capital of the Sudan, where the toll of two days of rioting has climbed to 38 dead and more than 500 injured.

While a precarious peace settled in the heart of the capital, new outbursts of violence swept suburban areas throughout the night where vengeance-seeking Arabs pursued southern blacks blamed for starting bloody racial rioting Sunday.

At the same time anti-western feeling mounted. Arab masses and Arab press editorials accused "western agents and missionaries" of inciting the southerners to riot.

Diplomatic sources believed the toll of dead and 500 wounded was a conservative estimate. Hospitals were crowded with victims of the rioting and there were steady new records of victims dying of their injuries.

Wilson and Johnson Seek Formula For NATO Nuclear Weapons Force

WASHINGTON (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson and President Johnson continue their talks today with two main subjects expected on the agenda: The nuclear future of the Atlantic alliance and the situation in Southeast Asia.

Wilson began to spell out his ideas on how to organize a nuclear weapons force within NATO at a mid-afternoon session with Johnson Monday, their second meeting of the day. The British prime minister will conclude his presentation today and then, presumably, Johnson will present a defence of the multilateral force as conceived by the United States.

Wilson is cool to the idea. Instead, the Labor government is understood to propose the formation of a new NATO nuclear command, to include Britain's nuclear bombers and submarines and all or most of the nuclear tactical weapons already in Europe.

The nuclear fleet, drastically reduced from the proposed 25 ships with 200 Polaris missiles, would be part of the new command.

The two leaders will seek no decisions on this delicate and complex issue, observers on both sides cautioned Monday night. The word that no "blueprint" will emerge from the two - day conference was stressed repeatedly, with British and American officials using the same word.

What should be achieved in the talks is a mutual understanding on how to shape the West's nuclear defence, before the issue is taken up with the other NATO allies, the officials said.

Givens Defeats Lamport

TORONTO (CP) — Bellicose Allan Lamport went into political eclipse for the time being today and Toronto municipal politics could look forward to two years of relative decorum under re-elected Mayor Philip Givens.

The rambunctious Lampy, three times mayor and an avowed believer in "rocking the boat" to get action, was convincingly trounced by the 62-year-old mayor, an exponent of city council teamwork, in Monday's lacklustre civic elections.

Only about one - third of the city's 419,000 voters turned out to give the mayor 52,628 votes against 32,143 for his 61-year-old opponent, the city's chief executive in 1952-53-54.

Late allegations by the challenger that fund - collecting methods on Mr. Givens' behalf smacked of Tammany Hall tactics failed to revive a drowsy campaign, and the winner's turnout was far below the 317,011 given Donald Summerville in gaining the mayoralty two years ago from incumbent Nathan Phillips.

IS FIRST WIN

Mr. Givens, a lawyer who as senior controller moved to the mayor's desk when Mr. Summerville died in 1963, won the 525,500 office of his own for the first time Monday. He also became the second Jew to get elected — Mr. Phillips was the first.

A couple of perennial also-rans got no-shows. They were Ross Dowson, representing the League for Socialist Action, and Sahoney, a resort operator.

Mr. Givens campaigned on a platform of "business-like team leadership" at city hall. His opponent called for holding down Toronto's $160,000 a year budget to ease taxes.

"It's too bad to see Lampy go this way," the winner said after the result became known Monday night. "But in the mayoralty there are no consolation prizes."

The loser, an insurance man, had nothing to say about his plans immediately. But he has

THE DOOR OPENS FOR THREE NEW ALDERMEN — three new aldermen, Kenneth Soden, T. A. Scores of Ontario Centres Hold Elections

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Voters in a score of Ontario cities and dozens of smaller communities elected new councils Monday as the bulk of the year's municipal contests were decided. Scattered voting continues this week and next Monday.

The city mayoral contests were highlighted by Charlotte Whitton's stunning loss in Ottawa to Don Reid, a 38-year-old furniture dealer who also defeated Miss Whitton's brother-in - law, radio station owner Frank Ryan. Mr. Ryan ran second in the race, Miss Whitton third.

One incident of violence was reported. That was in the town of Leaside, in Metropolitan Toronto where an explosion tore a small hole in the roof of the home of former mayor Lloyd Dickinson, who lost to Mayor Beth Nealson in the Leaside voting. Police were still investigating early today.

The Toronto mayoralty race drew wide attention as Mayor Philip Givens, who took over after the death of Mayor Donald Summerville last November, won on his own behalf over former mayor and controller Allan Lampert.

Elsewhere in the province the pattern showed a few upsets while other entrenched incumbents held on to their posts.

Voters also registered their preferences for or against fluoridation, Sunday sports or movies, liquor outlets, extension in the northeast Congo.

Will Not Seem the Same Without Charlotte

OTTAWA (CP) — Things just won't be the same without her.

No more shouting matches in the corridors of city hall. No more glimpses of a five-foot pixie in scarlet robes, gold chain and three-cornered hat at civic ceremonials. No more mayor Charlie Whitton — at least not for the next two years.

The 68-year-old mayor who has reigned as mayor of Canada's capital for nine of the last 13 years became plain Miss Charlotte Whitton" at the end of the year.

She took her defeat at the hands of handsome, bland Don Reid with dignity, losing her famous Irish temper only once during election night Monday.

It was only the second time Miss Whitton has been defeated at the polls. The first was in 1958 when she made an unsuccessful bid for a Progressive Conservative seat in the House of Commons.

"They were against me then, and they were against me this time," the former mayor said darkly 16 to 17. "There are powerful Tories in this town who wanted to see me lose."

That theme, and the one of new horizons in her career looming ahead, were often in her conversation on election night as she made a painful pilgrimage from her campaign headquarters to Don Reid's and thence to city hall.

Her first act of the evening was to thank her supporters.

"I'm sorry I let you down," she told leading members of the Charlotte Whitton Committee—the clutch of Whitton supporters who have been by her side since she took up the challenge to run for Ottawa controller in 1950.

Arriving at her headquarters in a somber black dress and grey Persian lamb coat, she seemed a little stunned at the size of her defeat. In the centre of a hushed silence as her campaigners gathered around, the mayor gave them a game smile and turned towards the television cameras.

"I did the best I could—but it wasn't good enough," she said in explanation.

"The only thing I do feel sorry about is that I came in third."

She got a laugh when she added — "of course my critics will be really glad about that—they've always said I was the tail that wagged the dog."

Then, finally at the applause, she continued — "I've always wanted to get a real good civic funeral. In my will, that funeral is to be paid for out of my estate. Well maybe now I'll change my mind and let the city pay."

She left her followers with these words:

"I have fought the good fight —I have stayed the course. I have kept the faith."

And then she was off, accompanied by her campaign manager, Frances Baldwin, to the headquarters of a victorious Don Reid.

Very cordially, she congratulated the mayor-elect. In fact, she hardly let him get a word in edgewise.

"Mrs. Reid," she said to his wife, "don't let him be like all men, eating the meals but forgetting to do the dishes."

For brother - in - law Frank Ryan, the second-runner in the mayoralty race, she had not a word.

Lost in the sea of Reid supporters, Miss Whitton made her way slowly out of the noisy hall as the celebrants chanted "Good night Charlotte, good night Charlotte."

It was then that she lost her composure and her temper, for the first and only time that night.

Local builder Robert Campeau, a long-time foe, leaned out of the crowd with a smile too eager — "I told you you wouldn't win," said he, putting out his hand, "Shake hands."

"Bob Campeau. Bob Campeau. I won't. No, I won't."

Shivering with rage, she was urged outside by two supporters.

Then it was on to city hall where nobody seemed to have quite what to say.

"What will she do now?" the crowd asked, looking at the little lady who stood almost forlornly at the back of the room civic government centre she had caused to be built.

"I'm going home to bed," said Charlotte Whitton.

Earlier, campaign manager Mrs. Baldwin predicted that Miss Whitton probably do some travelling in the near future.

"When you are a many-faceted individual like she is, life goes on."

As the defeated mayor told reporters, she has a book to write "that will tell Canadians what they need to know" about politics in the Ottawa Valley.

"And remember, in only 24 months till the next city election," Miss Whitton said with a jaunty grin.

Vote to Retain Parks Board; David Tops Poll

Only Quarter of Voters Turn Out on Wintry Day

A lethargic electorate sent an estimated 25 per cent of over 18,000 eligibles to the polls yesterday at the dullest civic election in years.

They re-elected four of the 1964 council and sent three new faces to the city hall seats of the municipal mighty.

There was no mayoralty election, Mayor Jack Ellis being elected last year for a two-year term. They elected separate school trustees in three city wards.

Fluoridation of city water and reduction of city council to ten members received solid support. City council's management of parks went down to defeat.

Council members re-elected were polls-leading Enos David (2,229); Frank Murray (2,184); Jack Deacon (2,086); and Jack Allin (1,951).

New aldermen are Ken Soden (2,094); T. A. Carruthers (1,972); and Tom Lally (1,906).

Defeated were last year's council appointee Ald. George Brown (1,842); Ald. Eugene W. Harrison (1,686); J. E. McKinney (1,342) and Gerald Cunningham (1,240).

LOWEST VOTE IN YEARS

According to figures released at city hall last night, the vote was the lowest in years, some 4,674 of 18,371 eligible voters going to the polls as compared to 7,954 casting their ballots in the 1963 elections.

The weather may have had something to do with the light turnout but a general lack of interest was evidenced in the attendance at city hall council chambers where the ballots were tabulated.

At eight o'clock, an hour after the polls closed, there was one spectator in the visitors' section.

This increased to four at 9.30 and when the final results were announced at 11.00 fifteen, by actual count, viewed the proceedings. Of this number ten were ex-mayors, ex-aldermen,

Witch Doctor Mama Onoma Feeds Victims' Hearts to Congo Rebels

LEOPOLDVILLE (CP)—Premier Moise Tshombe's government has charged that rebels in the northeastern Congo dismembered and disemboweled some of their victims and used their hearts as ritual food.

In a white paper on rebel atrocities released Monday, the Congolese government claimed rebel army chief Nicholas Olenga often used a witch doctor called "Mama Onoma" to excise his trophies.

"Witnesses attended scenes in which victims were dismembered, disemboweled and the heart was later used for a ritual food," the white paper said.

The white paper also reprinted an article from the newspaper Martyr in which President Christophe Gbenye of the rebel "Congolese People's Republic" told his followers.

"We will make our fetishes from the hearts of Americans and Belgians and we will dress ourselves in the skins of Belgians and Americans."

Tshombe told a press conference once 350 copies of the document were airfreighted to New York for distribution to UN delegations. He said he would arrive in New York Wednesday to take part in Security Council debate on The Congo.

The council debate was first sought by 14 African nations, Yugoslavia and Afghanistan, who accused the United States and Belgium of having endangered peace in Africa with their recent airborne rescue operation in the northeast Congo.

Tshombe was expected to counter with charges of aid from other countries to the rebels. The white paper charged such aid was given by the Soviet Union, China, the United Arab Republic, Algeria, and neighboring Congo Brazzaville and Burundi.

The white paper quoted Olenga as telling his men they must follow the example of China "which killed millions and millions of persons."

The document claimed the rebels slaughtered 4,000 persons at Paulis, 225 miles northeast of Stanleyville. Some were made to drink gasoline, then their stomachs were slashed open and they were set afire, the book said.

Directional Signals on Latest Jet Planes Used by NATO Made by Northern Electric

Some of the world's fastest and latest fighter planes, now used by NATO and the RCAF, carry directional defence made at Belleville's Northern Electric plant.

Speaking to 75 Rotarians during Thursday's luncheon at N.E., superintendent of engineering, William Simpson, explained how the device functions.

Called a Tacon, short for technical air navigation, the instrument tells the pilot continuously in what direction any given base is and how far he is from it.

When the pilot comes out of an air battle which has ranged over hundreds of miles, and left him unsure of his position, he can immediately switch on the Tacon, get his bearings and head for home.

One of the main difficulties in building the Tacon was to develop an instrument that could withstand intense vibration and extreme changes of temperature for these planes often travel three times faster than sound.

On the desk of the UN dele-gates sit microphones built at Belleville's Northern, and in the Telestar Satellite Earth Station receiving dishes on earth the video amplifier is from Belleville.

Mr. Simpson explained that although the Belleville plant manufactures many defence items, their production is broken down into defence, commercial, and telephone equipment.

Under defence items they have manufactured equipment such as gun laying radars for the navy and supplied all the radio compasses now used in RCAF aircraft.

Their two latest commercial achievements are the master control for CBC in Montreal on which an entire day's schedule can be pre-programmed, and the video system for the new Columbia Broadcasting System in N.Y.

In the telephone area, amplifiers to transfer voices, pictures and data across the country and coin changers are some of the items produced.

To conform with the government's program of expanding Canada's export market, Northern is now trying to establish markets in the Middle East, West Africa, Central and South America.

Their products have recently been on display at the world trade fair in Ghana and will be shown in Brisbane, Australia, next year.

Mr. Simpson told his audience that besides changes in production and export policy, Northern has established a retraining program for employees. Under this program employees learn how to redevelop their skills. When automation or production changes make new jobs, the employees will be capable of handling them.

Recently Northern opened a new Research and Development plant at Crystal Bay outside of Ottawa. The nucleus of the engineering and management staff was drawn from Belleville.

Former Mayor, Ross Burtt, Heads List For Council Seats

TRENTON — The "veteran councillor"—a k a "old war horse"—the man who was mayor of the town for so long, many people still address him as Your Worship—Ross Burtt, galloped across the finish line in Trenton's light civic vote yesterday, with 643 votes to his next opponent's, Paul Tripp's 536. Coming out the list of councillors for 1965, was incumbent Edward Todd with 663 votes.

Next in line was a newcomer to the civic scene, Herbert Sinnett, with 627. George Frederick Cook, 621; Donald McPherson 586; Eileen Forchuk 431; L. C. Pitman 404; R. J. Whitley 403. Alfred Vaughan 260. Vernon Wannamaker 207; Daniel Sexton 256, and Howard Tackaberry 122.

Ex-school board member, Ralph Weaver, led the poll for school trustees with 1,606 votes; next was incumbent E. M. Parrott, 1,574; then a newcomer, Louis Aziz with 827, and incumbent Lorne Hadley with 824. Four members to be elected.) Following in line were Trenton's two new public school member, with 724, James Cook and Louis Knack.

Put back in with a "rallop" in Trenton's civic field, Charles Hillier, defending his utilities commission seat, with more votes than any other man as his opponents, one-time PUC chairman, Sherman Graham and newcomer, Robert Galloway. Unofficial figures give Mr. Hillier 1,330; Graham, 574; Galloway, 573.

School board and PUC figures are unofficial, with the last time counting ended last night several polls were yet to be heard from.

Two of the three "questions" presented to Trenton voters with the civic board will be swimming pool going down to defeat with 1071 voters against and 917 for. The municipal funds grant meeting the same fate with 936 against and 931 for. Trenton voters evidently think the provincial government should contribute more to municipal recreation costs as 1,648 said so on the ballot and 699 were opposed. These figures, again, are unofficial.

MAYOR LED SPEAKERS

Votes were tabulated in the town hall, over the police station, and when final figures were available on council standings, clerk-comptroller O. W. Larry asked successful candidates and other "also-rans" to "repeat a few words" if they so desired.

Mayor James MacDonald led the speakers, congratulating the successful candidates and paying tribute to Councillor Burtt, referring to him affectionately as "the old war-horse." Mayor MacDonald told the assembly Councillor Burtt was unable to attend last night's meeting because of illness.

Paul Tripp thanked his supporters and, while admitting he "had a lot to learn," reiterated his campaign promise to do the best he could for all of Trenton.

Edward Todd, facing his fourth term on council, said he had tried to do his very best for the town in the past and would continue to do so.

Unsuccessful council candidate Donald McPherson urged all defeated candidates to "get behind those elected."

Louis Aziz, making his first bid for public office, said he was "tremendously gratified" at the results of the election.

Mr. Parker and Mr. Hadley expressed gratitude to the voters and praised the work of retiring Donald Sutherland, who, they said, had worked very hard for education in Trenton.

For his part, Mr. Sutherland said he was "disappointed," but would continue to work for education in the town as he had enjoyed his two years on the school board.

NEW YORK (AP)—A 49-year-old woman is accused of attempting to smuggle into the United States 22 pounds of cocaine worth between $3,000,000 and $5,000,000 on the underworld market.

Officials said a young customs inspector's interception of the cocaine at Kennedy Airport after it was brought from Santiago, Chile, was the largest cocaine shipment seizure ever made in the U.S.

The woman, Mrs. Juanita Br..dble, who has a record of 15 larceny and prostitution convictions, pleaded guilty in bail rather than being freed on bail. "I am in danger of my life," she said in Federal court Monday in Brooklyn. Bail was set at $50,000.

What we would give if we could say,

Hello Mom, in the same old way,

To hear your voice, see you smile,

To sit with you and chat awhile;

Oh yes, how much a mother,

Could mean to her family

Till you see her vacant chair.

MACK — In loving memory of our dear grandmother, Mrs. Violet Mack, who passed away December 8, 1962.

We had a Mom we were proud to own.

Now much we miss her will never be known.

But to lose our Mom was greatest we say.

So today our love is mingled with pain,

In the fervent wish to turn back time again.

To have you dear Mom, and your loving ways,

To live once again, those past happy days.

—By son Maurice and daughter-in-law Ruth.

MACK — In loving memory of my dear mother, Violet Bertha Mack, who passed away December 8th, 1962.

A Beautiful memory, clearer than gold,

Of a mother whose worth can never be told.

Alone, unseen, she stands by my side,

Two whispers don't speak death cannot divide.

Deep in my heart the memory is kept,

Of one I loved and will never forget.

And though the years be many or few,

I will always be thinking dear mother of you.

U.K. Labor Soon To Abolish Gallows

BY DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP)—Shortly after 8 a.m. last Aug. 13 two British dairymen died by hanging.

It would have been small consolation to Gwynne Evans, 24, and Peter Allen, 21, convicted of murdering a 53 - year - old laundry truck driver, that they knows they will likely be immortalized in the record books as the last people to be hanged in Britain.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson has promised that the new Labor government will find time for a free vote on the abolition of capital punishment and a majority of the members of the Commons are clearly in favor of ending hanging.

Even if the bill were rejected by the House of Lords the Commons could vote on it a second time and make it law

SOME AWFUL HANGMAN

At the moment there are no prisoners in condemned cells in the United Kingdom. And if somebody should be sentenced to death before the bill becomes law the Labor government would almost certainly grant a reprieve.

The new lord chancellor, Lord Gardiner, is co-chairman of the National Campaign for the Abolition of Capital Punishment and Home Secretary Sir Frank Soskice is a confirmed abolitionist who would never tolerate a hanging on his conscience.

This means that the public hangman, Harry Allen, who runs a chicken farm on the outskirts of Manchester, will never be called on to perform again.

He also operates a mail-order publisher Victor Gollancz, the other chairman of the campaign against the death penalty, can chalk up another victory in the long list of causes to which he has fought tirelessly.

The movement to ban hanging began 50 years ago and the abolitionists have had an uphill fight. They have had to battle entrenched Conservative opinion. Even two years ago a national poll showed that more than 60 per cent of Britons wanted to retain hanging for murder.

Other figures, however, show that an increasing number o' people—members of parliament, judges and legislators — have been turning against hanging.

SPENT ABOUT $1,000

An abolitionist petition in 1962 contained the signatures of nearly 2,000 Members of Parliament in public life, including 39 bishops. A similar petition in 1956 contained only 214 signatures and only 13 bishops added their names.

A few spectacular murder cases in the early 1950s were mainly responsible for raising the issue from a penal to a political plane.

Timothy Evans, a simple-minded Welsh laborer, was hanged in 1950 for the murder of his baby daughter. Three years later Evans' neighbor, John Christie, confessed to the murder of Evans' wife and child and to six other murders committed in the Craig-Bentley case, crystallized disconcent about the actual machinery of justice. Audrey Dennison was shot and killed a policeman in a rooftop battle. Derek Bentley, who was with him but had no gun, was hanged.

By Craig, who was under 18, was sentenced to life imprisonment and was released last year.

Evans argued there must be something wrong with a system that allows the differences of a few months in age to mean the difference between life and death."

There was the notorious "Rillington Place" case in which Timothy Evans was hanged for a murder he never committed. Many believe was actually committed by John Christie. Whether or not there was a miscarriage of justice, the case raised chilling doubts about the claim that the state never makes mistakes.

Moreover, a majority of the Judges and lawyers have become dissatisfied with the way the act works, particularly after a youth convicted of kicking a man to death was hanged only because he also stole a few shillings from the victim's pocket.

The Daily Telegraph editorial summed up the arguments against the bill: "The arbitrary distinctions of the present law are offensive to almost everybody's conscience and cannot conceivably be maintained."

The only qualification about abolition that now exists in most minds is that the life imprisonment sentence should be stiffened to mean life and not just 10 years.

Three Reeves Not in Favor Of Extending Deer Season South of 7 to Two Weeks

Heavy road conditions resulting from overnight snowfall of up to ten inches, delayed the opening of the December session of Hastings county council this morning.

The morning session saw county warden Thomas Burnside offer congratulations and condolences on the outcome of yesterday's municipal elections but stressed that election contests were the sign of a healthy municipality.

The opening session saw a spirited discussion as to whether the deer season in areas south of No. 7 highway should be extended to two weeks instead of the one week at present.

According to the Department of Lands and Forests at Trenton many requests have been received for the deer season to be extended south of No. 7, but it wished the feeling of county council before any action was taken.

WARRANTS LONGER SEASON

The department indicated that the deer population would warrant a two-week season and providing council was agreeable it would be prepared to extend the season below No. 7 to as far as the hydro line running through Marmora north of Havelock, Huntingdon and Hungerford.

But reeves from the three municipalities near the first also opposed to the present one week season being extended. The reasons given for their objection was that cattle were endangered and that hunters left fences and gates allowed gates to remain open.

But Reeve Vern McMurray said farmers north of Hwy. 7 also owned cattle. He said also that hunters could not hunt deeded properties unless they first obtained permission from the owners.

The matter was left on the table on the understanding that a resolution would be brought in before the end of the session.

MAY CHANGE NAME

Another matter which possibly will be decided during the session is a name change for Cities county Home.

Bancroft Deputy Reeve, Mrs. Audrey Dennison, as chairman of the county home committee, told councillors that there were only two counties in Ontario — Hastings and Prince Edward — which retained reference to homes for the aged in their homes for senior citizens.

She said she favored "Hastings Manor" as a suitable name for Hastings county home.

Mrs. Seaxmith reported on the annual county home convention which this year was held at Picton. Old people needed a better life, new inhabitants the opportunity to learn new things. "The aim was to add life to years," she said.

In other business, a letter from Harleigh Hamilton, county representative on the Belleville General Hospital Board, was read, asking that "another approximate" be given to replace him on the board. Inability to find the time necessary to attend board meetings, was given as the reason for his desire to retire from the board.

No Estimate Of Loss in Deseronto Fire

The extent of the damage will give no estimate of loss in the blaze first discovered about 4.15 this morning.

Firemen were still at the scene at noon and cause of the fire was not ascertained.

Chief Fraser said the building "was a mass of flames" when the town's volunteer unit turned out for the alarm.

The Deseronto fire crew received the town's two fire reels with a third truck and six additional men. The fire had burned itself out by 7 a.m.

Baywood, light-furniture manufacturer, employs about ten people and have been in operation for six months.

The building is said had fain vacant for some years, consisted of four-storey concrete addition to the original two-storey brick building.

Vote to Retain

Aldermen and other city officials.

Tabulation and presentation of returns set some kind of a record, due apparently to the light vote.

With polls closing at seven o'clock results were finalized and on the city hall announcement board by 10.30 p.m.

CLOSE FOR ALDERMEN

Entries in the aldermanic stakes staged a see-saw, up-and-back battle until the latelate returns removed any doubt as to the final standing.

No less than four of the successful candidates, Allin, Murray, David and Soden, saw their names at the head of the polls at one time or another.

Alderman-elect Ken Soden took over the top slot at the start, holding the lead until 18 sub-divisions were heard from. At this point Allin was running second, Lally third, Carruthers fourth, Murray fifth, David sixth and Deacon seventh.

At the 25-sub-division mark Allin had taken over the lead with Soden second, Murray third, Carruthers fourth, David three votes behind and Deacon next. Lally had dropped to seventh place.

Allin retained the lead with 32 returns in, but Soden had climbed into second place, just five votes in arrears. Fifteen votes back was David, with Soden trailing him by five ballots. Carruthers, fifth and climbing, just 23 votes behind. Carruthers had dropped back to sixth place, 30 votes back. Lally was still holding seventh place, but Brown was crowding him two votes behind.

DAVID TAKES LEAD

The lead changed with 40 polls returned. David took over the top spot with Murray trailing by a single vote. Allin was upsurged to third place well behind Murray, with Soden in fourth position. Allin had dropped to fifth place with Carruthers next. Brown was seventh in a fierce fight with Lally, who trailed him by three votes.

At the 51 polls mark the lead went over to Frank Murray, with a 9-vote margin over David. Deacon had swept into third, fifty votes ahead of fourth-place Allin. Only one vote separated fifth-place Carruthers and Allin at this point.

Meanwhile Lally and Brown were staging a cliff-hanger battle for seventh spot. At this return Lally had overtaken Brown by four votes. Harrison, Cunningham and McKinney were well in arrears.

David took over the lead at the 55-poll spot—and was never headed, with Murray in second place, followed by Soden, Deacon, Carruthers, Allin and Brown.

But the final few polls decided the issue in the last hectic fought battle between Brown and Lally. In a last-minute surge of vote Lally took the seventh-place in the final results with a 63 majority over his opponent.

There was little or no doubt in the ballots' fight for separate school trustees. Messrs. Cooney, Fleming and Wahl won handily over their opponents.

APPROVE FLUORIDATION

The questions on city water fluoridation and reduction of council members by one at Board of the current 14 saw the affirmatives win by substantial majorities.

The water question met voters' approval with a 1,222 majority, with the reduction of council yeas carrying the day with a crushing 2994-1137 victory.

The question of council management of the city parks was not as one-sided. Voters turned it down by a 276 majority. As a matter of fact the affirmatives led at the 25-polls mark by majority of 8 after an early lopsided-start fight. The pendulum swung to the negative side with 32 polls in, with a majority of 40 votes. The lead was increased to 103 with 40 polls returned and at 51 polls last, increased it to 138.

From there in it was all "nays," the final return giving them the majority aforementioned.

By 10.30, peace, if it had been disturbed, descended on the city hall council chambers. There was handshaking between successful and unsuccessful candidates and the half-dozen "outsiders" present.

On the streets people were doing their Christmas windowshopping. The holiday gadgets and trimmings were far more interesting than a mere civic election.

WHAT ELECTION?

As one wind-blown resident remarked when asked about the results: "What election?"

The city hall staff did an outstanding job tabulating and promulgating returns with neatness and despatch.

The "clackboard boy" kept returns up to the minute despite the fact the larger part of the early audience were members of the news media who had to be there whether they wanted to or not.

The inevitable "amen" to city elections came after the posting of the final results when successful and unsuccessful candidates spoke to their supporters and others over a radio microphone.

The speeches reflected the situation of the candidates.

"At least I'm keeping up my percentage," quipped Alderman George Brown. "I ran eighth last time and I ran eighth this time. However, you can trust that I will be down to council—and if the boys aren't acting right then they will hear from me outside the floor."

BAD GOOD SLATE

Alderman Jack Deacon noted the electorate had "a good slate to choose from and I'm sure we're going to have another successful year in city council."

President Gerald Cunningham: "I tried and I lost and I shall try again. I'm very happy I did as well as I have."
